EXPERT DRAFTS WATER FREIGHT TERMINALS PLAN

Suggests Depots for Chicago District.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

A system of water terminals to serve freight traffic for many years to come—three on the drainage canal, one at the Municipal pier, another at Forty-first street in the lake, still another in Lake Calumet, and a seventh in Lake Michigan stretching from South Chicago to Gary—is recommended for public consideration by E. M. Antrim, traffic manager of THE TRIBUNE.

His study of several weeks, covering the area within Waukegan, Elgin, Aurora, Joliet, Chicago Heights, and Porter, Ind., supplementing his general knowledge of traffic conditions, has resulted in the outlining of a water terminal plan which he believes will best serve the commercial requirements of a Greater Chicago. His suggested water terminals are specifically displayed in a page map in the rotogravure section of this issue of THE TRIBUNE. His complete statement on the subject, together with descriptive map, will be printed by the Public Service bureau and distributed at the cost of printing.

Takes Traffic Viewpoint.

This will give in detail his reasons for selecting each site and explain the uses and benefits of each. Mr. Antrim says his purpose is not only to best serve the present needs of plants, mills, factories, jobbers, wholesalers, and retailers, but also within reasonable limits care for their prospective requirements.

His study is solely from a traffic viewpoint. He has not concerned himself with costs and types of construction. He says his selections of terminal sites have been largely influenced by the character of the location, its rail connections, the distances removed of shippers and receivers of freight, the costs and speed of handling, loading, and transferring commodities, and the adjacent property available for industrial development.

Rail Connections Vital.

Mr. Antrim lays down two principles to start with. He asserts that "the value of any transportation agency is determined largely by its terminal facilities." He is as certain that a water terminal is of limited value without rail connections, and consequently he has selected six of his seven sites on belt line railroads, the exception being the Municipal pier.

The traffic manager has proceeded on the theory that the best chance of reviving and increasing water commerce in Chicago lies in the lakes to the gulf waterway, on which the state of Illinois now is spending $20,000,000 between Lockport and Utica.

Would Dam Des Plaines.

So Mr. Antrim locates his first terminal between Lockport and Joliet, west of the drainage canal, in the Des Plaines river valley, east of high rolling ground traversed by the Chicago-Joliet concrete highway. He recommends a dam across the Des Plaines river. Continuing, the statement reads:

"The land from the Chicago-Joliet highway drops off with a steep decline, forming an unoccupied valley, extending northeastward up the Des Plaines river. This land is owned by the sanitary district. If the water from the drainage canal were turned into the Des Plaines river above the proposed dam, at that point a basin of water would be formed approximately 1¾ miles long and ¾ of a mile wide. By dredging, its width could be regulated so that a strip of land about one-half mile wide would be formed between the Chicago-Joliet highway and the basin."

Practical Advantages Seen.

The Elgin, Joliet and Eastern Belt Line crosses the waterway near this location, which connects with every railroad entering Chicago.

"The harbor thus formed," says the Antrim statement, "has the following practical advantages:

"The most economical operation of barges on the Mississippi and Illinois rivers will necessitate their movement in enormous fleets. These fleets can be brought to the proposed basin and broken up for movement in smaller tows to various destinations, in the same manner that a freight train is broken up in a switch yard and cars assorted and then assembled according to destination.

"An excellent facility is thus made possible for interchange of through bulk freight between barge lines and all rail lines running out of Chicago. It will provide an interchange point for bulk freight destined for interior points reached only by rail lines.

"Then, too, a wonderful site for industrial development will be made available. Industries located here will

EX-CROWN PRINCE AND SON MENACED BY MOB IN BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—Police today rescued the former crown prince and his eldest son, the Nationalists' candidate for the former throne of the Hohenzollerns, from an angry mob ready to stone them in Berlin's main shopping street, Friedrichstrasse.

Rush hour crowds became infuriated when they discovered a luxurious brown car flaunting the Hohenzollern flag, with a chauffeur in the Hohenzollern colors, drawn up at a tailor shop just beside the entrance to the underground tube.

They did not believe the former crown prince would dare to fly the Hohenzollern colors on one of the main streets of the capital of the German republic. They patiently waited to make sure. When the former crown prince and his son emerged, smiling haughtily, papers flew, canes were raised, fists were clenched, and the streets resounded with cries of "Thief! Down with the mass murderer and princely scoundrel!" Police flew to the rescue of the former crown prince and traffic was held up until his car got under way.

Potsdam is seething with rumors of the imminent divorce of the former Crown Princess Cecille. Gossips assert the prince's adventures with his secretaries play an important part in the grievances of his wife.

Slavs Fleeing Italy; Europe Talks of War

BY ENID WILKIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 13.—War was the topic in diplomatic circles of Vienna tonight. Within a few hours, what seemed the usual run of international bickering, which the world has seen no end of since the war, assumed the threatening aspect of a first class European conflagration.

One of the best informed diplomats in Vienna told THE TRIBUNE correspondent tonight that the mobilization of several French army corps on Italian frontiers has been confirmed by one of the legations.

Slavs Free from Italy.

Reports coming from Jugo-Slavia state that panic reigns in the Slovene provinces of Italy, where wholesale deportation of entire populations by the Fascists are feared. Hundreds of Slav refugees from Gorizia, Trieste and other cities are arriving in Laibach. They tell hair raising stories of how Fascist gangs, armed to the teeth with pistols, hand grenades, and machine guns, raided the houses of peaceful Slovene citizens, rounding up scores and deporting them to Sicily.

In diplomatic circles tonight it was reported that Jugo-Slavia also is concentrating troops on the Italian frontier. A partial mobilization of the Jugo-Slav armies is on.

Menace Italian Consulate.

In Laibach large anti-Italian demonstrations took place. Police had great difficulty in protecting the Italian consulate. The streets leading to the consulate were barricaded. The crowd then moved on to the French legation where it chered and sang the Marseillaise.

In diplomatic circles here the general opinion is that Jugo-Slavia is acting as a French outpost while France is getting ready to strike. Unless England acts promptly, war is regarded as unavoidable.

France Denies Massing Troops.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Both the foreign office and the ministry of war today emphatically denied that the French are tempting the fates by concentrating troops of any kind or color on the Italian frontier. Shocked by reports from abroad, chiefly from London, that two French army corps have appeared along the Alpine frontier as a safeguard against the "Italian menace," official Paris is inclined to lay these alarms to British sources anxious to see the French and Italians further embroiled.

Gen. Carence told THE TRIBUNE correspondent on his honor that no troops from other garrisons than the Marseilles and Lyons areas, where two corps of 20,000 men each are stationed, had been transferred to the frontier and no units from other regions were shifted to the Lyons and Marseilles areas. The only troop movement of importance in the last fifteen days has been the annual migration southward of France's colonials, varying in shade from black to tan, who cannot stand the cold of northern France.

BEAT POLICEMAN, BULLETS FLY IN RIOT AT DANCE

A policeman was beaten and severely injured, his pistol was taken from him, and several shots were fired at his partner late last night when a riot broke out in the Lincoln Turner hall at Diversey and Sheffield avenues while several hundred members of the Austro-Hungarian Military Sick Benefit association and their womenfolk were holding a dance.

The trouble was quelled when Capt. John J. Naughton of the Sheffield avenue station sent thirty-five more policemen to the hall. Fifteen men were arrested. Among them was Henry Hosp, 2059 Irving Park boulevard, who is charged with taking the gun from Policeman Michael Langan and shooting at Policeman Michael Carraci.

MARIE'S BLITHE STORIES OF TOUR WIN LAUGHTER

And State Dinner Is Like Family Party.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Marie of Roumania, granddaughter of a queen, wife of a king, and mother of two queens, sat in a high backed chair at a dinner table in the French dining room at the Drake hotel last night and told a small group of Chicago's representative citizens what a nice time she knew she was going to have in this "big, wonderful city of prodigious lights."

And the guests, members of the local executive committee, had a nice time themselves.

They talked across the table; they laughed; sometimes they came near to giggling.

For the tall, radiant woman in the gown of coral sequins, with the burning white pearl tiara was forever laughing and recalling this or that little incident that happened back home in Roumania, or here in America.

Samuel Hill Arrives.

While the queen was being entertained at the Drake, it was learned that Samuel Hill, Seattle banker, had arrived unexpectedly in Chicago last night, soon after Marie, whose host he was during her tour of the northwest.

Driving directly to the Chicago club after stepping off his train at Union station, Mr. Hill was soon joined there by Col. Carroll. The two went into conference.

Mr. Hill at first insisted his arrival in the city simultaneous with that of the queen to be a "mere coincidence." He said he had been called here on business, and intimated that unless "sent for" he did not intend participating, at least officially, in the queen's Chicago program.

"And I want it understood that no ill feeling exists between myself and Col. Carroll, or any other member of Queen Marie's party," he said. "All these stories are simply exaggerations."

Mr. Hill denied emphatically that he intended rejoining the queen's party when she should continue her journey eastward.

Takes Radio Seriously.

When, at the conclusion of the dinner, Mr. Arthur Meeker made a pretty speech to the guest of honor, and the family party cheered "The Queen! The Queen," she cleared her throat, shifted her cigaret from the left to the right hand, and made ready to give her first Chicago speech.

A waiter slipped in from behind a bower of white flowers and placed a microphone before her.

"O, dear me!" said Queen Marie. "If I am to talk over the radio then I mustn't be humorous."

She laughed. Ira Nelson Morris, to her right, laughed. Mayor William E. Dever, to her left, laughed. Her son and daughter across the table laughed.

The man fiddled a bit with the mike. Then the queen, with a little gesture of the hands that included each of the 50 or more diners, said:

"May I sit down while I talk?"

Beats Tattoo and Talks.

Then, ever so straight, and ever so good looking, Queen Marie talked out across the room and into the radio, while her hands beat a tattoo on the carved arms of the throne chair.

"After you have all said such amiable things to me I hope you are not going to be disappointed," she began.

"If that charm you talk about in connection with me really exists, and I hope it does, then you will really like me."

Near by Mrs. Arthur Meeker started the applause. They took it up down the line.

The queen glanced to her left to Mayor Dever and said, most especially to him:

"You know you are really quite right when you tell me every town is the best in America. Every mayor, every governor tells me the same thing. I am interested in seeing if Chicago really is the best.

"At present I have seen your city only from the top of my hotel."

"The little twist she gave to the pronunciation of that word hotel makes her seem as if a countess were talking," one of the guests murmured. And all the guests liked the way she said it.

"From the top of my hotel I have looked down upon a world of prodigious lights."

And the little world of prodigious lights from the ladies' jewels brightened up as every tiara nodded.

Then, straight into the microphone,

Evanston Wife Kills Man on Gotham Street

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Freshly shaved and dressed in his Saturday night best, Luigi Fino, 34, a tilesetter of the Bronx, stepped out from a barber shop near the corner of Bergen avenue and 149th street and started sauntering amid the crowds toward the corner. A young woman wearing glasses that did not fit gave a little gasp as she sighted him and followed quickly.

As Fino reached the corner she caught up to him. Facing him, she fired two shots into his body. He fell and then the young woman fired a third bullet. He died almost instantly.

Women Faint on Street.

The shots caused consternation in the crowds. A number of women fainted and a great throng pressed forward. Darting through the milling crowds, Patrolman Hickey found the young woman standing over the body, the pistol still in her hand.

She submitted to arrest without a tremor and hurried to the police station. There she told her story.

Her name, she said, was Mrs. Catherine De Nino and her home up until last week was 1235 Darrow avenue, Evanston, Ill., where she lived with her husband, Rocco, and she is only 16.

Says He Tried Extortion.

Until July 1, 1926, when she married Rocco, she had lived in Harlem with her mother, Mrs. Mary Scatta. And it was when she lived there that she met Fino. She was only 12 years old, she said, when he betrayed her.

About a week after her mariage to Rocco she told him of Fino. They moved to Evanston. A few months ago letters came from Fino demanding money. A quarrel between the husband and wife followed and she was ordered to leave. She reached New York yesterday and tonight met Fino. She was charged with homicide.

RELATIVE TALKS OF SHOOTING.

Pasquale De Nino of 1235 Darrow avenue, Evanston, last night expressed surprise when he was told that his sister-in-law, Catherine De Nino, had shot and killed her former sweetheart, Louis Fino, in New York.

CORDIAL GRIP OF HAND IS MAYOR'S ROYAL WELCOME

Buffetings Test Her Regal Patience.

A page of pictures showing the arrival of Queen Marie and party, together with visit to city hall, will be found on page 3.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Good natured Marie!

The queen of Roumania arrived in Chicago last evening and for nearly an hour bore much hustling and hugger mugger with a patience so blithe that, whether royal or not, it was voted by one and all to be decidedly womanly and "nice."

The queen was hustled through the Illinois Central station amid throngs of officials and fashionables who fell over themselves and her. She was hustled into an auto, officialdom and fashion falling into other cars amid imploring cries of "gangway, please!" from distracted American and Roumanian attachés, and she was finally hustled amid a really ominous crush into the inner office of the mayor of Chicago in the city hall.

Welcomed by Mayor.

Mayor Dever gave the weary woman —she had done a painstaking Lincoln pilgrimage in Springfield earlier in the afternoon—rational and hearty welcome, after which the queen was hustled back to her automobile and taken to the Lake Shore Drive hotel for an hour's respite from hugger mugger.

The mayor and the queen hit it off well together and appeared to be the only persons in the melee able to retain a sense of direction and vigorous command of the organs of speech.

Our mayor greeted the Roumanian sovereign with a cordial handshake. He stood with his right hand on his hip, looked beamingly upon his guest, and purled blandly along about "our Roumanian citizens" and his "deep respect for their thrift and energy," about "our city," which, said he, "we think the finest in our country," and he wound up by assuring the queen of his "cordial welcome."

A Roar of Flashlights.

So far was good—self-respecting and dignified.

The queen started to reply, but her voice was lost in the roar of flashlight guns.

Explosions were followed by the loud beseeching of photographers that the mayor turn around and face the cameras. The mayor not heeding these requests promptly, the queen took charge of the situation in an instant and for an instant, and she brought order out of clamor. "They really wish, Mr. Mayor," she said, "that you turn and face them."

Mayor and queen then did meekly face the cameras together. There was a final volley of flashlight guns, the hurried presentation of a dozen municipal officials, and then repetition of the rush and confusion of exit.

From train to city hall the whole progress was without precision and without stateliness. There was no touch of splendor anywhere. Lacking the apparently tireless good nature—almost the jollity—of the central figure in it and the easy cordiality of the mayor, the reception would have been a fiasco.

Women in Festive Dress.

The sole gala note that welcomed the queen to Chicago was the appearance at the railroad station and later at the city hall of scores of Roumanian women and girls dressed in the costumes of a festival day in the old land—fabrics of blue, pink and white, bangles of gold, necklaces of bright hued jewelry. They were happy and they communicated happiness to the queen with their jubilant cries of "Traiasca regina!" and their evident conviction that they knew what to do, which was to look pretty and be happy. Amid the flounderings of fashion and the hugger mugger of officialdom they were the only rapturous note.

During the ride through the loop a drenching rain fell. Under it stood an umbrellaed throng that lined the sidewalks of State street two deep and that cheered casually.

"As kind as kings upon their coronation day," runs the phrase old Dryden long ago put into the coinage of the English language, and amid rain and gaucherie this niece of kings and grandchild of the most punctilious queen of modern times lived up to the phrase. So did her son Nicholas and her daughter Ileana. They beamed and beamed and beamed while stumbling through the shadows of the ill-lighted train shed—ill-lighted save when the flashlight guns made a blinding glare —nor did the wail of "gangway please" from the massed attaches seem to them other than exhilerating.

HOMAGE AND PROTESTS

In the waiting room of the station the royal party was greeted with massed American and Roumanian flags, with music by a military band and with the salutes of a detachment from the 131st infantry.

From that homage they passed in a few seconds into a gust of verbal hostility from a few score extremely damp revolutionaries holding up menacing banners and transparencies at the corner of Park row and Michigan avenue. "Stop oppression and murder of Ukrainian workers and peasants," ran the lettering on one banner. Another admonished the queen that she was "spending thousands on a useless trip" while her "peasants and workers are paupers," and a third bade her "remember Cotzofanesti," the alleged scene of certain indecorous high jinks by Roumanian royalty eight years ago.

A Touch of Drama.

The damp revolutionaries supplemented their banners and placards with shouts of "Yaw! Yaw! Yaw" conveying opprobrium apparently but, also apparently, of less concern to the royal family than to Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago, consul general for Roumania to the eastern half of the United States and to Charles Vopicka, war time minister to Roumania from the United States. Both men are functioning spaciously in the ceremonies of the queen's Chicago visit; both attended her at the train, and both were for the moment thrown out of their courtly stride by the forlorn and soggy demonstration in Park row. Whatever the Roumanian queen thought of it the American queens who came to the station to greet her found in it the touch of drama which the hugger mugger hitherto had lacked.

Women Curtsy to Royalty.

Most of the dozen or so of our American queens assembled on the station platform to welcome the visiting queen curtsied briefly when she descended from the train, an act of homage which prompted an onlooker to whisper to Capt. Charles Larkin, one of the police aids in command at the station, "Larkin, is this the first time you ever saw a queen?"

In no whisper laconic Larkin replied. "No, come out to the house and I'll show you a real one."

FEW ALDERMEN THERE

Aldermen were scarce at the city hall reception. Only seven of the fifty appeared in the meaningless and unmanageable crush. Apprehension lest in the impending February elections they would be denounced by rival candidates as a "kowtowing bunch" was soberly given as the reason for the absence of most of the forty-three varieties of aldermen who deprived the queen of the comfort of their presence last evening. Those who gave her welcome were:

John Toman, Twenty-third ward; Leo Brieske, Forty-fifth ward; Edward J. Kaindl, Thirty-fourth ward; Charles Scribner Eaton, Fifth ward; Stanley Adamkewicz, Thirty-first ward; William D. Meyering, Eighth ward, and Robert E. Barbee, Seventeenth ward.

Those of the above who were introduced to the sovereign shook hands with her like men, murmuring the while the customary "it's a pleasure." The deep voiced woman in the sables, the inevitable pearls and the turbaned hat of brown made the identical murmur.

No Courtly Mummery.

There was a refreshing absence of courtly mummery. The mayor seemed to be seeing to that. Poised, pleasant voiced, hearty but not effusive, and dressed in a seemly cutaway, he was a credit to the town and to the straight backed portion of the human race. "I am," he said to the queen in a manner that forbade condescension, because it was a manner of complete ease—"I am somewhat acquainted with the history of Roumania, and it is a history of some accomplishments of which any nation could be proud. I judge that the country is coming back into the influence it once had among nations." And so on. The mayor, manifestly, was not oblivious of the fact that he was speaking for a population nearly a fifth as large as the population of all Roumania.

Eleven Officials Attend.

Of the scores of appointive officials of the municipality only eleven came to the municipality's reception of the famous stateswoman, writer—she has had the honor of appearance in the Revue des Deux Mondes—war nurse, and horsewoman. They were:

Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins, Fire Marshal Arthur Seyferlich, Civil Service Commissioners Nicholas R. Finn and John A. Sokol; Frank Rydzewski and Edward K. Denemarck, members of the board of local improvements; Commissioner of Public Works Albert A. Sprague, City Sealer Carmen Vacco, City Prosecutor Samuel Pincus, and Charles Bostrom of the city zoning appeal board.

PAYS LINCOLN TRIBUTE.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Queen Marie stopped off here today to place a wreath on the tomb of Abraham Lincoln.

As a military band played the Roumanian national anthem, the visitors and their hosts stepped into motor cars and went directly to the state arsenal. Gov. Len Small and his daughter, Mrs. A. E. English, stood to receive their guests, the while the crowd cheered and the band played.

Stepping to the front of the stage, Gov. Small said to the queen:

"There is no honor more appreciated, no tribute more gratefully received by the people of Illinois than the placing of your majesty among the personages of world renown who visit this capital city to pause a brief moment at the tomb of our first citizen and martyred President, Abraham Lincoln."

Then the queen stepped forward and, in a low, reverberating voice, replied:

"I only want to speak a word of appreciation of the affectionate way you have welcomed me. I could not consider my journey to your wonderful country complete unless I had come here to give a tribute and to pay my respects to the name and memory of the most wonderful man the world has ever known. It is a privilege to place a wreath on his tomb."

SPLENDOR MARKS CHICAGO DINNER FOR QUEEN MARIE

Table Service Said to Be Worth $25,000.

BY NANCY R——.

Social formality here in Chicago seemed to reach its zenith last evening when Queen Marie was a guest of honor at dinner given by the city's executive committee, headed by Ira Nelson Morris, general chairman; Mayor William E. Dever, honorary chairman, and Arthur Meeker, chairman.

The hour was set at half after eight, but it was nearer nine when the royal entourage swept from the elevator on the mezzanine floor at the Drake hotel, down the few carpeted steps to the avenue of palms and up a winding staircase that led to the private dining room, where the guests already were assembled, as is demanded by court etiquette.

Queen's Trunk Causes Delay.

The reason for the delay, be it whispered, was that one of her majesty's trunks could not be opened, an important trunk containing part of her glittering costume for the evening.

But the stage was ready for the royal visitor, and had been for hours, when she arrived. The room to which she was escorted, is long and narrow—last evening it was almost filled by the oval table, laid for fifty-three guests, and laden with the Drake's choicest offering of silver, flowers, fruit, gold encrusted glasses and pale green and gold plates.

The room itself is white. Rosy brocaded curtains are draped at the windows. The color scheme for the royal banquet was, most wisely, white and silver and the green of foliage. Urns of white chrysanthemums and rubicum lilies were banked against the walls.

Special Table Decorations.

But the table, ah, the table! Over the coverings of glistening damask were laid squares of real lace. A long mirror in the center supported a silver pergola hung with pale green grapes and bearing a silver figure of he queen Flanking this, down the length of the table were silver candelabra, silver vessels filled with grapes, tall, graceful silver pitchers, high silver urns containing white roses, flat silver bowls of white sweet peas, roses and chrysanthemums. All solid silver, all real lace and old damask, as befits a queen—one of the dei ex machina confided to me that the festal board was worth twenty-five thousand dollars!

"Her Majesty Queen Marie."

Narrow, gold bordered and gold engraved menus reposed at each place, bearing a gold M enclosed in a wreath at the top, and presenting to the guests the "dinner in honor of Her Majesty Queen Marie of Roumania."

They started with "Caviar Frais sur Socle," an army of twenty-five waiters brought the caviar in small cans resting on ice figures [all borne aloft on silver salvers], bordered with diminutive flags.

There were eagles and elephants and fish, carved in the ice, and in the center of each platter, underneath the ice, glowed a tiny red light.

Following the caviar, there were "tortue verte, Amantillado; pai llettes d'or; celeri, olives panaches, amandes salees; filets de sole anglaise, Drake; coucombres Parisienne; poulardes souffles Regence [it took nine chickens to make the feast, I'm told]; asperges nouvelles, mousseline; pommes mireille; salade Alma, gaufrettes suedoise; Dijonnaise glacée, gateaux de Vienne; Moka"—a delicious offering.

Wears Headdress of Pearls.

The queen was more than ornamental, this good looking, charming Roumanian queen, as she sat there last evening, her cropped locks bound by a gleaming white headdress of pearls and diamonds, wide across the brow, crossing the length of her head and ending in a jeweled tassel over each ear. She was thrilling; she was entertaining—no wonder that every one hung on her words.

Her gown was all of shining beads, shading from the softness of pearl through the sparkle of diamonds to a ruby red. Her slippers were gold and red; about one of her slender white arms was wound a deep cuff of strands of pearls.

Princess Also Charming.

The lovely Princess Ileana wore pink, that soft shade that is so chic and so becoming to youth. Her frock was of floating crêpe and chiffon, with a cascade of French flowers at one side. About her throat was wound a rope of graduated pearls.

Marie the Woman Is Late for Dinner, but Window Gazers Are Well Repaid for Wait

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Blue eyes that seemed to hold in their depths the sparkle of diamonds or ice crystals on a winter day, a face unlined by care and a complexion of marvelous youth, a blaze of jewels and bewildering shoulder straps that had a tendency to slip—this was the impression made by Queen Marie as she stopped for a moment in the lobby of the Lake Shore Drive hotel on her way to dinner last night.

This was the first real glimpse that Chicago had of the queen, or such a small section of Chicago as managed to pass the sacred portals of her temporary royal household, or stood in the rain in front of the hotel, pressing eagerly for a glimpse of the fairyland within.

Claims Her Right: Late for Dinner.

The queen exercised the womanly prerogative of being half an hour late for dinner. The royal party had been enjoined strictly by Arthur Meeker, chairman of the reception committee, to be ready to leave the hotel at 8:15 sharp. An elevator was stationed at the royal floor, the 17th. Mr. Meeker and Charles J. Vopicka arrived, and Ira Nelson Morris was on hand to escort the party to the Drake.

The lobby was crowded with photographers, police, hotel guests and employés, waiting for the queen and her family. A chair had been placed near the elevators for her to rest a moment while her picture was being taken again and again. A battery of high powered lights was turned upon the chair, so that she was to rest, as always, in a blaze of publicity.

Excited Flappers Line Wall.

"Like getting married every day," said the excited flappers lined against the wall.

8:15 arrived but no queen.

Reported to be taking tea, or a nap, or a bath.

No one allowed on the royal floor, by orders and special watchfulness of Lieut. George De Mar of the detective bureau and his squad of twenty scattered throughout the building.

Over against the wall, for instance, sat two distinguished gentlemen. One might be mistaken for the chairman of the reception committee, another for a lawyer, as a brief case rests by his side. They are in full evening dress.

Meet "Soup and Fish" Twins.

The observer learns in amazement that they are Detective Sergeants Curtin and Quinn, the "soup and fish twins" of the bureau.

Another imposing personage steps from the elevator. He is found to be Detective Sergeant Michael Ahern, bodyguard for the queen.

8:20 o'clock and the elevator disgorges a lady in dinner gown tugging a fat poodle. The poodle blinks at the lights and the crowd sighs in disappointment.

8:30 and the elevator again makes a rapid descent from the seventeenth floor.

"The queen!" is the whisper.

But Louie, the head waiter, with a bundle of menu cards under his arm, is the only reward. He gets quickly out of the Kleig light arear.

But at 8:45—Ah-h-h!

It was 8:45 before the elevator doors finally open to the dazzling sight of the queen herself, with her daughter, Princess Ileana, shrinking a little at the lights, and Prince Nikolas, in the background.

The princess might have been at the other side of the lights—just a very pretty American girl, simply dressed. But all the girls on the side lines, after taking in the princess in a glance, registering impressions that will appear in their own dress, concentrated attention on the handsome, slightly smiling young prince. He looked a trifle bored, as a prince should, but still betrayed a youthful curiosity at this new adventure in the wilds of America.

Queen's Tardiness Forgiven.

But the queen! They all forgave her at once for being late. They would forgive her most anything, this radiant queen with the crown jewels, stepping right out of a story book.

After some difficulty the reception committee came from behind the crowd, the lines were formed, and the royal party started out into the rain that was not to be permitted to touch them even with a drop. The pale faces against the windows were rewarded and the flash of a new ambuscade of photographers announced the departure of the party, as it had the entrance.

"She is a knockout."

That was the universal verdict in favor of the queen.

The queen displayed her temperamental nature early in her stay at the hotel, complaining, it is said, because she only had one bath in her bedroom, and also about some feature of the elevator service.

She demanded a tailor instanter, immediately, for several of her gowns. She has five personal maids, the princess has two, and the prince has a valet.

Prince's Luggage Misplaced.

The prince was somewhat perturbed because his aid de camp had lost his personal luggage. There was much conversation in French or Roumanian, particularly after a maid of one of the guests in the hotel ran toward the queen in the hallway. The maid was subdued by several policemen before Marie knew anything of the hurricane she had stirred in this humble breast. For it was explained that all the poor girl wanted to do was to get a button from the queen's dress for a memento.

MARIE'S GAYETY AT DINNER PUTS GUESTS AT EASE

Laugh at Royal Stories; Gives Radio Talk.

the Roumanian visitor intoned these words:

"I hope that in these next four days we will live in perfect understanding, getting every moment fonder of each other. And that you will not think that it was not worth while to have had me as a visitor."

It was Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank this time who started the handclapping. Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, seated next to Prince Nikolas seconded it, and the men put down their cigars to applaud.

This smoking, by the way, was one more indication of the informality of this formal dinner. There had been a lot of talk about the rigid rules against smoking in the presence of royalty at some of the functions in other cities. But at last night's party, Mr. Meeker, executive chairman of the committee, lighted up first, with the queen's permission. Mr. Morris, general chairman, followed suit.

The queen began to smoke a cigaret. Other women took theirs and it didn't seem to disturb any court etiquette books at all.

Hopes for City's Good Wishes.

But back to the royal speech over the democratic microphone, broadcast by W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

"I have already seen a great deal of America," she said, "and much too little. I came here with one special intention," with a glance that took in everybody at the table, "that you should all become fond of me.

"When my son was in America several years ago he told me that Chicago was of all places the most beautiful town in America. Of this I am not certain yet myself, because I have not been able to see it.

"But I hope that I will agree with him when I have seen it."

And Queen Marie relaxed just a bit in the big, high backed chair, and smiled.

Tells of Marie's Heroism.

While the dinner guests were cheering their guest, the queen leaned far down the table and spoke to Charles J. Vopicka, former minister to Roumania. They called for him, and he stood up, resplendent in decorations of red. He spoke briefly of the queen's heroism during the war days.

The queen, in a low voice, cut in, solemnly, "Those were the most solemn days of our lives."

"Where were you?" asked Mr. Meeker, across the table.

The queen twisted her head, so she could look around the silver statue of herself and catch Mr. Meeker's eye, as she replied.

"We were in that part nearest the Bolsheviks, alas."

Then, in just as impromptu fashion as if it had been a birthday party, with party china, and party spirit, they called for Mayor Dever.

Mayor Blithely Applauded.

The mayor got to his feet, talking the while about his acquired talent of "knowing when not to make a speech."

"That's a good talent," echoed Mr. Meeker, and they all laughed some more.

"I am not going to bother her majesty right now with telling her the good points of Chicago," said Chicago's chief executive.

"Her mind must be crowded with statistics. And it will take her some time to separate us from ourselves. But I have this consolation, that if the royal party visits the stock yards, as the plan is, I have a feeling that she'll remember us," and he was interrupted by blithe applause.

"May I ask your majesty," Mayor Dever went on, "if in Roumania you are afflicted with after dinner speeches?"

It was a deep toned and a right hearty but merry "No" that the wife of Roumania's ruler sent forth.

The mayor concluded with a tribute to "so fine and so gracious a person as our guest."

Drink Toast to King.

Then Col. John Carroll got up and with a glass of water in his right hand proposed a toast to King Ferdinand. The queen stood up, so did the guests.

"The king! The king!" sounded up and down the line as fifty-three men and women sipped fifty-three sips of iced water.

That part of the party was over. It was five minutes to eleven, and the next part of the program, the public reception, was calling. For several hours the guests bid to the reception had been assembling down in the main dining room of the hotel.

So the queen with leisurely speed left the dining room. To show what a really informal party it was let it be recorded that Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Mrs. Joseph Coleman paused at the door long enough to tell Erik Dahlberg, maitre d'hôtel, just what a nice time his guests had had.

Greets American Acquaintances.

In the ante-rom designated as the place in which the queen was to have a rest before going to the reception, the city's energetic guest stopped, but only for an instant. Here she talked with a few Chicagoans whom she had met several weeks ago in New York.

"How do you do," she said to one whom she had met but casually, "I remember you perfectly. I am glad to see you."

When they asked her how in the world she remembered who was who, geographically, she said.

"I always remember faces, but names, they often puzzle me."

And again, and once again, she greeted acquaintances. Nobody worried about a curtsy. Some did, some didn't. There was no line, no formality, no precedence.

A Dazzling Silhouette.

A moment later Queen Marie, with Princess Ileana, Prince Nickolas, and Mr. Morris, stood on the balcony overlooking the reception hall beneath. She stood, a dazzling silhouette in vivid coral, while the bands played first the Roumanian national anthem, then the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Slowly, these four went down the stairs, through an aisle of pilasters, surmounted with red, red roses, and over to the dais. Her son, "Nicky" as she calls him, stood to her right. And at his right was his sister. Mr. Morris was at the queen's left. Opposite him was Col. Tryggve Siqueland, aide-de-camp to the queen during the Chicago visit, and later Mr. Meeker took his place there.

Names Are Announced.

A flunkey [and there were some who insisted he had been borrowed from the household of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick for the occasion] announced the names of those about to be presented. The first in line were the guests at the dinner. Mrs. Charles Vopicka, who ranked last according to the alphabetical code but first because of her husband's seven year services as Roumanian minister, was presented first. Then the A B C's followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick were the first, after the dinner guests, to meet the queen. Mrs. McCormick curtsied ever so slightly. Mr. McCormick did not kiss Queen Marie's hand.

Queen Laughs at Anecdote.

When Mrs. Stevens Browning, a white haired old lady from Copperstown, N. Y., went down the line with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Loesch, she told the queen something and the queen laughed a lot.

Later Mrs. Browning explained that when she was living in London, during Queen Victoria's reign, she had looked so much like the queen that men were forever bringing her chairs and doffing their hats to her. Queen Marie looked at her, remarked on the resemblance to her own grandmother, and enjoyed the anecdote.

President and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university were well up in the line. Both bowed and shook hands.

British Consuls Attend.

There was a delegation of consuls. All talk, and there had been considerable, of local British feeling running high against Queen Victoria's granddaughter was dissipated when the British consul general and Mrs. Herbert A. Richards and the British vice consul and Mrs. W. H. Gallienne appeared in the group.

The French consul, Count de Fontnouvelle, clicked his heels together, bent low over the queen's hand and touched it with his lips. The other consul bowed low. The ladies in the party all curtsied.

A social slide rule would doubtless have computed that about one in every five women made a curtsy, some low, some indecisive, and that possibly one out of every half hundred men kissed the queen's hand.

Queen Shows Weariness.

By 11:30 the traveler, who had been on the train from 9 to 5, with an accelerated hour and a quarter stopover at Springfield, couldn't keep from letting a sigh of weariness escape between some of the handshakes. Mr. Meeker pleaded for gentle handclasps and brief greetings. Fifteen minutes later the queen asked permission to sit down, and met the rest of the guests that way.

In the tapestry that wove itself before the dias the following people were observed: There were the Walter R. Kirks and the Morris Leidy Johnstons, the William E. Clarkes and the Lester Armours; there was Miss Eleanor Holden, Miss Betty Scriven, Miss Jane Linn, and Miss Elizabeth Beidler. There were Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Brunker and Mr. and Mrs. W. Tracy Alden, and Mr. and Mrs. George E. Van Hagen Jr. There were Gen. Michal Lenihan, Mary Hastings Bradley, and Col. Milton J. Foreman.

Priests Kiss Queen's Hand.

A number of Roumanian priests entered together, bowed low in turn, and kissed the queen's hand.

Others who passed in line and shook hands included Judge and Mrs. Harry M. Fisher, Judge and Mrs. Alfred M. Eberhart, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Eckhart, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hough, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Durbin, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Shaffer, and Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Collins.

At five minutes past twelve the dance music started.

A weary queen sat back, flanked by members of the committee, and chatted vivaciously in French with Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick.

Her son "Nicky" led off the first dance with his dinner partner, Mrs. Francis Johnson, while Mr. Johnson claimed the princess. Mr. Johnson danced the second dance with the princess, but the prince fox trotted this one with Mary Meeker.

Go to Buffet Supper.

At half past twelve the queen, the committee and a few others went once more to the French dining room, where a buffet supper was served. But the first call that went out was for Apollinaris water, for everybody was thirsty.

Later the lady who has been called "Europe's most energetic" as well as "Europe's most beautiful" queen, went back to the Lake Shore Drive hotel to spend her first of four nights in Chicago. By the time she reached her suite all was quiet.

But before she got there there had been great goings-on. One of the maids had been discovered to be a reporter for an afternoon newspaper doubling as royal maid to get a story, and she had been dismissed. Another maid, surprised in the act of filching a princely button from one of Prince Nikolas' suits, for a souvenir, had been admonished.

So the queen went to sleep in an early American four-poster bed, promising to be up early this morning to carry through a busy schedule.

ENTIRE AUDIENCE AT OPERA TUESDAY WILL SEE THE ROYAL PARTY

Patrons of the opera on Tuesday evening, whether seated in boxes, on the main floor, in the balcony or in the galleries, all will have a chance for a peep at Marie of Roumania, who with her entourage will attend on that evening. The royal party has been assigned to four boxes on the north side of the house facing the stage and so located that they may be plainly seen from all other sections of the theater.

Practically the entire local delegation of Chicago foreign consuls and consular officials will be guests of box parties and a number of the consuls will be hosts as well.

Charles J. Vopicka, former United States minister to Roumania, and Arthur Meeker, chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago reception committee, who have charge of the entertainment of the queen, will occupy adjoining boxes.

Indianapolis' Last $25 Buys Gold Key for Marie

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—This city put out some more I. O. U.'s today as Mayor Duvall ordered the last $25 in the municipal treasury be spent in buying a golden key to be presented to Queen Marie. Neither frenzied feminine curtsies nor aldermanic mutterings will greet Marie here. Instead she will be waited on by a group of authors and educators.

LAUNDRY DRIVER HELD UP.

Two robbers yesterday halted Jacob Schwartz, 1111 South Central Park avenue, a laundry wagon driver, in the hallway of the home of Henry Jones, at 1149 Milton avenue, and took $75 from him.

REDS RIOT AS QUEEN ARRIVES; BANNERS SEIZED

Demonstration Broken Up by Policemen.

Indignant communists with banners calling for the overthrow of monarchy mingled yesterday afternoon with good natured curiosity seekers in the crowds that gathered to greet Queen Marie of Roumania on her first day in Chicago.

The communists staged a peaceable riot that did not disturb the queen in the least. Several hundred of them crowded about the city hall a few minutes after the royal party had paid its visit to Mayor Dever, displayed the colorful banners, and shrieked imprecations against the queen and her country.

Capt. Patrick Kelliher, realizing that the noise might be disturbing to the mayor and other officials still in the city hall, ordered that the throngs be dispersed. It was promptly done. The banners were hauled down by the hands of policemen and the reds told to go on their way.

Only Two Are Arrested.

Some were defiant. It made no difference. The police did not want to arrest them and make martyrs of them, the captain declared. Only two were taken into custody and they were released after a brief questioning that brought out the reasons for the demonstration.

A little earlier the same band of communists had attempted to get up to the Illinois Central station and force the queen to view the banners. There, too, the police balked the move. Lieut. William Freeman, set forty policemen on the marchers and their banners were trailed in the gutters.

It was at the station that the throngs were thickest. Driven inside the waiting room by the rain, they packed the entire area thickly. None were admitted to the train shed except those with official credentials, and the queen did not get her typical Chicago welcome until she had climbed the stairs from the platform.

Some in Native Costume.

Lines had not been firmly established and there was much pushing and scrambling before a lane could be opened for the royal visitor to pass along unmolested. Lined up in the room were a group of Roumanian-American women who had been for weeks preparing to greet their former sovereign in native costume.

At them the queen nodded cordially. She did not stop. The police opened the way and she proceeded downstairs to the automobiles that awaited her party. There were cheers, disorganized and intermittent, but in general the crowd was satisfied merely to look on and say today that it "had seen the queen."

At the city hall a considerable crowd was waiting, but its members fell back without trouble to allow passage of the party. Then it closed in on the elevators and passage in or out, except with the aid of the police, was all but impossible.

Called Reign of Terror.

The communist outbreak started at 1:30 p. m., when a meting of the International Labor Defense was held at [illegible] North Wells street. Speeches in which it was asserted that "only in America does royalty get support" and "Queen Marie's reign is a reign of terror" were made.

George Maurer, secretary of the organization, led the rioters. It was he who was arrested in front of the city hall. So was Margaret Miller, a 23 year old girl who distributed pamphlets containing inflammatory matter against Roumanian royalty. Maurer said he only wanted to call the attention of Americans to the fact that such receptions should not be given foreign potentates.

Capt. Kelliher said he would not have interrupted the demonstration at all had he not feared the communists would followed the queen to the Lake Shore Drive hotel and annoy her there.

The pamphlets called attention to the state department's blacklisting of Countess Karolyi and Shapurji Saklatvala, communists, and inquired why royalty was given such wide privileges and such magnificent receptions. They told, too, a story of a purported orgy by the Roumanian nobility in the village of Cotzofanesti while soldiers lay nearby in a hospital.

BLAME POISONOUS CANDY IN CHILD'S DEATH; QUIZ ON

Coroner Oscar Wolff last night ordered an investigation into the death of Mary Golden, 8 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Golden, 7562 Coles avenue, who died in her home supposedly from poisoned candy which she had eaten on Armistice day when she purchased 5 cents worth from a neighborhood candy store.

The child, when she became ill, was attended by Dr. Frank G. Murphy, 7534 Coles avenue, who, when he saw her, called in as consultant, Dr. E. C. Wrightsman, 7549 Saginaw avenue. All their efforts failed to save the child. The parents, pending the inquest, said they would not disclose the name of the candy store keeper, due to the possibility, the keeper might be blameless.

BRENNAN SAYS DEVER WILL RUN FOR MAYOR AGAIN

German-Americans Want Lueder as Candidate.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Mayoralty politics burst out in two spots yesterday:

1. Mayor Dever, returning from Excelsior Springs, Mo., declared his position as to a second term would be determined after a conference with George E. Brennan and other party leaders. Mr. Brennan, however, says Mayor Dever will run.

2. Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, who was defeated by Dever four years ago, was waited upon by a delegation of fifty, who urged him to run after presenting him with more than 75,000 signed pledge cards.

The petition to Mr. Lueder was presented by L. J. Bischoff, circulation manager of "The Progressive," a magazine devoted to the interests of German-Americans. Among others in the delegation were Oscar A. Kropf, an attorney; Max Roth, a retired baker at Beverly Hills; August Torpe Jr., an insurance man; Frank Trautman, a south side hardware dealer; Mrs. Grace Crump, Mrs. W. S. Dickey, and Andrew Aaronson, a membership salesman for the Steuben society.

Lueder Responds Briefly.

"Ordinarily I would say 'No' without hesitation," Mr. Lueder said in responding briefly. "I have a program I want to carry out as postmaster, particularly the new postoffice, but presented as this petition is I'll be glad to give the matter consideration and give you my conclusion in due time."

A platform of thirteen planks was embraced in the petition to Mr. Lueder, among them being.

Urge Subway Soon.

"The construction of a subway and rapid transit system.

"The development of the great Illinois waterway system.

"More and wider roads leading into Cook county.

"Keeping the city clean and healthy.

"Electrification of railways.

"Giving the people a government for the people, instead of for the grafters.

"Driving out the murderers, rapists, thieves, and other criminals who are preying upon our families, property, and homes.

"Honest elections.

"A mayor of Chicago under the domination of no political boss."

Mayor Dever on his return to the city hall, his face ruddy from a week of Missouri golf, preserved silence as to his intentions. He reiterated that he has said nothing on the question of whether he will or won't seek a second term, and said any announcement will wait until the situation has been thoroughly discussed with the leaders of the Democratic party.

Leaders Say He'll Run.

Some of the highest higherups, among them George Brennan, say the mayor will run again. Among the Democrats the assumption has been that the mayor can have the renomination if he wants it, and after the sweeping of Chicago by Mr. Brennan in the recent election, they look for a repeat in April on mayor.

Mr. Brennan takes the ground that Mr. Dever is the one candidate who can make the most of the record on public improvement building which will be the keystone of the Democratic appeal for votes, and that on the record of his administration he can beat any candidate the Republicans may put up. Almost four years in the city hall without a breath of scandal equips the Democrats with a unique issue.

"I have not yet discussed with Mayor Dever the question of a second term candidacy," said Mr. Brennan. "But I am satisfied he will run again. He has simply got to run. He owes it to the Democratic party that he give it opportunity through his candidacy to reap the reward due the party for the splendid administration he has given Chicago.

Owes It to People.

"Mayor Dever owes it to the people of Chicago for whom he has inaugurated many public improvements of great importance that he remain in office to finish what he has started. A list of the more imposing public works begun under the Dever administration contains some twenty-seven items, among them Wacker drive, just opened; the river straightening, and the opening of new streets north and south, a new bridge at La Salle street, and other public enterprises of tremendous import. The mayor owes it to himself as well as to the people to run again, so that he may have opportunity to bring these great works to fruition with economy, honesty, and skillful supervision.

"Then there is the traction question, for which no solution will be acceptable unless it includes a subway. Building of subways is the people's business and Dever is the mayor to build them. Chicago has implicit confidence in the honesty of purpose and integrity of William E. Dever."

RECTOR'S LOVE LETTERS FAIL TO DISTURB WIDOW

Face a Mask as They Are Read in Court.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall had a smile on her face as she came into court today after the luncheon recess. There was a twisted little smile also on the lips of Assistant Attorney General Alexander Simpson as he resumed the Hall-Mills trial.

All morning he had labored over the evidential fabric he hopes will connect Mrs. Hall and her brothers, Willie Stevens and Henry Stevens, to the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, with but indifferent success. He moved over to his counsel table and dug into the pile of exhibits. He found a sheaf of letters and turned to Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker and Common Pleas Judge Frank L. Cleary. He sorted out a card.

Offers Hall's Letters.

"I want to offer this evidence," he said, handing it up to the court, who gravely studied it.

The card and the letters, part of the ardent correspondence between the rector and his choir leader, had entered the case last week when pallid Charlotte Mills, daughter of the dead woman, had identified them as in the handwriting of Mr. Hall.

"The card," said the justice, "containing a short poem, apparently dated Christmas day, 1921, is admitted in evidence."

Mrs. Hall heard the verdict and knew what was coming, but gave no outward sign of distress. She folded her gloved hands in her lap and with her head a trifle to one side watched Senator Simpson. Picking up the card, with its lines of verse in the murdered man's handwriting, Simpson's strident voice began the reading. He held the card close to his eyes, peering at it, and shifting from one foot to the other.

"Dear Heart of Mine," the verse was headed, and it was signed "D. T. L."

These letters appeared at the bottom of the love missives and were variously deciphered as "Dear True Love" and as "Deiner Treuer Lieber," the German for "your true lover."

The senator finished the lines and tossed the card to one side. He picked up the first of eight letters to "My Own Dear Wonder Heart." The burning phrases fell from his lips amid titters from the audience, chiefly women and girls.

Still the woman charged with his murder preserved a manner that was a mask. The letters were not dated, but the first evidently had been written when the clergyman and his wife were on holiday in Maine.

Calls Her "Wonder Heart."

In the "My Own Dear Wonder Heart" letter the rector said:

"Just a line to you this last evening that I am at Wellaford. You will probably receive this on Friday a few hours before I reach N. B. Dearest, I want to tell you what an inspiration, help and strength your letters have been to me. What a revelation of love and character. It seems as though we have opened the doors of a wonderful world. It is here now. We live in it. It is simply wonderful, calm, visible, yet of infinite music, poetry and beauty, intangible yet eternal ties. We know it is ours forever. "D. T. L."

Elinor a Gay Gypsy.

"O, you Dear Wonder Heart," the second letter said, "what a cheery dear heart you have been today; darling, what a gay gypsy you were this afternoon. I could not wait until tonight to see you and find you so full of life and spirit. O, how I wanted to sit and stay with you, but I could not then and then there was our ride. But we will play and some day next week, darling, it is so good to see you well and your own dear self again. Wasn't it a lovely ride? I hated to leave you out down town, but it seemed wisest. It would look queer to go a way up to Carmen street first and it was just the time people would be in the streets, so it was best, even if hard to do, as we did it, dear."

Written in Church.

The next letter evidently had been written in the pastor's study in the church, as the voice of Mrs. Mills, outside in the organ loft, came to him.

The harsh tones of the small prosecutor paused as he darted a sly look at Mrs. Hall. She had not moved and her face was a blank as she returned the look. A slight flush overspread her features, but that was all.

"Darling, the choir is singing hymns," the rector wrote, "and I love to listen and I know your dear voice singing out those lovely words and your heart, too. There is something divine in the way you sing hymns. You live them so. You could easily be a song evangelist. People love to hear you sing hymns. There is the pathos and tenderness in your voice that people feel, and, darling, I must go in now and look at my dear heart while she sings. Beloved all my heart's love for you and there is a deep, deep joy and peace to our heart's content. "D. T. L."

Makes a Rendezvous.

"Dear, dear, darling, wonder heart of mine," he said in the next letter: "Your Saturday lettter has come and all your dear, good letters and poems. Just a line before this mail goes. Friday night at 8 o'clock our road beyond Parker home. I will see nobody before I look down into those deep wonder eyes of love, wonderful as they are. Ever, always, and devotedly, "D. L. T."

Written from Maine.

"Tuesday night, 9:30 p. m.," he wrote next, apparently from Maine: "My own true, dear, loyal, and wonderful gypsy queen. I have been off on a tramp all day—as I wrote to you this morning—so I can't get my letter off until tomorrow. But I must send a line tonight, as we have only one mail a day and it leaves early in the morning. Dearest, you have been with me all day, and I am looking and longing for your Sunday letter, which will come tomorrow. But it will be formal—so I shall look for a true-heart gypsy letter at Seal Harbor either tomorrow or next day.

"Perhaps it would be better to meet at our road on next Friday afternoon, than at 49. What do you think? But to see you anyway—to hold you, crush you and pour my burning kisses on you dear body and to look deep, deep into those wonder eyes of love and just drink of the most wonderful thing in life—our love. Wholly, completely yours, dear heart, storing up health and strength to your gypsy king—strong in that love which has the strength and calm and peace of these granite hills and the depth, wonder, mystery of these refreshing, glittering seas about me. Rejoice, dearest. Dream, dream, dream—for the wonder of the universe is ours. Life is infinitely sweet, and blessed. To have known such love as we have known is to know God—to know eternal life—to know bliss in its greatest ecstasy."

"Wednesday evening, 7:30 p. m. (This again from Maine.) My own true darling heart. Just a few lines before I get to work again on my postcards that I am writing to send around the parish. Your dear good Sunday letter came today. Dearest, about the pictures . . . I haven't destroyed them . . . I love them all so much I can't do . . . and while I know we can get better ones . . . and will get them . . . I want those, too. I have them safely kept.

"I love your phrase that all our memories, even the quarrels, were but stepping stones to the vision of a greater, truer devoted love. That is beautiful . . . and true. We know it. D. T. L."

Asks to Meet Her.

"Dear, dear, darling heart of mine. I had hoped to have a long note for you tonight but it has seemed as though I just couldn't write. My thoughts and feelings have been too full to put in words or on paper. Just one of my moods today, dear, one of my lonely, longing moods.

"You always, dearest, my treasure, my anchor, my rock—oh, dow I did want to fly off with you this afternoon. I wanted to get away to dreamland—heavenland—everything seemed so sordid, earthly, commonplace.

"Can I meet you tomorrow—our road at 2 p. m.—we can have the afternoon together. Or if it rains shall we go to a show? I want to be with you—rather than in the country. I just want to hold you. There is a peace then that nothing else brings. "D. T. L."

Too Much for Simpson.

These letters were read by the special prosecutor, who relished the amorous hyperboles and rolled his tongue deliciously over the passionate phrases of the rector in the letters. Prosecutor Francis L. Bergen of Somerset county read five more.

"It's too much for me," Simpson muttered as he handed the remaining letters to Bergen and sank back into a chair.

Prosecutor Bergen is a young man and he crimsoned as he recited the passionate passages, which were accompanied by muffled giggling that persisted unheedful of the judge's gavel. Bergen proved to have greater histronic ability for the task, but his stressing of excerpts left Mrs. Hall calm.

A Strong, Burning Kiss.

"My own dear, dear heart," the young prosecutor read. "This morning after leaving you I had a chance to read a little more of 'The Mother of All Living.' It is very interesting—much more so than I expected. I am anxious to get it to you, so will hurry this.

"Dearest sweetheart, try and realize how sweet you are when you eat the eclairs—O, how I love to get them for you. Cheerio, dearest heart of mine—I am loving you as you are loving me today. Hard—fierce—and, O, so deeply and truly. A long, strong, burning kiss on your dear lips—liquid fire into your very soul. D. T. L."

Strong and Exalted.

"Dear, dear, tender wonder heart of mine," the next letter begins. "Have you felt what an exalted mood I am in today, dearest? I have so longed to talk, talk, talk with you while holding you in my arms. I am not wild nor fierce today, but peaceful and calm, strong and exalted. Such an assurance. I feel like Tennyson's 'Strong Sons of God.' Immortal love.

"Dearie, dear heart, I want to hold you close, commune with you; hold you tight in my left arm and stroke your dear, firm face and body with my right and look deep into those wonder eyes, hazel eyes.

"Dearest, you are like a crystal to me. I will call them crystal eyes. I seem to see and feel all the awe and wonder of the universe in them and I am full of awe and wonder today. I want you and music. I will bring the Victrola.

Thinks About Prayer.

"I have been thinking a great deal about prayer. Have you been praying this morning for me? I feel sure you must have been, even if you are not conscious of it.

"Love and prayers! What wonderful power! Isn't psychic influence strange and wonderful?

"Let us meet at our road at 2:15. I will get there first, so you will not have to wait if it rains.

"Beloved heart, you are all the wonder of life for me—life, love, mystery, will power, affection are all bound up in you, the true Eve, the mother of all life and love for me. I feel your firm, strong fingers gripping mine as we crush one another in a firm, strong embrace.—Your darling."

More Maine Letters.

A letter dated Seal Harbor Postoffice was then read.

"O you dear, dear angel sweetheart. Your dear, dear letter, and what volume I wanted to write, but I have just a moment now. Writing you a long letter soon and answer your various questions. Dear, your letters are blessings to me. I could not endure the separation without them.

"O, will the time never pass, thought and longings are so strong through me, that I can only let these sweet peas say all that I want to say. You are a royal queen. You are perfectly right. You are wonderful, dear, more wonderful every moment. I will write more tomorrow. Every moment, every breath. D. T. L."

About to Return.

"Dear, dear heart of mine: I am writing freely to you—I must—I get all wrought up inside unless I 'talk it out'—and I do by myself every moment know you hear me caressing you. Good night, good night, beloved—my whole heart's love—with mountain of strength and oceans of depth.

"Don't you think I had better not plan to come to 49 when I get back? I know I shall not be able to speak and will just want to crush you for hours—too pent up to speak, for words are too feeble. Darling, I want to see you Friday night—alone—by our road—where we can let out unrestrained that universe of joy and happiness that will be ours.

"Mrs. Hall wonders why I am taking only three Sundays this year. She doesn't know how hard it is to take those. O, 'forever' is so true. I know you are here. Blessed heart, I kiss you—tenderly—fiercely—O, such love—yes, as I felt at Geneva—Bernardsville—everywhere I longed and yearned and dreamed—it was you, darling—you I was longing for—O, I know it so well—my true mother—my gypsy—my heart—my life. Always. "D. T. L."

The letters were the high mark of the day's sessions, during which seven witnesses were heard.

CO-EDS LEFT IN DOUBT AS TO WHO'LL DANCE WITH CADETS, MIDDIES

Co-eds at Northwestern and the University of Chicago are still on the anxious seat since the announcement that some of their number would be invited as hostesses for the West Point and Annapolis men at the dinner-dance to be given Friday night, Nov. 26, preceding the Army-Navy game.

Dean Winifred Richardson of Northwestern said yesterday she had not begun selection of the names of the girls from that institution who will receive invitations. Sorority groups will receive no special favors, she declared, and the names submitted to the committee in charge will be drawn impartially from the various schools and classes. Seniors, juniors, sophomores, and freshmen will be represented.

Edith Foster Flint, president of the women's council at the University of Chicago, has vetoed the freshmen. Her list is made up, she said, but she would not reveal her selections, made with the help of a committee of five, until the invitations had been issued. No disclosures were made as to the basis of selection, but it was indicated that social experience counted.

LOCK ON STRIKE; TAKES COURT TO PRISONER'S CELL

M. E. Leon of Winnetka Also Held to Grand Jury

Court in the case of the people against Malvin E. Leon was held yesterday in the cell room of the Winnetka police station before the cell door behind which, unfortunately, Malvin had been incarcerated for three days. When court adjourned, Judge R. E. Sinsheimer being unable, as will be related, to let Leon out any way, held him to the grand jury in $2,500 bonds.

Leon, who resides at 817 Elm street, Winnetka, was arrested on a charge of larceny by bailee brought by Miss Dorothy Du Shan of 1230 Wilmette avenue, Winnetka, who said she gave Malvin a diamond ring on which he loaned her $40; and that he refused to return the ring when she returned his money.

Cell Door Won't Unlock.

Leon was to appear yesterday before Judge Sinsheimer. The judge opened court and sent a policeman to the cell house to get him. Now the Winnetka police station is in the new $250,000 village hall; the locks on the cells are new. When the policeman tried to unlock Malvin's cell door it would not unlock.

The policeman tried for an hour.

"Well," the judge said, "this is unusual, to say the least. But," he added, "since 'the mountain won't come to Mahommed, Mahommed will go to the mountain.'"

Takes Court to Prisoner.

And he forthwith opened court before the cell door behind which Leon sat.

With—as has been stated—the result that since he could not handily let Malvin out, the court let him stay there.

Fall Is Fatal to Visitor at Fire Engine Station

David Conroyd, 65 years old, 5313 Leland avenue, was fatally injured yesterday when he fell from the second to the first floor of the headquarters of Engine company No. 108, at 4835 Lipp avenue. He died a short time later at the Montrose avenue hospital. Conroyd had gone to visit Capt. John Cook at the fire house and stepped on the canvas covering of the hole surrounding the pole on which firemen slide down.

ALLIGATOR LOST IN LINCOLN PARK; BOY CAPTURES IT

Somebody lost an alligator in Lincoln park yesterday. It was a slippery, slimy alligator, apparently a young one, two feet long and formidable of jaw.

Driving his motorcycle along the west boulevard of the park just south of Diversey boulevard about 10 o'clock a messenger boy for the Curtiss Candy company, known only as Mike, sighted the reptile as it crawled across the pavement ahead of him. Mike stopped. Attacking from the rear, he seized the alligator around the middle and dumped it into his sidecar.

At the office of the candy company, 750 Brair place, Mike put his captive in a tub and fed it a menu of choice flies. If no one puts in a claim by tomorrow the alligator will either be sold for storage costs or shipped to the dog pound.

When Arrested She Wants Her Age Given Correctly

Dr. Lucy Hagenow of 301 West North avenue was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of performing an illegal operation. She was angry when the police asked her age and declared the charge untrue. "Every time I am arrested," she said, "the newspapers say I am from 80 to 83 years old. I am only 75 ad don't look that. I wish they would get that right."

AGED MAN KILLED.

Joseph Laskowski, 76, 1810 North Park avenue, was found dead in the freight elevator of the Walter J. Hirsch company, grocers, 1603 South Laflin street, yesterday morning by fellow workers. The aged man, who was a janitor, had been killed when his head was caught and crushed between the elevator and the second floor, blood stains indicated.

GIRL, 11, SEIZED BY SHABBY MAN; CRIES FREE HER

A shabbily dressed man about 28 years old attempted to pull 11 year old May Nelson, 6731 South Wabash avenue, into an alley last night as she was passing 65th street and University avenue. Her screams frightened him and he released her. She ran into the street crying for help and her assailant disappeared.

The Nelson girl had been to the American Conservatory of Music and was returning home with her violin when she was seized. Woodlawn police and a detective bureau squad searched the neighborhood, but failed to find the shabby stranger.

TURCO-RUSSIAN PARLEY ON; ASIAN LEAGUE IS SEEN

We Want Peace, Turkish Foreign Chief Says.

ODESSA, Ukraine, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Foreign Ministers Tchitcherin of soviet Russia and Tewfik Rushdi Bey of Turkey, meeting for their much discussed conferences, had a private conversation lasting three hours today.

Afterward it was stated that they went over all the questions of international interest to their two countries. The "highest satisfaction" was expressed that their "long established common views remained unchanged."

Says Turkey Wants Peace.

Tewfik told newspaper men his presence on Russian soil was the best proof of the cordial relations between Turkey and soviet Russia.

"Turkey's foreign policy," he said, "is directed to the support of the world's peace and the friendly relations between neighbors. The recent treaty between Turkey and other countries is an indication of this."

Asiatic League Seen.

The meeting between the foreign ministers of Turkey and Russia is considered in some quarters as the first visible step toward the creation of a solid bloc consisting of soviet Russia, Turkey, Persia, Afghanistan, and eventually China, which may possibly lead ultimately to the establishment of the Locarno principle in Asia and the creation of an "eastern league of nations."

It is regarded as Russia's aim to create a strong counterbalance to the European alliances, the little entente agreements, and other instrumentalities which the Russians believe are against their interests.

Youth Has Stroke, Falls on Stove; Fatally Burned

Ignatz Selhazy, 17 year old high school student, was fatally burned yesterday afternoon when he fell across an electric stove while taking a shower bath in the basement of his home at 607 York street, Blue Island. Apparently the youth suffered a stroke and was unable to move from the stove. His cries attracted the attention of members of the family, but the doors were locked and they had to chop their way in to him. Selhazy died as he was being taken to the St. Francis hospital.

Dime Novel Intrigue Bared as French Jail Garibaldi

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Plot and counterplot, machine gun ambushes and keen detective work all combined to make the discovery of the recent Catalan conspiracy a real chapter in a "thriller" that has all the elements of a dime novel.

It was the extraordinary memory for faces of Inspector Bringer of the French secret service that smashed the plot and resulted today in the formal arrest of Col. Francisco Macia, former Spanish deputy, on charges of storing and distributing arms and explosives, and Col. Ricciotti Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian patriot, for conspiracy.

Bringer accidentally ran across an Italian secret service man in the streets of Nice a few weeks ago. He had seen him only once, but he recognized him and wondered at his unannounced presence in France. He followed him and stumbled on a strange combination of plots within plots that was about to send the Catalan republican conspirators to a bloody ambush across the Spanish frontier.

Plot Smacks of Medieval Days.

The Italian inspector shadowed by Bringer was found to have a false passport. His papers were seized and put the French on the track of what they described as a conspiracy smacking of medieval days.

The scheme as unearthed, in the beginning looked like a plot in which Italians were to help the Spanish Republicans to invade Catalonia. The connection with the Italian police of some of the leaders of the intrigue, however, French police say, led to the revelation that the Italian participation was merely a blind and that Col. Macia was destined to be double-crossed.

An Italian emissary was shadowed and when he crossed the Pyrenees to give the conspirators away to the Spanish authorities the French police were certain that the Catalan plotters were being led into a trap. Then began a search for the mainspring of the movement with the consequent arrest of Garibaldi and search for evidence that large sums of money had come to him from Italian sources.

Meant Involvement with Spain.

The opinion expressed in official circles is that France would have been involved in grave unpleasantness with Spain if she had overlooked the organization on her territory of a plot against the safety of that country.

Col. Macia and Col. Garibaldi today were transferred from the police to the judiciary authorities on order of Minister of Defense Louis Barthou. They were sent to Sante prison to await further investigation into the conspiracy.

Mussolini Refuses to Hide.

ROME, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, who preaches the doctrine, "Live dangerously," is living up to it by mapping out a program for the future which will carry him more than ever before the public despite pleas that he protect himself from further attempts at assassination by secluding himself.

Protection by keeping out of the public eye, the duce feels, according to those close to him, would be treason to the Italian people, who see in him a symbol of the nation's spirit of indomitable fearlessness. Keeping in the limelight may be an optional privilege for the ordinary mortal, but it is an obligation and a duty for a generalissimo who preaches the doctrine, 'Live dangerously,' risk should not be the spice but the staff of life for a weak nation which dares hope to be strong."

Shows Himself Frequently.

Practicing what he preaches, the premier, since the recent attack upon him at Bologna, has shown himself in public at every opportunity. He has walked through the streets and driven daily in his limousine from his home through the crowded center of Rome; has reviewed troops and Fascist militia; has shown himself on the famous balcony of the Chigi palace; has presided at a public session of the chamber of deputies, and in a dozen other ways has offered an easy target for bullet or bomb.

And now he has mapped out a program for the future which entails more rather than fewer direct contacts with the people.

"I am confident," he repeated on several occasions this week, "that nothing and nobody can harm me until my task is completed."

More Closely Guarded.

Although refusing to shut himself off from the people, the premier has consented to other means of protection from would be assassins. By means of the new law for the defense of the regime, every man, woman and child, suspected even remotely of opposition to the regime, is being closely watched on every occasion when the premier is within the range of danger. The throngs are literally honeycombed with police agents, soldiers and militiamen, while the most rigid cordons prevent any one from coming near him.

Regulations governing entrance to the chamber of deputies and the Chigi palace, whenever he is present, have been stiffened. When the premier is in th streets no one, carrying a package of any description, or who is acting suspiciously, is allowed within several hundred yards.

GARDEN DENIES SHE'LL QUIT TO RUN OWN OPERA

"It isn't true," is Mary Garden's answer to the report that she will quit the Chicago Civic Opera company at the close of this season to head a company of her own in a tour of America in the opera "Resurrection."

Until next April 1, Miss Garden said, she will remain a member of the Chicago company, singing "Resurrection" in the fourteen cities scheduled for the annual tour, which opens in Boston late in January. And after that?

"After that?" she repeated. "How can I say. I may be dead. But no more opera management. Once is enough."

THE NEW CONFLICT OF STATES.

Charles E. Hughes, as a special master for the United States Supreme court, is now hearing the case of states against states over the diversion of lake water into the Mississippi valley. The suits were brought by Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Minnesota, and New York against the Chicago sanitary district and the state of Illinois, which have been joined in defense by the states of Missouri, Tennessee, Louisiana, and Kentucky.

The contest, of which this is one phase, is important in its consequences to great areas of the country and in the relations of the states to each other and of the United States to Canada. It has an interesting historic background.

The issue in court is the diversion of water which has kept the Chicago water supply pure and which will create the waterway to the gulf. The actualities of that issue were disposed of by Secretary Hoover when he said it was a question for engineers and not for lawyers. If lake levels were the real matter of concern the remedy would be found in engineering plans, as it can be.

The contest is economic and political, and as such it is older than the nation. The opposition is one of sea and lake port cities controlling the politics of their states and seeking to prevent the development of the valley country. It is one of greater animus than intelligence; and lack of intelligence, as we see it, has drawn to the seaboard side some western states which by instinct should be with the valley.

The position of the Atlantic seaboard is traditional. When the seaboard states were colonies it was the position of the British board of trade and plantations. The colonists should not get beyond the Atlantic watershed. If they went beyond the mountains they not only would interfere with the fur trade by turning forests into farms, but they would carry their trade down the Mississippi to the gulf.

New York and Pennsylvania follow this historic line. Ohio has its Mississippi waterway connection by the Ohio river, for which lavish federal appropriations have been obtained. Michigan, which was robbed of lake ports by Ohio before it was admitted to the Union, curiously enough has thrown in with the despoiler, and Wisconsin and Minnesota have allowed jealousies and stupidities to blind them to what might be opened to them in the valley without detriment to what they have on the lakes.

Chicago sits on the low watershed between the two great systems of the United States east of the Rockies, a watershed so low that spring floods will go over it and in the old days would allow passage without a portage. It is therefore conceived in cities which think of rivalry rather than coöperation that Chicago would get the tremendous advantage of developing both a waterway to the sea and a waterway to the gulf, and should be prevented from getting the latter.

That motive is apparent. Coöperation in engineering would correct the lake levels. Controversy in politics and litigation is not doing that, but it is impeding the gulf waterway.

At the point where water begins to flow into the Mississippi and not into the Atlantic there has been a line of conflict. As has been said, the colonials once were ordered not to go over it. At another time the colony of Quebec was extended down to the Ohio river, including the present midwest, to keep American colonial governments from extending into it.

After independence was obtained it was thought that the Mississippi watershed could not be kept in the Union, and many short sighted patriots and many far sighted intriguers believed that a new confederacy must inevitably come west of the mountains. Indifference to the interests of the people who had gone west of them and opposition to their needs worked for this separation. The short lived state of Franklin, of which John Sevier was governor, was a rebellion against the seaboard hostility. Transylvania was another political unit which was suppressed. The people of Kentucky and Tennessee freely discussed cutting loose from the east and turning to find their political fortunes in the valley south of them. Jefferson was forced to abandon some of his principles and make the Louisiana purchase for fear, if he did not bring this territory under the flag, the nation would lose the valley people.

The economic differences which took issue in slavery and divided the north and the south might have taken issue between the east and west and found a line of division and conflict where the waters flow one way to the Atlantic and another way to the gulf.

In this day we are only continuing the struggle, Chicago and Illinois coöperating with the valley states to get from the east the opportunity to make the most of the valley resources and to bring into existence the development of life of which it is by nature able to attain. The eastern seaboard has never consented to this without a fight, and the fight again is on.

VARE, SMITH, AND NEWBERRY.

There is already considerable speculation, mixed with advice and forecast, as to what ought to be done to Smith of Illinois and Vare of Pennsylvania when they present their credentials to the United States senate. There is also some harking back to Newberry of Michigan, who resigned from the senate because his character was so assailed in connection with his primary campaign expenses.

Senator Borah is convinced that Vare and Smith ought not to be allowed to sit. The senate is the judge of its own membership. It took it a long time to make up its mind that Lorimer was ineligible because of the manner of his election. Borah has support for his view in the senate.

In the senate and out of it there seems to be a readiness to group Newberry, Vare, and Smith together. That ignores the facts. Newberry was being fought in the Republican primaries by the money and organization of Ford, who did not know himself whether he was a Republican or Democrat and who did not care. For Newberry something over $180,000 was spent in the canvass of the state, and it was convenient for his opponents to make the amount itself immoral. It wasn't much for a contest with Ford's resources, backed by the Wilson administration, but it was seemingly regarded as improper for Newberry to have put up any fight at all.

Vare stacked his pile against that of Pepper and that of Pinchot. Because Pinchot was a dry and because Pepper could be regarded as at least more dry than wet, it did not register as anything particularly scandalous that they spent money. Vare was regarded as a lowbrow, and his money could not have any of the reputability of Pinchot's. Shall a lowbrow and a wet who probably cannot register socially at all be allowed to spend money more successfully than two socially reputable citizens, and get a seat in the United States senate by so doing?

Frank Smith had some money of his own when he went after McKinley's seat in the senate, but not as much as McKinley. And he did not care to spend it getting into the senate. He was willing to spend money, but not his own. As chairman of the state board controlling public utilities he knew where money could be got. His campaign fund got it. Bertha the Beautiful Cloak Model did not spend the night in the snow.

The senate will have an interesting time when Vare and Smith hand in the credentials indorsed by the freemen of their states. There'll be considerable sporting interest in it throughout the country and an airing of ethical, political, legal, social, and other considerations.

THE DISEASE OF BUREAUCRACY.

Alexei Rykov, one of the political leaders of the faction now in control at Moscow, says: "Our worst disease is bureaucracy, and it is becoming more dangerous as life grows more complicated and the government is compelled to spend immense sums to industrialize the country."

Just so. In a village communism may work. In a nation, as even the Russian doctrinaires are discovering, it produces evils which more than offset any benefits the proletarian can receive from his protection from what Socialist doctors call capitalist exploitation. If capital and management take more than their fair share of the profits of enterprise this is a lighter burden in the long run than that which bureaucracy places upon the producer. The bureaucrats at best are no more producers than capitalist managers, and they are less efficient and contribute less to the productive efficiency in the results of which the worker shares. Stripped of its idealistic disguise, socialism is nothing but bureaucracy. It can be nothing else. It means management that has a minimum of industry, initiative, and inventiveness. It means management by officials, by job holders who cling to routine and resist change. The wastage of bureaucracy is far greater than that which the Socialist ascribes to competition.

It may be argued, not without force, that the elimination of the fierce competitive struggle of a free society might produce moral effects which would compensate for the loss of energy involved, that the life of most men and women would be more serene and secure under socialism. We do not think it would be more worth living, but we are certain that human progress would be retarded and that productive wealth would steadily decline to the eventual impoverishment of all, including the manual worker.

To be bossed and burdened by officials is not a fate the American freeman covets, and that is what socialism means. It is only another form of human tyranny and a very inefficient one.

The Other Side

A NEW BLACK BEAST.

[Grand Rapids (Mich.) Press.]

Fashions change in political bogies. Back in Mr. Bryan's day Wall street was anathema and New York the "enemy's country," as the Great Commoner called it. Much water has passed over the dam since the period when investment was ceasing to be local and becoming national and capital centered in New York was being put into enterprises the country over.

Wall street is comparatively popular now. International bankers have taken its place as the black beast of the political imagination. They are new, strange and alien. The very word international has a bad connotation. Isn't there the Third International, whatever it is, with base designs upon society? And isn't internationalism a dream of pacifists calculated to rob a people of their heroic virtues? It is natural to suspect the worst of anything bearing the name international.

The international bankers represent another movement of American money and ownership. When Mr. Bryan cried out against Wall street, money from the centers where it accumulated was seeking its way into the localities and scaring good local citizens to death because New York had become the financial center of the United States. Today it is the financial center of the world, and American money is seeking its way out into the world. The international banker assists in the operation.

The international banker, being something new and alien to our experience, is the object of a good deal of fear and prejudice. The very word international seems to rob him of his character as an American. He is a sort of citizen of no country, who might just as well owe allegiance to the country to which he lends as to the country whose money he lends. So, until we get used to this business of foreign investments, the international bankers are due for a good deal of banging from politicians and the uninformed.

NEUTER TONE.

A violinist entered a country music seller's shop.

"I want an E string, please," he said.

Producing a box, the latter said: "Would you mind pickin' one out for yourself, sir? I 'ardly knows the 'e's from the she's!"—Tid Bits.

PERSONAL EVANGELISM

BY COURTENAY BARBER.

[General Agent of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. Chairman of the Committee on Lay Evangelism of the Episcopal Church.]

The Protestant Episcopal church in its general convention of 1925 came to the realization that as the average annual increase in membership was only 25,000 a very large percentage of its million communicants must be unconscious of their commission to share the rich heritage of their relationship to Christ with others.

In order to bring the unconscious membership into a state of consciousness in relation to this most vital privilege of life, the general convention directed the presiding bishop to appoint a national commission on evangelism, consisting of four bishops, four priests, and four laymen, for the purpose of organizing a plan to be incorporated in the life of the church which will revive personal evangelism as a normal working principle in the life of every member.

The following statement issued by the national commission makes clear the objective:

"The national commission on evangelism was created in 1925 by general convention in response to a widespread appeal from all parts of the church for a new emphasis upon the value and necessity of incorporating personal evangelism in the life of the membership of the church.

"The testimony received by the commission evidences afresh the world's need of a real and vital religion—a need which the church can best meet by pressing the high claims of evangelism, that is, recognizing in a more emphatic way the saving of the world through a living Christ.

"The commission strongly feels that this must not be merely an ephemeral movement and again that it shall not be characterized by an elaboration of details or the setting up of complicated machinery.

"After prayerful consideration the commission sets forth the following as indicating the purpose and objective of the approaching effort throughout the whole church, the initial step of which is the bishops' crusade, a call to rededication to Jesus Christ in life and service.

"1. Confession of Christ openly before men as Lord and Savior. 'Not only with our lips, but in our lives.'

"2. Regular daily individual and family prayer. 'Lord, teach us to pray.'

"3. Understanding better the mind of Christ through daily Bible reading. 'That I may know Him and the power of His resurrection.'

"4. Seeking strength for service through worship and sacrament. 'I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.'

"5. Active service by every member of the church. 'Laborers together with God.'

"6. Developing a deeper sense of individual responsibility for bringing others to Christ. 'He first findeth his own brother. He brought him to Jesus.'

"7. Earnest effort to combat worldliness by more consistent living of the Christian life. 'What do ye more than others?'"

To secure the consideration and appreciation of these high objectives on the part of one million communicants so that they will appropriate and apply them day by day as they work and play and worship, represents the greatest undertaking ever attempted by the church in America for many generations.

It is not a campaign, but is a plan to reincorporate a fundamental objective in the life of the church, not for a day but for all time.

It will require inspiration, education, and training on the part of every member in order to realize this high objective, the rededication to Jesus Christ in life and service.

In order to mobilize the active membership to immediately relate themselves to this most important undertaking, every bishop has been asked to appoint a diocesan commission on evangelism to coöperate with the national commission and to endeavor to secure the coöperation of the clergy of the diocese through the appointment of a parochial committee on evangelism in every parish and mission through which the individual membership will be reached.

The bishops' crusade will inaugurate this important program, sending into every diocese throughout the nation during next January and February two missioners who will conduct two six-day missions of inspiration and education on personal evangelism, so that the entire church may realize that every member is being called upon to enlist for service.

The progress of mankind in the realization of life's greatest values is the history of man inspired by God discovering the best in life and then sharing it with others.

Every interruption of the forward movement toward the attainment of life's greatest possibilities is likewise the history of man forgetting God and others and thinking only of self.

The progress of mankind will be regulated in the future, as in the past, by man's obedience or disobedience to God.

Only a small group of men and women among the thousands who were privileged to know Christ and hear His message during the three years of His active ministry, qualified to be intrusted with the highest and most far reaching commission ever given to a group of men.

The ultimate objective of their commission was to make Christ and His gospel known to all the world until every one should acknowledge Him as Lord and Savior.

They must have realized that their Lord and Savior was counting on them absolutely, for there was no alternate plan. The success or failure of Christ's mission on earth depended upon them. They must do their part.

They were not bewildered by the realization that they could do but little toward this largest, most worth while and far reaching program that man would ever be permitted to be identified with, for they knew if they did their part others would do theirs and ultimately every one would know, love and serve the Lord and Savior.

Because those who have gone before did not fail, we are the inheritors of nineteen centuries of Christian civilization. It is seldom that inheritors appreciate values to the same extent as creators of value. It is essential to pay the price of interest and effort to appreciate any worth while value.

The United States of America stands out among the nations of the world as the land of greatest oppertunity for those who desire the privilege of enjoying material success, personal liberty, and the pursuit of happiness at the lowest cost.

It is not strange that in this rich country of ours religion, man's relationship to God, from whom he came and to whom he must return and account for his stewardship here on earth, is offered freely to all by the churches without requiring its members to pay the price of personal service in bringing others to know and love and serve the Lord and Savior.

A Konzertmeister was conducting a rehearsal of "The Messiah." A noted contralto was singing with perfect technique, but self-consciously, that inspiring solo, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." The music suddenly stopped. The Konzertmeister approached the soloist and with intense seriousness asked, "Do you know that your Redeemer liveth?" Shocked out of her self-consciousness, she replied: "Yes, I know that my Redeemer liveth." "Then tell it to me! Tell it to me!" implored the Konzertmeister, and she sang it with all her heart and soul as well as her beautiful voice, and he was pleased.

Every Christian is singing this same solo as he lives his life. Christ our Konzertmeister is imploring each of us "Tell it to others! Tell it to others!"

NEW LIGHT ON MILK SICKNESS.

DR. W. E. WALSH contributes two or three new points about milk sickness. At least they were new to me. One is that a person with milk sickness exhales a sweetish odor similar to that of diabetes in coma. He relates his experience in suspecting milk sickness from this odor and later confirming the suspected diagnosis by further tests and investigations. Another is that tests of the urine show the presence there of the same odoriferous chemicals. In one case there seemed no other reason to suspect milk sickness. The cows supplying milk were all right. The nearby pastures contained none of the weed, white snakeroot. Dr. Walsh was baffled until he investigated the butter used by the patient. This came from a neighborhood in which there was snakeroot in the pastures. Further investigation showed that some of the cows on the farm where this butter was produced had had milk sickness.

Dr. Walsh's theory is that milk sickness causes a very extensive breaking down of the tissues of certain important organs. As a result the animals and men suspected develop an acidosis and this acidosis is responsible for the sweetish odor.

Another fact which was new to me was that after a person had had milk sickness and apparently had recovered, he must take life very easy. It appears that the organs, weakened and broken down by the attack, can do their work fairly well under light strain. But if the strain is increased by work or otherwise, these vital organs may go on strike.

Dr. Walsh tells of a child who, having recovered from milk sickness, went back to school. As a result she became unconscious and died. A man thought he was convalescent and walked four miles to see a doctor. He became unconscious and died the next day.

Another point which was new to me was the treatment which Dr. Walsh proposes. He gives bicarbonate of soda by mouth and by injection in good full doses. In proper cases insulin may be injected. Injections of insulin act like magic in the coma of diabetes. It is also of service in coma associated with sweetish odor of the breath and due to some causes other than diabetes. This indicates that it may be of service in the acidosis caused by milk sickness. Injections of sugar solution are used on the same theory.

The possible danger of milk sickness due to eating butter from cows with milk sickness was new to me. It is not easy to keep in touch with the sources of butter.

FOODS FOR DIABETICS.

W. B. writes: Will you please send me a list of foods that a person with diabetes or a large amount of sugar in his system can eat. I know some of the forbidden foods, but I would like to know just what the diet should be.

REPLY.

Get Joslin, Wilder, or some other of the good books on diabetes written in simple language. Use it to help you diet yourself and otherwise regulate your habits. See your physician periodically. You cannot live in comfort and safety with your disease on any other basis. You must study at least one book.

PYORRHEA CAN BE CURED.

Very Anxious writes: Is there a cure for pyorrhea? Can it be checked? Some dentists say "yes" and others say "no." Some of my teeth are risnig out of my gums.

REPLY.

Pyorrhea can usually be checked. In some cases it can be cured.

Since you neglected your teeth until they rose out of the gums your chances of cure are very poor. Your chance of checking the disease is not good enough to brag about.

WANTS TO REDUCE.

Mrs. F. B. E. writes: 1. Is toast fattening?

2. Is sour cream fattening?

3. Swiss cheese?

4. Jams?

5. Whole wheat bread?

6. Can you give me some good reducing dishes?

REPLY.

1 to 5. Yes.

6. There are no reducing dishes. Eat very little bread, cereal, potato, and other starchy foods. Eat still less sweets. Live principally on cabbage, turnips, and other bulky vegetables. Eat meat and fats in moderation.

CLEARER FACTS NEEDED.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend of mine recently bought some speculative stock, and, although unauthorized, used my name and address in her purchase. She sold this stock at a considerable profit. Should I obtain the money from her and file this transaction on my income tax or shall she pay the tax herself, indicating how the purchase was made? She spent much more in this transaction than I have ever had and I hesitate to take the tax money from her. Your advice will be appreciated. M. S.

If you had nothing to do with the transaction either by way of authorizing or profiting by it or ratifying it it clearly cannot be regarded as your income. We see no reason why she should not include it in her own tax return. The facts are not clear enough for us to advise you to advantage.

NEW OWNER MUST COMPLY.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I leased my flat and half of the basement on a two year lease, the same reading "first floor apartment and front half of basement, same to be used as a printing shop and a sign office." The building has now been sold and the new owner insists that he is not bound by the lease, and since he wants my half of the basement for his own use claims he can make me get out. I insist he is bound by the lease. Am I right? J. J.

You are. The lease is binding upon him.

TAKE MATTER UP WITH PARTIES.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I wish to change my name and have a son 4 years old. I have a policy with a life insurance company and an adjusted service certificate. My son also has a fifteen year endowment policy.

1. If I notify the insurance company of the change in my name, also the war department, will that be legal?

2. Is the same sufficient in regard to my son's policy?

3. Must I change the birth certificate of my son? A. W. W.

1. In our opinion legal proceedings are not necessary, but it might be somewhat troublesome for you to satisfy the parties with whom you will deal. We advise you to take the matter up with them.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 14, 1861.

EDITORIAL.—THE BEGINNING OF THE END.—At last we have official intelligence from the powerful naval and military expedition, two weeks ago dispatched to the southern coast to maintain the Union and restore the validity of the Constitution in the very stronghold of Secessia. Again the Stars and Stripes float over the most commodious harbor on the southern coast and within the sacred limits of Palmettodom. The full and detailed report in another column will convey an adequate idea of the force, and the advantage it has gained. The federal government is in possession of one of the finest of the cotton ports, the mart and key to one of the wealthiest and most powerful districts of the slave oligarchy. A rendezvous has been established for Union men, if such exist, and for contrabands whose existence has already, we discover, been fully demonstrated. From reports thus far, the rule would seem to have been, whites to the rear, and blacks in long lines steering for Gen. Sherman's headquarters. The regiments of faithful slaves, eager to cut the throats of Lincoln's minions, seem to have cut nothing but their old connections, with manifestations that look like anything but hostile demonstrations to the newcomers. These are tokens sufficiently alarming we should imagine in any community where the blacks outnumber the white inhabitants in the proportion of five to one.

And now what next? The port thus opened will be within the next ten days entered by powerful reinforcements of federal troops. The work will go on. Savannah and Charleston must fall.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 14, 1901.

CHICAGO—A plot to kill Patrolman Francesco S. Capparelli, a truant officer of the board of education, was foiled by the arrest and confession of a group of child conspirators. The nine boys involved are all dwellers in the ghetto. The plot was formed so the boys might not be compelled to go to school and would have more time for robbing homes. They claim they were instigated to kill Capparelli by the Fagin of their school for stealing, John Kolis, a Bohemian, 21 years old, who is under arrest. A 6 year old sister of one of the boys betrayed the plot to slay the policeman with a stolen gun.

NEW YORK.—With the incorporation in Trenton today of a $400,000,000 security holding company, the famous Northern Pacific fight has at last come to an end. The interests involved are almost of unparalleled magnitude. The settlement means that hereafter one harmonious power will administer the wealth of three formerly independent companies whose combined capital is over $500,000,000, whose bonded debt exceeds $325,000,000 and whose trains run over 20,000 miles of track. At present the combination is confined to the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern and the Burlington systems, but if further plans mature other systems may be taken over.

CHICAGO. — Petitions were circulated asking the small parks commission to establish a playground near Gad's Hill settlement, 22d and Robey streets.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 14, 1916.

LONDON.—Gen. Haig's troops have broken through the main German line west of Bapaume held by the kaiser's forces for two years and converted into a series of strong fortresses. Striking along a five mile front on both sides of the Ancre river, the British advanced on the whole line, at points for more than a mile, and carried by storm the villages of Beaumont-Haimel and Saint Pierre Division, both considered impregnable. The battle began at dawn and a storm of shells described as the most terrific the shrapnel torn Somme country has yet witnessed burst on the German defense. More than 3,000 prisoners have been passed back.

LONDON. — Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, has issued a protest to the civilized world against the deportation of Belgians to Germany for forced labor. The protest says in part: "Now, suddenly, parties of soldiers begin to enter by force these peaceful homes, tearing youth from parent, husband from wife, father from children. They bar with the bayonet the door through which mothers and wives wish to pass to say farewell to those departing. They herd their captives in groups of tens and twenties and push them into cars. As soon as the train is filled the officer in charge brusquely waves the signal for departure. Thus thousands of Belgians are being reduced to slavery."

CHICAGO. — "Lights Ahead," the drama which Miss Annie E. Sharpley perhaps honestly believed was to bring her fame and fortune, is based upon the romance of her own life. The remarkable woman who mixed chicken raising and the drama in Melrose Park and yet found time to transmute mere verbal promises into $81,000 in four years, made this frank statement to her friends time and time again. THE TRIBUNE came into possession of the play and presents it in fragmentary form on page 2 today.

THE SEATING OF SMITH.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—In your editorial entitled "Illinois Is Republican," you raise the question whether the moral sense of Illinois, which elected Frank L. Smith with a full knowledge of his doings, should govern, or whether the senate, which can know no more, should determine his fitness.

It is a wise provision of the constitution which leaves judgment to the senate. In theory the state and not the people is represented in that body. Therefore, the question of fitness should be determined by all the states instead of by a part only of the people of one state.

Since the unfortunate amendment to the constitution providing for the election of senators by the people instead of by the states, the idea of a house of states as well as a house of people is not so complete. Yet the smallest state still is as strongly represented in the senate as the largest, and to that extent the senate remains what it was ably designed to be, a house of states.

But even if it were not so, the clause in the constitution before referred to makes the house of representatives also the judge of the fitness of its members. That is, the people of all the states determine the question rather than the people of one state. That is good.

THOMAS JAMES NORTON.

NO TREAT FOR THE QUEEN.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Mrs. H. Harrison, in her letter regarding the failure of the queen of Roumania to visit the south, assumes that it is due to the lack of democracy and the occasional lynchings there. Evidently Mrs. Harrison does not know that the queen comes from a country where there is no democracy and wholesale lynchings of Roumanian Jews are almost a daily occurrence.

S. W. SCHNITZER.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—The party who signed himself "C. I. K." evidently knows very little concerning Boston and Massachusetts. Both in an educational and in a political way the old Bay State is far in advance of any other American commonwealth. Comment concerning its institutions of learning would be superfluous. The laws governing elections, however, are worthy of the attention and the emulation of many other states. In Massachusetts every voter must be able to read and write the English language; there can be no illiteracy at the polls. Each voter must also pick his candidates for the different offices, the straight ticket being done away with many years ago. If Illinois were to apply the educational test thousands of our electorate would automatically become disfranchised.

"C. I. K.'s" principal peeve probably is due to the election of David I. Walsh to the United States senate. Compared with some of our Illinois "statesmen," Mr. Walsh stands out with startling clearness. He never has been known to misappropriate any public moneys; neither has he been accused of milking public service officials. His Americanism has been repeatedly proven and he commands the respect and confidence of even those who disagree with him politically. It would be asking too much to expect him to draw the cheers of "boobs who pay ten dollars for a sheet and the privilege of hating their neighbors." (Credit to Mr. Nicholson.)

JAY DEE CEE.

AS A DRY ANALYZES THE VOTE.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 4.—The dry vote in Illinois was divided between Smith and Magill and the wet vote was centered on Brennan; yet Smith won. The dry people were advised—unwisely, I think—by the Anti-Saloon league to ignore the referendum. Many ignored it. In spite of that fact the ratio of percentage of difference was no greater than in the wet vote of 1922. In 1922 the wet referendum in Cook county drew out 552,000 wet votes, yet in 1926, despite an increase in population, the wet vote for Cook county dropped to around 450,000.

In four of the eight states, the dry element was counseled against paying any attention to the referendums. The dry forces of New York state set out to defeat Senator Wadsworth and he failed to be returned to the senate. Vare of Pennsylvania, a wet, was elected by a plurality of less than 200,000, carrying only 12 counties while his dry opponent carried 55 counties. While Vare, a wet, had a margin of less than 200,000, Fisher, the dry candidate for governor, had a margin around 700,000, carrying every county in the state. If Vare is unseated, Fisher, the dry governor, will make an appointment. Except for Smith of New York state and Ritchie of Maryland, practically all the governors elected are dry men.

The four states, California, Montana, Colorado, and Missouri, were the real battlegrounds. California with her many vineyards and with San Francisco would naturally have moist leanings. With less than half of the state heard from, the wets had a lead of 10,000 in Montana. Colorado and Missouri, with her wet interests at St. Louis, went dry. New York with New York City, Illinois with Chicago, and Wisconsin with Milwaukee would naturally have wet preferences, but New York City, Chicago, and Milwaukee are far from being the entire United States.

LESLIE E. DUNKIN.

WAS IT CLEAR AS THE REFERENDUM?

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The comments of Mr. George Brennan in connection with the election, as recorded in THE TRIBUNE, clearly indicate that he has not the mental grasp of a situation which would fit him to serve his state as senator. He talks about Mr. Smith obeying a mandate of the people to support the proposition to modify the Volstead act. He goes on to say that the wet and dry referendum probably cost him (Brennan) about 100,000 votes, basing his statement on the ground that after the voters had recorded their sentiments on the wet and dry issue by means of the referendum they thought that was all that was necessary, and then proceeded to vote as they pleased on the several candidates.

Mr. Brennan can't see that he himself represented alcoholism in this contest, and that when the voters repudiated him they repudiated the issue for which he stood. Rather, perhaps, he sees that fact recorded, but tries to console himself as best he may by viewing it in another light.

Mr. Smith received his mandate from the people of Illinois in the vote cast for him, which, considering the division in the party ranks, was a clear expression of the will of the people on the question at issue.

NATION TO PAY CANNON TRIBUTE AT BIER TODAY

Body to Lie in State; Funeral Tuesday.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Down between the rows of leafless elms which span Vermilion street, messengers scurried today to the home where Joseph Gurney Cannon lies dead, bearing expressions of condolence and sympathy from around the world.

But not in the formal phrases of bereavement could Danville's grief be couched, for the man a nation knew as a ruler in the councils of the great was to his townspeople never more than Uncle Joe, neighbor, benefactor, and comrade.

Cite Civic Spirit.

For others was the paying of scholarly tributes. Danville's own tokens of sorrow arose from the homely memories of a man whose civic spirit and whose benefactions touched the lives of his townsfolk not only collectively but individually.

It was Cannon money that gave Danville electric light and power, and that built the city railway. It was Uncle Joe, the congressman from Danville, who brought a soldiers' home to the city and got the appropriation for a federal building.

But, more than this, it was Uncle Joe who got positions in Washington for scores of Danville boys, enabling them to work their way through college and law school. And it was Uncle Joe who befriended scores more and threw business to them which got them started to substantial careers.

Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock a long line of those who loved him will begin to file through the rooms of the Cannon home past the bier, nor will the line halt until the doors of the home swing shut again at 5 o'clock.

School children will stand in line with men who fought under Lincoln, and tears will come to the eyes of men who have succeeded Uncle Joe in the city's business life.

Remember His Stories.

Danville's memory of Uncle Joe is not the memory of a statement nor a political czar. It is the memory of a man whose democracy was proof of his greatness, whose kindly greetings and whose fund of stories are traditions in his community.

Until the end he loved a funny story and sought to inject one into every situation. In his last conscious hours he interrupted the gravity of the sickroom with anecdotes for his physician and nurses. His last words were "Have courage." He sensed the gravity of his condition and sought to comfort the daughters who stood beside his bed.

The funeral services at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon will be as simple as the man they honor. The Rev. T. H. Ewing will officiate at the St. James Methodist church, of which Uncle Joe was a member, and past commanders of the Danville American Legion post will bear the coffin to the grave.

President Coolidge will be represented by Vice President Charles G. Dawes, who wired the family today that he would attend the services.

TAILOR IS ROBBED.

Paul Baskin, a tailor, 1136 North Clark street, was robbed of 40 suits and 15 overcoats yesterday, he told police. His first [illegible] was that two armed men had held him up and ransacked his store after locking him in a closet. Later, however, he [illegible] the goods were taken by burglars, and that he knew nothing of the manner in which it was done.

Children Mourn for "Uncle Joe"

Children in Danville, Ill., yesterday mourned the death of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, veteran legislator, whose funeral will be held Tuesday. Left to right in front of the Cannon home are Thelma Arlington, Elsie Leach, June Lake, Robert Lake, Bettey Lake, and Billy Houpt.

BISHOP HOBAN, MINERS' FRIEND, DIES AT SCRANTON

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Bishop M. J. Hoban of the Scranton Catholic diocese died shortly before 9 o'clock tonight of pneumonia. He had been ill since Sunday. Earlier in the night priests and nuns had gathered at his bedside and offered prayers when physicians said he could not recover. Bishop Hoban was 73.

Bishop Hoban was born at Waterloo, N. Y. When a boy his parents moved to Pennsylvania. He was ordained a priest in 1880, served several churches in Pennsylvania for 16 years. He was consecrated as titular bishop in 1896 and became head of the Scranton diocese on the death of Bishop O'Hara in 1899.

Bishop Hoban gained prominence because of his activities in behalf of the miners. During the world war he called upon his diocese to give all possible assistance to the United States and encouraged his priests to aid the men in the service. The Scranton diocese was the first in the United States to contribute its quota of Catholic chaplains for war service, and for this he was commended by the war and navy departments.

U. S. DRYS SEIZE TABLE LIQUOR OF BRITISH SHIP

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Custom inspectors raided the British steamer Asuncion de Larrinaga in dock here today and seized 389 bottles of liquor under what they describe as a hitherto neglected clause in the treaty of 1924 between the United States and Great Britain. Officials said the treaty stipulates that when a British ship clears for her home port direct from the United States all liquor on board except that called for in the medical certificate is liable to seizure.

U. S. ENGINEER AIDS CHICAGO IN LAKES HEARING

Says St. Clair Dredging Lowers Levels.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Changes in the discharge capacity of the St. Clair river caused by sand dredging by Canadian commercial companies and dredging for navigation purposes have lowered Lakes Huron and Michigan by more than four and one-half inches since 1908, it was revealed today at hearings before Charles Evans Hughes, special master for the Supreme court in the Chicago water diversion controversy.

The disclosure, which marks the breaking of the veil of secrecy with which government engineers have shrouded their investigations of the St. Clair river channels, was made by Col. George P. Pilsbury, government engineer at Detroit.

Would Not Restore Lake Level.

He made the admission during cross-examination by Attorneys Edward D. Adcock and Hugh Johnson, counsel for the Chicago sanitary district and the state of Illinois, the defendants in the suit instituted in the Supreme court of Wisconsin and five other lake states, who ask for an injunction against the Chicago diversion of Lake Michigan water.

Col. Pillsbury, who had been called by rival lake states to prove that the Chicago diversion had lowered Lake Michigan and Lake Huron by six inches, stated that because of the enlargement of the discharge capacity of the St. Clair river, the stopping of the 8,500 cubic second foot flow at Chicago would not restore lake levels in Huron and Michigan to the condition that existed before the St. Clair was improved and the Chicago diversion commenced.

Attorney Johnson asked Col. Pillsbury if stopping of the Chicago diversion would raise Lakes Michigan and Huron the six inches said to have been lost through the sanitary canal.

"It would eventually raise the surface of Lake Michigan and Lake Huron by six inches above the level that they would have had the diversion continued, was the reply.

St. Clair Outflow Increased.

"But would it restore the condition in levels that existed before the Chicago diversion began and the St. Clair channel was enlarged?" was the next question.

"No," answered the colonel.

"By how much would it fail to do so?" Johnson asked.

"By the amount that the discharge capacity of the St. Clair river has been enlarged," the witness answered.

A study of the gauge records made by the lake survey, Col. Pillsbury said, indicates that since 1908 the discharge capacity of the St. Clair river has increased by thirty eight hundredths of a foot. Translated, he said that this amounted to about four and fifty-six hundredth inches. He added that it represented a cubic second foot discharge of between four and five thousand feet.

Attorney Adcock questioned the government's complicated formula for measuring the causes for lake level losses, asserting that excessive evaporation in the Huron-Michigan district might well be responsible for part of the six inch loss charged to Chicago.

Prior to the cross examination of Col. Pillsbury, three witnesses introduced by Wisconsin offered scientific testimony disclosing alleged injury to the lake shore property of Michigan and Wisconsin due to subsoil drainage caused by lowered lake levels.

CITIZEN SEIZES RIFLE, CAPTURES 2 BANK ROBBERS

Thrilling Chase Ends in Fox Lake.

Two young bank robbers quailed with shaking knees yesterday in the face of a Springfield rifle in the hands of a McHenry county citizen and submitted to capture, surrendering some $4,500 in currency and their automatic pistols.

A half hour before their capture, in the heart of the village of Fox Lake, Ill., the bandits had walked into the Spring Grove State bank, six miles away, covered with their guns Floyd Foss, cashier, who was alone, scooped up all the money in sight, and drove rapidly toward Chicago. The robbery occurred about noon.

Starts in Pursuit.

Six minutes later Victor O. Siegler, a deputy state game warden of Spring Grove, learned of the raid. Hurrying into the nearby soft drink parlor of Joseph Brown, Siegler seized the army rifle, and, impressing Paul Webber into service as chauffeur, set out in pursuit of the robbers.

At the outskirts of Fox Lake the pursuers sighted the robbers' car. The bandits, in nervous haste, had lost their way and fetched up against an embankment in a "blind" alley.

But one glance at Siegler's car and the protruding muzzle of his weapon decided them. They abandoned their car, a large sedan, and scurried for the shelter of the Milwaukee railroad depot.

A Thrilling Man Hunt.

There followed a stalk typical of frontier days. Siegler crept cautiously into the little plaza surrounding the station and dropped behind a convenient boulder.

Chief of Police J. C. Riggs of Fox Lake, revolver drawn, slipped around the building and peeped into the waiting room.

But the bandits, apparently fearful of their unseen foes, thought only of flight. They milled around the place a moment and then made a break through the door—and straight before the leveled rifle of Siegler.

"Hands up," commanded Siegler, carefully taking aim at the nearest robber's head.

Marched to Lockup.

"We give up," came the tremulous chorus.

And the next moment, handcuffed and relieved of loot and guns, they were marching through the main street to the village lockup.

In the county jail at Waukegan the robbers said they were George Nelson, 6345 Loomis street, Chicago, and John Such, West 61st street, Chicago. It is believed their car had been stolen. Officials are investigating their records.

Charges Looting of Funds for Azores Quake Victims

Charges that money is being collected in the United States and elsewhere, supposedly for relief of sufferers in the Azores earthquake in August but which never reaches the relief coffers, are contained in a letter received by THE TRIBUNE from a resident of the island of Pico, across the channel from the city of Horta, island of Fayal, which was hardest hit. The Portuguese government has appointed Col. Ferdinand L. Mousinho d'Albuquerque as high commissioner to take charge of the district affairs, and any donations should be made directly through him, the writer says.

"RUBY" PRIZED BY CATHERINE THE GREAT HELD FAKE

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The "Great Ruby of Russia," the pride of crowned heads for centuries, once the treasured possession of Catherine the Great and considered one of the most valuable of the Russian crown jewels, is now declared by Prof. Gregori Aminoff, head of the mineralogical section of the Swedish Royal museum, to be merely a large rubellite, far from precious.

His statement is based on a report by Prof. A. Fersman, noted Russian mineralogist, in the bulletin of the Russian Academy of Science, which says:

"It was, as a matter of fact, a light red tourmaline (rubellite) from Burma—genuine rubies are always dark red—weighing 250 carats of irregular shape and representing nothing exceptional either as to size or quality."

Originally the Swedish crown obtained it as war booty at Prague. Queen Christina, the spendthrift daughter of Gustavus Adolphus, once "hocked" it for ready cash at Antwerp, where it was later redeemed by the Swedish government.

In 1777, while visiting Catherine the Great in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) the Swedish king, Gustavus III., gave it to the empress. It is still in the Russian collection.

TOLD SICK SISTER COULDN'T LAND IN U. S.; SHE DROWNS

New York, N. Y., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Brooding because fellow passengers told her she and her mother and four year old sister would not be permitted to land in this country, when the little girl came down with measles aboard ship, Miss Angelina Sapienza, 23, of Lawrence, Mass., jumped from the deck of the Fabre liner Providence on Nov. 7, and was drowned. The Providence docked today.

The family was returning from a visit with relatives in Naples. The sister, Concetta, was taken sick and removed to the ship's hospital.

Passengers told the elder daughter that port authorities would quarantine the ship and allow no one to land. Walking along the deck in full view of other passengers, the young woman suddenly climbed to the rail and leaped overboard.

The Utmost in Elegance at "Hursen" Funerals—

It is strange how an old habit will hold us prisoners for years,—as in a shell. But in time a new idea is formed within. By its own force it breaks the shell, and releases itself. It can be restrained no longer. The road of Progress is strewn with broken, discarded shells.

For years, Hursen has been constantly releasing new ideas and better methods at funerals. Today a funeral "conducted by Hursen" is accepted as the most elegant final tribute possible. As an example, years ago Hursen showed the way out of the old habit of using inferior automobile equipment at funerals.

For years, Hursen automobiles have helped to make "Hursen funerals" famous everywhere in Chicago and its suburbs. The new fleet of "Hursen-Lincoln" cars are setting the pace in America for automobile equipment at funerals. It costs no more for this than for any other kind. The charges for Hursen funerals are but a fraction of the charges made elsewhere. So, call Hursen, of course!

EXPERT DRAFTS WATER FREIGHT TERMINALS PLAN

Chicago District Depots Suggested.

have a rail connection with every Chicago railroad; and a barge connection with the entire system of Mississippi valley waterways. They would also have barge connections with Chicago river water terminals, and with the Calumet district through the Sag channel. These industries would have the advantage of cheap coal, cheap electric power and an abundant labor supply.

Mr. Antrim's second proposed water terminal he would locate on the drainage canal near Argo. There are the Indiana Harbor belt and the Baltimore and Ohio Chicago terminal rail roads which connect with all other railroads. Mr. Antrim proposes that this terminal should be about two miles long, cut through in the center by the belt lines.

A third proposed site selected by Mr. Antrim is a tract about four blocks square on the drainage canal in the vicinity of 28th street and Ashland avenue. This is usually called the Santa Fé slip area and is tapped by the Chicago river and Indiana Belt road and by the Chicago Junction road.

"This is the only location in the Chicago district which affords a point of interchange between barges or lake vessels on the one hand and a belt line connecting with all Chicago railroads on the other," reads Mr. Antrim's pamphlet. "It is not only a barge terminal but a terminal for lake vessels as long as the Chicago river is not closed by fixed bridges."

Proposal Number Four.

Mr. Antrim says that in his investigation of this site he discovered that the Illinois Waterway Barge and Dock company is already negotiating for terminal facilities at this point. His information is that this concern has already reached an understanding with the Santa Fé railroad, but that the sanitary district trustees and the state waterway department are blocking progress by failure to take required action.

Mr. Antrim's proposal No. 4 deals with the proposed dock on the lower level of Wacker drive and with the Municipal pier. He urges that each be connected with the sixty-two miles of underground tracks in the Chicago freight tunnel. These bores connect with twenty-five railroad freight stations. Mr. Antrim suggests the Municipal pier as a point of interchange between canal barges and lake vessels, but he claims that barges cannot navigate to the pier at present in rough weather. Therefore he recommends additional breakwater protection.

Site No. 5 is to be located in the lake off 41st street. Mr. Antrim proposes "the filling in of the lake to form sufficient ground for a freight yard, on both sides of which would be erected a warehouse of five or six stories." He would have the Chicago Junction railway cross the Illinois Central tracks to the pier.

"This pier," says Mr. Antrim, "would serve as an interchange between lake carriers and all-rail carriers handling through merchandise freight as well as freight for delivery in industries with private sidings in the Chicago switching district."

Views on Calumet Harbor.

Mr. Antrim is not enthusiastic over the proposed harbor in Lake Calumet under the plan adopted by the city. He refers to this location as a proper terminal for barge traffic through the Sag canal and an interchange point for bulk and package freight between lake carriers, barge line, and rail carriers. The state waterways department has declined to approve of the city ordinance, by which the Nickel Plate railroad would dig part of the harbor in exchange for certain lands and a right of way for a belt line around the lake.

"Before anything can be started on this project," reads Mr. Antrim's statement, "the contract ordinance of June 5, 1926, and as amended July 15, 1925, will have to be repealed."

He claims that in granting land to the Nickel Plate railroad the city did not retain it for public purposes, as the act of 1921 requires, and that that land reverts to the state. Mr. Antrim recommends that the Nickel Plate and other legal difficulties be gotten out of the way and then the lower end of the lake be dredged and the process continued northward as there is demand for facilities.

Nor is Mr. Antrim very hopeful of the proposal of a harbor on made land stretching from South Chicago to Gary. On that he says, in part:

"This is an interstate proposition, and its consummation might be seriously delayed on account of the fact that it would involve the united approval and action of the states of Illinois and Indiana and the United States, as well as the cities of Chicago, Whiting, Indiana Harbor, and Gary. If the entire plan were to be completed in one job, I see no reason why it could not be constructed piecemeal as the location of industries warrants it."

Speaking of the Lake Calumet and interstate harbor plans, Mr. Antrim goes on: "Chicago's industrial growth will make both projects desirable, if not necessary, within a few years. Both locations should be developed naturally in accoradnce with a well defined plan."

"May I add one distinct advantage for the system of water terminals suggested," concludes Mr. Antrim. "This system can be built and operated with or without fixed bridges. It is a feasible and working terminal system now."

AT 70 RETIRED FARMER BEGINS STUDY SO HE'LL NOT DIE ILLITERATE

Council Bluffs, Ia., Nov. 13.—(AP)—At the age of 70, when most men have stopped their activity, Adam Y. Berry, retired farmer of Silver Creek, Ia., is gradually realizing a dream of years. He is getting "larnin'" and will not die as an illiterate man.

Several months ago Berry sought out a business college, where he explained that he has always desired to read and write, but that had been too busy, and really never had the opportunity. He was directed to Ralph Letts, school manager, who finally persuaded Mrs. Letts to tutor him.

After a hard and often discouraging effort he is now able to write letters to his friends and add and speak fairly correctly. In fact, Berry worked so hard at his school work that he was forced to take a vacation this summer. He will resume his studies next Monday.

"I just didn't want to sit down to an uninteresting old age not able to read or write," Berry explains. "I wanted to be able to write to my friends and read to pass the time. Anyway, I have always aimed to learn readin' and writin' ever since I was a boy down south among slaves, where only rich boys could go to school for education."

$150,000 ALCOHOL SHIPMENT SEIZED IN STORAGE HERE

Dry agents yesterday seized 10,000 gallons of alcohol, valued at $150,000, that had been shipped to the Griswold & Walker warehouse, 1525 Newberry avenue, from Cincinnati, last week. The seizure resulted from the suspicion of officials of the warehouse concern when the shipment was left with instructions that it was to be turned over to a man, whose name police believe to be false. Absence of government serial numbers and stamps also aroused the suspicions of the warehouse men.

LAWYER KILLS COUSIN.

Madison, Mo., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—George Farrell, 70, prominent attorney, shot and killed Lee Farrell, 39, his farmer cousin, on the main street here this afternoon. After the shooting Farrell summoned the sheriff and gave himself up. The shooting resulted from a dispute over a tract of land.

AIR MAIL PILOT SUICIDE, LETTER TO GIRL HINTS

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A letter from Donald Rossiter, 20 year old air mail pilot, to his sweetheart, indicates that Rossiter's death, when his plane crashed to earth yesterday, may have been a case of suicide. Miss Alice Van Fleet produced the letter today. She received it shortly before Rossiter hopped off on his last trip. The letter follows:

"Dear Alice: I just wanted to tell you not to feel bad or figure this was your fault in anyway. I think that if I go away Dick will probably come over to see you. All that I want is to see you happy, and also want you to let the folks know that I did not do this on their account. I don't suppose that you can read this, but am awfully nervous and can't hold the pen still. With lots of love,

"DON."

Rossiter, although he had a parachute strapped to his back, did not leap from the falling plane to safety as his fellow aviator, Charles Widmer, did.

ESTABLISH NEW POLICE DISTRICT ON FIRST OF YEAR

A new police district, to be known as 16-A, is to be established on Jan. 1 with headquarters at 2075 Canalport avenue. It will consist of territory now served by the Maxwell street station, which is overcrowded. Renovation of the building, which has been used by the Klein Bros. department store as a garage, is in charge of Lieut. Ernest Payne. Shower baths, squad and cell rooms are to be installed. Capt. Charles McGurn will be commander of the new district.

Man Held as Slayer for Giving Potion to Girl

John Ehardt, 24 years old, of 3711 South Grove avenue, Berwyn, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter yesterday in Berwyn police court. He is alleged to have given medicine that may have caused the death of Miss Bessie Antos, 20 years old, 5328 West 24th street, Cicero. Parents of the girl testified that she told them shortly before her death that he had given her the potion.

CHINESE SEIZE TWO STEAMERS OF STANDARD OIL CO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HANKOW, Nov. 13.—Chinese bandits today seized two Standard Oil steamers with barges at Chenglingki, 116 miles above Hankow. The destroyer Pillsbury, dispatched from Hankow to effect a rescue, radios that the Standard Oil equipment has been released, but the the Chinese junks and Chinese captain of one Standard Oil steamer are held as hostages.

Radio reports from American warships say the last of the army of Gen. Sun Chuan-fang, defeated Yangtze valley leader, is retreating through the passes at Wuhu, with larger transports reaching Nanking.

The Cantonese are not following the retreat, but are withdrawing their troops from Kiangsi to Hankow, whence they will be dispatched by rail northward to the Honan border, evidently to engage Gen. Wu Pei-fu's forces, with their objective the railway from Chechow to Hsuchowfu, making possible the capture of Kiangsi and Anhwei provinces by a drive along the railway to Pukow.

CORONER'S JURY FINDS SLAYING IS JUSTIFIABLE

"Justifiable homicide" was the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of Santo Celebroni, who on Oct. 29 was shot and killed by Lawrence Quirici, both of Cicero. Celebroni lived at 1401 West 51st street, Querici lives at 1307 South 50th court. The inquest was conducted under the direction of Deputy Coroner Robert C. Schutt.

Quirici testified he and Celebroni had words following a card game in the latter's restaurant at 1401 West 51st street. He said Celebroni had called him a cripple and seized him with one hand while he reached for his hip pocket with the other.

"I thought he was going to use his revolver, and I used mine first," Quirici testified.

SHOT DURING PARTY IN HOME.

Frank Kelly, 35 years old, 239 West 16th street, was shot in his right arm last night by an unidentified companion following a quarrel in the Kelly home. Both men, according to the South Clark street police, were intoxicated.

MAGILL CALLS ON DRY LEAGUE TO QUIT SMALL LEAD

Starts Fight for "Honest Government in State."

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Hugh S. Magill will continue his efforts to awaken the civic conscience of Illinois to the system of spoils, graft and political corruption which he says is in control under the Small administration.

He has asked the Anti-Saloon league if it will "join an organized movement to reëstablish honest government in Illinois" or whether it proposes "to continue its political alliance with Len Small and its support of the political degeneracy which the Small administration represents."

Mr. Magill directed his question in a letter last Monday to Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, president of the Illinois Anti-Saloon league. The bishop, head of the Methodist Episcopal church in Chicago, had made no reply yesterday.

Magill Returns to His Job.

Magill returned to his post as general secretary of the International Council of Religious Education immediately after his defeat as an independent candidate for United States senator. The election of Frank L. Smith, Republican, Magill said, was made possible by the support of a large lement of the church vote delivered largely by the Anti-Saloon league.

"It is important that we know as soon as possible what the attitude of the present leadership of the league is with respect to certain momentous issues before the people of this state," Mr. Magill wrote to Bishop Hughes.

"The Anti-Saloon league of Illinois, in open and avowed coöperation with the notoriously corrupt Len Small machine, is responsible for Mr. Smith's election. The confessed public acts of Mr. Smith are so shockingly corrupt that even his supporters, including yourself, have practically conceded that he will not be tolerated in the United States senate but will be expelled.

Promises Fight Will Go On.

"Notwithstanding these facts, the forces of honest government in Illinois are greatly heartened by the 150,000 voters who voiced their protest at the polls. The fight is going on with renewed determination and will never cease until Len Small and his system of spoils, graft, and political corruption are completely overthrown.

"We wish to know whether this organized movement to reëstablish honest representative government in Illinois will have the support of the Anti-Saloon league under its present leadership or whether the league proposes to continue its political alliance with Len Small and its support of the political degeneracy which the Small administration represents."

BRITISH MINERS, BEATEN, VOTE TO GO BACK TO JOBS

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—To all intents the long coal strike, which dislocated half the country's industries and is estimated to have cost the nation $1,500,000,000, has ended with defeat of every important claim for which the miners fought.

The termination of the strife came today, when the miners' delegate conference recommended that the miners accept the government's peace proposal. The card vote of the delegates was 432,000 in favor of recommending that the districts accept the terms and 352,000 against.

That the miners, who vote by districts, not by ballot, will accept the recommendation is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

The settlement is a peace virtually imposed by the government. The royal coal commission's report was disregarded.

HARDING GAINS 436 IN CANVASS OF RURAL TOWNS

Claim G. O. P. Victory by Over 3,000.

George F. Harding, Republican, picked up 436 votes in the country towns yesterday in his nip and tuck race with Martin J. O'Brien, Democrat, for county treasurer. Harding's gain was made in the completed canvass of the territory outside the jurisdiction of the election commission, or all that part of Cook county outside Chicago except Cicero, Summit, and Chicago Heights.

Using the country towns canvass and 1,764 of the 2,353 precincts that the election commission has canvassed as the basis for their claims, the Harding backers say their man will win by more than 3,000 votes when the city canvass is completed, which probably will be Tuesday afternoon.

The Harding Figures.

According to the Harding figures, O'Brien carried Chicago by 8,556 and Cicero by 1,355, while Harding carried Chicago Heights by 1,410, Summit by 16, and the balance of the country towns by 11,737.

Until the canvass is completed there can be no official compilation of gains and losses, watchers for each side making their own tabulations and basing their claims on them. The Democrats stand on their claim that O'Brien is 1,400 ahead, with the balance of the canvass promising to boost his majority.

After the city canvass, attorneys for both sides are expected to confer on disputed precincts, on which the figures have been set aside for adjudication. In all precincts in which decisions cannot be reached on the face of the tally sheets the judges and clerks will be called in for questioning.

Protest Precinct Tally.

Harding adherents protested the tallying in the Tenth precinct of the 42d ward, where Harding was credited with no votes despite the showing that 81 straight Republican ballots had been cast, along with 71 split ballots and 160 Democratic ballots. O'Brien was credited with the total 312 votes cast.

As soon as the canvass of state and county offices is finished the commission will canvass the returns on congress and the legislature and expects to finish Friday.

JURY TO GET MASON LIQUOR CASE TOMORROW

Federal Judge George A. Carpenter yesterday noon interrupted the closing arguments in the trial of State Senator Lowell B. Mason and former Prohibition Director Percy B. Owen with the announcement that he did not desire to hold the jury on Saturday afternoon for his instructions.

He then told Attorney Michael Feinberg, chief counsel for Maj. Owen that he is to resume his closing address at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. It is expected the case will go to the jury at about noon tomorrow.

ITALIAN WINS AIR CUP; AVERAGES 4 MILES A MINUTE

De Bernardi Breaks All World Records.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Maj. Mario de Bernardi, Italian royal air force, and his little Macchi-Fiat monoplane today broke all existing records for seaplanes, won the Schneider cup race for Mussolini and Italy, and deprived the United States of its chance to retain the coveted international trophy permanently.

Averaging more than four and one-tenth miles each minute, the little red streak walked away from everything on the course. When De Bernardi crossed the finish line his average speed was clocked at 246.496 miles an hour. In addition to this record, he broke the records for the 100 kilometer closed circuit at 248.189 miles an hour; for the 200 kilometer closed circuit at 248.00025 miles an hour, and bettered the three kilometer record in six of his seven laps.

America's only hope in the race, the all-Curtiss plane, piloted by Lieut. George T. Cuddihy, went down as he started for the home pylon on his last lap. His average speed for the race at the time, however, was far below that of the Italian, being only 239.191 miles an hour for the first six laps.

Besides Cuddihy, Capt. Arturo Ferrarin, who had flown a splendid first three laps, came to the water and out of the race just after completing his third lap with an average speed at that time of 235.358 miles an hour.

Four planes finished, as follows:

First—No. 5, Maj. de Bernardi, 246.496.

Second—No. 6, Lieut. C. F. Schilt, 231.363.

Third—No. 3, Lieut. Adiano Bacula, 218.006.

Fourth—No. 2, Lieut. W. G. Tomlinson, 136.953.

COURT REFUSES TO VOID SALE OF KANSAS CITY STAR

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Defense demurrers and a motion to dismiss, filed in the suit of W. S. Dickey, owner of the Kansas City Journal-Post, to set aside the sale of the Kansas City Star, were sustained by Circuit Judge O. A. Lucas here today.

The suit alleged the newspaper was not sold at "the best price and the best terms obtainable," as stipulated in the will of the late William R. Nelson, founder of the Star.

The newspaper was sold for $11,000,000 to Irwin Kirkwood, editor, and associates on the Star following the death of Kirkwood's wife, Mrs. Laura Nelson Kirkwood, daughter and surviving heir of Nelson.

SWISS AVIATOR OFF TO EXPLORE AFRICA IN PLANE

Aims to Fly to Cape Town from Zurich.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—The Swiss aviator, Walter Mittelholzer, is leaving Zurich today on a flight to Cape Town. He will cover 12,500 miles in twenty-three stages, first crossing the Alps to Naples and then on to Athens, Cairo, up the Nile, down the Zambezi to its mouth, and, after that, along the east coast of Africa to Cape Town.

The chief aim of the flight is to explore unknown territories. Important discoveries are expected in the flight over the 16,000 foot mountains of the Ruwenzori group at the source of the Nile.

To Take Along Geographer.

Mr. Mittelholzer will be accompanied by the geographer, Dr. Couzy, of Geneva, who has a wide knowledge of Africa and the native languages, also the Zurich geologist, Dr. Arnold Heim, and one mechanic.

A German Dornier Mepkur seaplane with a forty-five horsepower motor, which was constructed at the Bavarian motor works, will be used. The plane will carry a small boat and arms, including a light machine gun.

Nansen Boosts Air Surveys.

The same day the Swiss and German explorers announced their intentions to explore Africa with the help of a seaplane the dean of Arctic explorers, Fridtjof Nansen opened the first international convention of the Society for Arctic Research by Airship. He declared that such research was necessary for meteorologic and oceanographic work.

Senator W. B. McKinley Passes Comfortable Night

U. S. TO RESTRAIN ARMY VS. NAVY GAME SCALPING

Seats at $75 Stir Official's Ire.

Plans of scalpers to reap a large harvest from the Army and Navy football game at Soldier field Nov. 27 went on apace yesterday, despite reports from the federal building that Collector of Internal Revenue Mabel G. Reinecke was trying to evolve some plan through which she can discourage such brokers.

Early quotations placed the price on fair to good individual seats at $75 each, with $300 for the very poorest box of six seats and up to $1,200 for boxes in the immediate vicinity of the official reservations originally intended for President Coolidge.

Failed to Print Fixed Price.

These prices, however, do not represent a tangible profit, inasmuch as the south park commissioners, who conducted the seat sale and the printing of the tickets, failed to print the "established price" on them. This is said to give the scalpers an excuse for their technique and it would make enforcement of internal revenue regulations extremely difficult.

It was said that Mrs. Reinecke plans to enlist the services of thirty United States agents in an effort to round up the scalpers, but yesterday she had not received authority from Washington to supply them with funds to buy outlaw tickets.

How Universities Act.

In other cases of football scalping, affected universities have supplied the detective talent and the cash to make purchases. It is said there has been no indication that army, navy, or south park officials will supply any such fund.

Under the regulations a resold ticket must bear the name of the broker and the resale price, and the broker is required to pay a tax of 10 per cent.

CONFESSES $21,000 THEFT.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Russell Bayes, 28, Parkersburg Negro, now serving ten years for burglary, has confessed, police say, to the theft last September of jewels valued at $21,000 from the home here of H. F. Behrens, president of Sterling Products, Inc.

Power impulses in the Hupmobile Six are delivered with an electric smoothness and regularity that speaks volumes for the fine engineering of the car.

To help insure this constant flow of power, Hupmobile machines its cylinder heads to precise ten-thousandths of an inch limits. Uniform compression and exceptional power smoothness are the results of this expensive and unusual manufacturing process.

From the beginning to the end of engine and chassis manufacture, Hupmobile insists on such strict adherence to quality standards — and willingly pays 10% more because it knows its owners get far more in performance, low costs and long life.

These are some of the many reasons why you may expect not only brilliant and sustained performance from the Hupmobile Six but a pronounced economy of maintenance as well.

DEMAND GERMANY CALL ENVOY TO U. S. ON CARPET

Fascisti Stir Row Over Armistice Day Flag.

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The German Nationalists are bent on obtaining from the government an explanation of why Baron Ago con Maltzan, German ambassador to the United States, hoisted the German flag on the embassy at Washington on Armistice day. They have filed an interpellation in the reichstag demanding to know what steps the government is taking to call to account the person responsible for this, which, they declare, "is incompatible with the self-respect of the German people."

They ask also what measures are being taken to prevent "the repetition of similar humiliating occurrences."

"An Act of Degradation."

Attacking the German ambassador, the ultra-Nationalist newspaper Lokal Anzeiger declares: "This must be branded as the most disgraceful act of self-degradation of which a German diplomatic mission abroad can be found guilty."

On the other hand the German foreign office approves the ambassador's action, on the ground that Armistice day is a nation-wide holiday in the United States.

Embassy Defends Action.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Criticism of Ambassador von Maltzan because he displayed the German flag on the embassy building on Armistice day is viewed by the embassy here as being wholly inspired by nationalistic politics in Germany.

"The display of the German flag on this occasion was purely in keeping with the resolution adopted by the senate on June 4 last, which called for a general observance of Armistice day and the display of flags on all government buildings," said a high embassy official. "As it is customary for foreign missions to join in official observances when proclaimed by the President, the hoisting of the German flag on this occasion was wholly in keeping with traditional diplomatic usage."

Police Dog Routs Two Armed Robbers in Shop

Two robbers who attempted to hold up Otto Hufener in his meat market at 2058 Clifton avenue last night fled when his large police dog attacked them. Both men were armed, but placed their weapons in their pockets and dashed for the door when the dog attacked them.

KILLED BY AUTO, LIFTING BREAD OUT OF WAGON

Edward Welsh, 32, of 549 East 73d street, died at the Washington Park hospital yesterday after he had been struck by an automobile at 41st and Wabash avenue. Welsh was taking a tray of rolls from the bakery truck of which he was driver when he was knocked down by a car driven by George Mines, 4422 South California avenue. Mines was held by police.

Joseph Scyset, 45 years old, 10535 Avenue B, was killed last night when he was struck at 104th street and Indianapolis avenue by an automobile driven by James Noonan, 709 East 87th street, professional at the Oak Knoll Golf club.

Four members of the detective bureau squad were injured when the automobile in which they were pursuing a suspected bootlegger crashed into a surface car at 71st and State streets. They were Sergt. Thomas Coen, Policemen Jerome McGrath, Edward Harder and Ernest Preske.

The deaths of Welsh and Seyset raised the county toll of automobiles since Jan. 1 to 776.

Anthony Kalisz, 42, 1334 West Division street, suffered serious injuries when he was struck at Division and Noble streets by an automobile driven by Benjamin King, 1147 Cherry street. King was arrested.

TANKS, WAR'S NEW MONSTERS, STAGE MIMIC INFERNO

Britain Shows Dominion Premiers Its Claws.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The dominion premiers this afternoon watched amid torrents of rain a wierd mimic war of great steel monsters representing the latest mechanical devices which have been developed in the art of war.

The military spectacle was staged by the war office at Chamberley, where the mud soaked ground and misted skies presented a vivid replica of a Flanders battlefield.

The oil driven engines of the tanks gloried in the mud pools and water, hurtling along and charging uphill with guns booming as airplanes soared overhead and dropped bombs.

Proeect Secrets of Tanks.

The spectators, even the dominion premiers, were not allowed to approach too near some of the latest model tanks, tne construction of which is being kept secret. A wonderful speed has been develoved in the light tanks, it was revealed, which can do anything and go anywhere at sixteen miles an hour. The newest heavy tank is said to be the heaviest armored and fastest machine in existence.

Other novelties were one man tanks with a speed of thirty miles an hour, which caused the premiers to remark that doughboys in future wars will be mechanics rather than infantrymen.

Like Prehistoric Monsters.

The demonstration was concluded with a gigantic mud lark resembling a nightmarish frolic of prehistoric monsters. The litie tanks chased the big tanks, skidding and bumping over hills and through ponds.

The monster mystery tank has one large revolving turrent with a three inch gun and four stationary machine gun turrets, and maneuvers easily.

REV. R. E. CARRY WILL QUIT KANKAKEE TODAY FOR PARK RIDGE PULPIT

THE REV. R. E. CARRY.

The Rev. Ray Everett Carry will preach his farewell sermon today as the rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church at Kankakee, where he has been since 1920. Tomorrow he will be rector of St. Mary's Episcopal church at Park Ridge. He succeeds there the Rev. Harry Lee Smith, recently appointed associate rector at Grace church, Oak Park.

The Park Ridge parish attracted wide attention three years ago by opening a motion picture show on a commercial basis in its new parish house, which cost approximately $150,000. The building contains a swimming pool and other similar features. The auditorium which was used for show purposes has a seating capacity of more than 500.

The Rev. Mr. Carry was graduated from the Western Theological seminary here and the General Theological seminary, New York. He holds a degree from Columbia university.

FARMERS TO PEP UP BIG MEETING HERE DEC. 6-7-8

Frank O. Lowden Will Make Chief Speech.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Moans of saxophones will punctuate the American Farm Bureau federation's winter convention, which has had programs loaded with moans of disgruntled farmers in previous years. Barnumizing the farmers' greatest meeting of the year is expected to bring a big crowd to the show, and remedies for agricultural ills will be at the end of the comedietta.

Announcements of the federation's meeting and the first national farm bureau agricultural exposition, which is to be held at the Sherman hotel Dec. 6, 7 and 8, indicate by pen and typewriter sketches the new jazz element which has been purposely injected into the program.

But plenty of serious things will be talked about, for it is definitely known at the federation's headquarters that groups of determined farm leaders are organizing, especially in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Missouri, with the idea that the twice defeated federal farm relief bill is still alive and has plenty of supporters.

Frank O. Lowden to Speak.

The climax of the demonstration is expected to come in the form of resolutions immediately after Frank O. Lowden, 1928 presidential timber so far as many farmers are concerned, delivers an address before delegates on the last day of the convention. Mr. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, has definitely accepted the invitation to speak.

Those who attended last year's uproarious convention, where President Coolidge made the principal address, view Mr. Lowden's appearance as deeply significant. Delegates openly expressed their disappointment in the Coolidge speech, which crystallized the midwest sentiment into the so-called Mississippi valley relief program that raised the roof in congress last winter under the name of the McNary-Haugan bill. But the reaction to Mr. Lowden's address at the December meeting is expected to be entirely different, because he is a supporter of the relief measure sponsored by the central and southern states.

To Pick Beef Champion.

America's grand champion beef animal will be selected this year by George Gordon Davis of Buenos Aires, Argentina, at the twenty-seventh annual International Live Stock exposition, which is to be held in Chicago from Nov. 27 to Dec. 4.

Judge Davis is expected to have the toughest job ever assigned to a cattleman when he tackles placing of the big herd of super prize winning beef animals rounded up for the show. B. H. Heide, general manager of the show, reports that entries break the exposition's record, made two years ago at the time President Coolidge was guest of the international. Approximately 11,500 head of fat cattle, hogs, horses, and sheep are coming from the United States and Canada.

GIRL GETS $2,000 ALIMONY FOR 2 DAY MATRIMONY

Helene Novak, 17, Is Granted Divorce.

Two thousand dollars alimony for two days of marriage with a 62 year old husband was the sum which Helene Novak, 17 years old, 4819 South Seeley avenue, smilingly accepted in Superior Judge Joseph Sabath's court yesterday. She was granted a divorce from John Novak, 1446 West Chicago avenue, wealthy owner of a chain of meat markets.

The youthful bride hinted that her next husband would be much younger. It won't be long, it was intimated, before she ventures again into matrimony.

Novak Is Philosophical.

Novak was philosophical about the divorce.

"I thought of contesting the suit," he declared, "because she doesn't deserve alimony. But if I did it would cost me much more than the $2,000 I'm giving her."

The girl testified that she was married last Jan. 25. Only two days passed when her husband decided he had made a mistake, she testified.

He Asked Divorce, She Says.

"You've got to give me a divorce," Novak told his young wife, according to her testimony. "All my friends are laughing at me and my family is raising an awful row."

When the girl answered that she wouldn't think of being separated from her husband, he knocked her down, breaking several teeth, she said. The argument was renewed later and he pushed her down a flight of stairs. Convinced that she couldn't live happily in matrimony, Mrs. Novak filed suit through Attorney William F. Ader.

MUSSOLINI MAKES THEATERS SHOW RELIGIOUS FILMS

ROME, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Motion pictures to foster religious feeling and spread knowledge of religious art and literature, not through direct propaganda, but by telling simple dramatic tales, are being produced by the institute of religious art and education, just founded by Premier Mussolini, with the support of the holy see.

The films will be made on a strictly noncommercial basis, and each production will have the authorization of the ecclesiastical authorities. The Fascist government already has made obligatory the showing of one such film on every movie program in Italy.

Henceforth every Catholic missionary in remote parts of the globe will be equipped with a movie camera with which to film the story of his experiences. The stories of missionary experiences of long ago will be reconstructed by modern priests where they occurred.

How Much Can a Detective Eat? Less than a Diplomat

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Scotland Yard operatives assigned to guard the dominion prime ministers at the imperial conference have been suffering from indigestion after attending banquets every night for three weeks. MacKenzie King of Canada and Stanley M. Bruce of Australia have withstood the royal banqueting even better than any of the other prime ministers, and have taken on weight. The detectives, on the other hand, have become pale and worried, though they are hanging on gamely.

(A Business Editorial)

BARGAINS?

"I've had this chair only a year. The legs are loose and the seat is worn." This and like expressions are common these days of too easy misrepresentation. Hence, "bargain" hunters—not always—but too often, reap a poor reward.

May it not be wise to purchase from a DEPENDABLE store? Is there not larger value in buying things which last ten, twenty, thirty, fifty years—in wear and in STYLE? At any rate the reliable merchant will always be careful in stating—not overstating—the merits of his merchandise.

Buy wisely to avoid waste.

CHICAGO BUILDING AT MILLION A DAY PACE THIS MONTH

Predict 6 Billion Record for U. S. in 1926.

With Chicago building permits running more than a million dollars a day for the first twelve days of this month, Charles Paulsen, president of the Illinois Federation corporation, last night predicted that the nation's construction business this year would reach the record breaking mark of $6,000,000,000.

For the first twelve days of November Chicago permits for construction totaled $12,029,600. For the first ten months of 1926 the permits issued in Chicago amounted to $314,219,500, while for a corresponding period in 1925 the valuation was placed at $308,355,051. A lull is recorded in the Chicago permits issued during September when the valuation of building permits was put at $25,943,500. Then a decided pickup was noted in the national survey compiled by the Illinois Federation corporation and in October Chicago permits totaled $49,439,600.

Calls Employment Brisk.

"Employment in the Chicago building industry is continuing at a brisk pace," Paulsen said. "We expect this pace to continue throughout the winter months, dependent of course on favorable conditions. Each year sees the building industry becoming more stabilized in employment."

New York City leads in the volume of building. For the first ten months of 1926 the construction business done there amounted to $863,853,072. Last year in the same period permits issued in New York amounted to $843,489,106.

Report Los Angeles Slump.

Los Angeles experienced a slump in this year's building, permits issued there for the first ten months of this year amounting to $104,228,089, while in the corresponding period of 1925 permits there totaled $127,423,319.

STATE BOARD BARS WITNESSES FOR CROISSANT

Real Estate Man Sued for $100,000.

Attorneys for G. Frank Croissant yesterday demanded that 12,000 witnesses be subpoenaed to appear before the real estate commission of the state department of registration, hearing testimony to determine Croissant's eligibility for a real estate license. Immediately the two commissioners, D. F. Quinlan and Col. W. C. Johnson, announced that the hearing was closed and that they would continue the investigation without the help of attorneys.

Berthold Cronson, Croissant attorney, read a list of thirty names, including John Patten, mayor of Burnham, Anton Cermak, president of the county board, and Timothy J. Crowe, sanitary district trustee, whom he sought to produce as witnesses as to the uprightness of his client, but the board ruled it didn't want to hear them.

Has No License.

Croissant first came before the department some months ago in connection with alleged irregularities in Calumet City subdivisions. It was discovered that he had no license and the present hearing is the result of his application for one.

Yesterday Croissant was named defendant in a $100,000 suit filed against him in the Superior court by Hans J. M. Rasmussen. Jo Calvin Webb, attorney for Rasmussen, declared that his client purchased property in Burnham from the Croissant organization but later discovered that a large strip through it has been owned by the South Chicago and Southern Railway company since 1895 and recently has been under lease to the Pennsylvania railroad.

Knew Nothing of R. R.'s Claims.

The property was deeded to Croissant, Mr. Webb declared by Robert W. Hamill for the Hamill estate, subject to the railroad right of way. His client, he said, knew nothing of the railroad privileges until he went to take possession of the lot. He found a high fence enclosing the right of way strip through his property and a large Pennsylvania railroad sign on the grounds.

In addition, the suit claims that the property had a residential restriction. It was solicited on the grounds of its commercial possibilities, it is stated.

Fitting Feet—
Not Merely Selling Shoes

There is a world wide difference between Fitting Feet and merely selling shoes.

Which Foot Is Yours?

The Trupedic Shoe is the only shoe in the world made on the three flare principle—Inflare, Straight and Outflare—corresponding to the three distinct types of normal feet.
Trupedic Shoes are the result of a world wide research of the American Posture League, an organization consisting of 1,000 foremost scientists, Orthopedic Surgeons and Physical Trainers.
Trupedic Shoes are constructed to give quick relief to painful foot troubles brought about by misfitted shoes. The specially constructed arch, combination last, cupped heel seat and many other exclusive and corrective Trupedic features help to restore the foot to its normal action.
Trupedic shoes are not freak shoes; they are stylish in appearance; their comfort is rather felt, not seen.

ISLAND OF GUAM IS PROTECTED BY YANKEE MARINES

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AGANA, Island of Guam, Sept. 10.—[By Mail.]—About a dozen American marines, stalwart young bucks for the most part, have their own monarchies on Guam.

A still smaller number keep order and enforce the laws in the cities of the island with the almost inconsequential aid of a few native police; but those whose jurisdictions extend back into the mountain and jungle districts are the ones that have the real jobs.

They not only carry out the provisions of the tangled penal code inherited from the Spanish régime and the orders and regulations of a string of fifteen American naval governors, but they are the supervisors, the teachers, and the guardians of the Chamorro natives, who have come to look to them for the settlement of disputes, for treatment of poultry diseases, and for advice concerning the rearing of children.

Police Entire Island.

Policing the entire island, thirty miles long and from four to eight miles wide, is one of the tasks of the United States navy establishment, although the actual naval station occupies only a small part of the total territory. And the force of the "insular patrol" includes only twenty-two district patrolmen—twenty marines and two ex-marines.

It is estimated that some of these men cover territories containing thirty square miles or more, and if the policeman in New York, Chicago, or San Francisco thinks his beat and his duties are difficult, let him read what the Guam patrolman is expected to do.

In his annual report just issued, Gov. L. S. Shapley has this to say about the scope of the insular patrol:

"Its duties are both civil and military. It is the primary law enforcement body of the island. It is charged with the enforcement of the game laws, prohibition laws, sanitary regulations, traffic laws and regulations, forestry laws and regulations, and all other orders and regulations of the island.

Maintains Law and Order.

"It is charged with the maintenance of law and order and brings all offenders before the proper tribunals. Petty offenses such as stray animals, sanitary infractions, unlicensed tuba (cocoanut wine) trees, dogs, etc., are brought before the local commissioner (a native appointee) who, sitting as a petty magistrate, may impose an executive fine not to exceed $5. Serious offenses are brought to the head of the police department (chief of the insular patrol, a marine officer), who investigates and adjusts the case, either dismissing it, awarding an executive fine, or holding the offender for court.

"No cases of criminal action may be entertained in the island criminal courts before being investigated and held for trial by the head of the police department.

"The insular patrolman is also required to be thoroughly familiar with his district and the residents thereof, their business and occupations. He inspects and reports in writing semimonthly upon the water supply, roads, trails, and bridges, sanitation, etc., of his district, as well as the presence of any ammunition, firearms, kodaks, surveying instruments, transients, infected cocoanut trees, and diseases among the stock and poultry in his district.

Keep Patrolmen Informed.

"He also reports all violations of law in his district during the period and the action taken by the commissioner. These reports render much valuable information and keep the patrolman thoroughly alive to the activities in his district.

"He also takes charge of the inhabitants of his district in case of any public emergency, such as fire or typhoon, and makes such dispositions as the situation warrants.

"He is also a medium for the dissemination of information to the people of his district."

There are 34 men and nine women prisoners on the island. The most serious offenders among the men—those serving more than five years—are seven convicted of rape or attempted rape, five convicted of theft, one for concubinage, one for perjury, and one for misuse of public funds. Among the nine women, one was sentenced to five years for theft, two to life imprisonment for murder, four for adultery, one for adultery and infanticide, and the ninth one is serving two years for theft.

Youth Fined $200 on Peeping Tom Charge

Richard Brewington, 23 years old, 3545 South Michigan avenue, a cook, was fined $200 on charges of disorderly conduct yesterday by Magistrate Charles A. Franklin in Evanston. Brewington was charged with peeping in the windows at the Morse house, a Northwestern university co-ed residence.

BANK DEPOSITS SET NEW RECORD AT 50 BILLION

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—A merry Christmas for the United States is assured by the heavily laden tills of America's banks, which are now estimated by the treasury to be holding about $50,000,000,000.

Savings deposits in all banks totaled $24,200,000,000 on June 30, the latest date on which figures are available, and this is believed to have been increased by a billion dollars through additional Christmas accounts. The June 30 figure was higher by $3,200,000,000 than a year ago.

The American public during the year has drawn down about $800,000,000 in interest on savings deposits, another new record.

FATHER OF 8 HANGS SELF.

John Jamba, 67 years old, 1124 West 19th place, hanged himself from a fixture in his room early yesterday. His wife and eight children, who survive, believe he was despondent over ill health.

"It Pays to Buy First Quality Furs"

EXTRA CONTROL OF CITY MORALS ADDING $30,000

With $28,000 for Board of Movie Censors.

Chicago is paying something more than $30,000 a year for the auxiliary, but official, regulation of its morals in addition to the activities of its police force, city prosecutors, city courts, and the department of public welfare.

Budget estimates, issued by City Comptroller Martin J. O'Brien, show the extra cost as the 1927 municipal expense account is scheduled to start on its way in the council finance committee Tuesday.

8 Movie Censors, $28,000.

Eight movie censors, who delete profane words, crime scenes, etc., from films after the National Board of Review is through, cost $28,000, and are recommended for a like amount next year. The city "morals commission" get $2,500.

Aldermen, scanning the estimates, also found a list of interesting items included in the $54,000,000 total asked for the city's corporate fund. "Purchase of works of art by local talent," for instance, calls for $1,750.

Flags, bunting and other decorations for the city hall during conventions last summer cost $2,250. The total upkeep for the city hall, including a $3,000 salary for the chief janitor, is set at $519,627.

For convenience of navigation companies whose ships, barges, and scows ply up and down the river, the city is asked to spend $694,620. This pays the salaries of bridge tenders, many of whom could be eliminated by permanent fixed bridges.

What City Officials Get.

Here are the annual salaries of the chief city officials: Mayor, $18,000; aldermen, each $5,000; corporation counsel, $15,000; comptroller, $10,000; commissioner of health, $10,000; police chief, $10,000; building commissioner, $8,000; president of board of local improvements, $6,000; city attorney, $6,000; prosecuting attorney, $6,000.

Under the police quota is $6,000 for target practice ammunition and $1,500 for prisoners' meals at the stations. The city is also booked to pay $45 a month to each of 48 police captains and officials for upkeep of personally owned automobiles.

An item of $90,000 is set aside for payments of $10 to $25 a month to policemen for unusually meritorious work. The stables for police horses receive $42,260, reduced from $51,380, due to the sale of 50 horses last summer. Chief Collins gradually is cutting down the mounted police force.

What Dog Catchers Cost.

Chicago has 17 dog catchers. Fifteen of them get $2,200 a year and two $1,840; the pound master, $2,700, and kennelment, $2,200. The total cost of handling stray canines is $41,580.

Under the estimates of the corporation counsel is an item of $2,500 to pay expenses of the corporation counsel and his assistants at the state legislature. There is also a new item of $3,000 for printing the year's legal opinions.

In 1925 the municipal landing field at Cicero and 63d streets took an appropriation of $26,900. This expenditure is left open in the new budget.

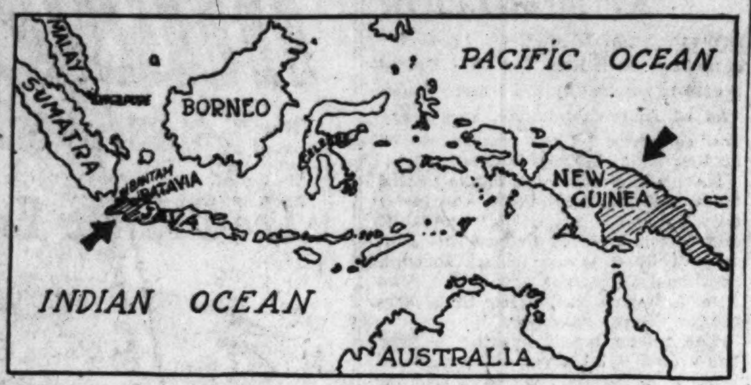
Smoke abatement, including a salary of $4,560 for the deputy engineer in charge and $62,560 for union engineers, is alloted $80,120.

Help for Low Salaried Men.

Chief among the new appropriations which have boosted the total budget nearly $3,000,000 for 1927 are a $300 yearly increase for uniformed members of the fire and police departments, and nearly $1,000,000 more for street cleaning purposes.

Other new expenditures include $8,220 for a new department of audits under the city comptroller, $18,000 for new field auditors, and a boost from $941,990 to the election commissioners in 1926 to $1,481,950 for 1927.

COMMUNISTS REBEL IN FAR EAST



A communist inspired revolt of natives in West Java, part of the Dutch East Indies, has resulted in numerous deaths and hundreds of arrests. Several officials have been killed. There is also serious unrest among the natives of the former German New Guinea, now under mandate to Australia.

Henry P. Chandler to Address Forum Today

Henry P. Chandler, former president of the City club and chairman of the committee of 200 to obtain better candidates, will speak at the Chicago Forum meeting today at 3:15 p. m. in the Erlanger theater, Clark and Randolph streets. His subject will be "Is Politics a Curable Disease?" Others who will discuss the same subject are Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and Miss Harriet E. Vittum of the Northwestern university settlement.

REDS IN DUTCH COLONY REBEL; KILL OFFICIALS

Armed Uprising Breaks Out in West Java.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Nov. 13.—Dispatches from Batavia tonight state many were killed and hundreds arrested in fighting the revolt of the Indian communists of West Java, part of the Dutch East Indies. The telegraph office at Batavia was occupied by armed communists, who also attacked the barracks and state prison, but were beaten off by the military and police.

In the residency of Bantam hundreds o farmed communists have killed native chiefs. All the Europgans are fleeing to the barracks.

At Tangerang it was reported that communists destroyed the barracks.

Rebels Are Militant.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Communistic revolts of a militant type have broken out in various places in West Java, one of the islands of the Dutch East Indies. Dispatches from Batavia today reported serious disturbances, with the loss of numerous lives and many injured.

Throughout the night mobs ran wild, with firearms and torches. At West Bantam the district chief was killed, together with several natives, and his wife and child were wounded. The district chiefs at Tjenings and Laboens were attacked. The former was killed, as well as the police guard which tried to protect him, while the Laboens chief, though wounded, managed to escape.

Rifle Volleys Disperse Mob.

In Batavia a prison was attacked by communists, four of whom were wounded. The others fled and made a stand in a telephone station, but were dispersed by rifle volleys.

In addition to the casualties much property was damaged. Railway lines were torn up and telephone and telegraph communications cut. After a time the natives joined forces with the authorities for the suppression of the disorders, and today the governor general of Java reported to The Hague that the revolts had been put down and that no further anxiety need be entertained.

Seize Rebels' Ammunition Ship.

No late news was received from Batavia tonight, but a Singapore dispatch reports the seizure of ammunition aboard a ship bound for Batavia, which it is supposed was intended for the communists.

Even if immediate danger is past, the clearly organized nature of the rising causes apprehension that this may be another definite instance of communist activity in the far east.

Those familiar with Dutch colonial affairs assert that the Dutch authorities have long been fully aware of the communist agitation in the East Indian archipelago. By deporting subversive elements and forbidding communist gatherings they succeeded in a measure in suppressing manifestations and disloyalty to the crown.

Revolt Hits New Guinea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 13.—A serious condition exists in former German New Guinea, where the natives are reported to be in a dangerous mood. Local residents state that an armed punitive expedition sent to capture the murderers of white men, recently killed by savage cannibals, will not succeed without considerable bloodshed.

The trouble is being augmented by the resentment of certain native tribes over the abusive methods of recruiting labor. It is well known that the Germans adopted drastic practices involving much cruelty in dealing with the natives. It is alleged that some Australian officers continued these practices. For example, one member of the party recently murdered was formerly a government officer. He left the service due to charges of ill treatment of the natives. The natives later recognized him and took revenge.

Trouble Spreads to Gold Fields.

The recent discovery of gold led to a great demand for natives and enhanced the prices of labor, causing unrest among the natives employed on the plantations. Disturbances also occurred among the miners, who were dissatisfied with the government regulation of the gold fields.

The Australian government's actions as a mandatory power obviously is a difficult situation and is being watched with interest.

FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE.

Michigan City, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—William S. Mack of South Chicago was fined $105 and costs and given a jail sentence of six months when he pleaded guilty to the illegal possession of liquor and to speeding in city court today.

4 Wheel Brakes

This brake system is exclusive to Nash and was engineered to embody the finest features developed by foreign and American 4-wheel brake authorities as well as the superiorities worked out by Nash over an extended period of 4-wheel brake experience.

Among its chief advantages is its simplicity. Of all mechanical 4-wheel brake types the Nash has fewest parts and least points requiring lubrication.

Another advantage is the fact that the smoothly powerful performance of these brakes is never impaired by climatic changes. And being of the mechanical type they operate with invariable regularity at all temperatures.

A third superiority is the great size of the braking surfaces which enables the brakes to maintain continuous operative efficiency and gives them permanency of adjustment.

A fourth factor of importance is their perfect automatic equalization, right to left, front and rear.

Thus Nash eliminates the possibility of the side-sway or skidding on wet or icy roads under rapid brake application which occurs with rear wheel brakes or partially-equalized 4-wheel brakes.

Come see the new Nash models—all powered with 7-bearing crankshaft motors—and examine, in particular, this Nash 4-wheel brake system.

Towers of A New Age

GAS

The Fuel of Greater Convenience, Comfort and Economy

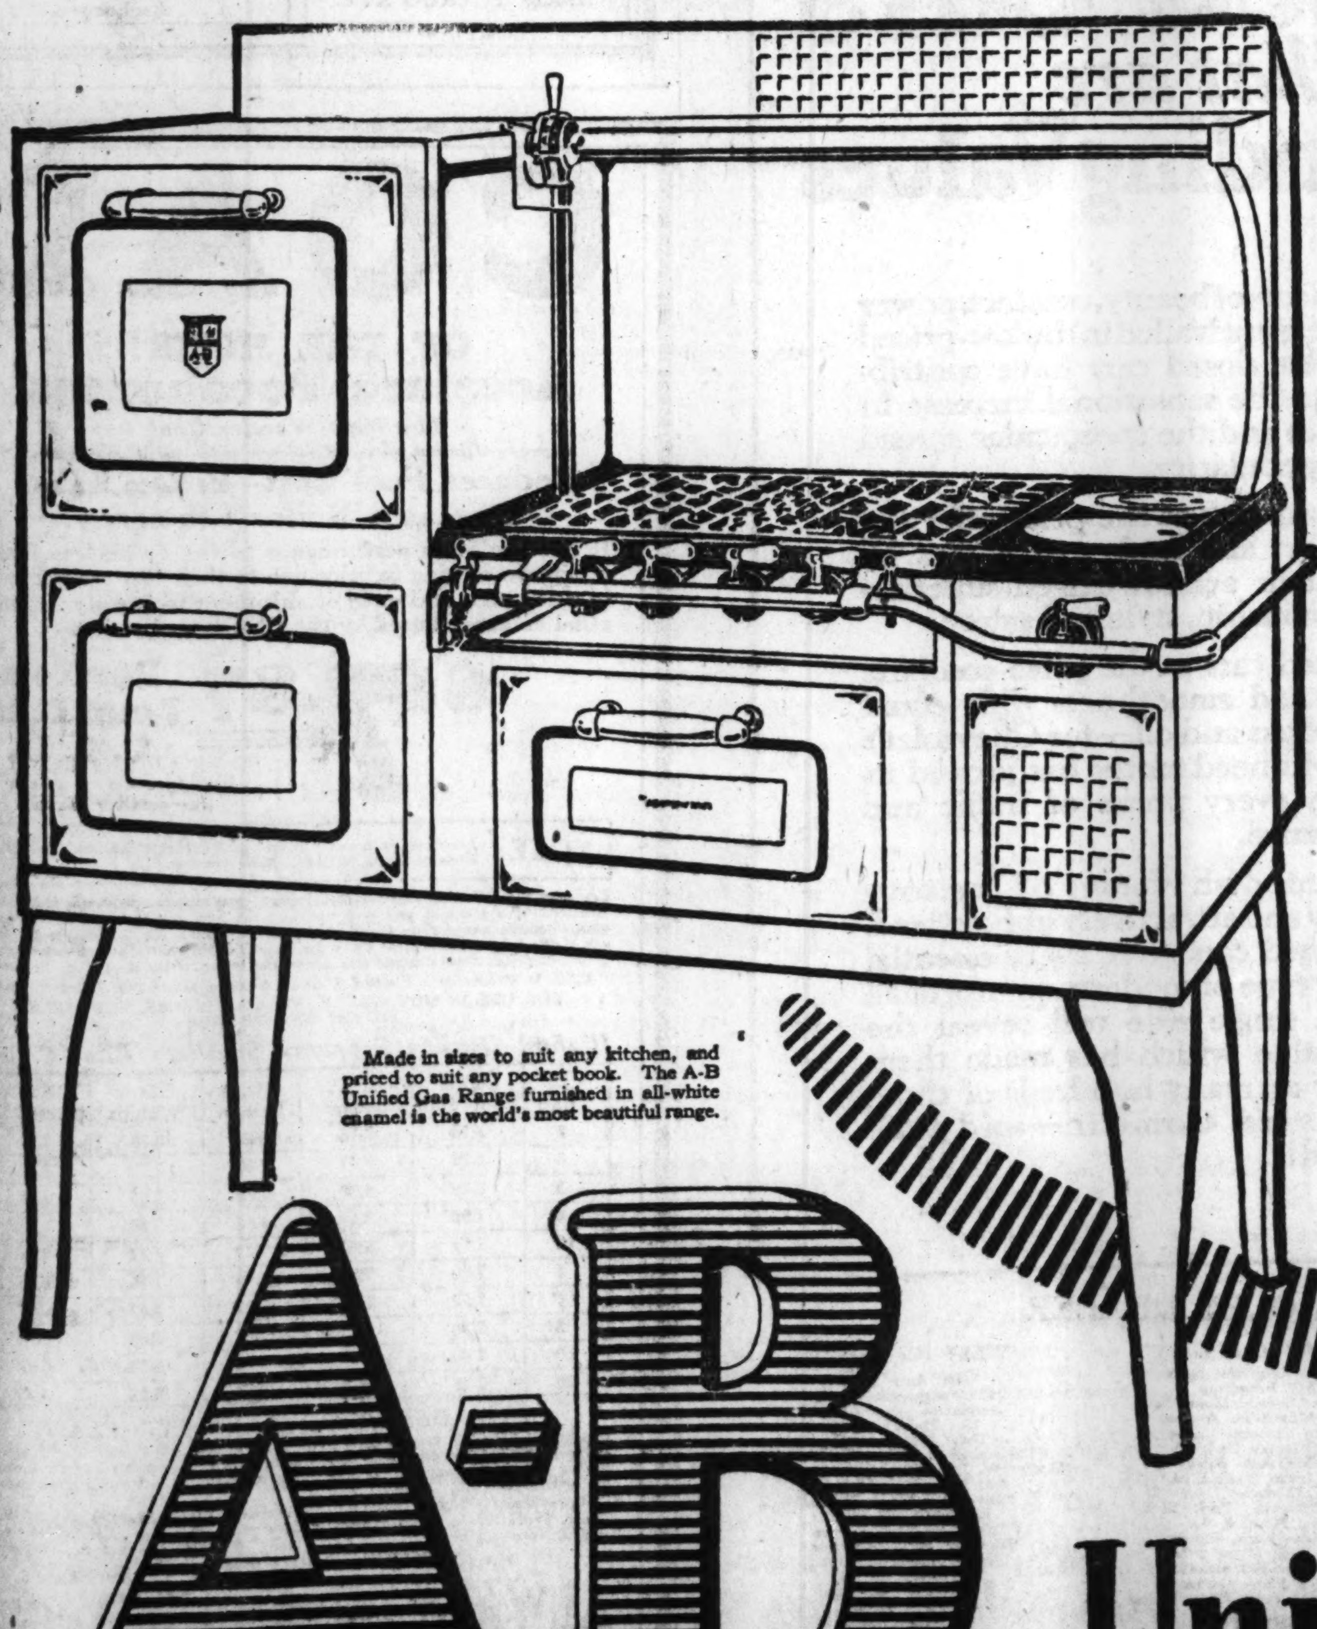
GAS cannot be seen. It cannot be felt. It has no perceptible weight. Is it not then rightly called the "Magical Fuel?" There is another distinction to which gas is justly entitled. It is the Fuel of a New Age, the age of Greater Convenience, Comfort and Economy in countless thousands of homes.

Gas has, indeed, become the nation's most popular fuel. There is no mistake about this. Look about you. Cities and towns that can offer the advantages of gas boast about it, while those less fortunate places without gas, apologize for its absence. Gas brings those advantages that are prized in every home, greater comfort, cleanliness and economy—a saving of labor, time and worry. It is significant of an age of progress that this wonderful fuel can be made available at the turn of a valve, and that modern appliances can be had which will double and treble the usefulness of gas.

Your gas company maintains a service department which, with other similar organizations, is responsible for the simplified and improved methods of using gas. Your gas company will not recommend to you any method or any appliance which will not bring you a more desirable service. It is the company's constant aim to improve the service and at the same time give you more for the money you pay for gas than you ever got before. Accordingly, the announcement of a new gas appliance which not only provides heat for cooking, but which will also warm the home, is interesting. The news is important because it comes from the world's largest manufacturer of gas appliances.

A-B Unified Gas Range

COOKS the Meals HEATS the Kitchen



Made in sizes to suit any kitchen, and priced to suit any pocket book. The A-B Unified Gas Range furnished in all-white enamel is the world's most beautiful range.

A complete cooking and heating appliance fueled by gas. It embodies a strikingly handsome gas range, the finest possible to produce, having an in-built heating section for supplying heat by circulation and radiation.

Every modern improvement is found in the cooking and baking section—heat-centering burners; broiler and baking ovens with Wilder guaranteed rust-proof linings of lifelong durability; A-B guaranteed heat control so highly prized by every housewife; improved sanitary grates, automatic lighter, etc. Flue connection draws off the excess oven heat, thereby avoiding heating the kitchen on baking days in hot midsummer.

Heater section has closed top with two lids. Turn the valve, press the lighter, and the Unified Range begins heating the room immediately. No fire to kindle. No fuel to carry. No dirt. No smoke. No waiting for banked fires to get started.

The heater absorbs the cold air from the room and sends it back again thoroughly sterilized and comfortably warm. It outclasses the wood or coal burner because of the heating and sterilizing process which provides ventilation as well as warmth. Such circulation equalizes the heat throughout the room—no hot or cool spots. Foul gas odors go up the flue.

Cooking may be done on heater section while in operation without affecting its efficiency in the least. Heater may be instantly turned off when room is warm. Features of economy as well as comfort.

Thousands in Use

Over 2,000 Chicago homes alone are now enjoying these ranges. Households where there are small children to be dressed early for school on cold mornings are especially appreciative of the benefits of the Unified Range, for it makes the kitchen cozy warm long before the furnace fire, or any coal fire, gets under way. It is doubly valuable for cool mornings and evenings of Spring and Fall, for it saves firing up the furnace or coal stoves—a real economy feature.

WEDDING FORCED BY VANDERBILTS, CHURCH IS TOLD

Wife Gets Annulment of Marlborough Ties.

[Copyright: 1926: By The New York Times.]

ROME, Nov. 13.—Consuelo Vanderbilt, not the Duke of Marlborough, was the plaintiff before the Catholic marriage courts in the suit for annulment of their marriage, and it was to her that the Catholic diocesan court at Southwark, England, granted a decree of nullity last July, which the tribunal of the Rota at the Vatican later confirmed.

The matter came before the tribunal of the Rota here merely because canon law prescribes that no sentence annulling a marriage can become effective unless ratified. As no opposition to the ruling of the diocesan court in England was made by the duke as defendant the sentence was upheld without discussion.

Charges Family Influence.

Despite the oath of secrecy binding judges of the tribunal of the Reta and all diocesan courts, the correspondent learns from an excellent source that the sentence in this case was based on the fact that the former duchess, Consuelo Vanderbilt, was able to prove to the court's satisfaction that her consent to the marriage with the duke was not freely given, but was wrested from her by undue influence on the part of her mother and other relations. The mother and numerous others appeared as witnesses and confirmed the daughter's plea.

The Duke of Marlborough, while represented by counsel, did not oppose the annulment.

All cases for annulment of marriage are first tried by special courts in the diocese in which the plaintiff files suit. If this special court finds for the plaintiff and grants a decree of nullity the case is then brought before the tribunal of the Rota for ratification. The Rota court will reverse a sentence of a diocesan court only if the defendant produces fresh evidence or proves that witnesses who testified before the diocesan court were bribed, or that the documents submitted were false.

The Tribunal's Procedure.

When a case is called before it the tribunal of the Rota asks the defendant to show cause why the decision of the diocesan tribunal should not be declared effective. If the defendant's legal adviser declares he has no objections a prelate, whose task it is to see that the laws of the church are not violated, is then questioned. If he also raises no objections the case is dismissed and a decree upholding the decision of the diocesan court is promulgated. This is what happened in the Marlborough-Vanderbilt case.

The whole case was conducted through the legal advisers of the two interested parties, and neither the plaintiff nor the defendant nor any of the witnesses were required to appear before the tribunal of the Rota, nor were they present in Rome. They had previously appeared before the diocesan court at Southwark.

If, on the other hand, a defendant raises objections, the debate before the tribunal of the Rota is likely to be protracted, as happened in the famous Boni de Castellane-Anna Gould case, which lasted several years.

HERO OF POLAR FLIGHT VISITS CHICAGO

BYRD, NORTH POLE FLYER, HERE TO TELL OF EXPLOIT

Prediction that Chicago will develop into one of the important air ports of the world was made yesterday by Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, who, with his pilot, Floyd Bennett, was the first man to fly to the north pole.

Commander Byrd will be presented tomorrow evening with the Helen Culver gold medal at a meeting of the Chicago Geographic society at Orchestra hall, and after the presentation tell the story of his historic flight last spring.

"Commercial aviation must be developed," he declared, "not only as a means of industrial advancement but as a method of preparedness."

Twenty years ago the first Culver medal was presented to Amundsen. Others who have received it are Peary, Shackleton, Stefansson, Capt. Lowell B. Smith, world flyer; Prof. Thomas C. Chamberlin of the University of Chicago, and Prof. William Morris Davis of Harvard.

Bandits Terrorize Seven in Store; Escape with $995

Three armed men went into the South Town produce house at 8250 Aberdeen street yesterday, terrorized the owner, Charles Quaid, four employés and three other men who had stopped in the place and escaped with a total of $995. Of this amount, $600 was taken from the cash register and $335 from the pockets of Quaid. The victims were forced to lie on the floor while the bandits fled.

ONLY 180 POLISH DEPUTIES ATTEND OPENING OF DIET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Nov. 13.—Only 180 out of 550 members of the Polish diet appeared at the solemn opening of parliament by President Moscicki and Premier Pilsudski today in Belvedere castle. The socialists and national minorities which elected the president and supported Marshal Pilsudski abstained from the meeting to express their disapproval of the government's actions.

Marshal Pilsudski had demanded that the representatives of the nation hear the government message, while standing at attention. The parliamentarians refused, whereupon Marshal Pilsudski held up their pay. A compromise was reached, by which the parliamentarians agreed to stand up if the message was read by the president personally. Not trusting this compromise, Marshal Pilsudski had all the chairs removed from the hall. In turn, the socialists and minorities expressed their distrust by failing to appear at the opening ceremony.

A full session was called immediately after the opening session. All parties attended to make a united protest against the government's anti-press decree. The deputies demanded that liberty of the press be restored to Poland before Dec. 1.

FORGET RACE AND CREED, DEDICATE FLAGPOLE TODAY

Port Huron to Celebrate Armistice Day.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—All Port Huron is today looking forward to the international Armistice day celebration, when Port Huron and Sarnia, Ont., will join in a parade, speeches by prominent military officials and to dedicate a flagpole at the Methodist church.

Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, Methodist, American and Canadian Legions, and black and white races will join Sunday whole heartedly with all religious and racial prejudices forgotten in a flagpole dedication ceremony which men of religion say is the millennium of moral, religious, and race tolerance.

Former Senior Chaplain.

The flagstaff, presented by Jacob S. Goldman, a prominent Port Huron Jew, flying an American flag, donated by the Ku Klux Klan, will be dedicated by the American Legion and the dedication address will be delivered by Msgr. Patrick R. Dunnigan, Roman Catholic prelate and former senior chaplain major of the Thirty-second division, A. E. F. The flag will be raised to the peak of the pole by Archibald S. Wayner, colored veteran and member of the Charles A. Hammond post.

Beginning early Sunday the deferred armistice ceremonies will have their sendoff when the Charles A. Hammond post of the American Legion ferries across the St. Clair rover to Sarnia for services in the Anglican church. Then the Canadian guards and Legion will come to Port Huron.

Army Men to Attend.

High officers of the United States army will be present for the services. They will congregate in front of the city hall for speeches after the dedicatory ceremony at the Methodist church.

Interest in the dedication of the flagpole, which has become nationwide, since threats of violence were hurled at the Rev. Russell H. Bready, D. D., pastor of the church, and his wife, because he had consented to have Msgr. Dunnigan make the dedicatory address, is expected to bring out an unprecedented crowd.

Mystery surrounding the wrecking of the Rev. Mr. Bready's study several days ago was cleared up today with the arrest of Francis Wadsworth, 18, and two other youths. They have confessed to breaking in the door with an ax and taking a coin box.

PIPE FIRES BED; MAN JUMPS OUT OF WINDOW; HURT

Andrew Vander Kamp, 23 years old, was taken to the county hospital last night probably fatally injured from a leap out of the third floor window of his room at 1211 West 14th street. Police learned that Vander Kamp had laid down in bed with his pipe in his mouth. He fell asleep, and when he was awakened he found his bed in flames.

Vander Kamp was found lying on the sidewalk by engine company No. 18 when it arrived. At the hospital it was found both legs were broken and that he had sustained a fractured skull, a fractured hip, and internal injuries.

FREE CONVICT'S SLAYER.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Williard Drake, assistant solicitor, said today that as a result of the acquittal last night of Charles B. Davis of the murder of James W. Knox, convict, that he would recommend nol prossing indictments against four others in the case. Davis was warden of a convict farm where Knox was alleged to have been killed.

DEPUTY WARDEN SAYS HE HOPES SIX ARE HANGED

Answers Defense Queries at Convicts' Trial.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Deputy Warden Frank Kness, now in charge of the new prison at Stateville, apparently is in favor of the death penalty for the six convicts charged with killing his predecessor, Peter N. Klein, on May 5. The six are on trial here today before Judge Fred A. Hill.

Kness had given his direct testimony yesterday relative to the murder of Klein and the escape of seven convicts, six of whom were recaptured. Today Attorney A. A. Offerman, for the defense, began the cross-examination, as follows:

Q.—Have you any prejudice or ill feeling toward these defendants? A.—No, only that I want justice to be done.

Says They Should Be Killed.

Q.—Have you ever expressed an opinion about them? A.—Yes; I said they ought to be hung.

Q. (by Attorney Mary Belle Spencer)—You spoke a moment ago of inspecting the prisoners in solitary; was that done to see if any of them died? A.—Nobody died there yet.

Q.—Were they handcuffed to the door? A.—Yes, but not high up. Their feet were on the floor.

Q.—Do you remember saying to me, "I want to get them hanged as quickly as possible"? A.—Of course, I am anxious to get them hung because our lives depend on it.

Q.—Did you say: "I have graves dug for four of them and the other two will be thrown to the hogs"? A.—I was kidding.

Q.—As a matter of fact have you dug their graves? A.—Not yet for them. I always dig a few graves ahead before the ground gets hard.

Q.—Did you say if you couldn't get a hanging jury you'd have the poisoned meat already for the defendants? A.—That's a lie.

Hints He's Extra Hard Boiled.

Q.—Did you recall a conversation in which you said to the defendants: "I knew you'se guys was going out and I was waiting to drop you with a 38," and Staletsky said to me: "Kness has killed 10 men at the penitentiary," and you said "that doesn't bother my conscience"? A.—No.

The only other witness of the day was Dewey W. Becker, a convict, assistant foreman of the prison shoe shop. He told of issuing shears to three of the defendants on the morning of May 5. With knives made from these shears Klein was stabbed to death. The six convicts on trial are: Charles Shader, Bernard Roa, Robert Torrez, lifers; Gregorio Rizzo and Walter Stalesky, serving 10 years to life, and Charles Duchowski, who got 25 years. The seventh, who escaped never was caught.

3D RUM RUNNING SUBMARINE IS SEIZED BY DRYS

Fails to Submerge in Time to Escape.

St. Albans, Vt., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Lake Champlain bootleggers are back on the threefold method of distribution—motorboat, automobile and airplane—upon which they depended before they took to the use of submarines.

A third rum running submarine, last of the fleet known to have been constructed for the traffic, is in the hands of Canadian authorities. Seizure was made by the royal Canadian mounted police in a cove near Fort Montgomery, N. Y., from which the American patrol on guard had been barred by high winds.

Financial loss represented by destruction of their undersea craft and realization of the effect of Canadian coöperation with American chasers is expected to prevent further effort along this line, according to Collector of Customs Harry C. Whitehill.

Had Stumped Dry Agents.

"There is no doubt, however," he said, "that rum running submarines on Lake Champlain proved their usefulness."

The existence of these boats has been known to the authorities for some time, said Capt. J. B. Kendricks, lake patrol chief, today. Reports reached him last spring that New York and Vermont bootleggers had combined and had under construction three craft that could be towed under water.

How They Were Operated.

The customs men were fooled the first time they stopped one of the towing launches, but later one of the strange craft was found adrift with 5,000 bottles of ale in Broad lake. Then followed the capture of the second, with 4,000 bottles, as it was being towed on a 175 foot hawser. It had not been submerged quickly enough.

All three of the boats captured measured about 28 feet in length. The decks are completely covered with small entrances that may be sealed against the water. Periscopes serve a double purpose in these craft. Both air and vision are had through them by the men below the surface of the lake. The submerging depth, of course, is limited by the height of the periscopes, which is a handicap to the operation of the boats during daylight hours.

SOREL'S SHOW TO TEACH HIGHER SALESMANSHIP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Taking with her probably the most sumptuous theatrical equipment that has ever crossed the Atlantic, Mme. Cecile Sorel, famous star of the Comédie Française, whose off stage name is now the Countess de Segur, sailed on the Berengaria for New York today to put over in New York her "Showcase Theater."

Her road show, exhibiting the latest Parisian costumes, furniture, novelties, arts, jewelry, and practically everything any New York buyer could pick up in the Rue de la Paix in Paris, will be a veritable auction sale. The gowns, costumes, jewels, furniture, and everything appearing in the scenes of her various plays will be offered for sale. The spectators between the acts or after the show, can send a call for a salesman, who will take the order for any article seen on the stage for delivery by the Paris maker.

Thirty actors, all qualified as experienced models, as well as trained dramatic artists with reputations, will interpret famous rôles while exhibiting the merchandise.

3 OPERA DEBUTS ADD INTEREST; ALL WIN PRAISE

Mme. Norena, Florence Loring Two of Them.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

They had quite a session of debuts in the Civic Opera performance yesterday afternoon and evening. Eide Norena introduced herself to the Chicago public as Gilda in "Rigoletto" in the afternoon; Louise Loring did the same as Leonora in "Trovatore" in the evening; not to forget Florence Misgen, who sang the part of Countess Ceprano in the afternoon and Inez in the evening, neither of them leading parts, but both well done.

Mme. Norena found herself credited with an unmistakable and fairly large sized hit. Under her ministrations, Gilda became quite the sort of a young person that she should be. She sang in a clear, bright, and carrying voice, she comported herself calmly and easily with the long, graceful body line that is hers by nature, and she performed as though the words of the opera as well as its music meant something to her.

Both Fit Rôles Well.

Physically and vocally she was a first class team mate for Charles Hackett, who took the part of the duke. Mr. Hackett is as fine a looking duke as ever reigned over Mantua, and he frequently sings, as he did yesterday, in a way to match his looks. His voice and that of Mme. Norena's are as different in range as any tenor and soprano, but they have a certain quality in common that makes them blend.

Thus, the second act became a love scene instead of a singing exhibition, which also was quite as it should be.

Luigi Montesanto was the Rigoletto. He has many virtues and one fault. Among the virtues are a voice of meaty quality, much skill in its coloring, and a sense of the stage that humanized Rigoletto instead of making him purely grotesque. His fault is that in certain passages when singing softly he once in a while sags from the pitch. This is once in a while. In his more vigorous moments he was immense. His monologue in the second act was superb.

Harry Preston Wins Praise.

The performance took a spirited pace and held it with the connivance of every one from Conductor Roberto Moranzoni to the choristers. Among the excellent items was the part of Monterone, who stood out distinctly in the performance by Howard Preston.

Miss Loring's Leonora in the evening would have been equally favorable if it had not been for a too apparent preoccupation with her music, which caused her by swaying, gesture, and genuflection to do some unconscious time beating. Vocally she was entirely commendable. Her voice was both agreeable and full toned and she evidently knows how to sing.

The Azucena was Augusta Lenska, who has not only the voice for the part but all its traditions. Aroldo Lindi sang Manrico and Giovanni Polese the Count of Luna, and both did well in their tasks.

Ukrainian Chorus Here Again.

The Ukrainian National chorus, somewhat smaller in numbers than it used to be, but still conducted by Alexander Koshetz, gave a concert at Orchestra hall in the afternoon. As was the case two years ago, it was costumed in all the colors of the rainbow, and its lithe vocalism was fascinating and bewildering. That is, it was so in its Russian song. Its attempt at a Negro melody was somewhat too brilliant, too little blended or elastic, too exigent. The soloist, Max Pollikoff, proved himself to be a brilliant violinist with a lovely tone and the art of making himself popular.

Hundreds of Women Ask Permits to View Hanging

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Nov. 13.—A gendarmerie lieutenant, Gustav Lederer, who a year ago murdered a wealthy butcher and cut up the body in small pieces, was hanged yesterday. His wife, who helped him in the deed and whose death sentence was commuted to fifteen years in prison, fainted on hearing the clock strike nine, the hour of execution. Hundreds of women applied for permission to be present at the execution, but were refused.

PROFESSOR'S WIFE WINS DIVORCE AT SHORT HEARING

In a two minute hearing before Circuit Judge George F. Rush yesterday, Mrs. Mabel F. Mode, 1413 East 60th street, gained a divorce from Peter G. Mode, former professor of history at the University of Chicago. Mode now lives in Winnipeg, Canada, where he has extensive land interests.

Mrs. Mode merely testified that her husband left her July 22, 1924, giving no reason. She could not explain his departure, she said, and he refused to come back to her. She was given $100 monthly alimony and the custody of a son, Douglas, 15 years old.

The Modes were married in 1899. The former professor did not contest the divorce.

Super-cut genuine Diamonds

25% MORE SURFACE

Full Brilliancy
No Additional Cost

SUPER-CUT diamonds aside from being as good as the best in point of quality and brilliancy possess the big advantage of having 25% More Surface-size than a regular-cut diamond and that without losing beauty or scintillation. Super-Cut diamonds are not spread diamonds that are thin and lifeless. On the contrary "Super Cuts" are full of life and brilliancy, being the result of a new discovery—no, that is not the proper word — it is a new development that required many years of patient experimental labor. Finally a new formula was evolved, resulting in 25% greater surface without developing a weak or lusterless center. It's really a marvelous revelation! But you must see the "Super Cuts" to fully appreciate what has been accomplished.

Regular Cut

Super Cut

Prices from $200 to $1,000

The ring above shown is an enlarged reproduction of one of our best offers. It is set with a wonderful super-cut giving you, what looks like, 25% more value than a regular cut diamond can possibly develop.

The mounting is superior too. Ordinarily a platinum ring contains 5% iridium but the better ones have 10% as ours has. Note the fine, dainty lacy work and the artistic piercing and also that the super-cut center stone is surrounded by six smaller diamonds. The latter are full-cut and of the finest quality. All in all this is surely the ring to buy!

Announcing

the most complete line of 4 and 6-cylinder Speed Trucks

The Harvester organization announces a complete line of improved Speed Trucks of six distinct chassis designs to meet every requirement imaginable for loads up to 1½ tons.

Every International Speed Truck is a truck from the ground up—not a rebuilt passenger car. Engine, clutch, transmission, axles, springs, frame, and all the other essentials are the result of 22 years of truck building experience.

Whether your loads run to bulk or weight, whether your business calls for style and distinction or plain utility in its hauling equipment—there is a 4 or 6-cylinder Speed Truck in either a 1¼ or 1½-ton chassis made to meet your needs exactly. Come in and look them over.

MODEL S is built to carry a 1¼-ton load. It comes equipped with a 4 or 6-cylinder power plant and with any type of body for regular hauling and delivery.

MODEL SL—safe and low and easy to work with—is a 1½-ton chassis with either a 4 or 6-cylinder engine and a wheelbase of 160 inches. The top of the frame is only 24 inches from the ground.

MODEL SD is a handy, specially-built 1½-ton chassis with a wheelbase of 110 inches, suitable for dump or tractor work. It is ideal for general contracting, road building, and trailer hauling.

Besides the Speed Trucks there is the "Special Delivery," a fast and sturdy 4-cylinder model for ¾-ton loads. Any type of body.

The International line also includes Heavy-Duty Trucks up to 5 tons capacity, Motor Coaches for all requirements and the McCormick-Deering Industrial Tractor.

RED CROSS HERE WINNING IN DRIVE FOR MEMBERSHIP

Substantial Gain Is Made Over Last Year.

Membership enrollment for the first three days of the tenth annual roll call of the Chicago chapter, American Red Cross, showed an increase of $5,000 in contributions over the same period last year, and $16,000 over the preceding year, Mrs. George A. McKinlock, chairman of roll call, announced yesterday.

The drive, which was opened on Armistice morning and will continue through Thanksgiving, reveals an encouraging number of $500, $250, and $100 contributions. Reports received at the headquarters of the chapter, 616 South Michigan avenue, indicate that if the present rate is maintained, the 5,000 volunteer workers will achieve their quota of 250,000 members, Mrs. McKinlock said.

The Larger Contributors.

Among the larger contributors of those first to respond are Mrs. Howard H. Spaulding, Harold McCormick, Harold H. Swift, Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. William Wrigley Jr., Martin A. Ryerson, Ralph Sargent, C. H. Markham, R. Douglas Stuart, Silas H. Strawn, John H. Winterbotham, Charles B. Goodspeed, Ernest A. Hamill, C. I. Sturgis, Mrs. Frank C. Letts, Edward L. Ryerson, Noble Brandon Judah, Potter Palmer, and Samuel Insull.

Mrs. McKinlock, James B. Forgan, vice president of the First National bank and chairman of the Chicago chapter, and Thomas M. Temple, executive secretary, are in charge of the campaign, which is being pressed to the utmost in order to replenish the treasury of the chapter, depleted by relief work in recent disasters, including the Florida hurricane and the floods in five states.

Service in Cook County.

Funds received from the memberships will be utilized mainly to carry on the Chicago chapter's service in Chicago and Cook county, through the war service, caring for disabled former service men and their families, first aid and life saving, home hygiene and nutrition courses, and similar activities.

HAS POKER PARTY AT HOME; SENDS WIFE TO TURKISH BATH

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—What to do with the wife if you want to have the boys in for a night long tilt with the pasteboards was explained in court today by Joseph Beck of Essex street.

Beck and 11 friends were arrested in a raid on the Beck apartment by police, who had watched a card game through a window after finding the door padlocked. Beck described himself as a married man.

"Where was your wife while all this was going on?" he was asked.

"O, I sent her off to a Turkish bath for the night," he replied.

HACKETT ESTATE OF $1,000,000 GOES TO HIS WIDOW

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Beatrice Mary Hackett, wife of James K. Hackett, noted American actor who died recently in Paris, is bequeathed his estate estimated at more than $1,000,000, under the terms of his will filed today.

After Mrs. Hackett's death the estate goes into a fund for the Actors' home, Staten Island, N. Y., and funds for the library for the Players' club, the Lambs' club, and the Actors' Equity association.

DOLLAR CHASING HABIT IN EUROPE, TOO, YANK FINDS

"Optimist" Creed Meets with Little Favor.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Europe's cupidity in every way surpasses American dollar chasing, according to H. A. Binder, messenger abroad for the San Francisco Optimists' club, who has just left for the United States, after touring sixteen countries. He is discouraged with the prospects for converting European business men to the Optimists' creed.

Mr. Binder believed he has succeeded in the last ten months in laying the foundations for the formation of Optimist clubs in London and Paris, which will have for their object the moral development of boys through the personal aid of members when the youths enter their life work.

Europe Also Chasing Dollar.

"I wish I had the languages at my command and was sufficiently eloquent to travel in Europe, lecturing in its countries on the ways they can improve themselves, the same as their long haired orators come to America, preaching generosity and culture," Mr. Binder told THE TRIBUNE correspondent. "I would tell them they are just as much out after that same dollar as we are.

"Here was the average European business man's reply when I urged him to choose a boy, take him into his business, aid him and instruct him: 'I'd like to help out a boy but it is impossible; I have not the time. Europe's business is not organized to make it possible. To begin with, we do not reach the office until 10:30 in the morning, and then we take two hours off for lunch. Then the afternoon is interrupted by tea hour and after that the day is over if one is going to have any amusement or time with one's family.'

Only Worry About Own Kin.

"Europeans will not take any trouble for any one outside of the family. Heads of businesses do not care how employés are housed or clothed and would not consider organizing welfare work. They are paralyzed by traditions and will not make any effort to break down bad ones. All they care about is getting themselves and their families safely cared for.

"While America is willing to adopt Europe's best points of architecture, and wide boulevards, and seeks to gain the culture and refinement, Europe is afraid of anything new and will not accept anything American."

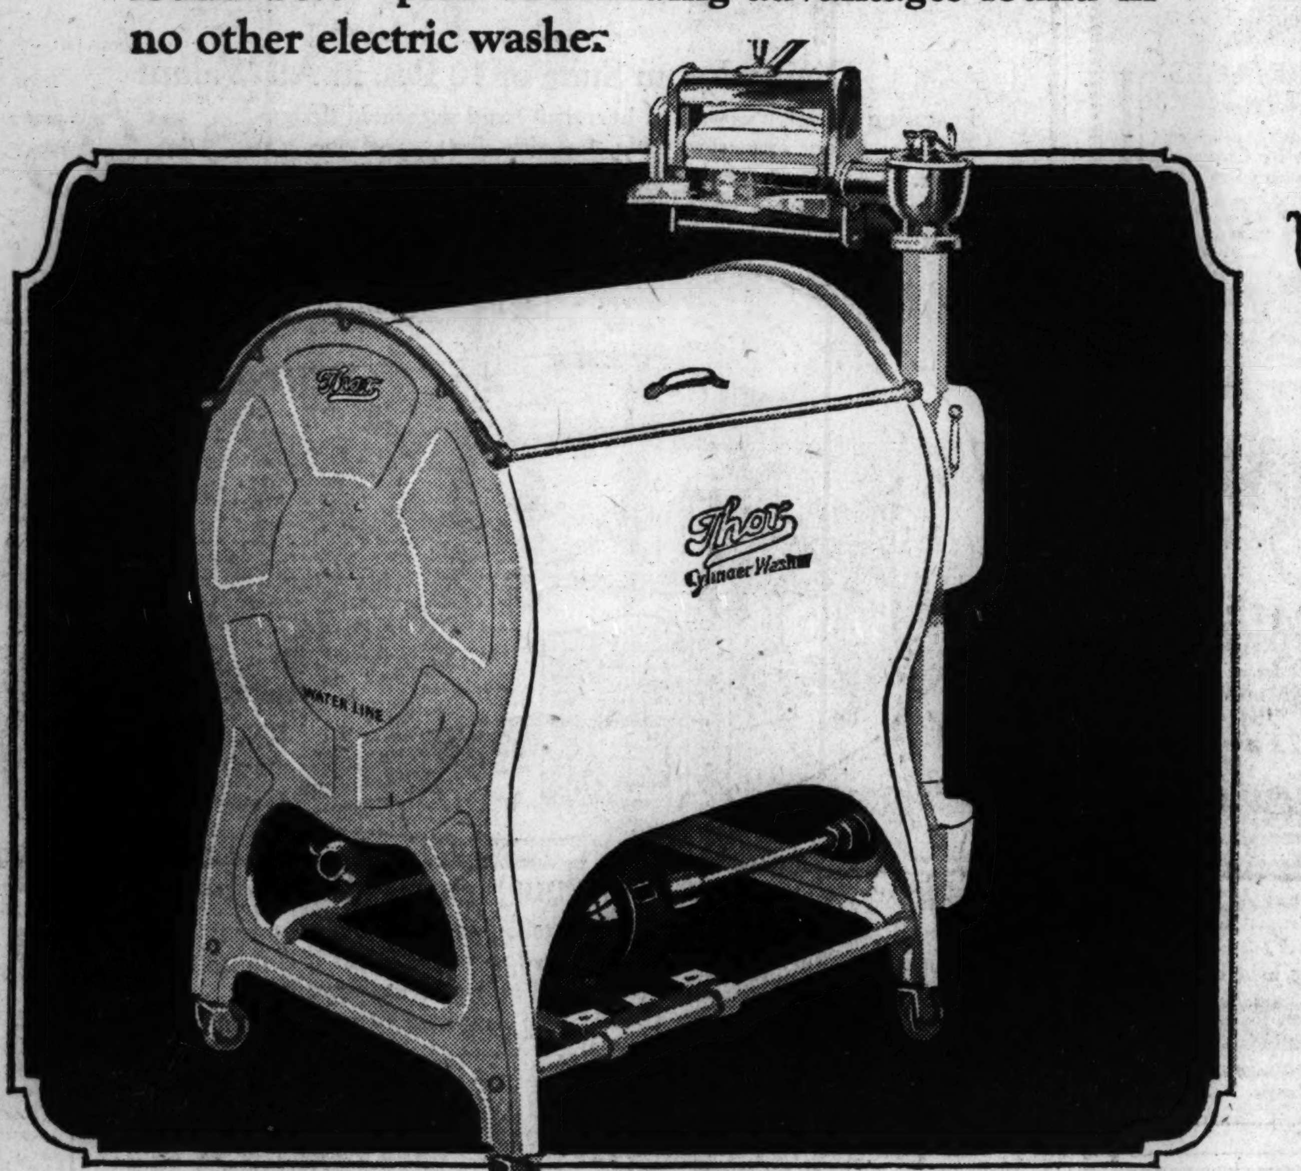
Thor Announces New Models

Two Sensations, keeping the Thor Factories working day and night

A Wonderful New Washing Machine

Retaining the time-tried and proven Thor Cylinder method which experts and leading authorities have found best—plus outstanding advantages found in no other electric washer.



New Thor Cylinder Washer

CLOTHES LIVE LONGER

NOW you can have an all-metal New Thor Cylinder Washer at a lower price than ever before—and on the easiest of terms. The most for your money of any washer on the market today!

Fastest Washing

The New Thor revolves faster and reverses oftener, creating the most turbulent conceivable action of soapy water through every inch of fabric—and giving the fastest possible washing. It is the only washer combining safety for clothes with speed.

Self-Oiling

Not an oil hole in the mechanism! This new feature alone places the New Thor in a position of absolute preeminence over every other washing machine made. Ask to see an instruction chart on any other washer. See all the places that need oiling! No woman wants to use an oil can every week in a dozen or more places—with the result, oily, dirty hands and the possibility of getting oil on clothes. In the New Thor, an automatic pump keeps the enclosed mechanism bathed in oil. Previous Thors hold the world's record for long life—many 19 years old are still going strong. The New Thor is truly a Lifetime Washer.

Quietest

The new Thor is the quietest washer made. You can use it in an apartment kitchen.

New Beauty—White Duco Finish

This is the marvelous new lacquer used on the finest automobiles, where it withstands rain, snow, hail, sandstorms, blazing sun, battery acid, etc., without harm. Your New Thor will keep its beautiful, clean whiteness.

Cleanest Washing

In other methods, clothes are washed on the bottom of a tub, right in the heavier, dirt-laden water. In the Thor clothes are washed in the upper, clean water. The heavier, dirt-laden water collects in the reservoir below and the dirt is held from recirculating by Thor's dirt trap.

Clothes Live Longer

This is what experts have found of the Thor Cylinder method. There is no friction of cups, prongs, pegs, vanes, etc., twisting or pressing against the clothes and wearing them out. Thor's method of using water action alone prevents wear. No other method is so thorough yet so gentle. By making clothes last longer, Thor will soon pay back its cost many times over.

Aluminum Cylinder

Patented! As smooth as glass! Dirt, soap or grease cannot adhere to it. It should never be lifted out! It is self-rinsing in 30 seconds. The New Thor is the only washer on the market that is absolutely self-cleaning without the touch of a hand.

Two Sizes

Thor 6 (six-sheet size) for small families, and Thor 8 (eight-sheet size) for large families.

An Amazing New Ironing Invention

See it—try it! And you'll never iron the old-fashioned hand way again. You rest in a comfortable chair while your ironing is done for you

New Thor Folding Ironer

AN EXCLUSIVE FEATURE

IT banishes wearisome ironing days. Now every woman can finish her ironing in minutes instead of hours.

NOT for Flat Work Only

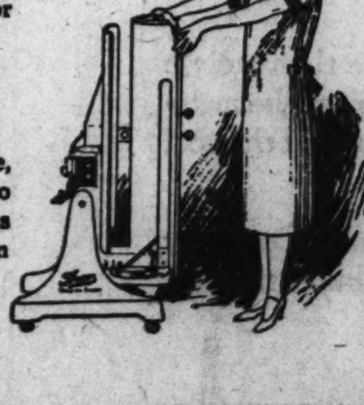
The New Thor Folding Ironer has a full open roll. It irons frills, ruffles, flounces, children's party dresses and EVERYTHING in the family laundry.

Fits in Smallest Kitchen

The New Thor is most compact. On its large casters it lightly rolls to any convenient spot—in the kitchen, on an enclosed porch, or anywhere that it can plug into an ordinary electric convenience outlet. You will be surprised to see into how small a space this wonderful little labor saver fits.

Folds and Rolls into a Closet

When the ironing is done, it folds up and rolls into a closet or corner—just as you put away a vacuum cleaner.



More Economical than Hand Ironing

This is almost unbelievable—but, in addition to the time and labor saved, the New Thor Folding Ironer will save electric current, too!

Child's Play to Use

Even a child can iron beautifully with the New Thor. You merely guide the pieces through. There are no pedals or levers to press—nothing to watch. Just a finger touch starts or stops the roll—everything else is automatic.

That Professional Touch

The even pressure of the heated surface against the roll gives a beautiful, lustrous sheen, the envy of expert hand laundresses.

White Duco Finish

The New Thor is as beautiful as it is useful—and you can be sure it will still be a thing of pride and beauty for long years to come.

Pay As You Save

Just a small amount down and moderate easy payments—probably less than you pay a laundress to do your ironing—will put this great, modern convenience in your home. Life is too short to stand every week at tedious, long-drawn-out hand ironing when a New Thor Folding Ironer can save all this work, and money, too.

Any old washer or ironer can be traded

The New Thor Cylinder Washer and the New Thor Folding Ironer are made right here in Chicago, by the oldest manufacturer of electric washing machines, who has made more than any other make—over a million. Every purchaser receives an absolute guarantee and the factory is right at your telephone (in case you ever need to call) so that you are always assured of immediate service and continuous satisfaction.

Your investment in a Thor is a guarantee of lifetime service and satisfaction. No other washer can offer so much!

* * * *

In advance of the first public announcement of these new Thor products, the word leaked out—and dealers, electric light companies and department stores throughout the country are literally swamping the factory with an avalanche of orders.

It is difficult for the factory to supply the demand, although working day and night.

The New Thors may now be seen in thousands of stores throughout the country; and in Chicago and suburbs, at leading department stores, hundreds of washing machine dealers, all branches of the Peoples Gas Stores and all Thor Electric Shops.

New York, Nov. 13.—Christy Flanagan, one of the best running backs in the country, today placed himself alongside the football immortals of Notre Dame when he ran 63 yards for a touchdown to give his team a victory over the Army in the biggest intersectional game of the year. Flanagan's touchdown and O'Boyle's goal kick won for Notre Dame, 7 to 0.

CHRIS FLANAGAN.

This colorful struggle, which has grown into one of the most important in the country, was the fourteenth meeting of teams representing the two schools. As a result of today's game, which was played before 75,000 in Yankee stadium, Notre Dame has won nine games and the Army four, while one resulted in a tie.

There have been few games so stubbornly fought and cleanly played. The defense of both elevens was so strong that neither was able to maintain a sustained attack, although both coaches added fuel to their machines by injecting fresh players continually.

Flanagan Breaks Away.

From the start it was apparent the team which secured the break would win. Neither would take a chance with the forward pass during the first two periods.

After the half had ended in a scoreless time with neither having an appreciable advantage, Notre Dame got its chance after an exchange of punts had left the ball in the westerners' territory. Rockne's eleven had been pecking away at the Army line and shooting plays off the tackles from the customary Notre Dame backfield shift formations.

On one of these plays the ball was passed to Flanagan. The clever Notre Dame back slid off his right tackle and pivoted out of the grasp of two Army tacklers. Instead of cutting in, Christy swung wide and started his dash for the cadet's goal line. He ran the entire distance about one yard from the side line.

The Army had been playing a box defense, and Christy's long run, which gave his team a victory, was due to some of the cleverest blocking I ever have seen. Although the play was sent off the right side of Notre Dame's line, it was Miller, the Hoosiers' left tackle, and Voedisch, the left end, who made Flanagan's run possible. The moment the ball was snapped these players started for the Army secondary defense. Miller cut down Harry Wilson, the first man in the Army secondary on the cadets' left side. Voedisch went through and took off Harding, the last man of the Army box defense. Both Wilson and Harding were in commanding positions to nail Flanagan, but they were cut down in superb fashion, and almost as much credit is due Miller and Voedisch as Flanagan.

Notre Dame Line Holds.

That run spurred Notre Dame to greater efforts. Rockne's line, although outweighed, rose in superhuman fashion and would not give an inch despite the efforts of Wilson and Murrell, the Army great backs, to puncture it. Even in the second quarter, when Capt. Hewitt was injected into the battle, Notre Dame rallied when in danger and forced the cadets to punt.

As the game wore on, Coach Jones of West Point sent every player of note into the game. The Army tossed forward passes to all corners of the gridiron, but Notre Dame would not be denied, and the cadet passes either were incompleted or intercepted.

Outside of Flanagan's run, there was no outstanding feature except the aggressive and clean playing of both elevens. Contrary to expectations, Notre Dame did not depend upon the air game. The westerners attempted

Senn Defeats Harrison by Passes, 21-0

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Senn High school's fleet back field romped around a determined Harrison Tech eleven, 21 to 0, in the treacherous mud at the Cubs' ball park yesterday, and won the right to play Lindbloom in the city championship final next Saturday.

CAPT. THORNTON. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ten thousand youngsters screeched their loyalty and the two bands each tried to play "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" faster than the other as the teams came on the field.

Long runs around end, including two forty yard dashes by Geislen, and long passes to Thornton brought Senn victory. Senn made eleven first downs, while Harrison made seven.

Harrison, with a few exceptions, such as Cohen, Trojka, and Sommer, simply didn't have the speed of the north siders, but they enlivened the contest by a desperate march in the third quarter. They made five first downs in succession.

Senn Passes Bring Scores.

The break came early. Senn had kicked off and Harrison had punted after a couple of line plays. Cohen, portly but efficient tackle, was down with the punt, and when a Senn back fumbled hurled his 230 pounds on the ball. It was Harrison's chance, but the lighter boys could not puncture the huskier Senn line for long enough gains, and the chance passed when a pass was incomplete on the fourth down.

Then Senn broke loose. Thornton raced 15 yards around left end. Senn drew a 15 yard penalty, but Carlson tossed a 25 yard pass to Thornton, who was downed on Harrison's 23 yard line. Half a dozen successive plunges and a Harrison offside penalty took the ball to the five yard line as the first quarter ended. Twice Cohen broke through to stop a Senn ball carrier in his tracks, but on the third down Thornton sped wide around left end for a touchdown. Carlson place kicked the goal.

In a few moments Senn scored again. Props broke through and blocked Smatlak's punt and it was Senn's ball on Harrison's 45 yard line. Geislen, who was injured in the Evanston game early in the season and hasn't played since, broke off right tackle for 40 yards. Harrison, on its four yard line, held, and Senn's pass on the fourth down was incomplete. Smatlak kicked to the 33 yard line, and on the first play Carlson tossed a 30 yard pass to Thornton, who stepped over the line for a second touchdown. Gentry kicked the goal.

Harrison Stages March.

Harrison came back after the half and for a quarter battled Senn to a standstill. A Senn line play was stopped cold and the ball spurted from the huddle of figures behind the Harrison line. Trojka fell on it on his 30 yard line. Then Harrison began its gallant rush.

Sommer passed to Fink for 12 yards; Sommer passed to Trafalet for 10 yards and another first down. Troyka got four yards, Sommer two, and Winkler made it first down. Three more line plunges and an offside penalty made the fourth first down, and three more tackle drives put the ball on Senn's 10 yard line. Then Senn's line held for downs.

Another intercepted pass brought the third Senn score. Thornton again grabbed the ball and added 12 yards on a right end run. Carlson got 8 yards to put the ball on Harrison's four yard line, and first down. On the fourth down Carlson sneaked over. He also kicked goal. Lineup:

Three Hurt When Bomb Explodes in Buckeye Stadium

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Three spectators were slightly injured this afternoon when an aerial bomb that was part of the preliminary ceremonies to the Michigan-Ohio game exploded in the crowd.

The bomb was fired outside the stadium and should have exploded in midair. It fell among spectators seated in a temporary bleacher at the south end of the gridiron. As it hit the floor of the stand it exploded with a roar and a puff of smoke. Three people were carried to the first aid station and then were removed to the university hospital. They suffered from burns on the limbs, none serious.

The injured were: Mrs. J. B. Bropst and Mrs. John Miller of Columbus and Bryon Griffith of Delaware, O.

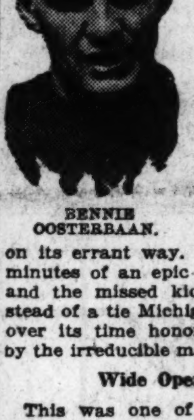
BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—Ohio's hopes for a share of the Big Ten grid title hung by a thread today while Myers Clark was trying to propel a drop kick from touchdown over the Michigan goal.



BENNIE OOSTERBAAN.

With 90,000 voices suddenly stilled for the crucial moment, the youngster kicked and missed. Those of that 90,000 whose hopes were in the Wolverines turned loose a tremendous shout as the kick went on its errant way. Only a few more minutes of an epic struggle remained and the missed kick meant that instead of a tie Michigan had triumphed over its time honored Buckeye rival by the irreducible margin of 17 to 16.

Wide Open Battle.

This was one of those fights that bore the earmarks of prearrangement There were breaks that went both ways and there were forward passes, the like of which seldom are thrown by two teams in one battle. And there was at least one blunder that gave Michigan a wide open path to a touchdown that proved sorely needed when the Buckeyes came back with a spurt in the last eight minutes of play.

It started as if the Wolverines were to be buried under an avalanche even worse than turned loose against them by the Navy. Almost before the greatest crowd that ever paid to see a football game had settled back, Ohio cut loose. A goal kick and a touchdown piled up ten Buckeye points. It looked as if Ohio had nothing more to do for the day than play safe. But it couldn't play safe against the passing attack for which Yost's men are feared and respected.

Apparently undisturbed by what had happened to their ambitions at the outset, the Wolverines rallied beautifully. Their first bid to amend matters was a placement by Benny Friedman from the 27 yard line. He missed.

Then came that perfectly timed passing attack and Ohio apparently was bewildered. Three passes, with a few line smashes sandwiched in, backed the Ohioans under their own goal post and Friedman kicked for the extra point. Ohio's lead thus was reduced to 10 to 7. A few more minutes and Friedman had tied it at 10 apiece.

Marek Fumbles Punt.

When the third period got under way it seemed as if both teams had played themselves out by their heroics in the opening half. They merely moved up and down by kicking, but a break finally occurred and it went Michigan's way to atone for a costly fumble by Gilbert that let Ohio get its flying start.

Marek, luckless with injuries throughout most of his college career, was the goat of the turning point. With nothing to gain he attempted to pick up a bounding Michigan punt on his own six yard line. The ball eluded him after he had touched it and a Wolverine pounced on it. The period ended immediately after, but as soon as the final quarter opened Friedman threw another of those deadly passes over the goal and then kicked for the point, putting Michigan ahead by 17 to 10.

Now it was Ohio's turn to show it that it could come back as Michigan had done. The sensational running, dodging Byron Eby was hurried into the fight. He should have been there long before instead of Marek, who has a bursted finger. With Eby giving the first show of real running the game so far had produced and with a few forward passes included the Ohioans went right down the field to a touchdown. And then Clark missed the drop kick on which a muddled conference title hung.

The struggle was just a few minutes past its starting point when Ohio started to dazzle that vast 90,000. Punts

Tiny Lewis shortens the distance to the goal somewhat in the third quarter, although Leyers (No. 22), Maroon full back, nailed him after a short advance. Fisher, right end, is taking out a Maroon lineman in the play. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Purdue Harriers Trip Chicago Team, 25 to 30

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The Purdue cross country team defeated the Chicago team Saturday morning over a course of nearly four miles, by a score of 25 to 30. Capt. Little of the Purdue team finished first and established a new record for the course, 19 minutes and 40 seconds.

Purple Loses Chance for Columbia Tilt

Procrastination upon the part of committee members has forced Northwestern university to drop its chance of a big intersectional football game with Columbia next fall, it was reported yesterday.

For years the Purple has wanted a big game with a strong eastern school, but its low standing made a seaboard invasion out of the question. With athletics in the midst of prosperity in the Evanston school the Purple started a quest for an eastern game next fall, but their advances met with discouragement at every point.

It is understood that on Wednesday, Nov. 3, Columbia asked for a game to be played in New York on Oct. 15, 1927, with a return contest at Evanston in 1928 optional. The eastern school asked for an answer by Monday noon. A hurried meeting of a majority of the committee members Sunday is said to have found all present heartily in favor of the project. It was then left up to two members to complete negotiations. No action was taken, however.

On Thursday it is reported a message from New York said that the eastern school must retract its offer because no word had been received in response to the proposal and that another school was signed for the offered date.

No other eastern school seems available for the Purple's 1927 schedule.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 13.—Princeton's football team won the posthumous championship of the erstwhile Big Three this afternoon by defeating Yale, 10 to 7, in a dogged bout that found Yale determined to win or be licked, but running chances to compromise with a tie score.

They scored a touchdown apiece in the second quarter and each made the point afterward. Thereafter Earl Baruch, the Princeton left half whose forward passes had jumped Princeton down the field in long strides for the touchdown, nudged a dropkick over the indestructible steel goal posts from a distance of 30 yards for the field goal that won the game and provoked all the tumult and bawling and blatting of trombones that disturbed the leafy quiet of this sylvan college town tonight.

Baruch's Passes Turn Trick.

The exact point at which Princeton began to lick Yale was when Bunnell punted for Yale in the second quarter and Rosengarten, Princeton tackle, gouged his way through to take a glancing impact of the ball on his chest. He didn't exactly block the kick, but he marred it so seriously that the ball plopped down at Yale's own 37 yard line after a flight of less than ten yards. Baruch then flung a pass for a 7 yard gain and then used his arm again for a toss to Lawler, the left end, who got away for a wild run to Yale's 13 yard line.

Princeton then varied the attack with two slams at the line by Bridges and one by Baruch, which netted 9 yards. On the next play, a short, straight pitch from Baruch sailed

Princeton Breaks Training After Victory Over Yale

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The men who gave Princeton its victory today were the quietest men on the campus tonight. The players took their victory calmly and quietly, dressed quickly and left in ones and twos, several breaking training with the first cigarets in weeks between their lips as they walked out to the street.

The season had ended.

The broadest grin in all New Jersey adorned the features of Bill Roper as he came into greet the men. "Satisfied? Sure, I'm satisfied," he said. "But it certainly was a tough hour. Let's not have any criticisms of anybody. We won the game and that's that. It was tough for Yale to lose the chances it did but I'm sure glad they did not win."

BY DON MAXWELL.

They're flying purple banners on Northwestern's campus this morning. And they're flying them high. They're singing songs at Northwestern this morning. And they're singing them with vim. For everybody's happy at Northwestern.

VIC GUSTAFSON.

They raised the purple banners and they started singing Purple songs ten seconds after the kickoff in Northwestern's game with Chicago yesterday. It took only ten seconds for Northwestern's football team to score the first touchdown of the game that ended with the Purple jerseyed team victorious, 38 to 7. But those were the finest ten seconds Northwestern's ever known.

For years Chicago and Northwestern have been playing football games and in most of them the men coached by the venerable Alonzo Stagg have been lowering Purple pride and subduing Purple hopes. Yesterday was the thirty-seventh time the two schools have met on the gridiron. And yesterday's game is the one Northwestern will remember.

47,000 See Purple Win.

It was a big day in many ways. It brought the dedication of Northwestern's new and incompleted $2,000,000 stadium. It packed the stands with 47,000 folk, the largest crowd that ever saw a football game in Evanston. And it wrote into the records one of the most decisive lickings Northwestern ever gave a foe.

The bands had played the last notes of the national anthem. The flag and Northwestern's banner had been raised to the top of the new pole; the two teams had lined up. Northwestern had won the toss and was receiving with the wind at its back. The referee whistled and Northwestern's triumph began.

McDonough, Chicago's starting quarter back, kicked off. It was a good kick and carried to Northwestern's 13 yard line. It landed in the arms of Solemn Gus Gustafson, Northwestern half back.

Gustafson hopped sidewise, tucked the ball under his left arm, and started running. He headed straight for the center of the field. The Chicago players came charging down. One by one Northwestern hit them.

Down went Apitz, Chicago's left end, then down went Spence, the right end. McKinney, Marks, Lewis, and Weislow sprawled before the rush of the Northwestern interference.

Speeds on 88 Yards.

And Gustafson kept running straight ahead.

The Northwestern team opened a lane 20 yards wide and on either side of it lay Chicago tacklers.

Gustafson kept on running.

Finally he reached Chicago's 40 yard line and only McDonough of Chicago was ahead.

Gustafson kept on running.

He increased his speed as the goal line drew closer. Another second, then another, and he was clear. He reached the goal with the closest Chicago tackler four yards behind.

Gustafson had run 88 yards for a touchdown, but the game had only begun.

Northwestern's band struck up its song; the Northwestern students cheered, and thousands of Purple balloons went floating into the gloomy sky. The revenge Northwestern wanted had come.

Before the game ended Northwestern scored four more touchdowns, made all its points after touchdowns, and Baker had drop kicked a goal from the 27 yard line. And the final score you know.

It was the first touchdown that gave the crowd its biggest thrill.

Maroons Show Fighting Heart.

The strangest part of this game between Northwestern's powerful football team and Chicago's mediocre eleven that until yesterday hadn't scored a point on a conference opponent was the game the losers played. The first touchdown was enough to take the heart out of any team, but it didn't faze Chicago's. There was more disheartening play to come, but Chicago kept trying.

Here is what Northwestern did in the first two quarters.

A few minutes after Gustafson's 88 yard run McKinney fumbled the ball and the Purple recovered on Chicago's 34 yard line. Three plays later Baker scored his drop kick.

A few more minutes, and McDonough's punt hit the wind and it was Northwestern's ball on Chicago's 34 yard line. A couple of line plays, and Baker passed to Fisher, Northwestern's right end, for 14 yards. More line plays, and Baker shot a looping pass to Gustafson, who took three steps and scored another touchdown. It was: Northwestern, 17; Chicago, 0.

And Northwestern kept on scoring. It got its third touchdown on more passes. Baker tossed brilliantly for 50 yards to Fisher and it was the Purple's ball 19 yards from the goal. Northwestern lost 15 yards for holding and three yards in a triple pass play. Then Gustafson threw the ball to Baker and he scampered around left end for another six points.

Northwestern was leading, 24 to 0, as the quarter ended.

Maroons Score on Pass.

On the second play of the second quarter which opened with a fumble by Rouse of a Northwestern punt on the five yard line, Gustafson plunged over and brought the score to 30 to 0. Baker kicked the first goal.

The Maroons kept on trying.

They finally got started when Kyle Anderson was sent into the backfield in the place of McKinney. They started passing from midfield. Anderson tossed the ball to Marks who ran to Northwestern's 22 yard line. And Marks passed to Anderson over the goal.

Marks place kicked the extra point.

Chicago had kept trying and because it had Chicago did what no other conference team has done. It scored on Northwestern. It did it after its chances seemed hopeless. That was the only bright spot of the day for the Chicago rooters.

What else happened doesn't matter. The Purple got another touchdown when Lewis plunged through the line after a penalty had put the ball on the Chicago 8 yard line. Still Chicago kept on trying. But when Anderson left the game through injuries the back field slowed up and the line faltered, and just fighting didn't do any good.

Statistics Tell Strange Story.

The way the Maroons staged their advance to a touchdown was the strangest part of the play. Another strange feature is found in the game's statistics.

In first downs the teams were tied. Each made seven. Leyers, Maroon full back, gained 2¾ yards a try, which was more than Lewis gained. And Chicago gained 88 yards from scrimmage to 97 yards gained by Northwestern.

It was in the aerial game that Northwestern had its big advantage. The Purple completed eight passes for 200 yards, while Chicago completed four passes for 96 yards. Chicago tried 16 passes and Northwestern tried 11. Baker passed to Fisher seven times and gained from 23 to 50 yards each time.

Chicago tried hard, but Northwestern's team was far the better. It has not happened very often, but that doesn't keep the purple flags from flying out in Evanston this morning.

OHIO SHOT DOWN IN AIR BATTLE WITH MICHIGAN

Failure to Kick Goal Brings Defeat.

were exchanged and then Bell punted again for the Buckeyes. Friedman let the ball roll to Michigan's ten yard mark. On the next play Gilbert fumbled while attempting an end run and Bell fell on the loose oval on Michigan's eleven yard line.

Karow hit the center of Michigan's line for two yards and Grim equalled the distance with a stab at the Wolverines' left tackle. He repeated, leaving 5 yards to go for a touchdown. But Clark dropped back to the 15 yard line and booted a drop kick over the Michigan goal for 3 points.

Ohio started to its touchdown a few minutes later when Michigan lost the ball on downs on Ohio's forty yard line. Grim dashed through Michigan's right tackle and then swung over to his right for a nineteen yard sprint. Then a dazzling pass, Bell to Clark, which which the only one attempted by Ohio in the first two periods, was brought down one foot from the Michigan goal. Karow dove through center for the remaining distance and Clark drop kicked, giving Ohio its 10 to 0 advantage.

The second period was about half over when Michigan started to stagger out of the slump that had enveloped its attack. The march got under way when Gilbert brought a Buckeye punt back to Michigan's 37 yard line. Short gains by Gilbert and Weber and then a pass for 14 yards, Gilbert to Friedman, and the pigskin was on Ohio's 45 yard line.

Friedman Fools Buckeyes.

Friedman made a vain attempt to get around end and then followed with a long heave to Oosterbaan. Thirty-three yards was gained in one swoop and Ohio was driven back to its 12 yard line. A couple stabs by Weber and Molenda brought five more yards and Friedman dropped back as if to aim a place kick at the Ohio goal. Instead he reached down, took the ball from Gilbert and threw it over the goal to Oosterbaan. Friedman place kicked for the point and the score changed to Ohio, 10; Michigan, 7.

Before the second period had ended Friedman drew his second chance at a place kick because of a poor punt by Bell. The punt traveled only 25 yards and rolled out of bounds on Michigan's 47 yard line. A long pass failed but the Wolverines came right back with another. It went from Oosterbaan to Friedman and gained twenty yards. This was close enough for Friedman so he dropped back to the 42 yard line and placed the oval between the Ohio uprights. That knotted it at 10 to 10.

When Marek made his foolish attempt to pick up the bounding ball at the end of the third period, Baer, the Michigan tackle, was there to fall on it. The goal was six yards away and before a play could be run off the period ended and the fight swung to the opposite end of the gridiron.

Friedman's Pass Good.

In the first play of the final period that proved so hectic Weber smashed into center for two yards and Hoffman, who had supplanted Molenda, hit tackle for one. Then Friedman, standing back so that every one of those 90,000 could plainly determine that he was going to pass, shot the ball over the goal line and Hoffman leaped up to get it and hold for a touchdown. Friedman then place kicked for the point that later proved so valuable.

Eby, fresh as a colt, brought the kickoff back twenty yards to Ohio's 48 yard line. Ohio tried to open its running passing attack but failed, so Eby punted sixty yards over the Michigan goal. The Wolverines, now playing safe, returned the punt immediately and Ohio started going toward its second and last touchdown.

After the punt the ball was on Ohio's 31 yard line.

Twenty-three yards were reeled off when Bell sailed the ball to Clark. Another running pass, Bell to Karow, added nine and Karow then ripped into the Michigan wall for a first down on Michigan's 34 yard line.

Eby tried the end and failed but on the next play a pass by Bell bounced off the fingers of a Michigan defender into the hands of Karow for a 17 yard gain. The ball was now on Michigan's 18 yard mark. Another pass with short gains by Eby and Karow made first down on Michigan's 7 yard line and then Eby dashed wide around Flora's end for a touchdown. Clark failed at the kick and Ohio's hope vanished.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Do you think Ray Schalk will make good as manager of the White Sox?

Where Asked.

Jackson boulevard at Michigan.

The Answers.

Harry A. Horst, 1001 North 15th street, Melrose Park, Ill., Edison company employé.—Schalk has been a great aid to the five managers under whom he has worked as a catcher. If the Sox give Ray as much support as he has given to his predecessors he will go down as one of the greatest managers in major league baseball.

Alfred Danon, 1255 North Dearborn street, student.—I believe the "Cracker" will make good. Comiskey seldom makes a move before careful consideration, and when the "Old Roman" picked Schalk to lead his club he knew what he was doing. With Schalk as leader the White Sox should have one of the best teams in the American league next year.

Al Reaun, 814 South Sacramento avenue, policeman.—I believe Schalk will prove the best manager that Comiskey has had. He is well liked by the players. That assures coöperation. Among Sox fans Schalk is something of an idol. If anybody can develop a pennant winner on the south side, Schalk is the man.

Edward S. Jehorek, 2323 North Ridgeway avenue, engraver.—I think Comiskey made a good selection. In Schalk he will find everything that is required to make a good manager. Ray has been with the White Sox since 1912 and has won a place in the hearts of Chicago's fans. He knows baseball and is a leader of men.

Stanley Janecek, 2122 South Fifty-ninth avenue, Cicero, Ill., clerk.—Schalk as manager of the White Sox. I've been looking for that announcement for years, and now I feel certain that my favorite club will come out on top next year. Schalk is the greatest catcher of all time and should prove successful in the rôle of manager.

Badgers Bury Hawks Under Barrage of Passes, 20-10

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's aviation forces defeated a squad of Iowa cowboys and foot soldiers today at Camp Randall by a score of 20 to 10. Although somewhat outplayed in the straight and simple style of football, George Little's eleven sparkled at the modern forward passing game and by such methods came from behind twice and finally crushed the boys from the region of the tall corn.

It is apparent that Mr. Little became convinced that his gang wasn't worth a whoop at plunging and running after his experiences against Michigan and Minnesota, so he made room on the bench for some of his alleged plungers and runners and sent out some light and agile fellows who perhaps belong on the baseball squad.

Anyway, they showed they have splendid throwing arms. They can shoot the football with about the accuracy a big leaguer would throw a baseball, and then he had a few basketball players at the right spots to catch the ball.

Shatters Iowa Defense.

In all, they made twelve forward passes in the game, and completed ten of them. Ten out of twelve is some percentage at that style of play. It seemed they just couldn't miss. They made three touchdowns against the Hawkeyes, and every one of them was made on a forward pass.

points,

The Iowa boys were simply stumped by such an attack. They had their men all primed and keyed up to charge, and block and stop plays, through the line or around the end, but when Wisconsin started hurling the ball over the Iowans' heads they didn't seem to know anything to do but stand still and watch it go.

Wisconsin has a rather slight fellow on the squad, Gene Rose, a lad from Racine who was too light to do for this rough grid game. But he was in there today, and became a hero, for it was young Mr. Rose who did practically all of the hurling of passes.

The men who assisted him by catching the passes, were chiefly Don Cameron and "Toad" Crofoot, though Capt. Doyle Harmon and Welch cut in for a part of the glory. However, it was Cameron who scored two of the touchdowns after receiving forward passes, while Crofoot tallied the other.

A Real Sparkler.

The most sparkling play of the game was turned by Cameron near the finish of the third quarter when Iowa was leading, 10 to 6. Wisconsin had worked the ball to Iowa's 24 yard line for a first down, having put it there mainly because of a couple of nifty passes. From that point they tried some rushing plays and two shots at the Iowa line gained only four yards, so young Rose tried a pass. It was one of the two that failed, but he came right back with another on a fourth down, shooting the ball to Cameron on Iowa's five yard line.

There were two Iowa men right there scatching and clawing at Cameron while the ball was in the air, but he leaped up, plucked it out of space and came down, and rolled and scrambled the five yards over the goal line with the two Iowa men upon him like a couple of wolves. That play put

Wisconsin ahead, 13 to 10, and in the middle of the next quarter they threw the ball over the goal line for another touchdown, whereupon the band immediately struck up the tune, "What the Hell Do We Care Now."

Iowa put up a wonderful scrappy game, displaying a lot better brand of football than a week ago against Minnesota, but the brilliant forward passing attack of the Badgers simply crushed them. There were 40,000 rooters there and there was some noise because 38,000 of them were yelling for Wisconsin.

Kutsch Gets Field Goal.

Cowboy Kutsch must have been thrown off his pony during the last week, for he was limping badly and couldn't do his customary rough riding stunts. He had a bad leg, but stayed in the fight until the last three minutes. Though he did no sensational stuff, it was his consistent plunging and hitting off tackle and his kicking that made it tough for the Badgers. The Iowa star scored all ten of Iowa's down.

Iowa got off to a flying start and looked as if it would surely down the Badgers. After getting the first kickoff they started from their forty yard line and rushed the ball down the field to the Wisconsin 20 yard line, where they were halted and Kutsch took a shot for a field goal but missed. Wisconsin took the ball on its twenty yard line, but fumbled, and Iowa recovered and this time Kutsch made the field goal and the Hawks were off in the lead.

The score remained that way until just near the end of the second quarter, when Wisconsin opened up with the aerial attack and scored a touch-

INDIANA DEFEATS MISSISSIPPI GRID INVADERS, 19 TO 6

Garrison Leads Hoosiers to Victory.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Outplayed in the first half, Indiana came back strong to beat Mississippi Aggies, 19 to 6, today.

Indiana gained a 3 to 0 lead in the first five minutes, when Garrison scored a field goal from the 30 yard line.

Mississippi then opened up an aerial bombardment, which carried the ball to the Indiana 20 yard line, where a series of line plays put the oval within a foot of the goal. Stewart slipped off tackle for a touchdown, but missed a place kick for the point.

Indiana opened the third period with a passing attack which put the ball within 15 yards of the goal line, where Smith missed a place kick. Mississippi punted out, and again Indiana paraded toward the goal. A long forward pass, Garrison to Sibley, gave Indiana its first touchdown.

In the fourth quarter a pass again put Indiana within one foot of the goal, where Bennett crashed off left tackle for a touchdown. Sibley's attempt to score the extra point was blocked by Jones. Indiana threatened to score another touchdown a few minutes later, when Harrell recovered a Mississippi fumble. Lineup:

PURDUE SWAMPS FRANKLIN

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Purdue ran wild against Franklin here this afternoon and vanquished the Baptists, 44 to 0, in a game that was the feature of the annual Dad's day. Wilcox scampered 42 yards for the Boilermakers' first score, three minutes after the start of the game and shortly afterwards went over for a second touchdown.

Wilson booted a field goal from the 27 yard line in the first period and Wilcox scored his third touchdown just before he was withdrawn from the game in the second period.

Franklin, in the third quarter, held Phelan's third team, but Purdue regulars in the closing period, scored three touchdowns, two of them by Leichtle, and one by Houston.

Flanagan Runs 63 Yards to Give N. Dame Win Over Army

only two forward passes, one of which was incompleted and the other intercepted. Rockne ordered a straight line attack most of the time as the slippery field made end running impossible. Rockne had planned to attack the supposedly weak Army ends.

Notre Dame used the criss-cross frequently. The delayed line buck also was good for gains, as were straight plunges. The ball often was fed to the second back with the first acting as a decoy. Occasionally the ball was faked to the left half for a drive off his right tackle, but the ball went to the right half back, who dashed inside his left tackle. It was these formations which caused the Army line to tighten and finally enabled Flanagan to slip outside his right tackle and then dash away for the only score of the game.

Teams Abandon End Runs.

The Army attack was of the straight, bruising type, although end runs were attempted frequently with the fleet Harry Wilson carrying the ball. It was useless, however, to assault the flanks, because of the slippery playing surface and shortly after the game got under way, both elevens resorted to the straight attack and depended upon their lines to open the holes.

The sun shone brightly at the start of the game and the 75,000 who milled their way into the giant stadium presented a brilliant spectacle. This crowd is said to be the largest which has attended a game in this section with the exception of those held in the Yale bowl at New Haven.

Half an hour before game time, 1,200 cadets clad in long gray coats entered the field and marched around the enclosure. As soon as the future generals reached their seats they started to root and sing their songs. Even the Army mule was on exhibition and appeared to enjoy the doings as much as any one else.

In that huge throng were thousands of Notre Dame rooters who wore the colors of the western university. More than 1,000 made the trip in special trains from Chicago and South Bend, while there were many others on hand with no college affiliations who claimed Notre Dame as their alma mater. This number was augmented by thousands of others when they heard Notre Dame had won.

Fans Uproot Goal Posts.

When the final whistle was blown the Notre Dame rooters rushed on the field and tore up the goal posts. It appeared as if every one wanted a souvenir of the battle, and tomorrow pieces of the posts will be shown to other Notre Dame alumni not fortunate enough to have made the trip.

Mayor Walker of New York paid a visit to the Notre Dame dressing room after the game to extend his congratulations to Coach Rockne and his team.

Coach Rockne started his second string back field, with Riley at quarter back, Dahman and Neimiec at half backs, and O'Boyle at full back. The Army received the kickoff, but was forced to punt on the third down and Murrell lifted the oval out of bounds on the Army's 38 yard line. O'Boyle made two yards at center, but Neimiec was thrown for a three yard loss on an attempted end run. A forward pass, Riley to Neimiec, was grounded, and the latter then punted over the Army goal line for a touchback. At this point the Army offense settled down to work. Wilson skirted the Notre Dame left end for 28 yards and drives by Murrell and Cagle carried the oval to the center of the field.

The Army attack was cut short on the Notre Dame 42 yard line, where Murrell failed to make a yard for first down. O'Boyle made nine yards in two straight line plunges and Neimiec made it first down on a straight thrust.

Murrell Intercepts Pass.

The Notre Dame backs, aided by a triple pass with Neimiec carrying the ball, took the oval to the Army 30 yard line. The Cadets braced, and Murrell intercepted a forward pass on his 21 yard line. Murrell punted out of bounds on Notre Dame's 14 yard line as the quarter ended, with neither eleven having scored.

When play was resumed Neimiec punted to Harding in midfield and for the remainder of the period the play was between the two 30 yard lines.

At the start of the second half the Army kicked off to Heardon, who was stopped on his 33 yard line. O'Boyle hit center for four yards. On the next play the oval was given to Flanagan and the fleet back sprinted 63 yards for the only score of the game. From this point until the close of the game the Army tried everything known to football to sneak some player away in the hope of tying the score, but Notre Dame, playing superhumanly, stopped the Cadets' attack before the South Benders' goal was threatened.

Play was in Army territory most of the fourth quarter and when the pistol was fired to denote the end of the game Notre Dame had intercepted a long forward pass on the Army 40 yard line.

NAVY'S RALLY WINS

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Forward passing, the Navy's strongest offensive method, again proved successful today when the Middies outwitted a heavy Georgetown team to win 10 to 7 in the last quarter.

The final period punch which aided the midshipmen in defeating Purdue, Princeton, and Colgate was apparent again as Navy marched almost the length of the field to turn the tide to victory.

TIGERS STRIKE THROUGH AIR TO DOWN YALE, 10-7

Fumble Costs Elis Chance for Victory.

into the arms of Caulkins who had only two jumps to go for the touchdown.

Baruch Boots Field Goal.

Baruch's drop kick sent Princeton away to a lead of 7 to 0, but it was not long until Baruch's arm was throwing passes again.

After Yale had punted to Princeton's 25 yard line Baruch threw a pass to Caulkins for a gain of 20 yards. Baruch threw another to Moeser and the gain was about 18 yards. Baruch pitched to Moeser again for a first down at Yale's 28 yard line. Bridges bunted his way through for a four yard gain and Princeton advanced four yards closer with a pass, Baruch to Caulkins.

Then Baruch dropped back to the 30 yard line and waved his foot at the ball in a drop kick that went straight between the riot-proof uprights.

After the next kickoff Jack Falling, the Yale right half, personally escorted the ball from the 2 yard line, where he caught the kick, to the middle of the field in three heroic staggers, but on the last effort he was hurt and had to be carried off. Johnny Hoben, a second string athlete, relieved him and a minute later fell just one stride short of the substitute's traditional hike to glory.

Yale Crashes Over.

Crowding the ball into Princeton's own region, Yale punted to Princeton's 4 yard line and on the next play, as Baruch threw a forward pass from behind his goal, Hoben reached up and wrapped his arms around the ball at Princeton's 20 yard line and raced to the 3 yard line, when Moeser brought him down. Goodwin and Kline slammed themselves against the Princeton line for gains of only a yard apiece and then Goodwin took a wide whirl around Princeton's right end for the remaining yard and the touchdown. Sturhahn kicked the goal afterward.

In the second period, after the scoring for the day was finished, Richards of Yale recovered a fumble and made Princeton's 22 yard line before being stopped. Then, rather than tie the score with a field goal, Bunnell kept his team playing for a touchdown and a victory. He rushed his men to the 4 yard line, but a 5 yard loss held them back and then something went wrong with Yale's signals and a pass from center to the back field went bouncing loose with nobody anywhere near it. Lawler of Princeton flopped on it at the Princeton 23 yard line and Yale had missed a chance to win the game right there.

LINDBLOM ENTERS FINALS; DOWNS PHILLIPS, 31 TO 0

Veteran Machine Has Weight Advantage.

Lindblom, champion of the City High School football league for the last two years, will defend its title next Saturday against Senn. The south siders entered the finals yesterday by humbling Wendell Phillips, 31 to 0, at White City park before a crowd of 5,000.

Coach E. L. Moore's machine easily outclassed the champion eleven of the south section. During the early stages, Phillips waged a plucky fight, but their disadvantage in weight told as the game progressed.

After holding Lindblom to a 6 to 0 score at the half, Phillips began to weaken and Lindblom's gains were longer and more consistent. Ultimately the game turned into a rout. Shurtleff, with a dash around end for 42 yards, and Hisler, who intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards, furnished the thrills. Both runs resulted in touchdowns.

Lindblom made 16 first downs to three for Phillips. Lineup:

IRONWOOD, MICH., TEAM HUMBLES MARSHALL, 27-0

Ironwood, Mich., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The Ironwood High school eleven, which has not been scored upon or defeated in two years, trounced John Marshall High school of Chicago here this afternoon, 27 to 0. With forty seconds left of the half, Luoma ran 11 yards for a touchdown. On a triple pass Leksell, Ironwood full back, plunged over for the second marker and Luoma ran twenty yards through a broken field for the third score. He scored later, running forty-four yards.

Libkin was the shining light of the Chicago eleven. Capt. Karstein at left end also played a strong game.

Glenbard Defeats West Chicago Prep Eleven, 26-7

Glenbard, the only undefeated team in the West Suburban conference, closed its league schedule with an easy 26 to 7 triumph over West Chicago yesterday at the losers' gridiron. Nallin, Smith, Cardee and Tillman accounted for the four touchdowns scored by Glenbard.

Tilden Retains Soccer Crown; Nips Medill, 1-0

Tilden High school's soccer team won the championship of the city public high schools for the second successive year yesterday by subduing Medill, 1 to 0, at Sparta field, 27th street and Kostner avenue. The veteran south side aggregation had a slight edge throughout the game.

Aided by the wind, Tilden started with a rush in the first few minutes and clinched the victory. After a scrimmage near the Medill goal Frank Kiss, fleet outside right of the winners, sent the ball through the net and out of the reach of Goalkeeper Steinberg.

In the waning minutes of the game Medill made a determined fight to tie the score, but its marches down the field, led by the flashy Beegen, were thwarted. Capt. Murnahan was the main cog in Tilden's defense, and it was his defensive work as much as Kiss' goal that gave Tilden its second championship. Lineup:

GOPHER BACKS RUN RIOT OVER BUTLER BY 81-0

Joesting Leads Team in Big Parade.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 13—[Special.]—Enjoying a decidedly off day as far as the opposition was concerned. Minnesota's first, second, and third elevens piled up an 81 to 0 victory over Butler college here this afternoon in a nonconference game.

It was just one march after another through the outclassed Butler eleven. There were runs of all kinds and distances, ranging from 5 to 75 yard runs for touchdowns. Dr. Spears started his first team which scored 67 points before the second and third squads were rushed in to add to the early total.

Sensational open field running by Nydahl, Almquist, Peplaw, and Joesting was responsible for the early lead. Joesting was unstoppable through the line and the Gophers' fullback did some remarkable speeding in the open field that thrilled the crowd of 10,000.

The Gophers scored two touchdowns in the first five minutes of play and from that point it was just a steady procession with Spears' crew scoring at will. The second and third strings did well although they were held to two touchdowns in the last half.

Butler made but two first downs during the game and both of them were at the expense of the reserves. At the end of the first half, Spears had all of his regulars on the side lines in civilian clothes.

De Paul Beats Valpo by Air Route, 19 to 0

De Paul university took to the air yesterday afternoon and registered three touchdowns to defeat Valparaiso university, 19 to 0. The ball was in Valparaiso's territory most of the time.

Hussey, De Paul quarter, proved himself a capable field general, playing a great game until the fourth quarter, when he was carried from the field badly injured. The long heaves of McInerney, De Paul left half, with Dowling and Baudendistel, De Paul ends, receiving, was a feature of the game.

Rakow, center, was the mainstay of the Valparaiso line.

Yesterday's victory puts De Paul in line for the Western Interstate conference championship if it can defeat St. Viator here on Thanksgiving day. Lineup:

SCHALK AS SOX PILOT.

RAY SCHALK, both in personality and in temperament, has the qualities for a successful baseball manager. "Cracker" is a fine little gentleman off the field and a fiery little pepperbox on the field. This latter attribute is what probably has earned him his position as leader of the White Sox crew when it was decided to change pilots.

Kid Gleason, when manager of the south siders, once said, "The only way to keep Schalk out of the game would be to tear his uniform off him." That applied to an occasion when Schalk insisted on donning mask and protector before an injured hand had healed. Time and again Schalk has been in there when a less gritty player would have been nursing his injuries.

Even when on the bench Schalk cannot keep still. He is standing up or pacing up and down, shouting words of encouragement or advice to his mates. Active and full of ginger, he is a natural field leader.

"Cracker" also is popular with his fellows. He is a good mixer and while he will be one of the boys, he is likely to be a strict disciplinarian from the fact that he is so close to his men. He will command their respect as well as their liking. The Wake always has admired Schalk personally, so we wish him all success both because we admire him and because we think him a good sportsman.

Eddie Collins, who retires, also was one of the highest types in baseball. During his entire career in our national pastime Collins stood for what was best in his profession, both in playing and personal conduct. We are sorry to see him leave Chicago. Whatever his future sphere, he commands the respect and best wishes of Chicago fandom. Seldom has a city, in successive managers, been favored with two men of such inherent honesty and worth as Collins and Schalk.

Suzanne Lenglen.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, with whom we chatted on Friday as she flitted through Chicago to Minneapolis, whence she returns to play Thursday night at the Coliseum, likens the portable tennis court which is a "property" of her tour more to an outdoor turf court than to clay.

Knowing that tennis courts in France are clay, we asked whether this was not a handicap. "No," she replied, "I have no real choice between grass and clay. Our indoor court is a trifle faster than grass, but of course not as fast as an outdoor hard court.

"It's strange, I don't know why, but I can change more easily from the clay courts to which I am accustomed than from grass to clay. At Wimbledon are turf courts. Sometimes I can adapt my game to the turf in an hour, while it has taken me as long as a week of practice to perfect my play in changing back from turf to clay."

ILLINI SUBS BEAT WABASH ELEVEN BY 27-13 SCORE

'Zup' Watches Buckeyes, Illinois' Next Foe.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—While Coach Bob Zuppke was over at Columbus inspecting Ohio State, the University of Illinois reserves defeated Wabash college, 27 to 13. Assistant Coach Lindgren, left in charge, was obliged to use only one regular, Wienie Wilson, to turn back the plucky collegians from Crawfordsville.

The game was in no way as close as the score might indicate, as the Orange and Blue subs had it well in hand all the way. Headed by Ray Gallivan, who captained the Illini understudies, Illinois scored four touchdowns, one in the first and second periods and two in the third.

The Collegians scored two touchdowns in the fourth period, both on neat forward passing.

Illinois made sixteen first downs and Wabash five. Illinois completed seven passes for 179 yards and Wabash six for 106 yards. Lineup:

THE SPORTING GOODS

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

FANCY DRESS FOOTBALL.

THE football boys of the present day seem absolutely without pride or shame, for they have been shedding the formal football apparel, rag by rag and stave by stave, until nowadays they do not even dress the part of football players. This is very disgusting to any one whose ideas of how a football player should look were formed in the days of the shinguard and strait-jacket and the upholstered pants.

Last year some of them went so far as to wear rubber pants, and this year a few teams have been dressed in silk. And nobody knows but that the football clothing drummers who infest the December conclaves of the coaches will strew their sample rooms with tempting arrays of even more loathsome finery.

Most people know nothing of these fashion shows which run as adjuncts of the coaches' conferences, as the reports of the meetings usually are confined to orations on ethics and rules and interviews explaining the Haughton system of coaching, which has been explained more times than the binominal theorem and remains a greater mystery after all. But they do exist and they have wrought a great change in the appearance of the football player in the last ten years or so.

Perhaps we ought not to be stubborn about it, but we cling to a conception of the football player that presents him with a big, swollen cushion of wadding on each shoulder and each elbow and a headgear like an inverted papier-maché bucket. He wears corsets on his shins, and a black rubber thing over his nose completes a fearsome picture of a man. As to whether he could play football better than these sinewy young swells who play the game now in kidney pads and skin tight bloomers we would not wish to say, because if such moderns as Jake Slagle, Eddie Dooley, and Benny Friedman do not dress the part, they certainly play a lively game of football notwithstanding, and we never have seen any team that went at the business with more abandoned ferocity than Princeton '26.

TO appreciate the contrast you must wander through some haunted gallery at one of the colleges and gaze at the faded photographs of old football teams, usually posed against a back drop showing a grand staircase or a woodland dell, with the captain placed in the middle of the group, holding a football marked with the year of that particular team.

Then go to today's game and let your indignation rise at the liberties that the customers have taken with the football hero of your adolescence.

These fashion shows which adjoin the coaches' meeting room are conducted by manufacturers of athletic utensils and apparel and of course the salesmen are eager to detain the prominent coaches as they go to and from the meetings because if you interest some prominent coach in some new foible to which your firm holds the patent you are likely to find the lesser coaches right behind.

So, year after year, the outward form of the football player changes. Now he sheds his cushion wads from his shoulders and accouters himself in a harness of leather and felt to be worn beneath his jersey. Now he comes out with streaks of sticky tape sewn to his bosom with the idea, apparently, that the ball will not slide out of his grasp as he is tackled. Now the stuffing comes out of the knees of his bloomers, because stuffing is cumbersome to a runner and if he bumps his knee hard enough to hurt it, a fistful of horse hair isn't going to save him. Next, he appears with his hands taped from the wrists to the fingers like the hands of a prize fighter, and we have heard that some trainers tape the young gentlemen's hands so heavily that the wrist becomes inflexible and the hand becomes a loaded ram.

Next there appears a team that not only disdains shin guards but stockings as well, and up at Harvard last week, Arnold Horween sent his team out with their natural leather head guards painted crimson so that they would not resemble the football and evoke no such complaints as the elbow pads of Pennsylvania brought forth.

MAYBE we ought to get in step with progress and accept these outrageous things as we have had to accept some changes in baseball. For instance, there was a time when a kid thought right smart of himself because he had learned to throw a perceptible inshoot, but nowadays any young player who comes up to the major leagues bragging about his inshoot tags himself as a yokel, because it is not called that any more. They speak only of fast balls and curves now, and no matter whether a fast ball whips in or loops the loop it is still classed simply as a fast one.

They have discarded their old fashioned pill box caps in baseball now. The demountable sleeves and high collars have disappeared, the American league umpires wear olive drab instead of the traditional blue and the White Sox are the only team in recent seasons to wear any other color than gray or cream.

There is no turpitude implied by this tendency to dress the football player like a basketball man, but you can see how it affronts the cherished ideals of those used to rate a fellow's value to the team in proportion to his wealth in shin guards, reed pants, nose guard, and such apparatus that made him look the part, anyway.

North Central College Eleven Wins, 33 to 0

North Central college yesterday had an easy time with the American College of Physical Education of Chicago, winning 33 to 0, playing on a sloppy field at Naperville. Anderson, full back, went over for three touchdowns.

MISSOURI TRIMS WASHINGTON AS STUDENTS CLASH

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The heated rivalry between Missouri and Washington universities came to a climax this afternoon when students of both schools came to blows following the annual football contest here, which the Tigers easily won, 45 to 6. The point after final touchdown in the last period was awarded to Missouri by the officials because of unsportsmanlike conduct of the Washington players when the kick was attempted.

Immediately following the contest, Lindemeyer, Missouri's all-American tackle from Lake Forest, Ill., and Hayes, Washington quarterback, came to blows. Missouri students attempted to capture the live bear mascot of Washington and the near riot started all over. Lineup:

Mount Vernon, Ia., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Cornell scored a touchdown in the first quarter of the game with Knox here today to win 7 to 6 despite a counter for Siwash late in the fourth quarter. Correct the Costly Cold Weather "Choke" Habit to which automotive authorities attribute 50 to 75% of all premature motor wear

IT'S the "choke" habit, say automotive authorities, that brings the damage done to motors in cold weather.

Flooding your motor with raw gasoline is a costly "warming-up" process. It washes cylinders and cylinder walls clean of the oil film of protection. Metal to metal contact follows. Scoring, pitting and rapid cylinder wear result. Extreme carbonization and corrosion follow. Gasoline consumption is increased at a tremendous rate.

That first "choke" morning is the danger line

"Warm-up" and stay warm with a Winterfront

With your car Winterfront equipped—the "warming-up" period is cut to seconds. You form the habit of using the "choke" as it should be used—for starting only. Your motor is kept always at the point of highest operating efficiency—you experience a new degree of gasoline economy—increased warmth inside your car—summer-time smoothness and flexibility in your motor.

That first "choke" morning is when damage starts

This year—don't give cold a chance at your motor. The first morning you find it necessary to drive with the "choke" out—have a Pines Automatic Winterfront installed. It will stop cold where it enters your motor. It's the only automatic radiator shutter on the market.

Installed in ten minutes

Winterfront is made in sizes to fit all cars—designed to add beauty as well as protection. It will outlast the car itself.

It can be installed while you wait without changes to your car. Delay is costly—don't wait for severe weather. At 60° Fahrenheit your motor needs Winterfront protection.

ICE HOCKEY TO MAKE COMEBACK HERE WEDNESDAY

Blackhawks Open with Toronto.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

After a lapse of nearly ten years, ice hockey will make its reappearance as a major sport in Chicago on Wednesday night at the Coliseum when the Chicago Blackhawks of the rebuilt National Professional Hockey league meet the St. Patricks septet of Toronto in the opening game of the regular league season.

Except for a few scattered amateur teams of more or less ability, hockey has been a dead sport in Chicago for the last ten or twelve years. The last real attempt to rally the sport was in 1917, when the Great Lakes Naval Training station mustered a squad and played a few games at the Broadway arena, now the Broadway armory.

Club Owned by Chicagoans.

The reëstablishment of the hockey sport comes with the installation of an ice plant and a rink floor in the Coliseum.

The rink in the Coliseum was built by a syndicate of Chicago men, headed by Frederic McLaughlin and John J. Mitchell. This syndicate also purchased a franchise in the National Hockey league and the entire player squad of the Portland Rosebuds of the old Western Canadian league.

The National Hockey league is composed of ten teams and a schedule of twenty-two home games has been arranged for each team. New York has two teams in the league, the Rangers and the Americans, the latter club being the property of George L. [Tex] Rickard. Montreal has two teams, the Canadians being composed of French speaking players, while the Maroons is an English speaking team. Other cities represented in the league are Boston, Pittsburgh, Ottawa, Toronto and Chicago.

Expect Society Patronage.

The opening game between the St. Pats and Blackhawks is being played for the benefit of the Chicago Junior league. The advance sale of tickets forecasts a heavy turnout of society for the initial contest.

After the Coliseum rink had become a reality a second hockey club invaded the city. The Chicago Cardinals, owned by two veteran Canadian hockey men, will play in the American Hockey association circuit, an organization rebuilt from the old Central Hockey league and which includes six cities. The American association teams are Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, and Winnipeg.

E. J. Livingstone and H. J. Caldwell, both from Toronto, are the Cardinal owners and managers and the association has arranged a 22 home game schedule, the Cardinals being scheduled to play their first game on the Coliseum rink on Nov. 21 against the Detroit Greyhounds.

CULVER BEATS SHATTUCK IN 21 TO 7 BATTLE

Culver, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy football team entertained a large homecoming crowd this afternon and defeated Shattuck cadets of Faribault, Minn., 21 to 7.

On the opening kickoff Krahmer, Shattuck half back, took the ball on his own 8 yard line and raced the length of the field for a touchdown. McGarr added the extra point with a drop kick. From that point on it was all Culver, with Shattuck never getting past the Culver 40 yard line.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 13.—(AP)—A fourth period rally by Marquette enabled them to score a 19 to 3 victory over Auburn in their intersectional football game here this afternoon.

NEBRASKA HANDS KANSAS AGGIES 3 TO 0 BEATING

Stephens' Place Kick Wins Game.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A brilliantly executed place kick from the 30 yard line, with Quarter Back Bobby Stephens' toe on the propelling end, sailed between the Kansas Aggies' goal posts today and gave the Nebraska Cornhuskers a 3 to 0 victory in a Missouri Valley conference battle.

The victory concluded Nebraska's valley campaign with five victories in six games and planted the Cornhuskers in the front rank in the race for the title.

The only score of the game came in the third period. The Aggies worked the short kickoff and the Cornhuskers pounced on the ball in midfield. Plunges by Presnell and Howell advanced the oval to within kicking distance and Stephens booted the goal, which clinched the victory for the Huskers. Lineup:

Ames, Ia., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Iowa State defeated Drake university here today, 13 to 7, before an Ames homecoming crowd of 15,000. It was Iowa State's third successive victory over the Bulldogs.

The game was a battle between Johnnie Miller, Ames half back, and Everett, the speedy Drake quarter. Each made spectacular runs, one of Miller's sprints culminating in Iowa State's second touchdown. Everett, closely guarded by Iowa State, was unable to add more than a point after touchdown to his scoring record. His pass to Dalby in the final period enabled the latter to score Drake's only touchdown.

Tribune to Hold Annual X-Country Race Nov. 28

BY HARLAND ROHM.

THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual cross country run will be held in Washington park, Nov. 28. The race will be over a five mile course and prizes will be awarded to the first thirty runners to finish and a trophy will be given the winning team. Entries open at once and close at 6 p. m., Nov. 24. The race is open to all amateurs.

Two silver cups, ten gold medals, ten silver medals and ten bronze medals will reward the winners. The first runner to breast the tape will receive a silver cup and a gold medal. The next nine to finish will receive gold medals. Those finishing eleventh to twentieth will receive silver medals and twenty-first to thirtieth place winners will receive bronze medals.

One of the silver cups will go to winning five-man team of an athletic club or association.

A. A. U. Sanctions Race.

The race will be held under the official sanction of the central association of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States and every competitor must be registered with this organization. Athletes who are not now registered may do so with Roy E. Davis, chairman of the registration committee, by filling out an application blank and paying a fee of 25 cents. This will register the runner for a year. The 25 cents goes to the athletic union. There is no charge on the part of THE TRIBUNE.

Registration blanks can be had at the information desk in the lobby of the Tribune Tower or at THE TRIBUNE'S public service office on Dearborn, just south of Madison street. Mr. Davis requests that the applications be mailed to him and not presented in person.

149 Entries Last Year.

Athletic clubs or associations may enter any number of runners they wish as teams, but only the first five men to finish will count in the award of the team trophy. Team standings will be computed on the basis of adding the place numbers of the first five men to finish and the club with the lowest total will win.

These are the facts of what is expected to be one of the finest cross country races ever staged in the district. Last year 149 entered and 56 faced the starter, despite the fact the ground was covered with snow and the day was cold.

Joie Ray, now a professional, won last year's race in 28 minutes and one second, which broke the former record by two minutes and five seconds. The Illinois Athletic club team with Ray heading the runners, won the team trophy. Henry Pflieger of Marquette university was second last year and Dick Williams of the University of Chicago, third.

College harriers always have played an important part in the race and several runners from the colleges and universities in the district are expected to enter. Big Ten colleges cannot enter as a team because conference rules bar contests under school colors on Sunday.

Goose Hunting Good on Banks of Mississippi

BY BOB BECKER.

Goose hunters in the Mississippi valley who have been waiting until the Mississippi river lost some of its flood water and was again a normal stream before going after the big hunters, now can unlimber their long range goose guns, as during the last few days the water level of the big river has dropped down enough to permit blinds to be made and decoys to be staked out.

One patient hunter near Cairo, Ill., reports that one river bar on which he has a blind and decoys for goose shooting was dry enough the first part of the week for the first shoot of the season. Several big flights of ducks and honkers have come down, so that from now on Mississippi river sand bars should be liberally dusted with goose and duck shot from the guns of the hunters.

Although there are many sportsmen who are not keen about sand bar shooting for Canada geese because on a windy, winter day a fellow gets liberally dusted with the fine sand which sifts into everything, there's a kick in this river shooting that is hard to beat. Crouching in your pit with a view of the great Mississippi extending for miles, you can watch the flocks of honkers and the flights of other birds from a ringside seat and the picture of a big bunch of birds coming in to the aw-wnk, aw-wnk music of live decoys is one that you can't forget.

BROWN'S AERIAL ATTACK TOPPLES HARVARD, 21 TO 0

Providence Team Retains Unbeaten Record.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Brown university's football team has yet to meet its master. Coach D. O. McLaughry's eleven paused momentarily in its march toward supremacy this afternoon at Soldiers' field before a crowd of 54,000 and defeated Harvard, 21 to 0.

The predicted reaction on the Crimson after the Princeton game failed to materialize as the undefeated eleven from Providence passed its way to touchdowns in the first and second periods and added another in the final quarter soon after the Brown coach had relieved most of his regulars with substitutes. Harvard was able to stop the Brown running attack, it was bewildered when the victors took to the air.

Brown's fine ends, particularly Capt Hal Broda, the rigidity of the rest of the line and the spectacular work of Roy Randall and Dave Mishel in the back field were responsible for hauling down the Crimson. The victory marked Brown's fifth victory in the traditional series to 26 for Harvard. Lineup:

CORNELL, 24; DARTMOUTH, 23

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Emerson Carey of Hutchinson, Kas., has kicked many a placement goal in his days, but never in his brilliant career has he accomplished so much for his alma mater as in one fateful moment at the fag end of the dramatic and thrilling game with Dartmouth here today.

Beaten for two and a half periods, Cornell rallied with the score 23 to 7 and emerged the winner, 24 to 23. Two touchdowns and Carey's kick told the story.

PENN, 3; COLUMBIA, 0

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Paul Scull's field goal on Franklin field here today deferred Columbia university's dream of two major victories in one season. Standing on the forty-five yard line, the Penn half back booted a drop kick over the center of the crossbar and gave his team a 3 to 0 victory over Columbia.

Scull's kick was the result of a Penn march from its own twenty-six yard line. Lineup:

PITT AND W.-J. TIE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.] University of Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson, ancient gridiron rivals, battled to a scoreless tie before 45,000 spectators in the Pitt stadium today, proving a big upset of the dope as W. and J. was conceded to have the advantage. It was a hard fought contest with most of the playing done in the W. and J. territory, but neither team could sustain any advance.

SYRACUSE, 10; COLGATE, 10

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov 13.—(AP)—The gridiron classic of central New York between Syracuse and Colgate ended in a 10 to 10 tie today after one of the greatest battles ever seen in Archbold stadium. More than 35,000 spectators witnessed the game.

Lessons in Bridge

With the announcement of the identities of the players who were to participate in the bridge game, broadcast Tuesday night from station W-G-N, devotees of the game knew they were to have a treat.

At the card table, in addition to Mr. Work and Mr. Whitehead, who were partners, were Mr. Sidney S. Lenz of New York, called "the champion of champions," and Mr. E. V. Shepard, president of Shepard's studio, probably the only college of auction bridge in the world.

A spirited contest was promised by this distribution of cards:

Mr. Work, dealer, in the south position: Spades, K, Q, J, 10, 5; hearts, none; diamonds, 2; clubs, K, Q, 10, 9, 7, 4, 3.

Mr. Lenz, west: Spades, 7, 6; hearts, A, Q, J, 10, 5, 4, 2; diamonds, K, 4; clubs, 8 spot, 6.

Mr. Whitehead, north: Spades, 9, 8 spot, 4, 3; hearts, 9, 8 spot, 3; diamonds, Q, 10, 9, 8 spot, 5; clubs, 2.

Mr. Shepard, east: Spades, A, 2; hearts, K, 7, 6; Diamonds, A, J, 7, 6, 3; clubs, A, J, 5.

Mr. Work, with his "two suiter" hand, bid spades at once. He much preferred his major suit with its four honors to his clubs, although his club suit was two cards longer.

Mr. Lenz bid two hearts. He did not try to make a preëmptive bid, even with his unusual heart strength, because he knew that a preëmptive bid after an adverse bid is of little value.

Mr. Whitehead passed. Although he had four of his partner's spades and a singleton he did not have sufficient strength for an assist.

Mr. Shepard also passed. His own strong holding made game seem certain in hearts. By passing he signified approval of his partner's bid.

Mr. Work then showed his long strong club suit by bidding three clubs. This bid gave Mr. Whitehead the chance to choose between clubs and spades for the best bid of the partner's combined hands—pretty team work that makes for maximum scores.

Lenz Bids Three Hearts.

Mr. Lenz bid three hearts. This told his partner that his original heart bid was more than a defensive measure, and that his strength justified a rebid.

Mr. Whitehead said three spades. Although without high spades, his four spades and singleton club justified a raise for a partner who had bid both suits.

Mr. Shepard bid four hearts. He had much more strength than actually necessary to raise a partner who had bid up to three unassisted.

Mr. Work went to four spades. The character of his own hand and of his partner's raise made him confident he would lose only one spade, one diamond, and one club trick.

Mr. Lenz and Mr. Whitehead passed. Mr. Shepard bid five hearts. He felt there was a sure game in hearts for him and his partner, and comparatively little to be gained by doubling spades.

Mr. Work bid five spades. He expected to lose a trick, but thought this loss worth while if it would avert a game in hearts for the opponents.

Mr. Lenz, partly as a defensive measure, went to six hearts, which held the bid. Mr. Work felt that a bid of six spades or a double of the hearts entailed the possibility of too great a loss to be justifiable.

Mr. Whitehead led out his deuce of clubs. He knew his partner would read the card as a singleton. He hoped Mr. Work could win the trick and return clubs for a ruff.

Work Holds Seven Clubs.

Mr. Lenz also saw that the deuce was a singleton. It could not be the lowest of four clubs, since Mr. Work's bidding marked him with at least five clubs, and there were were five between Mr. Lenz and Mr. Shepard. Figuring the deuce as a singleton placed Mr. Work with seven.

Mr. Lenz, figuring Mr. Work with these seven clubs and at least the five spades which his spade bid indicated, saw that Mr. Work had only one card in the red suits and perhaps not that.

This placing of the cards made Mr. Lenz sure that he could discard a losing spade or club on one of dummy's diamonds.

Therefore he played the ace of clubs from dummy on the first trick; Mr. Work played the 3; declarer the 6.

Dummy led the 6 of hearts; Mr. Work threw off the 4 of clubs; declarer played his ace, and north the 3 of hearts.

Mr. Lenz next led his heart queen; north played the 3 spot, dummy the 7; south discarded the 7 of clubs.

Declarer led the 2 of hearts, Mr. Whitehead played the 9, dummy won with the king and south discarded the 9 of clubs.

The opponents' trumps were all out. So dummy led the 3 of diamonds, Mr. Work played the 2, declarer the king, and Mr. Whitehead the 5.

Declarer led the 4 of diamonds; north played the 8 spot, dummy the jack, since Mr. Lenz knew Mr. Work was out. Mr. Whitehead threw off the 5 of spades.

Dummy led the ace of diamonds, south played the 10 of spades, declarer threw off his 6 of spades, and north played the 9 of diamonds.

Leads 6 of Diamonds.

Dummy led the 6 of diamonds, Mr. Work discarded the 10 of clubs, declarer trumped with the 4 of hearts, north played the 10 of diamonds.

Mr. Lenz now determined to "squeeze" his adversaries. If he could force them to make the wrong discards he could make a grand slam.

He led the jack of hearts, Mr. Whitehead discarded the 3 of spades, dummy the 5 of clubs, Mr. Work the queen of clubs.

Mr. Lenz led his 5 of hearts; north played the 4 of spades, dummy the jack of clubs, south the jack of spades.

Declarer then led his 10 of hearts; and opponents felt the squeeze. Mr. Whitehead, in order to retain his high diamond over dummy's 7, was forced to play the 8 of spades. Dummy thereupon played his 7 of diamonds. Had Mr. Whitehead played his diamond, dummy would have discarded the deuce of spades.

Mr. Work was properly squeezed. If he played his club, declarer's 8 spot of clubs and dummy's ace of spades would be good. The discard of the queen of spades which he made, since he had to play something, made both of dummy's spades good.

Mr. Lenz, therefore, made a grand slam in hearts, scoring 56 for tricks, 90 for four honors in one hand and fifth in partner's, 100 for grand slam, and game.

We are sure that this masterly exhibition of auction bidding and play left all who listened in with a hearty appetite for the next game which will be broadcast next Tuesday at the same hour.

DAVIS AND HILL TOP WEST SIDE BILL TOMORROW

Don Davis, who broke into the pugilistic spotlight by winning the featherweight championship of the Pacific fleet, and Johnny Hill, the Filipino, will meet in the windup of Jack O'Keefe boxing show at the Madison Gardens arena, Madison and Rockwell streets, tomorrow night.

Since Davis boxed a draw with Eddie Shea, the west side Italian, his services have been in demand. While Don is not considered a hard hitter, he is one of the most clever 126 pounders in this section. Hill recently went ten rounds to a draw with Joey Sangor of Milwaukee. Both fighters have trained for ten days and will scale 128 pounds at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Tiger Flowers, the world's middleweight champion, and Eddie Huffman, who meet in the windup of the show at the Coliseum on Nov. 22, are training at Mullen's. Flowers' title will not be at stake, as Huffman is a light heavyweight and the fighters have agreed to meet at catchweights.

Quincy Eleven Beats Illinois College Reserves

Quincy, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Quincy college defeated Illinois college reserves of Jacksonville, 22 to 0, here this afternoon.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Harold Pindle, Appleton, Wis., today won his first match in seven starts in the world's championship pocket billiard tournament here by defeating Thomas Hueston, New York, 125 to 97, in 37 innings.

Frank Taberski, Schnectady, N. Y., defeated Arthur Woods, Pawtucket, R. I., 125 to 65, in 15 innings.

DRISCOLL AND BEARS TACKLE BADGERS TODAY

Dilweg on Milwaukee Team's Lineup.

The league leading Bears will play a return grid engagement with the Milwaukee Badgers this afternoon at Cubs' park. In the first game of the season, the north siders invaded the Wisconsin city and won, 10 to 7, by Paddy Driscoll's drop kick.

The Badgers, composed of Marquette gridiron graduates, will attempt to hand the Bears their first defeat, an item which the leading teams of the National pro circuit have been unable to do.

Johnny Bryan, former Maroon star, is coach of the team, and has La Verne Dilweg, one of the leading collegiate wingmen of last season's campaign, to aid him. This All-American is adept at snagging forward passes. While the Badgers' standing in the league is only mediocre, they have dropped most of their games by close scores.

The Bears have been fortunate in the matter of injuries this year, and with their line still intact, they should be returned winner because of their excellent blocking and faultless manner in which they cover the ball.

CARDS PLAY AKRON

With the Thanksgiving game with the Bears as their objective, the Cardinals meet the Akron Indians this afternoon at Normal park and again will start to assemble the parts of their grid machine which were strewn over National league fields in the last four games.

The Cardinals still possess a strong attack and defense, and unless Akron has improved greatly the south siders should be returned victors in today's conflict.

WESTERN NORMAL DOWNS N. D. FROSH IN RAIN, 12 TO 6

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Western Normal out-mudded the Notre Dame freshmen to win, 12 to 6, here today. The game was played in a steady downpour. Early in the second half Normal launched a march which sent Capt. Banach through tackle from the six yard line for the first touchdown. Morley made the second through the line after Brethour, Normal center, had blocked and recovered Fitzpatrick's punt. A recovered fumble on the 15 yard line opened the way for the Notre Dame touchdown in the fourth quarter, and Downes went around right end five yards for the score.

St. Xavier Wins, 48-0, and Has 327 Points for Season

PHILLY QUAKERS PLAY BULLS AT SOX PARK TODAY

Easterners Lead in Grange League.

The Philadelphia Quakers, holding a 9 to 3 victory over the Chicago Bulls, which dates from the disastrous eastern invasion of Joe Sternaman's team, will attempt to duplicate the performance in an American pro grid tilt today at Sox park.

Kreuz, Penn's plunging full back of last year, whose right foot provided that victorious margin, will lead the assault. Milstead, All-American at Yale, and Behman are the invaders' tackles, and the leaders of the Grange league dare Strader, Mohardt, and Sternaman to pierce the line or circle the ends.

Mohardt, coach of the south side team, will start all the regulars, for a victory today will assure the Bulls of an opportunity to gain the American league title, provided they can take Grange's Yankees into camp for a second time.

Since only six of the original nine members of the league remain in the race, Newark, Brooklyn, and Cleveland having withdrawn, it was announced yesterday that both Wilson's Wildcats and the New York Americans would play again in Chicago, in order to fill out the depleted schedule. This will give Sternaman's team its opportunity if it can get away with the major count in the Quaker engagement today.

HASKELL PLAYS BOSTON COLLEGE TO 21 TO 21 TIE

Boston, Mass., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Boston college and the Haskell Indians refused to leave the ranks of the undefeated today, and played to a 21-21 tie. Haskell outplayed and outrushed the Maroon, making twenty-two first downs to their opponents' thirteen, but Boston played for the breaks, scoring on an intercepted pass, a blocked kick, and a Haskell fumble.

Colby proved a capable substitute for McLain, injured Indian full back, making all three scores for his team and gaining consistently. Lineup:

FRANKFORT PROS DEFEAT DULUTH

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The Frankford Yellow Jackets defeated the Erne Nevers' Duluth Eskimo football team by 10 to 0 this afternoon at the Frankford stadium before a crowd of 6,000, in a National league game.

All of Frankford's scoring was done in the first and third periods, a touchdown by Youngstrum and a field goal by Budd. Near the end of the second period Duluth worked the ball within one yard of the goal line, but failed to score.

PONZI DEFEATS NATALIE, 125-92

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Arthur Ponzi, Philadelphia, tonight won from Pasquale Natalie, Baltimore, 125 to 92, in the world's pocket billiard championship tourney. In the afternoon Harold Pindle, Appleton, Wis., beat Thomas Hueston, New York, 125 to 97, and Frank Taberski, Schenectady, N. Y., defeated Arthur Woods, Pawtucket, R. I., 125 to 65.

BADGERS DOWN IOWA HARRIERS BY 25-30 SCORE

Madison, Wis., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Although Hunn and Speers, Iowa stars, raced to the finish of a four mile course for first and second places in a dual meet against Wisconsin here this morning, the seven Badgers who followed in rapid succession gave the Cardinal a 25-30 victory over the invaders. The winning time was 20 minutes 35 seconds.

John Zola, first Cardinal runner to finish, gained third place. Gumbreck was fourth, while Capt. George Schutt, Chapman, Big 10 champion; Petaja, Payne, and Bullamore jogged in tied for fifth. Wisconsin this season has beaten Chicago, Northwestern, Indiana, Minnesota, and Iowa.

DEFEAT FOR CUP ENDS CRUSADER'S RACING CAREER

Champ Beaten by Man o' War's Daughter.

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Carrying racing colors for the last time in his short and brilliant career, Crusader went down to honorable defeat in the seventh running of the famous Pimlico Cup handicap at the Hilltop course of the Maryland Jockey club this afternoon. The great son of Man o' War and Star Fancy, champion 3 year old of the year, was forced to bow to Edith Cavell, daughter of Man o' War herself.

Weight Brings Defeat.

Weight told the story over the trying course of two miles and a quarter, and Crusader was unable to give thirty-three pounds and a beating to the sterling filly, stopping in the stretch drive and being defeated by three lengths.

Sande rode a well judged race and on the turn for home was able to bring his mount up to challenge the filly. Crusader's nose crept up to her saddle girth, but that was the nearest he ever came to gaining the lead.

Bourassa rode a hard finish and, when the weight began to exact its toll, Edith Cavell drew away and won easily.

Breaks Track Record.

It was no hollow victory that Edith Cavell gained over the famous three year old, for Crusader forced her to run to a new track record of 3:52 1-5.

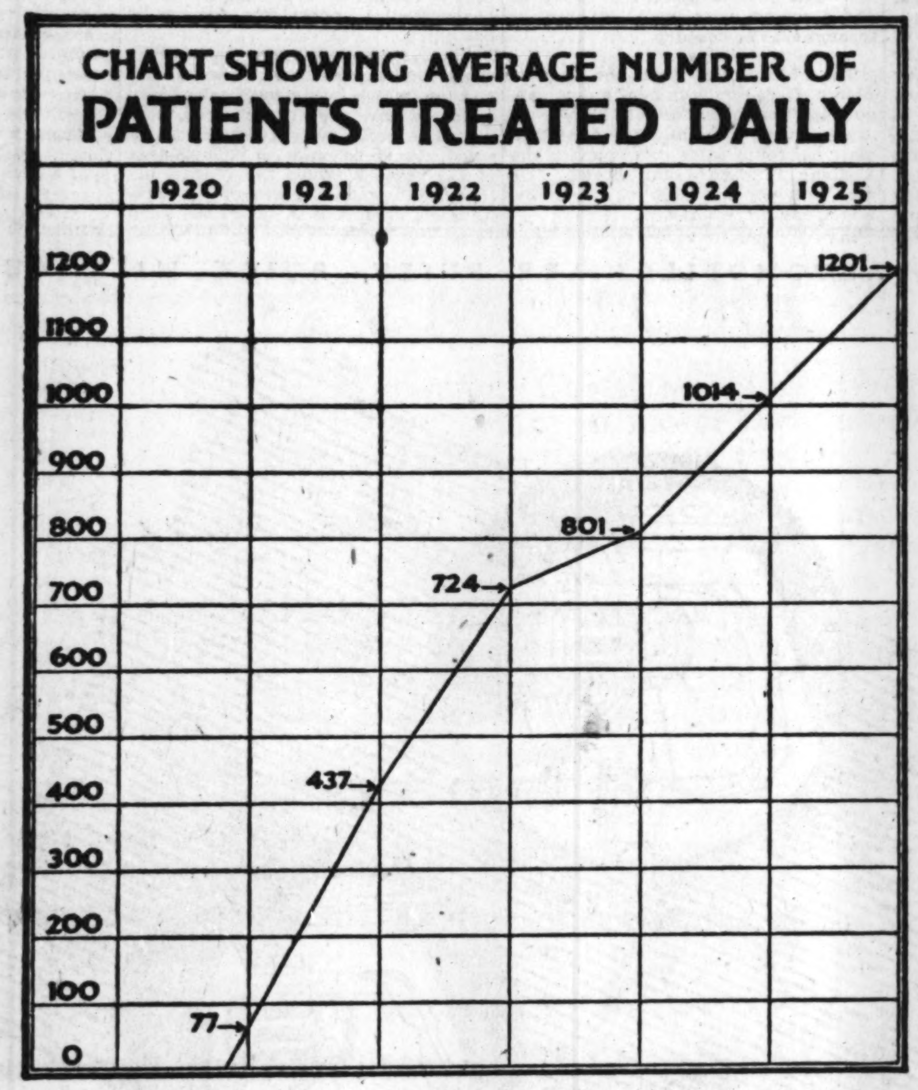
Confidence



The results achieved by the Public Health Institute in its war against "Social" Diseases have won for it the confidence and good will of the entire public.

Working to alleviate human suffering and to check the spread of devastating venereal infections, it has brought better health, greater happiness and increased efficiency to thousands upon thousands of Chicagoans.

By giving reliable medical treatment at the lowest possible cost, the Public Health Institute has deservedly earned public friendship. Those who rejoice in their cure have told others, with the consequence that a large part of the Institute's new patients are recommended to it by satisfied former patients.

The remarkable growth of the Public Health Institute is graphically described at the left. Note that while it originally treated an average of only 77 patients daily, it is now treating more than 1,200 men, women and children every day.

The Institute's growth in the number of patients treated has been paralleled by its growth in facilities. Beginning in a tiny back room with only one physician and a clerk, it now maintains three complete clinics and employs thirty physicians, five woman nurses and thirty other employees.

The need for an organization such as the Public Health Institute is recognized by every right-thinking Chicagoan. For venereal diseases constitute one of the most dreaded menaces the city has to face. Often seemingly mild in themselves, they invariably result in untold misery unless promptly and properly treated.

Insanity, blindness, paralysis, sterility, still-born and defective children, pelvic disorders in women—these are only a few of the awful results of neglected "Social" Diseases. Deaths directly traceable to venereal infections reach the appalling total of 300,000 annually.

The alarm of this danger sounds for all who have become infected or are in any doubt regarding their condition. Delay is dangerous—prompt treatment will ordinarily effect a cure. Therefore you are urged to immediately consult a reputable physician or to come to the Public Health Institute for examination.

Being organized not for profit, the Institute's fees are low enough to be within the reach of all. Even those who lack immediate funds will not be turned away.

Bearing in mind that a "Social" Disease may be inherited, or otherwise innocently acquired, an occasional medical examination is advisable if only as a preventive measure. At the Public Health Institute you can be examined at small cost in surroundings of privacy and comfort. If found to be free from venereal infection, you will be discharged with a clean bill of health.

MOTORDOM

War on Needless Motor Noises Is Declared by A.A.A.

Horn Nuisance Is Called the Bane of City Life.

ELIMINATION of needless noises is sought in an appeal to motorists issued yesterday by the American Automobile association, which points out that the motor car has brought "an approximation of bedlam" in hundreds of communities throughout the country.

"It is inevitable that the use of signal devices on automobiles will produce some noise," says the statement, "but there is much that is raucous in motordom that can be eliminated to the advantage of every one. Signals must be given on the streets and highways, but there is an intelligent standard in signaling that every motorist should try to attain."

While the giving of signals produces the greatest volume and variety of sound from America's 20,000,000 machines, officials point out that other noises are issuing from cars that well might be eliminated. Among these are listed those produced by defective and poor adjusted muffler and exhaust equipment and the dozens of rattles and jangling sounds issuing from parts of the machine that could be eliminated by the mere tightening of a few screws and bolts.

"Primarily, elimination of unnecessary automobile noises is a matter of putting genuine efficiency into one's use of the horn," the statement says.

"It is illegal not to sound the horn under some circumstances. Thousands of motorists, however, overdo the thing. Informed that they must give a warning when passing another vehicle, rounding a curve, or going over the crest of a hill, they regard the regulation as giving them carte blanche to descend upon the horn button with the vigor and sticktoitiveness of the neophyte driver applying his brakes in a ticklish traffic situation.

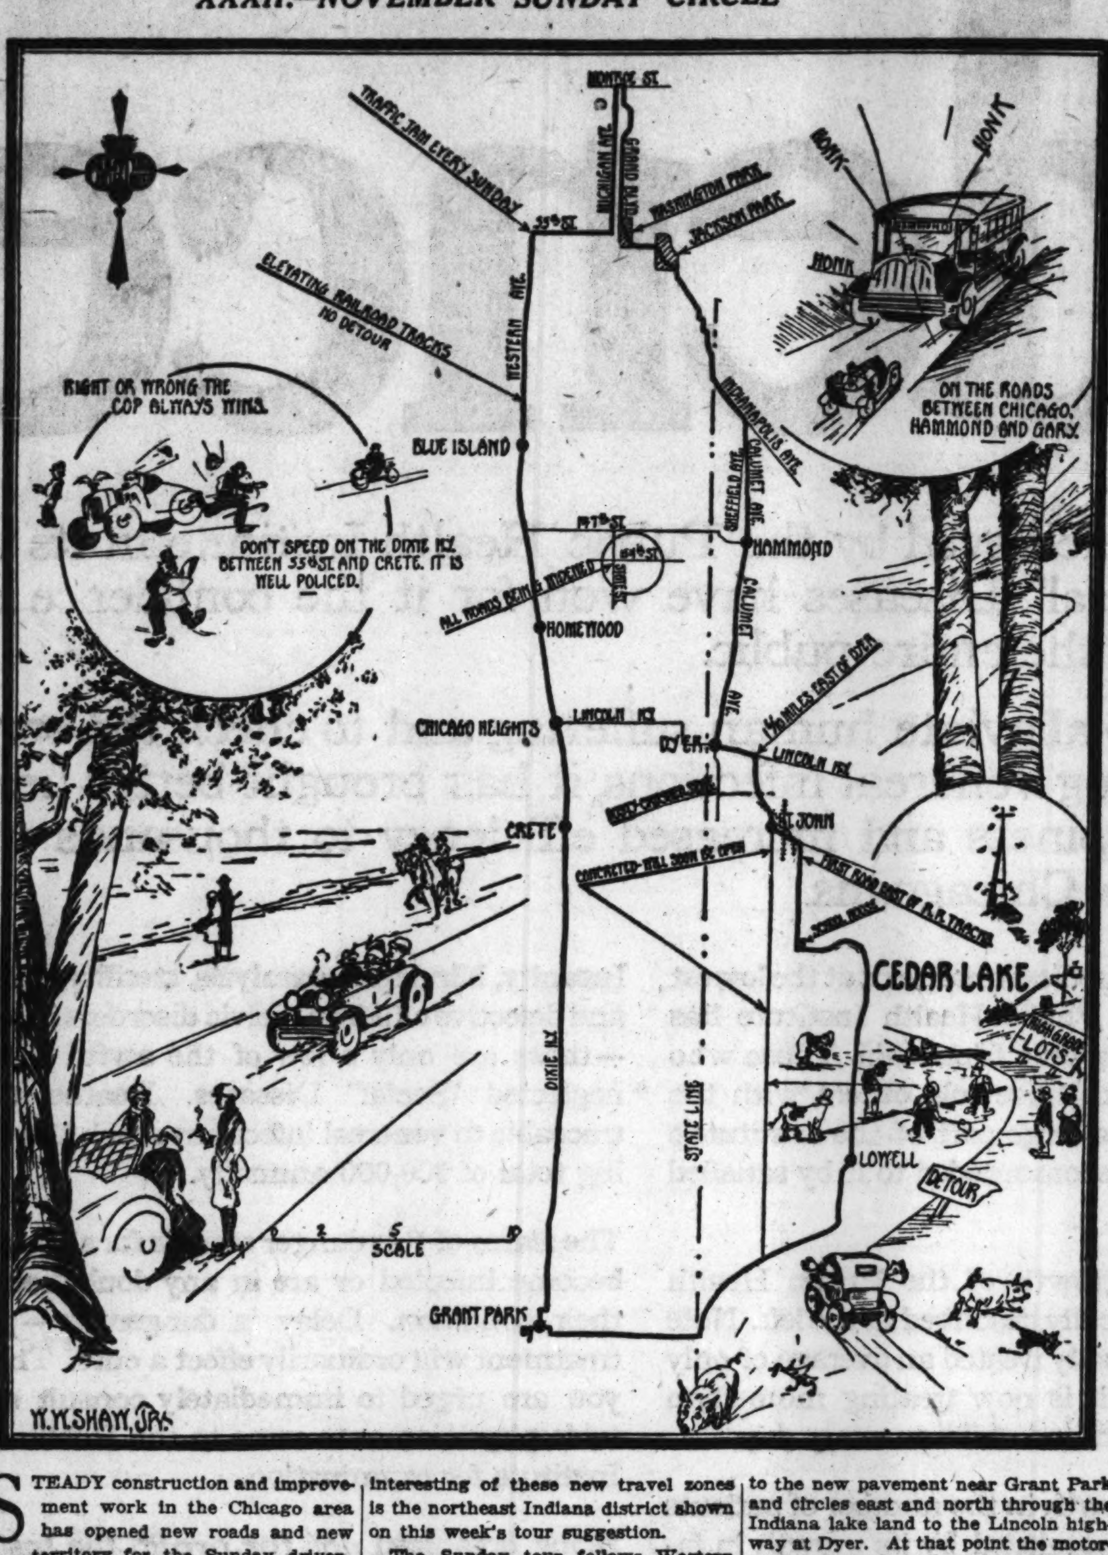
"Some cities require the use of the horn at every street intersection. In these places an approximation of bedlam is achieved during the rush hours of traffic.

"A great many drivers are not content with a warning blast or two when they want to pass another machine. They blow the horn so excessively that, too often, the man in the machine ahead regards it as a challenge and refuses to grant a fair share of the road. Hundreds of races on the highway have been attended by fatal or near fatal results have been started this way.

"Probably the form of horn misuse that has given motorists more of a bad name than any other is at crosswalks."

Tribune Tours

XXXII.—NOVEMBER SUNDAY CIRCLE



STEADY construction and improvement work in the Chicago area has opened new roads and new territory for the Sunday driver who likes to pioneer. Not the least interesting of these new travel zones is the northeast Indiana district shown on this week's tour suggestion.

The Sunday tour follows Western avenue from congested Chicago south to the new pavement near Grant Park and circles east and north through the Indiana lake land to the Lincoln highway at Dyer. At that point the motorist has a number of good road options for the trip home.

News and Views of the Auto Trade

AT the close yesterday of the biggest and most successful convention and exhibition in the history of the Automotive Equipment association, manufacturers and merchandisers of automobile accessories and equipment prepared to double the volume of business which aggregated more than a quarter of a billion dollars in 1926. The association voted an increase of $300,000 to the fund for general development of the accessory and equipment market and organized nationally for better direct service to the car owner.

New Jordan enclosed cars for 1927 were presented with a flourish yesterday in the salon arranged by the Chicago Motor Car company in its headquarters, 2430 Michigan avenue. All Jordan community dealers opened similar showings in their Chicago salesrooms. The most interesting newcomer is a Jordan sport coupe which will feature the salon during the week.

Rumors of the early introduction of a new straight eight line, radically different from any development so far attained in motordom, were confirmed yesterday by E. L. Cord, president of Auburn. Withholding official announcement, he said that he intends to introduce three entirely new models within a reasonable price range and incorporating new advancements in motor and body design worked out by company engineers over the last two years.

To care for expansion of its 1927 sales program the Moon Motors corporation has moved into enlarged headquarters at 2247 Michigan avenue, where both distribution and local offices are open.

Guy Lemmon, long identified with successful automotive manufacturing, has been made president of the stabilizer and shock absorber business of Robert H. Hassler, Inc., according to announcement made yesterday. The company has been purchased by a group of New York and Chicago bankers and has launched a big expansion program.

Nearly half the purchasers of Dodge cars pay cash at the time of purchase, according to R. P. Fohey, treasurer, who has just completed a study of 40,000 recent sales made by dealers throughout the country.

The Chicago branch of the Cadillac Motor Car company yesterday announced the appointment of Bruce E. Adams, veteran automobile merchandiser, as retail sales manager for the Cadillac Chicago organizations. He was formerly manager of the Rolls-Royce branch in Chicago.

Would Give States Federal Power to Regulate Busses

WASHINGTON, D. C.—National leaders here, men in and out of congress are giving serious consideration to a plan advanced by the American Automobile association whereby federal authority would be conferred upon the state governments to regulate the huge and rapidly expanding interstate motor bus traffic.

The plan, which was submitted by the motor bus division of the A. A. A., at the Interstate Commerce commission's hearing admittedly is a departure from the ordinary line drawn between national and state regulatory systems, but is believed by leading lawyers, members of congress, and others who have studied it to be well within the limits of the constitution. They agree that it would provide much needed regulation in a field devoid of governmental supervision for nearly two years.

At the Interstate Commerce commission's hearing, the A. A. A. motor bus division, which is the national organization of state bus associations, submitted a proposed bill which, if enacted, would delegate to commissions of the various states the federal authority to regulate passenger bus service lines operating in interstate commerce. Such a law would set a precedent in the history of American transportation legislation, since it would give to every state power heretofore confined to the national government. However, to make it constitutional, the division proposes that in application of the law, the Interstate Commerce commission would retain final authority, and that it would constitute an appeal court in cases brought up from the state commissions.

German Prosperity Returns in Wave of Motor Car Buying

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—The first ripplings of the new wave of industrial prosperity in Germany were heard by experts of this country at the automobile show in Berlin.

They declare orders for $50,000,000 worth of German autos were placed during the ten days of the show in the capital. The number of cars sold in this period is estimated at 300,000, which is greater than the number of cars sold during 1925. One factory running wide-open was forced to double its output and other factories were forced to accept many long term contracts because they were overburdened with orders.

Take the Bite Out of Winter with the Only Car that Can!

AN UNUSUALLY SEVERE WINTER is prophesied. And it is lying in wait just around the next corner. There are two ways for you to face it.

One—to keep the car you now drive, lay in a stock of anti-freeze mixtures, and resign yourself to the work, worry, discomfort and misgivings you have always known.

The other—to turn your car in now on a New Franklin, and sit back with a smile to enjoy a winter of care-free motoring such as you have never known before.

The New Franklin is air-cooled. You know that. But do you know that Byrd's North Pole plane was cooled the same way—as are almost all the newest aircraft? And do you realise all that air-cooling does for you in winter?

No water—what a relief! Nothing to drain or doctor. No radiator—what a joy! Nothing to blanket or watch. Complete freedom from cooling trouble and expense—yet that is only the beginning of New Franklin advantages!

Grooved roads hold no terrors for this super-flexible, weight-free, high-powered car—it will climb comfortably and safely out of deep ruts. Icy going needs only normal care—the New Franklin transmission brake cannot cause skidding.

Mud or snow up to the hubs may slow the New Franklin up, but it won't make it overheat. Zero weather may suggest a heated garage, but a cold one won't do any harm. And note this: quick, sure starting, even at zero and below!

Why delay longer the enjoyment of this freedom and satisfaction? Franklin's favorable prices, Easy Ownership Plan, full equipment, and famous economy make this a car it will actually pay you to own!

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

Buick Thermostatic Control provides smooth Engine Performance at 0° or 90° in the shade

Thermostatic Circulation Control is a new reason why the Buick engine is so easy to start and so pleasant to drive, in all kinds of weather.

Summer conditions prevail all year, under the Buick hood. At 90°, or at zero, this valuable Buick improvement reduces the warming-up period to less than three minutes!

No water circulates through the Buick radiator until 120° Fahrenheit, the best operating temperature, is reached.

Then a valve automatically opens and circulation starts.

But the valve snaps shut, circulation quits, if for any reason the temperature drops below 120°. Engine heat is thus stored for quick starting on cold days.

For this, and many other vital reasons, the 1927 Buick is the Greatest Ever Built. The engine is vibrationless beyond belief. Drive it and see what that means.

Wheels of Motor Plants Slow Up for Year's End

Makers Prepare New Cars for National Shows.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—With the beginning of November, manufacturers elected to curtail production of automobiles, and present plans call for a decreased production for the remaining few weeks of the year. The tendency is to hold as close to present levels as possible in order that dealers' stocks may not be further increased. The situation, while not as bright as it was a month ago, is far from being unsatisfactory. With but very few exceptions the passenger car makers are in good condition to operate on a reduced basis for some time to come. An easing off in production at this time of year is customary.

Present inventory reports from dealers throughout the country show that they are carrying stocks considerably heavier than those of one year ago and in an effort to relieve the situation production is being curtailed accordingly.

There are, however, two or three exceptions to the curtailment rule. These are at plants where new models were introduced and where demands for them were in sufficient number to keep the factories running at near capacity.

No price changes have been announced during the past two weeks, although it is probable that should the market continue to fall off, manufacturers will endeavor to stimulate sales by a further reduction in prices. One reason why prices have remained stationary is the fact that producers have enjoyed such a wide sale of cars that a price change has been unnecessary.

Production for the last quarter of the year is and for years has been based to a large extent upon the agricultural market. The farmer does his buying during the late months, and advices from this particular field indicate that crops were badly damaged and that the final quarter's production will suffer thereby. This is one of the principal reasons why manufacturers have curtailed their production and cut down their working hours.

Present indications are that the production figures for the final quarter will be at least 5 per cent under those of one year ago, but that the whole year's total will be greater than that of 1925.

Several of the leading factories are working on new models for the 1927 trade. A majority of them, however, will not be ready for public inspection until the opening of the national automobile show in New York early in January. Since the middle of June a total of 27 new lines of cars have been introduced.

It is reported that the Lincoln car is about to undergo various changes, the most important being 4-wheel brakes, new clutch arrangements, and new body lines. Production on the new type is scheduled for early in December. Lincoln production is now about 30 cars daily.

Another model of class soon to be added to the already long line of vehicles from which to choose will be known as the "La Salle," a Cadillac made car which will carry a price tag of about $2,500. It is reported that this car will be a light eight, and that it is almost in complete production in order that dealers may be supplied with display models prior to public announcement.

Manufacturers continue to center their efforts on closed models. An idea of the growing tendency to this type of car can be gained from the fact that in 1922 one company, which covers practically every price type, manufactured 28 per cent of its output in closed cars. In 1925 the same corporation's closed car output was 53 per cent, and the present year it will be approximately 80 per cent. This increased output accounts for the ever decreasing price of closed models.

Truck manufacturers are still operating at a fairly high level, and every indication points to the fact that 1926 will be a record year for this division of the automobile industry, the demand for six cylinder units due to the fact that trucks and busses are now being used for long hauls and it is necessary to cut down traveling time in an effort to keep pace with the flow of traffic in an effort to eliminate road congestion.

It is practically certain that truck and bus output for the year will exceed half a million units, which would set a new yearly record.

Employment figures continue to show a weekly decrease. For the last week this decrease in the 79 automobile plants and accessories shops was 2,978, which brought the total down to 217,389, compared to 266,947 for the corresponding period of 1925.

Reports from Flint, the second largest automobile producing district of the country, are to the effect that about 5,000 men were laid off in the Chevrolet and Buick plants. The Pontiac and Flint plants also reduced their working forces.

The eyes of American business men, in watching the trend of the automobile industry, just naturally turn to Detroit. They also watch the movement of the Ford industries as far as possible.

A close analysis of what Ford is doing compared with all other automobile companies is contained in the following figures:

Back in 1924 the industry, not counting Ford, sold 1,301,828 units. Ford sales amounted to 1,993,419. The following year Ford sales fell off a very few thousand, the total being 1,990,995, while the combined sales of all other manufacturers increased to 2,345,759. This was the first year in the automobile history that Ford failed to sell more cars than all others put together.

Complete figures for the first six months of the present year show Ford sales to have been 858,972 units while the rest of the industry sold 1,465,805 cars.

Rains and Cold Weather Change Road Conditions

Autumn Tourists Advised to Avoid Earth Trails.

GENERAL rains during the last week through the north central states have made unimproved roads impassable for motor travel, says the weekly bulletin of the Chicago Motor club. With a forecast for continued precipitation and cold weather motorists are advised to remain on hard surfaced highways and make local inquiry if it is necessary to leave them.

Heavy rainfall is reported through Oklahoma, Arkansas Louisiana, and Alabama. Unimproved highways and detours in bad condition. Through trails, however, remain in good condition.

No precipitation of importance occurred in the eastern states and main traveled trails remain in excellent condition.

A general blizzard has swept over the northwestern states and southwestern Canada. Precipitation has occurred over most of the country between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains as far south as New Mexico. Motorists traveling westward are advised to use only extreme southwestern routes.

Illinois road conditions are as follows:

Kedzie avenue bridge at 33d street will be closed for repairs from November 15 to December 1. Traffic will be detoured over California avenue bridge.

Ill.-4.—Now open and in use from Lawndale avenue [Ill.-4A] to Mannheim road [Ill.-46] and to Joliet. The road is closed during week day working hours, however, to permit work on shoulders, necessitating a 3 mile detour. Road is open all night and Sundays.

Ill.-8.—Fair 1 mile earth detour on route at 3.5 miles east of Galesburg to 1.5 miles west of Knoxville.

Ill.-9.—The water over pavement has receded and the highway is again open for travel at Kingston Mines, thus eliminating a detour through Peoria, Farmington, and county road to Canton.

Ill.-36—Pavement open for travel for 10.5 miles between Pittsfield and Barry. A fair earth detour of 5.5 miles remains between these two points.

Ill.-41—Fair 1 mile earth detour from 1 mile north of Abingdon into Abingdon.

Indiana Roads.

Ind.-7 [old Ind.-26]—Bridge run-around removed near Dupont.

Ind.-15 [old Ind.-27]—Bridge run-around removed near Lafountaine.

Ind.-37 [old Ind.-22, 16, and 14]—Open to traffic except for 6 miles between St. Croix and Leopold. This section will also be open in the next few days.

Ind.-45 [old Ind.-18 at this point]—City improving completed and detour removed in city of Jasper.

Ind.-56 [old Ind.-40]—Street paving completed and detour removed west of Madison. A new overhead bridge has been opened for travel over the B. & O. railroad tracks at 1 mile south of Blocher, thus eliminating a narrow run around.

Ind.-61 [old Ind.-28 at this point]—Bridge run around removed at 1 mile south of Petersburg.

Ind.-67 [old Ind.-37 at this point]—City improving completed and detour removed in city of Cythiana.

Ind.67[old Ind.-37 at this point]—Resurfacing just north of Indianapolis has been completed and open to traffic, except for a .5 mile detour at the entrance to Fort Harrison.

Wisconsin Roads.

Wis.-15—Highway closed at Menasha for bridge construction; marked and maintained detour in good condition.

Wis.-18—Detour remains in effect west of Neilsville.

Wis.-23—Route closed east of Fond du Lac. Detour marked and maintained in good condition.

Wis.-35—Under constuction north of Onalaska to Homen. Traffic is carried over project; easily travelable.

Wis.-59—Highway closed northeast of Monroe; detour marked and maintained in good condition.

Wis.-73—Remains in bad condition between Pittsville and Clark county line because of fresh grading.

KEPT STEADY.

To keep the headlight lens from turning, wrap a layer or two of friction tape on the outer edge, before forcing it into place. This will also help to keep dust out of the inside, protecting the reflection.

The New

TURNING POINT IN MOTOR CAR DESIGN

The new, finer Chrysler "70" is a turning point in motor car body design—forecasting the new vogue in motoring for years to come.

Newer, more exquisitely graceful bodies of exclusive Chrysler design—newer, more distinctive silhouette with military front and cadet visor—newer luxury of comfort—newer, greater riding ease—newer richness of upholstery—newer, finer hardware and fittings—newer refinements in controls and lighting—newer, more attractive color blendings far in advance of current harmonies.

And with this newer appearance the new, finer Chrysler "70" offers the proved superiority of performance, dependability, economy, and long life which are Chrysler.

For it is basically the same famous Chrysler "70" chassis, save for valuable refinements, which we are eager to convince you by demonstration, is more emphatically than ever years ahead of contemporary achievement.

Prices of the New "70" Are Radically Lower

Notwithstanding the greater beauty and comfort of the new, finer Chrysler "70", and the advancements and refinements—resulting from Chrysler's unique plan of Quality Standardization—which greatly enhance the "70's" quality and value, prices have been radically lowered as follows:—

MOTORDOM

State Organizes to Carry On Wide Road Pavements

Maps and Plans Prepared for State Highway Sanction.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

WITH the expansion and widening of the obsolete 18 foot highway pavements in Cook county assured by the new $15,000,000 bond issue and the joint improvement agreement reached by state, county, and city roadbuilders, transportation interests last week turned their attention to the logical extension of forty foot pavements on across the Cook county line and through the entire terminal territory.

Like the planners of Detroit, who have built their wide pavements and one way country boulevards through several counties in the terminal traffic zone, and of Pennsylvania, where the state highway department is widening the Lincoln highway and other main trunk lines from state line to state line, the Illinois experts refuse to allow either county or state division points to appear in the modern highway plan. Automobile traffic, they contend, is not limited by imaginary lines on the highway and pavement congestion and danger exists within a radius of at least fifty miles about Chicago.

The Chicago Regional Planning association is the central agency chosen as the clearing house for this widening expansion plan. All of the allied interests responsible for success of the recent county bond issue and $32,000,000 pavement program in Cook county have pledged their active support of campaigns in other counties to carry on the wide roads, and in addition county officials in Will, Kane, Du Page, and Lake counties, and in Peoria and Bloomington, have entered the organization to unify and extend the traffic relief work established here.

Last week Regional Planning association engineers, working with county and state highway officials from every political division between Milwaukee and Chicago and between Chicago and Michigan City, made additional surveys and won additional dedication of the right of way of the new 200 foot country boulevard which is planned as the chief belt artery for the Chicago district. The project, although separate from the general plan for extension of pavement widening on the existing highways of the region, is an important part in the general transportation scheme. According to highway officials, it is the most practical and nearest completed of any of the so-called superhighway projects.

The extension of pavement widening on existing roads is considered primarily as a state function, and its organization to date is based on acceptance by the state highway department and Gov. Small of the pavements to be carried on 40 feet wide across the Cook county line and through congested territories. In most instances county funds are said to be available to aid this improvement work, but few counties outside of Cook have reserve bonding power sufficient to take over the burden of widening state highways. Traffic officials in the various counties last week began surveys to determine the extent of congestion on the various old roads in their jurisdictions, and announced that they will soon be ready to meet Planning association engineers and draw up the final maps and specifications to submit to the state administration. In this way they plan to reach Springfield with definite programs, estimates of the cost and allotment of road funds to be used in the work.

The extension program has as its aim the widening of such existing trunk lines as Ogden avenue through Du Page county, Roosevelt road at least as far as Geneva, Lake street, Milwaukee avenue, Joliet road, Dixie highway, Waukegan road, and other arteries designated for improvement in Cook county across the line and through the regional zone.

Service to Motorists.

Chicago drivers who are partial to the state license number already assigned to them may take advantage of the newly enlarged and improved quarters of The Tribune Public Service Office at Dearborn and Madison streets. In the new basement quarters the automobile department has received its supply of the 1927 Illinois state license blanks for distribution in Chicago. Notary service is also provided for motorist readers.

The Public Service Office also has a large supply of the new Cook county highway maps which show in detail the $32,000,000 improvements and pavement widening provided for 1927, and an additional supply of the famous TRIBUNE road map showing all highways in the Chicago vicinity.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER.

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Walter Henderson, 4650 Malden street, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

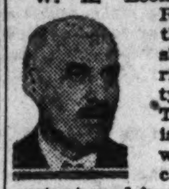
What main roads should the state continue to widen to 40 feet from the Cook county line across other counties?

Where Asked.

At the Automotive Equipment association convention, Coliseum.

The Answers.

Frank E. Sparks, district manager, Oak Park—It seems to me that Roosevelt road is one of the most important. The present plan calls for its widening to the Cook county line, but the state should carry the wide pavement on across Du Page county and at least to Geneva.



W. A. Leonard, vice president, Riverside, Ill.—I think that Ogden avenue should be widened right across the county line and into Aurora. The Cook county bond issue and state highway department will care for this important road in Cook county, but congestion does not stop at the line. It should be carried across Du Page county.

Howard E. Patterson, executive, La Grange, Ill.—I believe that Roosevelt road and the continuation of the Lincoln highway should be carried right on across the Cook county line with the new 40 foot pavement. Motorists never consider county lines and the congestion on this road and its sad state of repair demand immediate action by the state.

Frederick Wacker, manufacturer, Lake Forest—Of course the Cook county bond issue and joint widening program is excellent as far as it goes, but we need wide roads through the congested territory to the north of Chicago across the county line and as far as heavy traffic demands four moving lines. Sheridan road or a new road relieving its congestion should be carried on by the state.

M. S. Gooderhan, jobber, Toronto, Canada—I do not know the roads about Chicago well enough to name any of them that need the widening carried forward, but it is certain that the Cook county line is not the end of congestion. We are trying to widen out roads in terminal zones back home, and I'm sure the roads about Chicago should be extended in the widening scheme.

State Pavements Bring New Life to Illinois Towns

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — [Special Correspondence.] — Civic pride and business necessity are driving many of the villages and smaller towns along the new concrete roads in Illinois to a policy of "sprucing up." Where one of the new pavements goes through or near a settlement, in most instances, it has had the effect of stimulating a desire for more. In scores of instances in central Illinois, either a new pavement was laid to connect the corporation to the new state highway, or if the latter went through the center of the community, parallel or intersection streets were paved.

The improvements to farms is also noticeable. Concrete driveways connecting the homestead with the new pavement are becoming more frequent, while fences are being painted and kept in good condition and premises generally improved where they face upon the new highways.

In addition, counties all over the state are awaiting the location of the second series of bond issue roads so that they can launch a comprehensive system of concrete or gravel construction to connect. Many thousand miles of important laterals of this nature will be laid in the succeeding years.

Heavy Toll.

With an increase of 64 per cent in the number of serious automobile accidents the first six months of 1926 over the same period in 1925, Westchester county, N. Y., holds a record which surpasses any county in the United States. There were 36 persons killed and 692 badly injured by automobiles in the first half of the year.

IVO RADIATOR GLYCERINE (DISTILLED)

Point 2

—is cheaper in the long run

THE first cost of IVO is somewhat greater than volatile anti-freeze mixtures which formerly were in common use.

Because of its permanency, however, the cost of IVO—in the long run—is actually less than that of inferior anti-freeze mixtures.

Only the water in an IVO solution evaporates—and water is still quite inexpensive. GLYCERINE—the anti-freeze element in IVO—never needs replacement (barring leaks in the cooling system) BECAUSE IT DOES NOT EVAPORATE.

Fill up today with IVO,

THE IDEAL ANTI-FREEZE

A PROCTER & GAMBLE PRODUCT

IVO Distilled Radiator Glycerine is superior to the ordinary anti-freeze because it—(1) does not evaporate, (2) is non-inflammable, (3) is odorless, (4) will not harm the finish of the finest car, (5) will make your motor operate in Winter at a more uniformly efficient temperature.

SOME SIDELIGHTS ON COAL MINES IN TWO STATES

BY HARPER LEECH.

From the number and quality of letters received from all angles of the coal industry, it is not only evident that we are in for some interesting developments, but it also is certain that all elements of the industry have been thinking and can think.

Adversity has its uses, and from personal contacts, letters and the large number of excellent books published in recent years, this writer has received the impression that there has been more genuine thinking about mining than about many other industries, which have had an easier time and therefore less to worry about.

This is the big promise of the mining game. It never was a game for saps—and such have been ruthlessly weeded out of late.

On the other hand, things are so complicated that no man who writes about it should speak too assuredly. A letter lies on this desk chiding this column in a friendly manner as follows: "While nonunion miners have for thirty or more months past received a lower scale than union men, they have had a better net earning throughout all that period, because of more work days, and now when artificial conditions and panicky demand arise, the nonunion men secure equal or greater benefit than the union men. You seem to skate all around, but fail to touch this point."

The writer of that letter would do better to send in some comprehensive figures as to the actual earnings of the various classes of men. As to some men, it is true, but as to how many? In western Kentucky last summer this writer found nonunion mines working three days a week or less.

Now just exactly what do we really know about the incomes of men in the mining regions? Certainly some of the favored fields in West Virginia have worked steadily. It is even possible to find highly efficient mines in unionized areas working steadily. One also can find plenty of grief and bankruptcy—plenty of idleness north and south of the Ohio. We have lots of statistics about average working days, but what do they tell about the income of mining folk from other sources. What do we really know as to the number of Illinois miners, for instances, who have been working in Kentucky? If one will flivver through both regions and talk to folks along the roads, it would seem that there is a great interchange of labor.

The miner now a days, with cheap cars and hard or graveled roads, is more mobile than of old, and statistics about separate coal areas may in fact deal with the same men at different periods of time. The building of those very roads has also affected the labor supply of mines.

It may be that the real problem of labor relations in coal is to be found not so much in the mining industry as in the labor markets surrounding it. If it has ben hard to convince the miners in union fields that they ought to consider substantial changes in order to keep their jobs and maintain their own industry against competition, may it not be possible that the reason they have not been able to see eye to eye with their employers is that they have not been so dependent on coal mining for their incomes as their employers are?

Moderately large week-end hog receipts cleared readily at the week's sharp price reductions, spots in better grades showing slight recoveries on strong outside support.

Top and average prices remained unchanged at $11.80 and $11.50, respectively, against a top of $13.35 and average of $12.60 at the high point the preceding week. Packing grades sold at little change, showing only 25@50c loss for the week, but were too few in numbers to cut much figure in the general trade.

More than half of 7,000 arrivals consisted of stock bought on relatively low western markets. Shipments at 4,000 swelled the week's total to outsiders to 55,300, largest since last March.

Receipts Unusually Large.

Unloading of the largest weekly hog receipts since February at 167,000 proved disastrous to the trade last week, prices falling mostly 90c to $1.05, being $1.10@1.55 under the previous week's high point. New low marks for the year were establishd after mid-week, extreme top falling from $13.00 Monday to $11.80 Friday, against $13.80 two weeks ago, and $15.00 four months ago, the high point of the year.

Arrivals of hogs were larger than a year ago, but 117,600 below the big week two years ago. General average price lowered to $12.00, being 55c below the previous week's average, but higher than any corresponding period in over five years, comparing with $6.75 in 1923. Estimated average weight at 233 lbs last week was lightest since May, 1925.

Cattle Prices Better.

Following a sharp break on heavy supplies earlier in the week, market for cattle improved and part of the initial loss was recovered, yearlings finishing steady to 25c lower, with weighty beeves off 25@50c, plain kinds depreciating most. Receipts at 79,300 were 10,700 greater than two weeks ago, range offerings in liberal numbers for this season.

Quality of natives showed some improvement, more steers reaching $12.25 than during the preceding week, with top at $12.50 paid for 837 lb yearling within 25c of the year's peak. Best 1,291 lb beeves brought $11.50 and 1,387 lb averages, $10.75. General average price of good beef cattle remained unchanged at $9.90, against $10.20 a year ago and $9.60 two years ago.

Sheep Receipts Small.

Despite the smallest receipts in some time for two consecutive weeks, lambs were pounded down mostly $1.00, last week, finishing close to the season's bottom, with best killers released at $13.65, against $14.60 a week earlier. Prevailing quotations are $1.50@1.75 under the corresponding period in 1925, feeders showing $2.25@2.50 decline compared with a year ago, when feeders frequently outsold killers. Yearlings closed on the toboggan in sympathy with the break in lambs, finishing 50@75c lower. Aged sheep declined 15@25c.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 28,000 cattle, 45,000 hogs and 22,000 sheep, against 30,041 cattle, 40,947 hogs and 23,613 sheep, a week ago and 22,617 cattle, 44,394 hogs and 16,486 sheep, the corresponding day a year ago. Two years ago 90,875 hogs arrived. Next week's receipts are estimated at 80,000 cattle, 170,000 hogs and 85,000 sheep, against 67,238 cattle, 163,336 hogs and 60,549 sheep, a year ago. Corresponding week two years ago 325,790 hogs arrived.

Looking for Larger Opportunity

I am considered a success. Am young, married, educated and intelligent. Have clean record, good reputation. Within a few years have advanced, on merit alone, from a mediocre beginning to partnership in the firm; a position of confidence, trust and executive responsibility.

Further successful progress, however, is attained only by the sacrifice of inherent moral principles, the loss of which to me are not compensated by financial gain. Consequently I cannot conscientiously maintain present affiliations and wish to become associated with some man or organization whose activities embrace employment of men of high caliber.

For an opportunity, preferably in the financial field, to realize a normal ambition, I offer capacity for work, unswerving loyalty, unfaltering courage and the many qualifications which have contributed to my present success.

Announcement

Twenty-eight years ago I started work as a boy in one of Chicago's conservative first mortgage real estate bond houses.

Working up in every branch of this business, I learned to make, analyze and then recommend and sell mortgages and bonds, every one of which has proved a splendid, safe investment.

As the leading salesman and officer in two large bond houses, I have served hundreds of customers well and faithfully.

My faith in these conservative first mortgage securities and their splendid record decided the establishment of my own business.

With full appreciation to those who have patronized me over a period of years and soliciting the opportunity to serve others who desire safety of principal, a substantial interest return and real investment service, I am

Sincerely,

Ernest W. J. Hughes

SALES PRESSURE FORCES DOWN PRICE OF WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Pressure again was in evidence in the grain markets with wheat off 2c from the close of Friday and 7c under the outside figure on Monday. May selling down to $1.40½ with houses with eastern connections and brokers who usually act for a leading local operator aggressive on that side.

The finish was within a fraction of the bottom with net losses of 1⅝@1⅞c with December, $1.35⅛ to $1.35⅜; May, $1.40⅝ to $1.40⅞, and July, $1.33¼.

All deliveries of corn were in new ground for the season early, with May at 76⅝c, but the decline was checked by short covering, and the finish was unchanged to ⅛c higher with December, 68¼c to 68⅜c; May, 77¼c to 77⅜c, and July, 80⅛c. Oats declined ½@⅝c with December, 41⅝c to 41⅞c, and May, 45⅞c, while rye was 1⅝@1⅞c lower with December, 94½c, and May, $1.01⅛ to $1.01¼.

Grains Lower for Week.

Liquidation was on in the grain markets the last week, and with a lack of support declines were easily attained, the finish on Saturday finding wheat 4¼@4⅞c; corn, 1¼@1⅜c; oats, 1⅞c, and rye, 2⅝@2⅞c lower than the previous week. Lard lost 60@70c; ribs, 25c, and bellies, 45c.

A settlement of the British coal strike within the next few days was confidentially expected by the wheat trade both here and abroad, but failed to bring in any material buying here, while having a depressing effect abroad. Liverpool closed 1¼d lower. Buying by shorts and against daily and weekly bids was a factor in checking the decline, but the undertone was heavy a good part of the day.

Crop reports from Argentina were mixed with rust reported in some sections, but another expert who has had a trip through the northern sections cabled that the yield promised to be above average and of good milling quality. Buenos Aires closed unchanged for the day. Weather conditions in the Canadian northwest were somewhat unfavorable, with snow at a number of points. Winnipeg, however, was 1¼@1⅝c lower. Export demand at the seaboard was limited, and no sales of consequence were reported. Mills have bought 222,000 bu No. 2 red winter wheat here in the past two days.

Short Covering in Corn.

Corn values have been on the down grade for three weeks, with only minor reactions, and there was a rather pronounced disposition on the part of shorts to take profits, which prevented any decline of consequence, although all deliveries sold at a new low for the season early. Weather over the belt was less favorable for field work, but movement of new corn is steadily increasing. Country offerings to arrive were small.

Commission houses were good sellers of December oats, regarded as liquidation of long lines, and with pressure from local traders in sympathy with the decline in wheat prices averaged lower, the northwest bought December and sold May at 4½c difference. A good part of the trade in rye was in spreading between the December and May, and between rye and wheat.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

While the export demand for wheat at the seaboard was reported as slow, it was finally estimated that sales of around 500,000 bu had been put through in all positions. Export bids were received on corn, with the grain salable at 10c over Chicago December, f. o. b. New York, November shipment, with 11c over asked.

Chicago handlers sold 222,000 bu wheat, 91,000 bu corn, 94,000 bu oats, and 3,000 bu barley to the domestic trade, the wheat being largely No. 2 red winter at 1¾c under December in store. There was 50,000 bu wheat, 100,000 bu corn, and 25,000 bu oats sold to go to store, with 32,000 bu corn booked to arrive.

No change was made in the local spot wheat basis, with No. 2 red ½@1c over December, and No. 3 red 1@3c under, with No. 2 hard 2@3½c over, and No. 3 hard December to 3c under. St. Louis basis was ½c higher, and Kansas City steady to firm.

Offerings of cash corn were not large, with the basis steady to 1c higher. No. 2 grades sold at ¾c over to 1c under; No. 3 grades, ¼@2c under, and No. 4 grades, 2½@5c under the December. Outside markets were 1c lower to 1c higher.

Basis on cash oats was unsettled, being ¼c higher to 1c lower, with No. 2 white 2@3¼c over, and No. 3 white, 1½c under to ½c over December.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 37 cars; corn, 161 cars; oats, 45 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 3 cars.

PRIMARIES FOR WEEK

A decided drop in corn receipts was on last week, which was forcast a week ago by those in close touch with the country movement. Although the movement was almost cut in two, it was larger than last year's. Total receipts of all grains at primary markets for the week was 17,775,000 bu, a decrease of 5,724,000 bu from the previous week, but increased 2,974,000 bu over last year, only to show 2,662,000 bu below the five year average. LARD PRICES DECLINE

Lard prices moved irregularly within a range of 12½ to 17½c, November advancing early, only to break 20c and close 2½c lower, while December finished 2½c higher; January unchanged and May 5c lower. Short ribs and bellies were unchanged. Lard in Liverpool dropped 6d.

Liquidation that has been on all week was again in evidence, especially on hard spots, with eastern interests credited with doing most of the selling, while the buying support came from shorts who were taking profits.

Hogs were 10c higher, with supplies not as large as a week or a year ago, but estimates are for 180,000 this week, and for a continued liberal run for several weeks. Exports of lard from the seaboard were 170,810 lbs, and bacon 103,500 lbs. Prices follow:

SUGAR MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—SUGAR—The sugar market was quiet, with a firm undertone at the finish, showing net gains for the day of 1 point on the near deliveries and of 1 point lower to unchanged on the distant futures. Sentiment has not changed and price recessions at times were due to liquidation of December contracts. Prices on refined were unchanged, cables from important producing centers indicate further reductions in estimates, particularly on the continent, where weather has not been favorable. Stocks in warehouse are said to be valuable property, especially for contracts in late December and early January. Prices as wired to Lamborn & Co. follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

With wheat prices at new low levels on the present down turn, and corn the lowest of the season, general trade sentiment was inclined to look for lower prices as the traders usually do when values are around the bottom. The disposition for the present is to sell on all bulges.

Buying support never was more needed than at present as the big operators are not doing anything in the market other than selling privileges and trading against them when necessary.

There were 2,967 cars of grain in various positions in Chicago on Friday morning, with 2,023 cars at elevators. The total number of cars was the smallest in a week. At the beginning of the week there were 3,735 cars, showing a decline of nearly 800 cars within the week. It is estimated that 4,000,000 bu of grain is on track in various positions, and there should be a good increase in corn stocks here in Monday's report.

R. O. Cromwell, Lamson Brothers & Co. expert, who is in Argentina, cabled: "Drove 600 miles. Crop in northern wheat zone ranges from failure to good. Crop is a month early. Total crop in northern part of the country averages well above an average and of good milling quality and test, although black chaff is very bad and rust damage is moderate. Flax crop north is 40 per cent of crop."

Frequent precipitation and temperatures mostly above the normal is the government's weekly weather forecast for the lake region, with unsettled, weather much of the week with occasional precipitation and temperatures above the normal for the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys.

"The Financialistic Debater"—A Promotion Organ.

Last Sunday we warned the public against taking seriously the recommendations of a New York publication called the "Wall Street Iconoclast" which, obviously, is published solely to promote the sale of Idaho copper stock, which we consider a hazardous speculation, and perhaps a few other stocks.

That article caused a number of our readers to send us copies of a similar publication which they have been receiving by mail and which some of them had heretofore believed to be a real newspaper.

This is a weekly publication called "The Financialistic Debater."

It is published in Boston by Edward T. Morton and calls itself "a publication for the discussion of the hopes, fears, desires, and funds of investors, traders, and speculators."

It is blatantly a promotion organ for the sale of another Boston curb stock, Butte Copper Consolidated.

Incidentally, we have never heard of this company and cannot find it in any of the manuals or on any other available list.

In "The Financialistic Debater," in a lengthy article extolling the glorious future of the company and the wonderful prospects for the stock, we read that:

"It is expected that everything will be in readiness for the extraction of ore on the Butte Copper Consolidated long before Christmas and that by the beginning of the year Butte Copper Consolidated will be definitely established on a producing and earning basis."

Evidently, then, this stock which "The Financialistic Debater" says is "easily the feature not only of the Boston curb exchange but of the markets of the country," is the stock of a mining company that has not yet begun to operate.

We have before us the Nov. 4 issue of the publication. Of the eight pages of the issue, about five pages are devoted to questions and answers.

In practically every answer the inquirer is told either to switch some of his holdings into Butte Copper Consolidated or to buy some of that stock.

Furthermore, "The Financialistic Debater" invites its readers to wire or send their orders for this stock to it.

On a top corner of the front page this publication calls itself:

"A Financial Forum for Finding the Truth About Securities."

Contrast this claim with the following statement which is printed under the subscription rates ($5 annually) on the back page:

"It ['The Financialistic Debater'] may be mistaken at times, because no human judgment is infallible. It is frequently influenced in its judgment of security values, opinions, market prognosis, appraisal of stock values, on the 'position' of the owners or editors of 'The Debater.'

"It's expressions of opinion on any security or securities, therefore, may be affected by its own financial interest in certain markets or securities.

"'The Debater' has its own opinions, its own ideas, its own policies, and its own purposes."

A truly amazing admission, that, and one that warns its readers that its judgment and opinions, that they are urged to follow, are influenced by its editors' position on the market and affected by their own financial interest in the market.

In other words, they brazenly invite the public to play into their hands.

We doubt if many readers get as far as that obscure paragraph. If they did they surely would throw the publication away in disgust—and probably save a good deal of money by so doing.

Again we want to warn our readers against placing any faith in any so-called newspaper that promotes any security and also takes orders for its purchase.

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Alternating periods of strength and weakness characterized today's stock trading, with prices unable to make headway against the usual week-end realizing operations. With the exception of a spirited rally in Baldwin Locomotive to a new 1926 high price and the trapping of short interests in several motor stocks, dealings were rather listless.

Despite soundness of fundamental business conditions, the emphasis placed on growing irregularities in current industrial operations was reflected in renewed selling pressure against leading industrials, such as United States Steel, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Woolworth, and American Can, which fluctuated nervously and finally closed a point or so lower.

Baldwin Locomotive Seesaws.

Profit taking invited by yesterday's sharp rally in Baldwin carried this prominent locomotive issue about 2 points lower before another vigorous buying movement set in. This quickly elevated the stock to a new high price for the year above 138, but it again fell back at the close to 136⅝, representing a fractional gain for the day. Pullman and other equipment issues were unable to throw off the pressure of realizing sales.

Large short interests which have been built up in Hudson Motors, Pierce-Arrow issues, and Chrysler were sent scrambling to cover by maneuvers credited to W. C. Durant. Hudson jumped 3 points to 47, but ended the day at 45⅝, up 1⅝, while Pierce-Arrow preferred at one time rallied five points and closed nearly four points net higher.

General Motors Moves Lower.

Meanwhile General Motors sagged 1½ points to 146¾, although Du Pont was steadied by the prospect of a substantial extra dividend.

Announcement of tire price reductions had little effect on the rubber shares, while some of the copper stocks, such as Utah, displayed a strong tone. New high records for the year were established by Reynolds Tobacco B, Corn Products, Coca-Cola, Kraft Cheese, and National Supply before the final selling movement. An early gain of 3 points in United States Cast Iron Pipe, however, was converted into a decline of more than a point.

Railroad shares were sluggish, fluctuating in haphazard fashion during most of the two hour session. Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville, New York Central, and New Haven drifted lower, but Chesapeake and Ohio and Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred maintained a firm tone.

Bonds Show Profit Taking.

The bond market today was subjected to a mild outburst of profit taking which held upward tendencies in check. Trading sentiment, however, remained predominantly cheerful, resulting in the establishment of new top prices in several sections of the list.

The investment demand for securities of the highest grade persisted long enough today to carry United States Treasury 4¼s to peak price, but the gain was canceled in the subsequent selling movement. Most of the other government obligations closed slightly lower.

Japanese 6½s continued to sell above par, as large buying orders were executed for foreign account in anticipation of Japan's early return to a gold currency basis. Granby Mining 7s slumped more than a point.

New York Reserve Increases.

The report of actual condition of New York clearing house banks and trust companies for this week shows excess reserve of $16,281,630. This is an increase in reserve of $3,675,420, compared with the week before, when excess reserve of $12,606,210 was reported. Loans, discounts, etc., decreased $12,961,000.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet today, and there were no important changes in the principal rates. Demand sterling ruled unchanged around $4.84 11-16, while the French franc and Belgian belga were slightly lower around 3.30½ and 13.91, respectively.

Two Attractive New Issues of Special Appeal to Chicago Investors

VIRGINIA ARMS APARTMENTS

$125,000 First Mortgage 6½% Bonds, secured by direct closed first mortgage on land owned in fee and three-story and English basement building being erected at the Southwest Corner of Lawrence and Virginia Avenues, Chicago, Illinois. Total security, including land, building and furnishings, has been valued at $220,000. The net yearly income is estimated at over 2½ times the heaviest annual interest charge.

This property is well located in a high-grade section where real estate values are constantly increasing and rentals are firm, with practically no vacancies at the present time.

PAULTON APARTMENT HOTEL

$250,000 First Mortgage 6½% Bonds, secured by direct closed first mortgage on land owned in fee and five-story and basement fireproof apartment hotel building being erected on Wilson Avenue, less than a block from Sheridan Road. The location is in the very heart of Uptown Chicago, probably the most important outlying business section in the entire city. The security has been valued at $440,000.

Considering the ideal location, the transportation and the demand for small furnished apartments in the neighborhood, these bonds afford an unusually attractive investment opportunity.

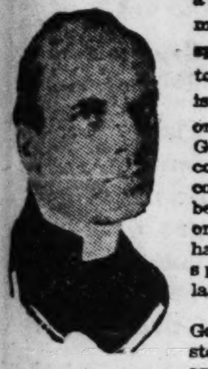
$2,000,000 Flats for Edgewater Presbyterian Church Site

ABBEY GARTH TO GIVE EVANSTON NOVEL BUILDING

Erected by Rector of St. Luke's.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.



GEORGE CRAIG STEWART.
[Matzene Photo.]

One of the most striking bits of apartment building architecture round about Chicago may be seen next spring in Evanston, where work is now under way on the Abbey Garth, a project concerning which considerable has been written and on which there has been much speculation of late.

The Abbey Garth is a three story, twenty-four apartment building which will be under the nominal ownership of the Rev. George Craig Stewart, for twenty years the rector of St. Luke's parish (Episcopal). Originally it was intended that the members of the parish erect the building, but the laws of Illinois prohibit a church from putting up an apartment structure for profit.

For this reason title to the building site, at Judson avenue and Lee street, 105x190 feet, was transferred by the parish to Dr. Stewart, who presumably will hold it in trust for the church.

The fact that Abbey Garth is being erected as an investment instead of for speculative purposes is responsible for there being incorporated in it features giving durability and unusual beauty. And in making plans for it, although the ground space would have permitted thirty spacious apartments, it was decided that the building would have only twenty-four, so that they might be extra large and that the proposed court might be especially attractive.

Adjoins St. Luke's.

The apartment building site adjoins on the east St. Luke's church, one of the most beautiful and notable examples of Gothic architecture in the country. For this reason the commercial structure will be of modified Gothic design to harmonize with the ecclesiastical edifice.

S. N. Crowen and associates are the architects, with Thomas E. Tallmadge of Tallmadge & Watson consulting architect.

The main entrance to Abbey Garth will be through the court facing on Lee street. The court will have a width of eighty feet and an extreme depth of sixty feet. Along its front runs a low wall, through which is an arched entrance copied from one at Christ Church college, Oxford.

Will Have Tower.

A Gothic tower rising sixty feet will give an ecclesiastical effect and enhance the beauty of the structure. A chimney is not always an ugly object, as may be seen in the way they are treated in this structure. At one end of the building, above the third floor windows, will be a niche reminiscent of the shrines of France, but in this case an abbot will stand in place of the customary patron saint.

There are to be three seven room apartments, three of six, twelve of five, and six of four. All will have wood burning fireplaces, incinerators, and refrigerating machines. The English basement will have laundries, storerooms, playrooms, etc.

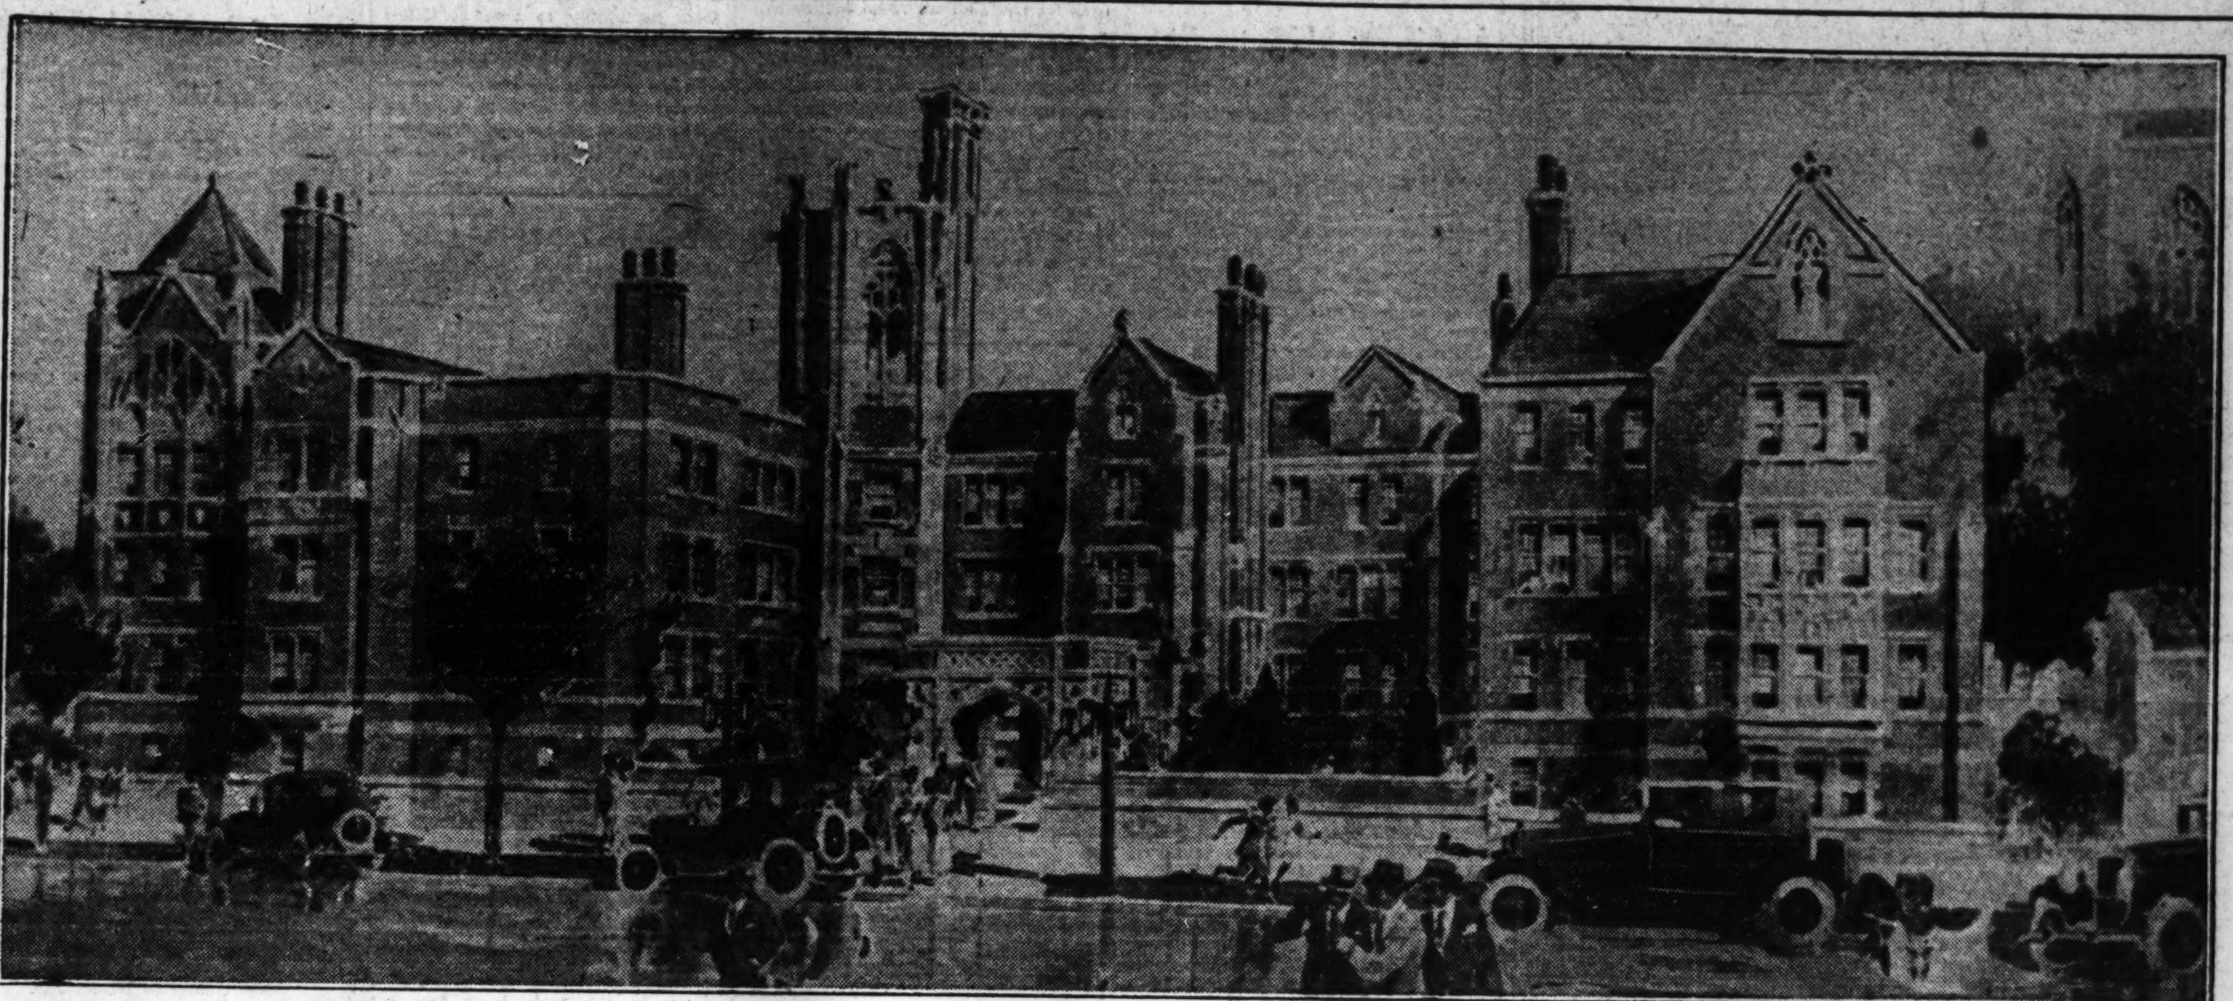
Makes Big Gain.

The original St. Luke's church stood at the corner of Main and Sherman. But in twenty years, under the directorship of Dr. Stewart, it had accumulated property with a frontage of 161 feet on Hinman, 105 feet on Judson, and 380 feet on Lee and built its new church, fronting on Hinman.

When it was decided to wreck the old rectory on Judson to make way for the apartment the parish bought a new home for Dr. Stewart at 1045 Judson avenue, paying $45,000 for it.

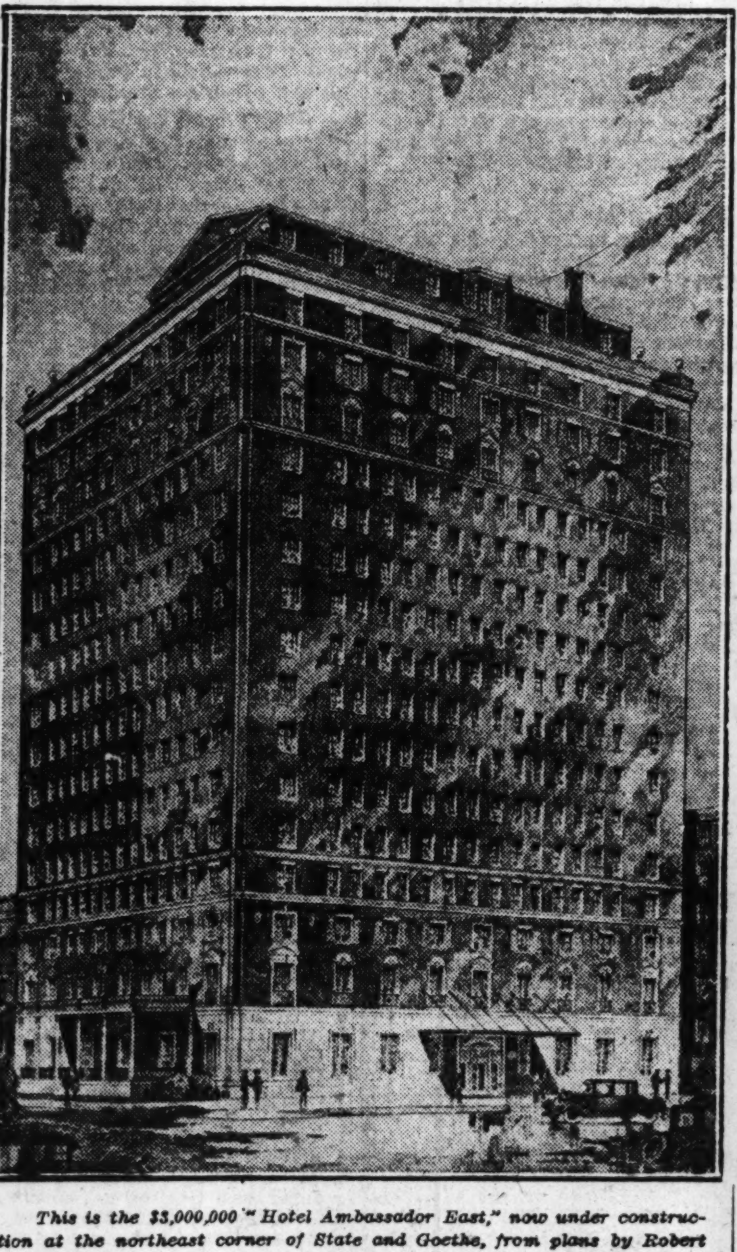
The financing of Abbey Garth was handled by Ralph Hunt of Baird & Warner, who are arranging a bond issue of $220,000 at 6½ per cent on the project.

GOTHIC APARTMENTS FOR UNIVERSITY CITY



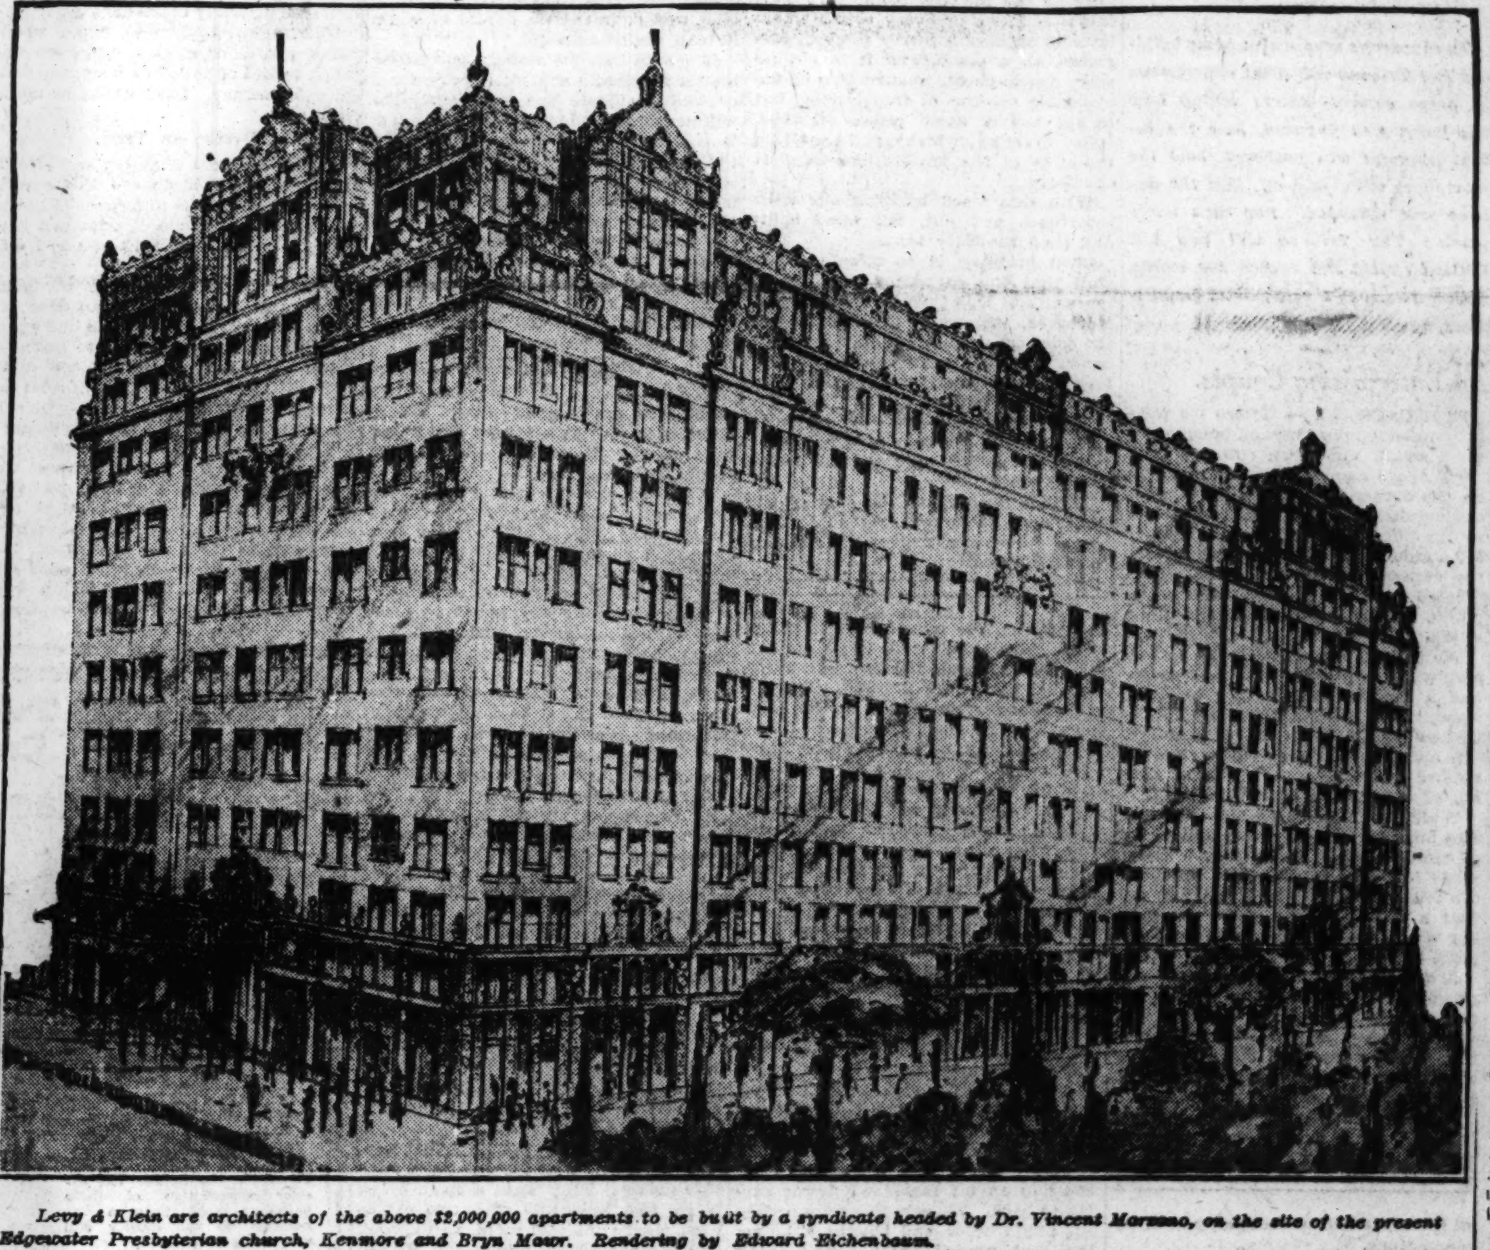
Above is the Abbey Garth apartment building now under construction at Lee street and Judson avenue, Evanston. It is under the nominal ownership of the Rev. George Craig Stewart, rector of St. Luke's. Designed by S. N. Crowen and associates, with Thomas E. Tallmadge as consulting architect, the structure is to be of Gothic architecture, in conformity with St. Luke's church, which it adjoins. Completion is expected for May 1, 1927, occupancy. F. W. Fitzpatrick made the above rendering.

HOTEL AMBASSADOR EAST



This is the $3,000,000 "Hotel Ambassador East," now under construction at the northeast corner of State and Goethe, from plans by Robert S. De Golyer & Co. Lawrence Stern & Co. have underwritten a $1,500,000 bond issue. Cremin, O'Connor & Co. were brokers. Rendering by S. Chester Danforth.

WILL SUPPLANT UPTOWN RELIGIOUS LANDMARK



Levy & Klein are architects of the above $2,000,000 apartments to be built by a syndicate headed by Dr. Vincent Marzano, on the site of the present Edgewater Presbyterian church, Kenmore and Bryn Mawr. Rendering by Edward Eichenbaum.

SYNDICATE TO WRECK FAMOUS OLD EDIFICE

"Village on Roof" to Be Novelty.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

THE REV. ASA J. FERRY, D. D.

One of uptown's most attractive landmarks, the famous old edifice of the Edgewater Presbyterian church at the southwest corner of Kenmore and Bryn Mawr avenues, designed by the late George W. Maher, has been sold and is to be torn down to make way for a $2,000,000 twelve story apartment building. A syndicate headed by Dr. Vincent Marzano and Alexander L. Levy of Levy & Klein, architects, purchased the property.

Plans call for one outstanding novelty. Of course, we've had bungalows of all sorts and sizes stuck on top of apartment buildings, most of them looking more like pickle factories than places to live in. But Levy & Klein promise something new. It's to be a group of five, planned and placed to represent a suburban street.

Each bungalow will have its own tiny bit of front lawn, with a garden in the rear. There'll be a miniature thoroughfare (with no motor traffic permitted), with sidewalks and street lights of artistic design. The quaint street signs will indicate that the five families live on Marzano lane.

But No Cinders in Your Ears.

The main building will contain 275 kitchenette apartments of one, two, and three rooms. Each dinette will contain a bed couch, which will fold into the wall sideways like a sleeping car upper berth.

Electricity is to be used in every possible way. Cooking will be electrical and so will refrigeration, ventilation, and of course illumination and the numberless domestic utilities.

As the new apartment building will loom up over the entire Edgewater district, Dr. Marzano states that it'll not be of the "shirt front" variety. He says that all walls will be of the same material, a cream colored face brick, with terra cotta trim.

Open Air Playground.

The interior rooms will overlook a 60x50 court, facing south. This court will extend above the first floor. The roof of the first floor will be covered with a foot or more of black earth as a small park and playground for the children laid out.

Levy & Klein's plans call for a swimming pool in the basement which will be available for the tenants both summer and winter. Of course the building will be only about a block and a half from the lake. The owners claim that most of the apartments above the third floor will have an unobstructed view of Lake Michigan.

Church to Move Feb. 1.

The site fronts 150 feet on Bryn Mawr and 100 feet on Kenmore avenue. There'll be fourteen shops on the first floor of the new building. Completion is set for September, 1927.

Work will not begin till Feb. 1 as the Edgewater Presbyterian church will not move across to its $500,000 community center at the northeast corner of Kenmore and Bryn Mawr till that date. The congregation, of which the Rev. Asa J. Ferry, D. D., is pastor, will use this community center till the $500,000 church edifice adjoining it on the northwest corner of Sheridan and Bryn Mawr is completed.

C. Keach of the Dearborn Realty company was the only broker in the site purchase. Dr. Marzano acted for the syndicate. Bradley, Williams & Farrell were attorneys.

$428,000 DEALS CLEARED IN FOUR HOURS' AUCTION

HUGO ASH.

Hugo Ash, head of the realty auction firm of that name, calls attention to what he claims is a record for speed in this part of the country in the matter of realty transactions, as an argument against the oft repeated statement that real estate is not a liquid enough asset.

"We offered, sold, had contracts signed, and secured certified checks for earnest money in four parcels aggregating $428,000, all inside of four hours," said Mr. Ash.

These properties were sold by auction, a method of selling which has been conspicuously successful in New York and other big cities, but which, for some unknown reason, has lagged in Chicago.

Propose Romany Club for Patrons of the Fine Arts

Plans are under way to give Chicago a club for patrons of the fine arts with a membership that's to include artists, writers, actors, musicians, painters, sculptors, and other persons in artistic callings. It's to be called the Romany club and will be national in its scope.

According to Fred C. Caldwell of 20 West Jackson, one of the organizers, the Romany club will have a tall home on the near north side, probably between the river and Chicago avenue. The club building is expected to cost $2,000,000, but no site has been selected yet.

The clubhouse, according to Mr. Caldwell, is to contain working studios for members, private dining rooms, sleeping quarters for resident members, a gymnasium, roof garden, dancing salon, concert hall, and exhibition galleries.

Mr. Caldwell says that in New York there are six clubs, including the Lambs, Players and Lotus, for followers of artistic professions, and the plan is to combine all the branches in one club in Chicago.

The directors and governors are: Wellington J. Reynolds, instructor at the Art institute; Otis Skinner, actor; Theodore Roberts, motion picture actor; Herbert Witherspoon, B. W. Kimball, George L. Roberts, John Philip Sousa, Beryl Rubenstein, John A. Russell, Carl Bright, Frederick Bollman, and Elmer C. Roberts. Elmer Roberts is also the club's architect.

McMillin Studios Lease Floor in Abbott Building

The R. Boyd McMillin Studios have leased the entire top floor of the Abbott Laboratories building, at 233 East Ontario, for a commercial arts studio for five years, through H. Lowell Baker of W. K. Young & Bro. Alfred W. Bays was attorney.

Clothing Firm Leases West Side Eight Story Building

The Hirsch, Wickwire company, clothing manufacturers, has leased the eight story building at the southwest corner of Green and Jackson from Briede & Rogovsky for a term of years at a reported rental of $27,000 annually. A. M. De Vry & Co. were brokers.

IOWA SENATOR TO SPEAK AT REALTY DINNER

SMITH W. BROOKHART.
[H. & E. Photo.]

Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, will be one of two speakers of national note at the annual banquet of the Cook County Real Estate board, which is to be held, it was announced last night, in the ballroom of the Palmer house, on Thursday evening, Dec. 2. According to William D. Rogers, chairman of the banquet committee, Senator Brookhart will discuss the farm situation.

Congressman Otis Wingo of Arkansas, a member of the committee on banking and currency, will speak on "Anti-Branch Banking," a subject in which outlying banks are much concerned.

BUYS SOUTH PARK WAY CORNER FOR GAS STATION

The Standard Oil company bought the northeast corner of South Park way and Oakwood boulevard from Daniel Thompson for a stated $33,000.

Plan $1,000,000 Hostelry for North Dearborn Street

Hotel row on North Dearborn street is to have an addition in a fourteen story structure which will rise on the east side of the street, just north of Division. The name has not yet been selected, although it may be called after the owner, Mrs. Mary K. Wolf.

Harry Dalsey, the architect, is now drawing plans, and it is expected that work will start shortly after the first of the year, with completion set for about Sept. 1.

The structure is to contain 430 rooms arranged so that they may be used as apartments or for strictly hotel purposes. Many of the rooms are to contain Pullman kitchens.

The architecture is to be an adaptation of the Spanish and the construction is to be of steel. The front elevation is to be of buff colored face brick, with granite terra cotta trim.

In addition to four stores, the first floor will contain a beauty parlor and an attractive lounge in which a marble and bronze fountain will be a feature. The lounge is to be furnished with imported Spanish furniture.

The well known enemies to Chicago's good looks, the penthouses, will be rendered ineffective in this building through a bell tower in which they will be hidden.

The hotel will occupy a site of 71x132 feet and will be erected on land which has been in the possession of Mrs. Wolf's family for three generations. It is stated that the fee is valued at $142,000, while the hotel building will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

EASTWOOD AND LEAVITT FLATS SOLD: $180,000

The thirty-six apartments and two shops at the southwest corner of Eastwood and Leavitt were sold by Albert Henry and Robert Steele to Abe and Ethel Levy for a reported $180,000. J. R. Carden of the Hill State Bond and Mortgage company was broker.

ALDIS J. BROWNE BUYS BUILDING ON CEDAR ST.

Aldis J. Browne of Aldis & Browne, real estate, has bought for investment the two apartment building at 46 Cedar from Samuel H. Newman for an undisclosed consideration. The lot is 20x125. Thomas J. Fleming of Ross & Browne was broker.

HOME BUILDERS' DEPARTMENT

ENGLISH NORMAN DESIGN GIVES A DIGNIFIED HOME

Planned for Either City or Suburban Lot.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

LOUISE BARGELT.
[Chambers Photo.]

Here is a home designed for the city as well as the suburb because it can be placed on a thirty foot lot. Dyer & Nadherny, 1547 First National Bank building, Chicago, are the architects.

Wherever Norman English forms of architecture are seen, there is found an underlying regard for the symmetrical and the picturesque.

The Norman English note is pronounced here, with an according appeal in the exterior fashioning. Observe the cornice, unusual in that it is constructed entirely of brick, corbeled out to a neat profile. And notice the tapered chimney which is made a distinct feature with its delicately curved line on one side top of ornamental brick corbeling and a terra cotta chimney cap. Instead of facing the chimney with red brick, cement plaster has been applied, the trowel marks showing vividly for an architectural effect.

Although nominally a five room house, there are in addition a sun parlor opening off the living room, a sleeping porch off the main bedroom, and in the basement, reached by a stairway from the front entry, is a reception room, a private office and a lavatory. This inclusion is to meet the needs of a professional man with an office in the home. Such a suite could easily be omitted if it was not necessary to other family needs.

Red Brick Facing.

This house is built of 12 inch masonry walls, with a facing of red brick and a basement under the entire area.

One enters the house through a deep revealed arched doorway into the entry. From the entry is the stairway down to the basement suite of rooms. From the same entry one goes through a doorway and up a few steps to a hall before entering the living room.

In considering this plan one must remember that the architects are planning it for a thirty foot lot. The living room is 21 feet long and 13½ feet wide, which is of unusual size for this type of house. The walls and the adjoining sun parlor are treated with hand palmed plaster and the opening between the rooms is eight feet high, in this way giving the effect of much greater area.

In one corner of the room there is a built-in bookcase with arched head carried up seven feet high, with open shelves and built-in cupboard below. The interior woodwork is finished in American walnut and the walls decorated in ivory white.

Separated by Hall.

Passing from the living room to the dining room, one goes through a hall which serves as a separation between the two rooms. From this hall access is had to one of the chambers, particularly convenient for guests removing their wraps.

The dining room is 12½ feet wide and 14 feet long, and the woodwork is the same American walnut. The walls are arranged with a paneled wainscot, are linen covered and decorated with a multicolored finish.

The bedrooms are placed in a separate group and are reached through a connecting hall off the dining room at one end of which is a convenient linen case. The bathroom is placed off this hall, between the bedrooms, and has a tile floor and wainscot with built-in bath tub equipped with shower. In one corner of the bathroom there is a combination linen case and clothes chute.

The kitchen and dining room are separated by means of a service pantry, at one end of which there is a china cabinet. The refrigerator is placed in this pantry, as the convenient placing of the refrigerator was preferred to outside icing. The kitchen is equipped with cabinets adjoining the sink, which is placed below the window.

Adjoining the main chamber there is a sleeping porch which has been finished with plaster board so that it makes an additional room.

The attic, which is reached from the entrance hall adjoining the living room, has been lined with an insulating material. The stairway has been placed in such a location so that access may be had to future rooms installed in the upper story of the home.

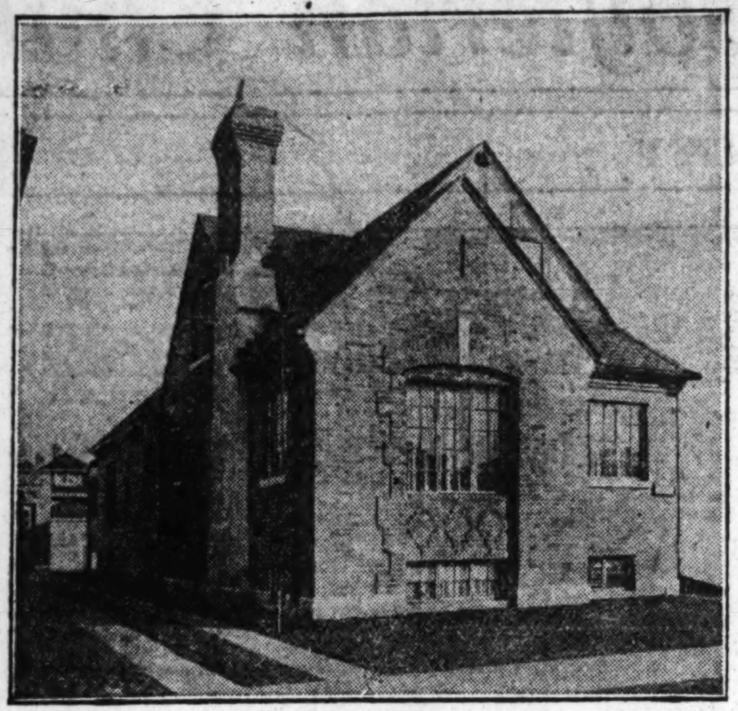
Provision has also been made for a future bathroom above by carrying up all the pipes and the roughing-in of all connections.

Casement Type Windows.

The windows in the main rooms have been distributed generously and are of the steel sash casement type, which provide a maximum of light through the openings. The casing for the interior trim throughout the house is of molded character and is only 2½ inches wide, which results in a distinctive effect.

The house is heated by hot water operated by a gas boiler, which is placed on a separate meter given a power rate.

FOR PROFESSIONAL MAN



Wherever the Norman English forms of architectural expression are found there is seen an underlying regard for the symmetrical and the picturesque. Here a small home, designed for a thirty foot lot, caters to the needs of a professional man by a stairway from the front entry into a reception room, private office and lavatory in the basement. It Pays to Buy and Improve Small Homes

To encourage prospective home builders The Tribune will print experiences of home owners—letters telling how the home was financed, how the initial payment was gathered, how the mortgages were paid off, how the upkeep was managed. For each letter printed The Tribune will pay $10. Letters should not exceed 300 words. Address them to Small Homes Department, Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

An Enterprising Couple.

CHICAGO, Ill. — Before we were married my husband bought two small, unmodern cottages with space enough for another house on the corner. At the time he made the purchase there was no city water so far out. The cottages rented for $15 a month each. First, we moved into the cottage nearest the corner. We planted trees and painted the cottages white, as they were dark and uninviting.

We built a bungalow on the corner, and when city water reached us we had a modern home. We also put water in the cottage we vacated. The two cottages brought us $33 a month. Our bungalow had a mortgage, and we applied this with what we could save out of our income toward lifting it.

While we were doing this we were also building up a fine yard and planted more trees. We had window boxes made for the bungalow and cottages. (To tell how fine we looked, I will say that a stranger once asked a neighbor where the caretaker who kept our place looking so fine lived).

A woman admired our bungalow and persuaded her husband to buy it. He also bought one of the cottages and we sold the other one also. The cottages more than paid for themselves in ten years, which showed they were a good investment.

Next we took part of the money and invested it in a cottage across the street. There was water, but no heating plant. We moved in and had a small cellar excavated, large enough for a small hot air furnace with space for fuel and other storage. Around the chimney, which had to be built down through the dining room, I had cupboards built with glass doors. Then I had other cupboards built which we used for books. We had living room, dining room, and bedrooms all decorated the same colors, as they opened into each other and the one color made it seem more spacious. I had floors stained dark. In the living room I used wicker furniture and in the dining room I had a gray and blue painted dining set and a blue rug. In the kitchen we had the calcimine taken off and the walls painted. The sink was too low and had no back or drainboard. We had it raised. We got a back for it from a plumber and added a drainboard. The bathroom was small, but we painted it all in white and put white and blue linoleum on the floor.

Through with the inside, we had the outside painted, and seeded the yard and had an old fashioned flower garden in back. We sold this house without any trouble and bought a larger one that needed paint. The small house we sold on contract and bought the larger one the same way, only our payments were more and this we took out of our income. Again we proceeded to paint and varnish and to fix up the yard. In August we sold the large house for cash.

The next house, I declare, I am going to live in forever. It is going to be the perfect house, we say. But I suppose we will sell it. We always do.

MRS. J. H. T.

NEW TYPE OF STEEL BRIDGING PREVENTS SAGGING OF FLOORS

There has recently been invented a bridging made entirely of steel to prevent the sagging of floors. This sag is common in living rooms which have to support a heavy piece of furniture, as a piano, and it is not always due to cheap construction or unavoidable settling of foundations, but to the use of small pieces of wood, called bridging, which are nailed into the sides of the joists which support the floors.

With this wood bridging the nails sometimes pull out, the wood splits and then the floor sags.

Steel bridging is so simple to install that the carpenter can put in ten units of this type to one of wood. Moreover, instead of being nailed to the joist on one side, the steel bridge bends over and holds the joists both from the outside and the top or bottom as the case may be.

This bridging holds the joists in position after the floor is laid so that it will not shift from alignment under heavy weight.

It adds nothing to the cost of the house and contractors are usually glad to use it because it saves them money in installation.

ADVICE FOR MAN WANTING ALL OR NOTHING IN HOME

Architect Able to Save for Builder.

BY HOMER GRANT.

What man or woman today who contemplates building a home is not vitally interested in the matter of costs. Where to economize and where not to economize are questions which play principal parts in all discussion of the house to be.

Everywhere he goes, and in every book or article he reads pertaining to residence construction, he sees sets forth in tempting array countless ways by which a house may be rendered delightful to view and vastly comfortable to live in.

He makes notes, jots down additions and accessories and plans, and then goes to his architect or builder to find out how much the house of his hopes will cost. The chances are he learns it will cost from $1,000 to $2,000 more than he planned.

What does he do then? Usually one of three things. Either he chucks the whole idea overboard with the remark that if he can't have what he wants he won't have anything.

Or he goes ahead and takes more on himself than he can afford, with the result that in a couple of years he has to give it all up. Whereupon he joins that class of people, and the only class, who offer strong arguments against home owning—who have built or bought unwisely.

All or Nothing.

Or again he says, "If I can't have exactly what I want, I will get as near to it as I can, and when I can afford more, there is always more to be had."

And with this determination to limit his wants and keep comfortably within the margin of what he can afford, he proceeds to eliminate nonessentials and economize where it is safely possible. He finds in doing this he has made an initial payment toward a fund for future contentment, and taken out an insurance against nagging worries, too rapidly mounting bills, and payments in excess of what he can easily manage.

If a man has not already purchased his lot he should consult his architect or builder before the purchase. He will learn from him whether the lot is too high priced or low priced for the house to be built. He will find out about such connections as gas, water, sewer, and electricity, and also about the street improvements, whether or not they have been paid for. Then, too, he would find out whether the street level is permanent or whether later he may not discover his house roosting high above the road or slumping dejectedly below the grade.

Architect Can Save.

The question as to whether or not to employ an architect is always a consuming one. "Can I save the 6 per cent or the 8 per cent his services would cost me?"

A definite answer to this lies in the fact that a good architect can save considerably more than his 6 per cent in actual costs before the house has been finished. Many of his services are distinctly economy contributing.

After designing the house to meet the individual needs, and with the greatest of care regarding saving of floor space, inclusion of necessary details, and the elimination of non-essentials, he then prepares complete specifications describing each operation and prepares a contract with the builder to protect the owner's interests. After that he supervises the work, sees that the proper materials go into the construction, safeguards the owner at every step of the way.

A competent architect, knowing necessary values and requirements, can be depended upon to turn over to the owner a substantial house, which will not depreciate too quickly, and with a resale value in case the owners wish to sell and build again.

Cost Goes Up.

Take the case of a young couple who decide they can pay $7,000 for a home. But by the time they have decided just what they want in their house they have hit the $8,000 mark.

They want an "exterior" that is a little different. But the difference runs into money. They want a large living room, and bedrooms with two exposures, plenty of closet room, a sun porch and other additions which will change their home into something a trifle out of the ordinary.

But how to get it with an expenditure of $7,000? All the things mentioned are essentials to them, and also things which cannot be added later on. Therefore it is imperative to keep them, and to economize somewhere else.

There are a number of definite economies which may be resorted to by this couple, or any other couple confronted with similar problems. Economies which would easily amount to between $1,000 and $2,000 and still leave the house with the same differentiating essentials the couple so anxiously desires.

Ways to Save.

A few hundred dollars may be saved at the start by building the house with a frame exterior. A well built frame house is as durable as a masonry one, and costs a little less. Of course, on the basis of ten year costs, there is no difference, for a frame house must be painted at least every three years to keep its value up to standard. But if it is necessary to cut at the start, a frame house will do it. And with charming results as far as effectiveness goes.

Then the porch may be omitted. A porch, sunroom, or sleeping porch may be added at any time and a saving from $400 to $500 effected.

Save on Decorations.

A tile bathroom may be done without. It is vastly more important that your bathroom be sizeable, with good hardware and plumbing fixtures, and the decorative element saved for a later day.

Money for roofing should not be regretted or spared overly, and a wood shingle roof should be treated for fire resistance and durability. Keep to the shingle roof, however, and don't try to have a slate or a tile one with a shingle pocketbook.

Built-in fittings for the kitchen can run as high as $400 or $500, and if these run your house too high, substitute simple, ready made devices.

Then again bookcases, extra wardrobes, and china closets, and even the much talked of fireplace runs into considerable money. Saving may be made on these.

Decide on Trim.

Decide on what trim you can afford. Gum, pine and birch are less expensive than oak. The difference between these different kinds of trim can easily run into a couple of hundred dollars.

Concerning the heating of your house, prices vary greatly. Hot air furnaces are less in cost than hot water for you have no radiators to buy. A small house may be well heated with hot air. This is not so true of a larger house, or an L shaped house, which is exposed to the winds from five sides.

These are a few of the practical ways by which you may lower the price of your small home. If you talk these over with your achitect, he can probably advise you on others in which nonessentials may be eliminated, but the qualities of the material and the standard of the workmanship kept high. These should never be sacrificed.

Answers to Questions on Home Owning

Our Home Builders' Editor will be glad to answer all questions on subjects pertaining to home building and home owning. Address Louise Bargelt, Home Builders' Editor, The Chicago Sunday Tribune, Tribune Tower, Tribune Square, Chicago. If a personal reply is desired, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Building on $2,100 per Year.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Could you favor me with some advice as to the best manner in which to proceed to build a home on a $2,100 yearly salary? Particularly the price I should undertake on this income? I own, clear, two acres of well located land in a west suburb, a promising, fast developing community. I would like to get started on a real little home, built by carpenters and contractors. Sincerely,

B. A.

Ans.—I should say, according to home owning budget estimates, that your could afford a house costing from $5,000 to $6,000. As you own your land, you should have no trouble borrowing the money. Talk the matter over with your local bank and also with some recognized building and loan company. You will have to take in consideration the fact that if the suburb is developing there will be improvement costs to meet. However, if this expense proves high, you can either subdivide some of your land and sell a few lots, or you can build small homes on the lots and sell both the houses and ground.

Closing a House for the Winter.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: Please give me advice. We own a five room bungalow four months old, located in a northwest suburb. We are thinking of closing up the house from Dec. 1 to March 1, and going to the city, convenient to business. Will it be injurious to building and furniture to close up the place without heat? We don't want to rent the house. Very truly,

R. M. C.

Ans.—If you took precautions to have the water drained from your pipes and turned off, and electricity, gas, and the telephone disconnected, there would be no damage done to either house or furniture in the length of time you propose to be gone. Nor would it be necessary to return once a week to heat up. In fact, if you have hot water heat, this would be impossible, as all the water would have been drained from the pipes.

Insulating for an Attic.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: I want to ask if it is possible to insulate an attic after the house has already been built? Our heating costs of the bungalow we own are high. Neither the roof nor the walls are insulated. Will an attic insulation really make any difference?

R. J. F.

Answer: It is easily possible to insulate your attic after the house has been built. It is estimated that at least 60 per cent of heat loss occurs through the attic, and this is especially true in bungalow and story and a half houses where there is no intervening attic space. Actual statistics of the amount spent by families on heating before and after the attic has been insulated show that at least a 25 per cent saving in fuel bills resulted.

REALTOR GIVES NEWLYWEDS A BIT OF ADVICE

"Don't Be Afraid of Right Kind of Debt."

"Don't be afraid to go into the right kind of debt," is the epigrammatic advice of W. Burke Harmon, Manhattan realtor, to the newlyweds of America in a statement recently issued. "Plan from the beginning to own your own home; don't pay rent a month longer than necessary," he adds.

"There are two outstanding reasons why the newly married people should own a home of their own," said Mr. Harmon. "One has to do with the material gain and the other with the psychological effect.

First Ten Years the Hardest.

"The gain in home ownership over renting is seldom evident for the first ten years, during which the mortgage is being paid off. But after this period the difference in profit is considerable.

"The psychological reason for owning your own home is concerned with happiness rather than material gain. When a young couple sign a mortgage they go into debt and accept a definite responsibility. They immediately assume community interests. They have a mutual ambition to work for, and a mutual goal. The right sort of debt is a real incentive to the newly married couple.

Some Guides to Ownership.

"Once the newlyweds have decided on home ownership they should be guided by the following considerations:

"If their ready cash is very limited, they should buy a house already constructed and financed, from a builder able to take a minimum down payment.

"If they have ready cash to the extent of 30 per cent of the amount they want to pay for a home, they can buy a lot and build a new house cheaper than they can buy one finished. They will avoid extra financing cost and possibly a promoter's profit.

How to Avoid Unsightliness.

"If in building they cannot employ the services of an architect then they should use some of the many stock plans which some of the eminent architects have prepared and made generally available at a negligible cost. Otherwise the result may be an unsightly home with small resale value.

"When the plans and specifications are decided upon they should contract with a builder to complete the house within a set figure. No one with limited resources should build a house on a cost-plus basis.

Advice for the Asking.

"In securing a building loan remember that the bank or building and loan association is very glad to get your business and is ready to assist you with much valuable advice, if you will ask for it. You should be able to borrow up to 65 or 70 per cent of the cost of your house and lot.

"In budgeting your finances, don't put every cent of your cash into your lots and your home. On an investment of $6,000 you should have approximately $200 extra to take care of surveyor's fees, loan costs, and other incidentals."

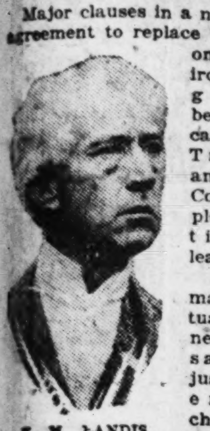
CITY'S BUILDERS REPORTED NEAR NEW AGREEMENT

May Change Lineup in Employers' Ranks.

BY THOMAS WREN.



K. M. LANDIS.

Major clauses in a new standardized agreement to replace the old uniform one have been ironed out in negotiations between the Chicago Building Trades council and the Building Construction Employers' association, it was learned last night.

And all that remains for the actual signing of the new pact, it was said, is the adjustment of several minor changes, which will be made shortly. This agreement between the trades council and the employers' association is said to be one of the most important negotiated since 1921, when both building trades and builders appealed to Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis to act as arbiter to settle a deadlocked wage controversy.

While the new standardized agreement doesn't govern wage rates of the various trades, it is considered of great importance because it specifies the methods to be employed in submitting to arbitration disputes between the trades and employers.

Insert New Clause.

The old uniform agreement expired on June 1, and at that time the trades presented a new pact, in which was inserted a clause that would give the trades the right to call sympathetic strikes to aid one another in case of distress.

This clause was known as article 14 and was rejected by the employers' association. In the new agreement, it is said, the sympathetic strike clause is modified considerably.

Another significant point in the signing of the new agreement, those conversant with the lowdown on the building situation say, is that the consummation of the pact will create a distinct cleavage between the Building Construction Employers' association and the Citizens' Committee to Enforce the Landis Award.

The uniform agreement gave recognition only to the trades, nineteen of them, that accepted the Landis award and ignored those that rebelled at the judge's findings. It is held likely that open shop contractors will make new alignments, and the whole situation insofar as the open and closed shop builders is concerned will probably be changed within the next three weeks.

Sullivan Gets Credit.

Building trades leaders credit Patrick Sullivan, head of the trades council, with the progress made so far in the consummation of a new standardized agreement.

In this month's bulletin Edward M. Craig, secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association, avers:

"The change of mind and position of a number of contractors who have been with the Landis award movement since Judge Landis made his famous decision in 1921, is in a measure responsible for the reversal of attitude of many sub-contractors who recently announced they intended to hire only union men to work for them in the future.

Many Stand Pat.

"There are, however, a great many contractors, both general and in individual trades, who are still standing pat with the citizens' committee and have affiliated themselves with a newly organized group for the purpose of continuing to do construction work without interference of organized labor.

"It is generally understood that this group is composed of a number of well known contractors who have loyally supported the citizens' committee in its efforts. They feel, and justly so, that there are many unions in the building industry that have a reputation for breaking agreements and that they are not sincere in their statements that any agreement made now will be held inviolate.

Must Meet Issue.

"It is a fact there are many people not allied in anyway with the building industry who feel the same way and it will certainly require a lot of convincing arguments to clear away this fact. It is up to the building trades to meet the issue squarely and if there should be any agreement made, to see that the building public and employers' interests are fully protected."

In discussing the local building situation the monthly bulletin issued by the Illinois Society of Architects avers:

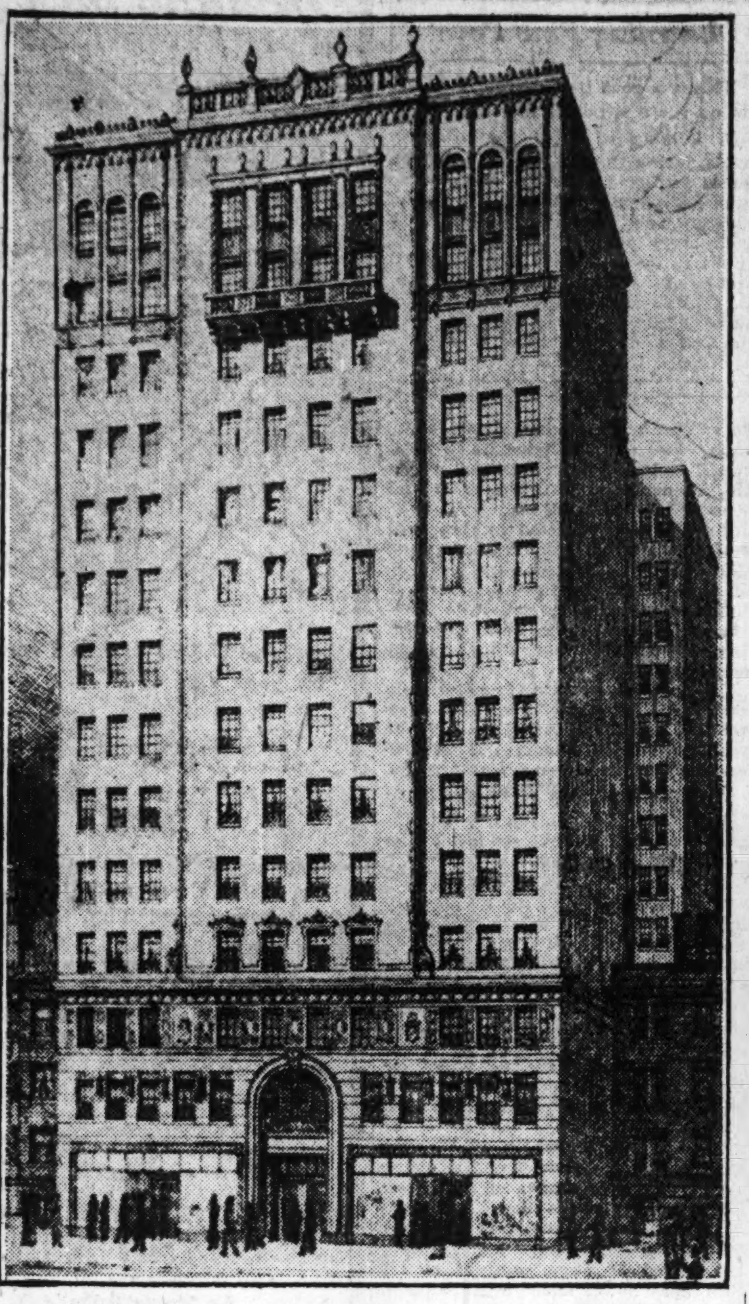
"Will the margin of profit be too small for construction to continue at its present volume? Many financial experts are predicting a sudden slump in the volume of building construction, due, in a large measure to increased labor costs. Yet it must be remembered that idle money is not productive and there are today in our financial institutions millions of dollars of capital seeking safe investments.

Wages to Stay Up.

"It is probable that it will be many years before there will be any material lowering of wage scales in the building industry, due to the fact that building mechanics are not being created as rapidly as their ranks are being depleted.

"Until our public school officials are able to see the wisdom of teaching the building trades as a part of the school curriculum, it is exceedingly doubtful if the actual supply of building mechanics will quite equal the demand."

NORTH SIDE HOSTELRY



Harry Dalsey designed the fourteen story hotel which is to rise in North Dearborn street, just north of Division and across from the Claridge. It is expected to cost about $1,000,000. Earl J. Cassel Jr. made the above rendering.

Rug Concern to Open Shop on North Side

The Lincoln, Belmont, and Ashland avenue shopping district is shortly to have a two story building devoted to the exclusive sale of rugs as a result of the leasing by the Olson Rug company of the two story building at 3121-23 North Lincoln avenue.

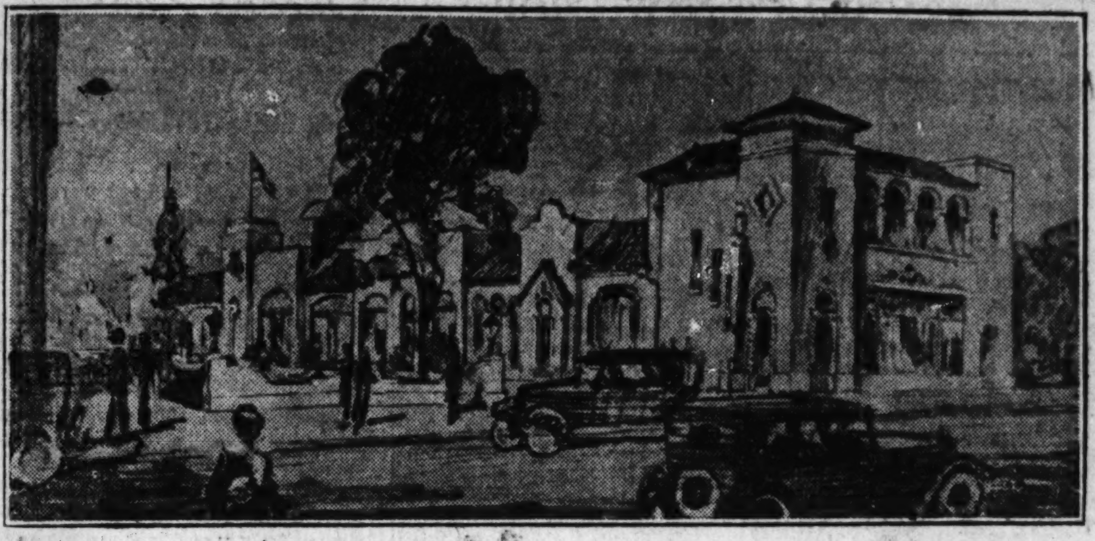
The lessors are W. J. Siegel and W. Herzog and the lease is for ten years with a rental of $133,500 for the period. The building, which contains 13,500 square feet, is to be remodeled and will be opened for business some time in December.

Both the first and second stories will be converted into attractive salesrooms, while large show windows will be installed.

Walter E. Olson, president of the company, states that the store is being opened following numerous inquiries from north siders concerning such an establishment. The main office of the company is at 1520 West Monroe street. It will be recalled that the concern recently announced a huge program of expansion, including the erection of one of the largest rug factories in the west.

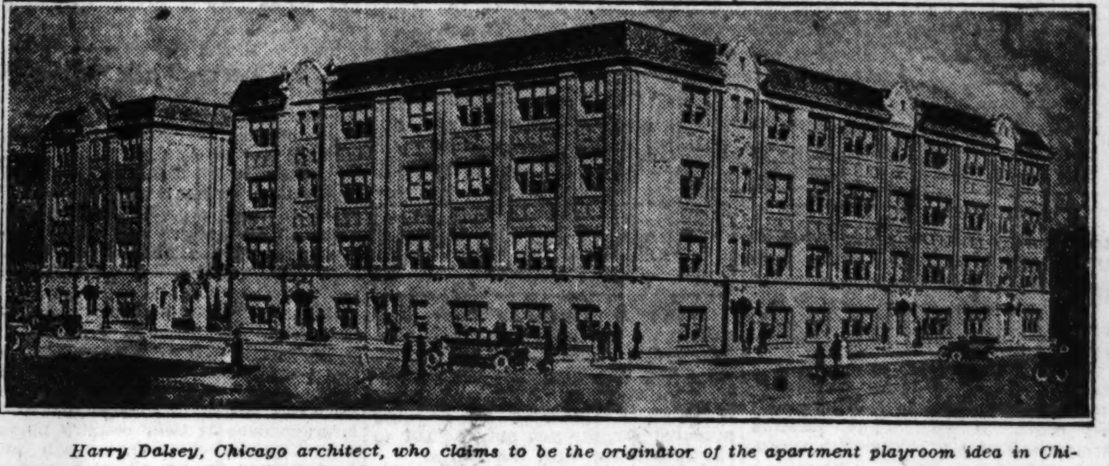
In arranging the lease I. Fried represented the lessors and Litzinger, Healy & Reid acted for the Olson company. Lloyd C. Gilbert was broker.

ENDING AN EYESORE



The above attractive building will occupy a site formerly occupied by a coal and lumber yard in Des Plaines. The structure will front in Lee street and will have thirteen shops extending along its side. On the upper floor will be a restaurant. Paralleling the shops will be grass plots, fountains and flowers, with sidewalks on each side. The architects are Wolf, Sexton, Harper & Trueax. The cost is placed at about $80,000. P. H. Lund made the above rendering.

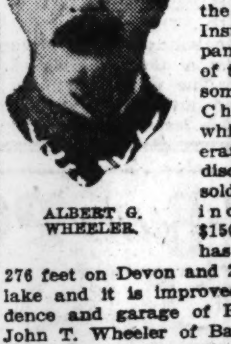
$25 AND CRADLE FOR EVERY VISIT OF STORK



Harry Dalsey, Chicago architect, who claims to be the originator of the apartment playroom idea in Chicago, designed the above Granada Manor apartments, now being erected at the southeast corner of School and Karlov on a 161x120 site. There'll be fifty-six apartments of three and four rooms, with a large playroom and a large social room. There'll also be space for baby carriage stalls. Mr. Dalsey is still giving away $25 and a cradle to every baby born in one of his buildings. Harry Dodge Jenkins made the above rendering.

LOOKING BACKWARD

To Nov. 14,, 1916; 10 Years Ago Today



ALBERT G. WHEELER.

A notable feature of this week's market was the sale of the Albert Gallatin Wheeler residence, at the intersection of Sheridan road and Devon avenue, to Albert M. Johnson, president of the National Life Insurance company. It is one of the most handsome homes in Chicago, and while the consideration was not disclosed, it was sold subject to an incumbrance of $150,000. The lot has a frontage of 276 feet on Devon and 254 feet on the lake and it is improved with a residence and garage of Parian marble. John T. Wheeler of Baird & Warner represented both parties.

It is stated it was on this point of the lake that Father Marquette, with the French traders, settled in October, 1679, to meet the Illini and other tribes of Indians and bring about a treaty of peace.

It was announced that a great hotel and apartment house building will be erected on the Potter Palmer estate property at Lake Shore drive and Lincoln parkway, overlooking the lake. Including the land, it is said the project will represent an investment of $5,000,000.

A. A. STAGG.

Four purchases by the University of Chicago, with a total consideration of $225,572, were filed for record during the week. The property in question is along the Midway Plaisance, near Woodlawn avenue. As in other recent purchases, title was taken by Edward V. Cary of New York. Mr. Cary also recently acquired from Prof. Amos Alonzo Stagg 96x170 feet in Greenwood avenue, 200 feet south of the Plaisance, for $9,600.

An encouraging sign was the success which attended the auction sale held by Baird & Warner at the salesroom of the Real Estate board last week. The total amount realized at the sale was $99,254, the Bittersweet properties making $62,675 of this sum. A few of the more important of these were the three frame residences and 50x110 feet of ground at 23 Bittersweet place, sold to Alfred Aryndell for $1,500, subject to an incumbrance of $5,000; lots one and two at the northeast corner of Clarendon, 100x110 feet, to Gertrude Ulrich for $7,000; lot seven, $3,050; lots seventeen and eighteen, to E. H. Brush for $3,500, and lots thirty-one and thirty-two to Gertrude Ulrich for $6,800. The inside lots sold for $49.25 to $61 a front foot.

E. S. DREYER.

Francis M. Case has sold for a syndicate represented by Otto C. Butz to J. C. Hambleton sixty acres of land lying between Glencoe and Ravinia, the consideration of the transfer being $42,500. The property lies 1,200 feet from the shore and comprises two pieces, one of twenty and the other of forty acres. The purchasing syndicate includes in addition to Mr. Butz, Emil Randolph, Sam Brown Jr., E. S. Dreyer, and others.

The lease of the store and basement of No. 195 State street to Foreman & Co. by C. D. Peacock, has gone on record. A rental of $64,000 is to be paid for a term of five years and four months from Jan. 1, 1897.

The exchange of the Plaza apartment house by Clinton J. Warren and A. W. Maltby for the Renfost apartment house, owned by Mrs. Emily B. Hopkins, was effected during the week. The Plaza is at the corner of Clark street and North avenue. The consideration in the transfer is $750,000. The Renfost apartment is at Cottage Grove and 52d. The consideration is $300,000.

SUBURB MAKES BEAUTY SPOT OF LUMBER YARD

Unique Structure for Des Plaines.

Who says the world isn't growing prettier? In Des Plaines they are taking a coal and lumber yard—who can imagine a more unlovely sight?—and converting it into an attractive store building with grass plots, flowers, and fountains extending along one side.

Work is to start at once on the building, which occupies a site which was formerly the home of the Des Plaines Lumber and Coal company. This firm has moved its headquarters to the Soo line tracks and Lee street.

The building is to be 200 feet long, with shops opening on a walk along the side. It will be located in Lee street midway between two movies and facing Ellinwood street—the main thoroughfare of the town.

There are to be thirteen stores on the main floor. A restaurant on the second floor will probably provide a shelter on Sundays for feminine suburbanites who are unable to see the joys of a day in the kitchen.

The structure, to be known as the Arcade, was designed by Wolf, Sexton, Harper & Trueax. It's to be of stucco, with a red tile roof and green trim. It is stated that the project will represent an investment of $80,000.

SYNTHETIC LAKE TO BE FORMED IN M'HENRY COUNTY

McHenry county is to have another lake, and, like some of our 1926 wet goods, it's to be synthetic. It's to be about the size of Crystal lake and will be located in Bull valley, about four miles east of Woodstock. Fawn lake, as this body of water is to be called, will be formed by building a dam across a creek. To get the site for it a syndicate, headed by E. R. Hoy and Theodore Hamer, purchased nine farms having a total acreage of 1,668. The property around it will be developed for residence purposes.

N. H. PRITCHARD BUYS 261 ACRES ON ELGIN ROAD

Norman H. Pritchard of the law firm of Montgomery, Hart & Smith has purchased 261 acres at the corner of the Algonquin and Elgin roads, in the Barrington Hills Country club district. The seller was Mrs. Mark Cresap of Kenilworth. Cowles & Taylor and K. E. Otis of Barrington represented both parties as brokers.

SELLS EVANSTON RESIDENCE.

Charles B. Blomgren Jr. has sold his new residence at the southwest corner of Thayer street and Bennett avenue, Evanston, to Alfred C. Boyd of Evanston. Hokanson & Jenks, Inc., were brokers.

Brokers' Notes

Gordon Strong & Co. have been given the management of the Great Northern hotel building stores by William Collins, president of the Philip Henrici company.

Nicholas J. Budinger and Paul B. Teeter, formerly with the Talman & Thiele Realty association, have formed a partnership under the name of Budinger & Teeter, with offices at 30 North La Salle. The new name of this firm was incorrectly given in this department last Sunday.

J. McN. Wright is now with S. Charles Iversen & Co. in their sales department.

Huberty & Co. are opening a branch office at 5545 Lincoln avenue, at the corner of Bryn Mawr. The main office is at 6420 North Western avenue.

H. W. Jansen, formerly with Frank J. Murnighan & Co., is now associated with Richard A. Connell, 1145 Devon avenue.

Ernest W. J. Hughes has resigned as a vice president of Holzer, Inc., and has established his own business to be known as Ernest W. J. Hughes & Co., at Room 546 Otis building, 10 South La Salle street. Mr. Hughes was for twelve years with Peabody, Houghteling & Co.

PLAN 18 HOLE GOLF COURSE NEAR WHEELING

The Wheeling-Borough Golf club is the latest organization to announce its plans for an eighteen hole course. The grounds are opposite the Forest preserve dam, a few blocks from the Wheeling station. The Wheeling-Elmhurst road passes the property.

There'll be only 400 memberships, carrying an equity in the property. A modern club house is planned later.

William T. Foley is president, Frank A. Bergen and Thomas E. Stinson are vice presidents. The secretary is Edward N. Sherburne and Theodore Manson is treasurer.

TWO NEW PLANTS BEING ERECTED IN CLEARING AREA

Eastern Firm Plans for Future Expansion.

With the recent completion of the paving of 63d street to the Clearing industrial district, interest in that property has undergone moderate stimulation. The improved facilities for trucking have resulted in two large industries locating there, and it is stated others will follow.

One of these is the Chicago Veneer company, which has given up its lease in the Midland warehouse, at 1500 South Western avenue, and made arrangements to build a one story warehouse at the southeast corner of West 65th street and South Laramie avenue.

For Future Expansion.

The site of the warehouse, to contain 25,000 square feet, is held under lease for a term of years, and the company has acquired additional land for future expansion. In this deal B. W. Lord handled the negotiations for the Chicago Veneer company and H. P. Phelps for the district.

Bare mention was made some time ago that Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., with head offices at Philadelphia, has sold its warehouse at 1435 West 37th street, and is having built a one story warehouse at the southwest corner of 65th street and South Central avenue. This firm also has obtained additional ground, with the idea of future expansion, as it is expected the warehouse may be made the distributing center for the middle west.

Industries Total 63.

J. E. Bowers represented Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., and Mr. Phelps acted for the district in the negotiations.

The total number of industries operating in the district is sixty-three. Eleven were added during 1926, including plants for the Foster Bolt and Nut Manufacturing company of Cleveland, O.; the Lock Joint Pipe company of Ampere, N. J.; Morrison & Rissman Co., Inc., of Buffalo, N. Y.; Chipman Chemical Engineering company of Bound Brook, N. J.; the H. R. Selover company of Minneapolis, Minn.; the New Home Sewing Machine company of Orange, Mass.; the Conover company of Hoopeston, Ill.; the Purepak Paper company of Chicago, and the Chicago Steel Tank company of Cicero.

REAL ESTATORS TO HEAR TALK ON "ESCROWS"

Rice, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, will deliver a lecture before the real estate practice class of the Cook County Real Estate board next Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, at the rooms of the Cook County Real Estate board on the seventeenth floor of the Conway building. Mr. Rice's talk will be on the subject of "Escrows." The lecture will be held between 8 and 9 o'clock. The realty board extends an invitation to attorneys, brokers, and property owners to attend the lecture, which is one of a series open to the public.

WORK STARTS ON SEWER SYSTEM IN WESTCHESTER

Work starts at once, with completion set for next spring, on a double set of sewers for Westchester it was announced by Mayor O. J. Taeterow and the village board.

It is stated that the installation will cost $500,000, which will be covered by a bond issue. The area to be improved includes the developments of George F. Nixon & Co. and William Zelosky, north and south of Roosevelt road.

Separate systems for sanitary waste and storm water will be laid, preventing the backing up of sewers and flooded basements. The sanitary board's Roosevelt road outlet will serve the sanitary system and storm water drains will flow into Addison creek. This stream is to be deepened, its banks provided with confining walls, and wide strips along its banks improved for public parks and playgrounds.

PACKARD MOTOR BUYS SITE IN HUBBARD WOODS

The Packard Motor Car company of Chicago yesterday bought a site in Hubbard Woods for a new salesroom and service station which it will erect for opening next spring. The 100x200 lot at 925 Lincoln avenue, was purchased through F. M. Orndorff and H. N. Tyson Jr., of Quinlan & Tyson. The new building will serve Winnetka, Glencoe and Hubbard Woods.

Fred Leepin Sells Building at 7806-10 Laflin Street

Fred Leepin sold to Michael P. Breen the twenty-two apartment building at 7806-10 Laflin street for a reported price of $116,500, subject to an incumbrance of $84,500. Elbert E. Elmore represented all parties as broker.

FARM AND GARDEN

Pay Farmers with New Tariff Money, Is Ewing's Plan

Revision of Import Duty; Export Certificate Proposed.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

A FARMER-MADE bill will be presented at the next session of congress. It is designed to start Europe's idle machines and men working again, stimulate foreign demand for American farm products and hoist agriculture up nearer industry's protected level.

Charles A. Ewing of Decatur, a central Illinois farmer, is author of the measure, which proposes the issuance of certificates on exported farm products and a revision of tariffs on goods coming into this country. In the operation of thousands of acres of farm land in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Mississippi, Missouri, Tennessee, and Texas he has had a chance to get bedrock evidence on the agricultural situation, coming out with some definite conclusions, calling things by their right names, and boldly proposing definite federal action which he thinks will correct agriculture's ills and effect a permanent cure.

The Ewing bill proposes that any person who exports agricultural products valued at $500 or more shall be entitled to receive from the United States government at any port in this country a certificate for an amount equal to 50 cents a bushel on corn, wheat, oats, rye, and barley, 3 cents a pound on cotton, 6 cents a pound on beef and pork, 5 cents a pound on mutton, and 45 per cent ad valorem on articles or goods fabricated entirely from cotton or leather, from cattle, hogs, and sheep, and all food or foodstuffs processed or manufactured wholly from the agricultural products included in the bill.

Exchange of Goods Encouraged.

Under the terms of this measure agricultural products can be exchanged for any article or commodity not raised, produced, or manufactured in the United States by paying a duty on the imported goods as provided for in the Ewing bill.

The certificates issued on the export goods will be negotiable and can be used at face value in payment of tariffs or duties on dutiable goods brought into this country. The holder of unredeemed certificates, which are six months old or more, is entitled to receive in cash from the United States treasury 80 per cent of the face value of the certificates, paid out of the money accumulating from tariffs or duties on imports into this country.

Provisions of Ewing Bill.

The proposed act also provides for a means of paying for the certificates or debentures by means of a revision of the tariff laws, as follows:

All imports from a foreign country into the United States of corn, wheat, oats, rye, and barley, shall be dutiable at the rate of 50 cents per bushel.

All imports of their products shall be dutiable at 45 per cent ad valorem.

All imports of cotton into the United States shall be dutiable at 3 cents per pound.

All imports into the United States of articles or goods manufactured wholly of cotton shall be dutiable at 45 per cent ad valorem.

All imports into the United States of cattle, hogs, or sheep shall be dutiable at 45 per cent ad valorem.

All imports into the United States of beef, pork, or mutton shall be dutiable at 6 cents per pound for beef, 6 cents per pound for pork, and 5 cents per pound for mutton.

All hides, leather goods, or food products made from beef, pork, or mutton shall be dutiable at 45 per cent ad valorem.

All imports into the United States now admitted free or dutiable at a less rate than 10 per cent ad valorem shall hereafter and henceforth be dutiable at a rate of 10 per cent ad valorem except as above specifically designated and specified, and where not in contravention with existing trade treaties of the United States of America with foreign countries.

Permanent Cure for Farm Ills.

Mr. Ewing says that 62 per cent of our imports today are coming into this country duty free and some of them are competing directly with products raised on the farm.

In interpreting the bill, which was prepared by Charles C. Le Forgee, a Decatur attorney, Mr. Ewing said: "This bill, if passed, would be in the nature of a permanent cure for agricultural ills, rather than a temporary relief. It would put farming somewhere near a parity with manufacturing.

"Any measure which affords a reasonably adequate remedy is going to require money and lots of it, and this measure provides a way for raising most of the funds needed. At the same time it gives a protection against imports now admitted duty free in direct or indirect competition with agricultural interests of this country. It does this without disturbing to any considerable degree the other revenues of the United States government.

"This measure requires no additional governmental machinery, but is simple and direct, and when passed would work an almost immediate benefit on the object toward which it is directed.

Providing Trade Stimulus.

"It is designed to give a real stimulus to our trade with continental Europe, and does this without interfering with the tariff protection now accorded enterprises in this country."

It is further pointed out that the Ewing bill makes it possible for all products of American agriculture to be exchanged or sold for manufactured products of any foreign country. The bill provides for a method of issuing and handling the certificates, and keeping records on exports and imports.

In showing the unbalanced position of farmers compared to industries when it comes to tariff protection, Mr. Ewing said that in 1925 the average ad valorem duty on manufactured products imported into the United States was 44.6 per cent while it was only 28 per cent on farm products. The duty on manufactured products entering the United States last year amounted to $242,709,342 and agriculture was only $155,620,013. Agriculture would have to have 50 per cent more to give farmers tariff protection equal to that of industry, according to Mr. Ewing's figures.

Uniform Duty.

Unlike some other proposals, the Ewing bill is said to levy uniform duty on agricultural products, thus stabilizing production, while a higher tariff on any one product would encourage farmers to swing to that crop.

Mr. Ewing says that today Europe needs many things produced in this country, but hasn't the money with which to buy. He believes his proposal offers Europe a method of paying for products from this country with goods manufactured in European factories.

"This bill will provide an adequate outlet for America's agricultural surplus," he said, "and will have the effect of increasing home prices."

CORN BELT'S NEW CROP

Cabbage as Chicken Food

Cabbage is rich in the green material needed by laying hens. About six pounds of cabbage may be fed per 100 birds each day, according to the Kansas State Agricultural college. Waste leaves which come from cabbage being prepared for the pot may be fed to chickens along with the stalks.

TIMELY TIPS FOR HANDLING THIS SEASON'S CORN

F. W. Lehmann, head of the farm mechanics department of the agricultural college, University of Illinois, gives below some timely tips to farmers who have the task of handling the enormous bushelage of wet, soft corn in the corn belt this fall. He strongly urges them to put ventilators in their cribs and sums up a world of good information in these ten points:

1. Throw out all rotten or extremely wet ears.
2. Avoid piles of silks, husks, and shelled corn in the crib.
3. Store the corn only in narrow bins with slatted or open sides.
4. In bins six feet or more wide build a central A shaped frame or a ventilating shaft through which the air can circulate.
5. Special ventilating flues extending through the corn to the shafts are desirable.
6. Special roof ventilators connected with an A shaped frame or ventilating shafts will help create an air draft through the corn and remove much of the moisture.
7. Poles or old rails extending through a bin of corn make possible some air circulation, and will improve drying.
8. For rapid drying, forced heated air may be used. The chief objection is the expense of the equipment.
9. When forced heated air is used it should be discharged into the center of a crib with open slatted sides.
10. Drying soft corn with forced unheated air is a slow and costly process when the temperature is low and the humidity is high.

Chicago Plans a Flower and Garden Show

AFTER lying dormant for eleven years Chicago's great garden and flower show is to be revived this winter. The biggest flower enthusiasts in the country are planning to hold a five day exposition at the Sherman hotel during the week of March 7 to 12, inclusive, the first since 1915.

Coöperating in the promotion and management are private gardeners, both amateurs and professionals, the garden clubs of Chicago and its suburbs, commercial horticulturists, including florists, seedsmen and nurserymen, and the city parks.

All these interests are represented on the show committee, which has for its goal the reëstablishment of the garden and flower show so that it will hold the same position it held fifteen years ago, when it was considered the greatest in the country. Old timers recall when the flower show held in the Coliseum shared a place with the horse show as a society event. The one this winter is expected to be of that caliber.

In the Old Days.

In the old show days there were large conservatories attached to city homes of wealthy Chicagoans, and blossoms from the conservatories of Mrs. George Pullman, Martin A. Ryerson, John J. Mitchell, E. G. Uihlein, Harry G. Selfridge, Potter Palmer, P. D. Armour, Cyrus McCormick, and many others were entered annually in the competitions along with products from commercial greenhouses throughout the country.

Both commercial and amateur flower growing has increased since the last show was held, eleven years ago, in the Coliseum. While nearly all private conservatories in the city proper have been abandoned, the owners have large gardens at their country places near Chicago. Outdoor gardens are predominant among amateur gardeners everywhere, and chrysanthemum shows have been replaced generally by spring shows in which flowers suited for growing in the open garden are exhibited.

Show officials say that to be in line with the new changes in taste, the Chicago show next March will attract exhibits from the large suburban estate gardens, many of which maintain greenhouses, where roses, tulips, daffodils and dozens of other flowers grow. These flowers can be forced into bloom a little in advance of their usual flowering dates in time for the exhibition.

The whole program of the show is interwoven with educational features designed to arouse interest and instruct growers in modern practices in flower growing and gardening designs.

Real Gardens Exhibited.

Sixteen model flower gardens made of real soil, sod and growing plants will be the spectacular feature to be staged in the exhibition hall, which is 75 ft. by 175 ft. The gardens will be of natural size, built on the concrete floor, illustrating a distinct style of garden design. The gardens will be carefully worked out so that visitors may learn simple lessons which can be applied in their own garden problems. The garden styles to be illustrated include English, Italian, Spanish, French, Tropical, American and rock and water gardens.

Exhibits are expected to come not only from the gardens in and around Chicago, but also from the grounds of some of the finest estates and horticultural plantings in California, Florida and around New York City, St. Louis, Buffalo, Kansas City, Detroit and Milwaukee.

Cash prizes amounting to many thousands of dollars are offered. The show will be open day and night. There will be competitive exhibits of cut flowers, plants and flower arrangements.

Daily Programs of Interest.

Each afternoon during the show a garden talk will be given by authorities and broadcast by radio.

Daily contests in table decoration will be held, and style shows illustrating the use of flowers in costuming will be held each afternoon and evening. A model wedding will be a feature. Information booths will be located at convenient points, where questions dealing with flowers and gardens may be answered.

The general flower show committee includes Mrs. Francis King, Alma, Mich., and Mrs. Walter Brewster, Lake Forest, Ill.

A committee on which all the garden clubs of the district will be represented will have charge of the educational feature of the show.

John A. Servas, who was in charge of the designs, layouts, and architectural work in stage settings at the New York flower show, is manager of the exposition. Premium lists are now available at the Chicago Garden and Flower show office in the Sherman hotel.

Learning Fine Points

This is a good time of year to study up on the fine points in poultry raising, keeping in mind the mistakes made during the last season. Experienced poultry keepers, as well as beginners, should have in the home library copies of the bulletins dealing with every phase of poultry keeping sent free by the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., and the various state agricultural colleges. In this state, write to the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

Housing Danger

Cold weather makes it necessary for chickens of all ages to be put in houses from now until spring and they will need a thorough treatment for lice. This is the time of year lice are thick on neglected birds. Treatment nowadays is so cheap that every flock in the country should be given a dusting with sodium fluoride, a powder that can be bought at almost any drug store. A dollar's worth of this material will treat at least 200 birds.

Tips to Poultry Men

Don't expect too much of your flock of layers this winter if the birds are not provided with a nest for every five hens, one foot of mash hopper space for each half dozen hens, and plenty of drinking fountains. Missouri agricultural college poultry experts say that a hundred hens consume or waste about six gallons of water daily.

STRAUS URGES STATE WATCH ON REALTY BONDS

Asks Curb for Protection of Investors.

In view of the tremendous increase in real estate bonds put on the market within recent years, a paper prepared by S. W. Straus, president of S. W. Straus & Co., and read before the American Construction council in its recent meeting at Cleveland, contains a number of remarks of interest to investors in this kind of securities.

In the paper Mr. Straus took up the construction and renting situation of the nation. Regarding rentals he sees little prospect of cheaper rates because of the general increased wages and the higher standard of living.

He then discussed the huge sum invested in real estate bonds and their relative security in comparison with other securities, and it was during these remarks that he took occasion to recommend federal or state supervision of houses handling these bonds for the protection of the public.

His paper is too lengthy for reproduction, but some of the salient points are given herewith.

Many Firms in Field.

The volume of bonds offered to the public has been increasing at a very rapid rate, Mr. Straus' paper said. "This volume, in fact, is over twice as great as it was three years ago. With this growth in offerings has come an enormous increase in the number of firms underwriting real estate bond issues.

"These firms are of varying degrees of experience, competence, financial strength, and moral responsibility. It is well within the bounds of good judgment and sound social policy, therefore, that certain additional restrictions and regulations should be made commensurate with this progress and expansion.

"I am heartily in favor of the policy of segregating the proceeds of construction loans and believe that the leading bond houses, by reason of the position of leadership which they enjoy in their field and in view of the magnitude to which the business has now attained, should be willing to adopt this policy for the benefit of the entire real estate bond business, the building industry, and the investing public.

Urges Supervision.

"I would, however, amplify this recommendation by insisting that this segregation of funds must be under state or federal supervision. By segregation with supervision, I mean that it shall be the legal duty of certain lawfully constituted officials of the state or nation to know at all times exactly what is being done with the funds derived from the sale of construction bond issues and to see that sound and approved assets are set apart to meet all liabilities for the construction of the buildings upon which the loans have been made. The respective states should accord proper recognition to adequate segregation and supervision in other states to the end that the conduct of the business on a national scale may not be impeded.

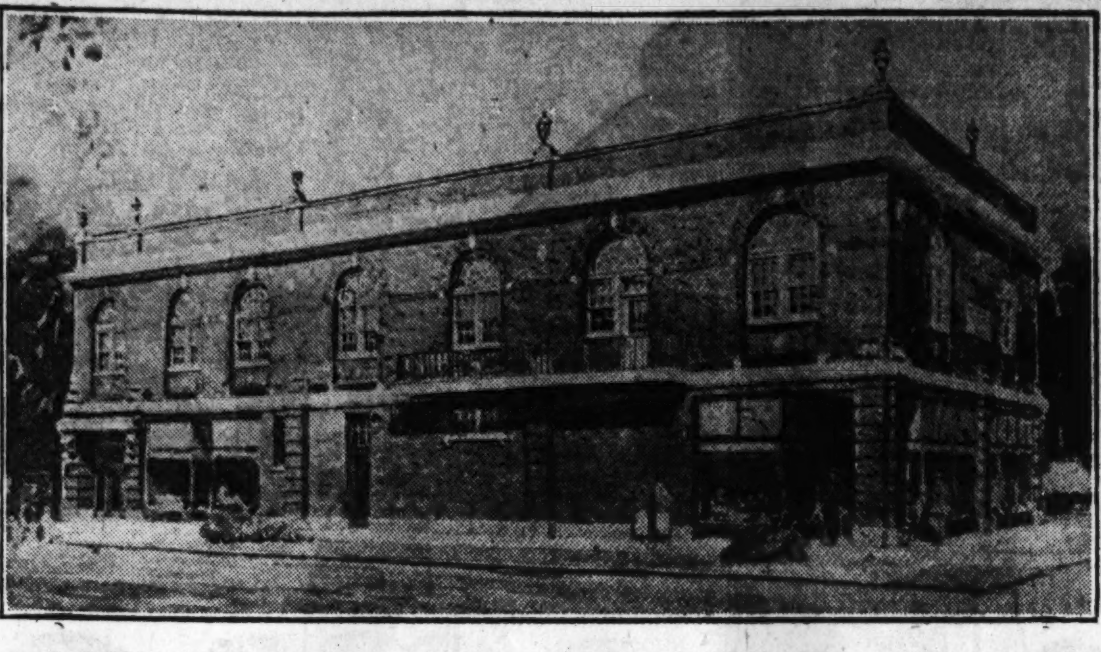
"Aside from the segregation of funds there has been some criticism of the first mortgage real estate bond business with regard to so-called excessive appraisals. I believe there have been some cases in which such criticism has been justified, although I would remind you of the fact that an appraisal of value is merely an expression of opinion and it might well be that the opinion of the self-appointed critics may not turn out to be as soundly based as that of the real estate broker or the issuing house which made the appraisal in the first instance.

Takes Up Appraisals.

"Long experience with the dynamic character of our American cities has taught me to be exceedingly reluctant to criticize the appraisals of competent persons familiar with the locality concerned, even though my own opinion of values might not agree with theirs. On the other hand—I know that the demand for independent appraisals on the part of investors has led to the use of incompetent and irresponsible appraisers by irresponsible underwriting houses anxious to make use of the independent appraisal as a selling device.

"When outside bodies began to demand independent appraisals I feared that this policy would lead to such evasion and abuse and I was strongly of the opinion that the welfare of the public would best be protected if the underwriting house retained full responsibility for the appraisals which it set. However, the independent appraisal has probably come to stay and one of our tasks for the future will be that of educating the public to discriminate between the competent and the incompetent appraiser."

WHEATON'S ODD FELLOWS' HALL



L. M. Mitchell, Chicago and Wheaton architect and member of the Wheaton Plan commission, designed the above building for the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, to be erected at the southeast corner of Willow and Main, in Wheaton. It is to be built by a corporation of Odd Fellows. The cost is placed at approximately $50,000. Bids are now being taken.

NIXON COMPANY SELLS 45 LOTS FOR $158,000

The Burton-Haskell Realty company has purchased from George F. Nixon & Co. forty-five lots in the southwestern section of Evanston for a reported $158,000. It is stated that the purchasers propose to start soon on the erection of a number of six flat buildings on the property.

The district is adjacent to the Dodge avenue station of the Niles Center branch of the Northwestern elevated. Business sites are located on Dodge avenue and those for apartments are on Brummel, Brown, Grey, Richmond, and Hartrey avenues.

Charles E. Hayes represented the Nixon company in the deal.

CO-OP EXCHANGE ANNOUNCED BY REALTY FIRM

LOUIS C. SUDLER.
[Koehne Photo.]

McMenemy & Martin announce what they claim to be a new type of service for the coöperative apartment owners of Chicago in the shape of a coöperative exchange or clearing house where individuals or groups may resell their apartments. They state that the individual wishing to resell his apartment often finds the promotional effort withdrawn on his particular building and has little or no medium to dispose of his isolated holding.

The same firm reports that Louis C. Sudler has been appointed head of their coöperative department.

FRANK DE LUGACH TO MARKET BIG TRACT ON CICERO

Frank De Lugach has purchased from Welma Geissing a large piece of vacant property located between 103d and 105th streets and Cicero and 50th avenues for an undisclosed consideration. The property is to be subdivided immediately under the name of Midwest Highlands. It contains 238 lots with a frontage of from thirty to forty feet each. M. T. Plummer represented the seller as broker and M. A. Mills was attorney for Mr. De Lugach.

Real Estators Place 15 on Nominating Committee

WOODLAWN AVENUE SALE.

Harry L. Holton has sold to B. Heller the eight room residence on a lot 40x177 feet at 5127 Woodlawn avenue for a reported price of $28,000. Aaron Bodenweiser and associates were brokers.

RIVER FOREST, ELMHURST MEN FORM NEW FIRM

Leo A. Ryan and Edward A. Ryan of River Forest and John Sather of Elmhurst have formed the Ryan Brothers & Sather Mortgage corporation, with offices at 261 Lake street, River Forest and 135 South York street, Elmhurst. The new concern will make and sell mortgage securities and bond issues.

West Jackson Boulevard Flat Building Is Sold

The six apartment building at 4620 West Jackson boulevard has been sold by Thomas Cogley and James Meeney to Sidney Frisch for a reported $57,000, subject to $23,000. Frisch & Frisch and George D. Sullivan were attorneys.

In the other Joseph J. Fleming purchased the block between 84th and 85th on the east side of State from William R. Argiris for a reported $150,000. Mr. Fleming will subdivide immediately, and the sales will be handled by Kramer, Foot & Co.

GROW WITH THE TRIBUNE IN 1926

An Unusual Opportunity for ambitious people

ALL of us are eagerly waiting for opportunity to come our way. I have just had an experience so unusual that I want to put it before the people of the Chicago territory.

Out in Cleveland, Ohio, there is a great big national organization—the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers—who have been making a big name for themselves in the financial world. Their banks and financial activities extend from Coast to Coast. Their success has led them into new fields. They are now fostering a community comprising a model city, fundamental industries and intensive farms where any thrifty, earnest family can reach actual financial independence without slaving away the years but, rather, enjoying them in fresh air and invigorating sunshine.

And understand this; there was no idea of a Florida promotion as such—but Venice, Florida, was chosen because it won out in comparison with other places, some exceedingly interesting. Venice had the edge in location, climate, soil and other natural advantages.

Now, Venice is more than a plan; it is a lovely spot. I have just come back from a careful inspection of this great Brotherhood project. I have been on the ground, on the mainland beach on which the city fronts, walked along the boulevards, admired the spic and span buildings, enjoyed the hotels, feasted on the home grown, home cooked food, and spent hours on the farm lands, in the Venice Nursery and on the Venice Demonstration Farm, and I have this to say—

Really earnest people with some means are wanted, and will be given expert cooperation

Particularly in operating Venice Farms on five acres and up. The Venice Farm Board is composed of able men. They are there to give information, and when one gets started, they can help in many ways—from planting to marketing.

There are other opportunities but this farm opportunity is the big one—the family opportunity—the opportunity for the mother and the kiddies as well as the man at the head of the table. A young couple ought to consider this seriously, too. Simply think of this—that three, even four crops can be raised here and sent to market in a year and this part of the state ships to the earliest markets and has strong local markets. Venice has its own dairy farm, also.

It is possible for a Venice farm to pay for itself in a few years. Crops grow easily and fast under the life-giving sun. It tingles in your own veins. I heard of people making $500 and more an acre a year in that part of the state.

I brought back some booklets that tell a good deal about it—but in offering these to my readers I want to warn them not to expect a Florida development and real estate promotion such as has been frequently before the public in recent years.

Bear in mind, when you read this, that Florida is the truck and fruit garden of a large part of our country, principally the East, and that the part of Florida in which Venice is located is the Manatee section, famous for crops, Gulf breezes, hunting and fishing.

It is a community of farms and farmers, some of whom would have considered no other farming proposition. Authorities say it is the largest and most comprehensive farm development ever projected in America.

The farms are located on good roads, cleared and ready to plant, with general drainage installed. The Venice Farm Board sells these farms at moderate prices on liberal terms and stands back of the purchaser with helpful information and service. This may be your best opportunity to get ahead, to throw off the burden of expenses that mean little, to get free of irking tasks and cares that bring little more than wrinkles.

I am ready to spend time with people interested and tell a lot more; this statement just skims the surface. I know this means happiness and profit for others, and I am enthusiastic in giving others the benefit of what I know.

Alluring offers could not tempt me into Florida last year. But Venice belongs to a different order. This comprehensive project, backed by an organization of such established repute and known resources, opens to the average man the opportunity of sharing in the great agricultural wealth of Florida—for years universally acknowledged.

If you let me hear from you I will mail the booklet, "A New Free Life of Independence," illustrated with photographs. Visit my office and I will be glad to discuss this unusual opportunity with you personally.

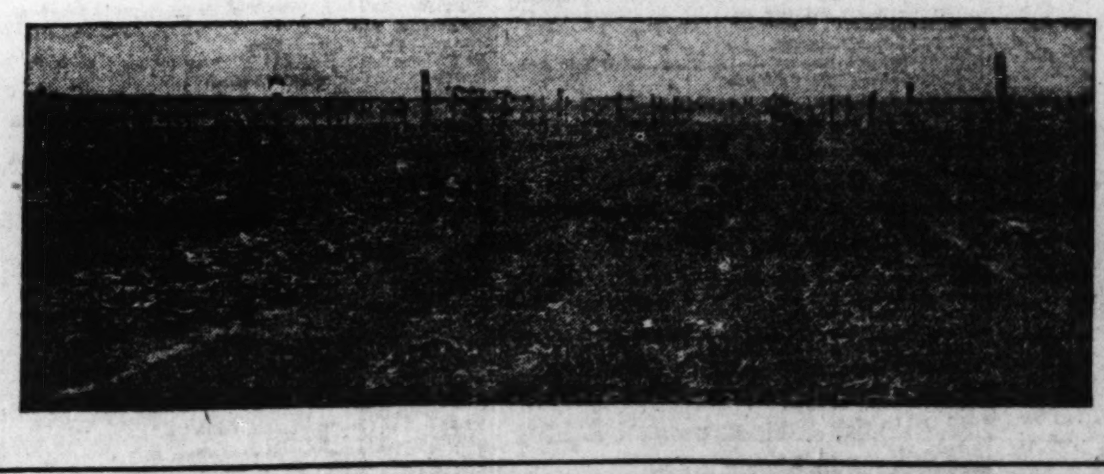
The Venice Farm Board also operates a Demonstration Farm where plants are grown and observed under practical farming conditions. This experience then is reported to Venice farmers.



VENICE FARMS are within a few minutes of the city and its mainland beach, and Florida's most famous fishing grounds.

Richard Plays the Good Samaritan

By Carey Orr

SYNOPSIS.

RICHARD MORTIMER, who lives with his grandfather, Gen. Mortimer, at Mortimer Hall on the Hudson, is preparing to enter West Point with his friend, John Smith. The latter's father, Josiah Smith, is an avowed pacifist and objects to everything of a military nature. His consent is necessary before John can enter the military academy. Gen. Mortimer is prevailed upon to intercede in John's behalf. In their argument the General refutes Josiah's accusations that "all soldiers are murderers" by showing him the historic Mortimer sword. Upon the blade of this sword are recorded the war records of five generations of Mortimers. All have been cited for bravery; not for killing men, but for saving lives. John enters West Point with Richard. Year, 1909.

INSTALLMENT II.

At West Point.

RICHARD and John had approached West Point with feelings of pride not unmixed with trepidation. Youths of seventeen have not learned to acquire the easy assurance of men of the world.

They reported to the adjutant and were escorted by an orderly to the little wicket window that framed the head and shoulders of the treasurer. Each handed in the one hundred and sixty dollars equipment fee, at the same time emptying his pockets of all money. (Such amount is entered on the books to the cadet's credit.) From thence they were taken to the officer in charge of new cadets. As they marched behind the orderly through the sally port toward the area of barracks they felt as Caesar must have felt after crossing the Rubicon. Richard remembered his grandfather's parting injunction.

"Don't forget, my boy," the General had said, "that you are a Mortimer and the sixth generation of a family of fighters. A great deal will be expected of you. I shall not be the least exacting of your critics. Good-by, Mr. Mortimer, sir!"

Richard had been puzzled by the last utterance of the General, but he soon found out what it meant. On the way to report to the adjutant a cadet officer had hailed them across the area.

"You two men there, shuffling across the area! Do you think this is a camel parade? What's your name, you?" pointing to Richard.

"Richard Mortimer. Can you tell——?"

"Your name is Mr. Mortimer, SIR!" barked the officer. "Mr. Dumbguard, d'you get that?" He turned to John. "What's your name."

"Mr. Smith, sir," promptly responded John

"Humph! Now, Mr. Dumbguard and Mr. Dumbcot, stand up straight! Turn down your trouser cuffs! Button up your coats! Take off those watch-chains and scarfpins! What d'ye think this place is? A training school for a male beauty chorus?"

All the new cadets were marshaled awaiting their turn to report to the officer in charge. A yearling corporal turned out of the guardhouse to put the new men through their paces.

"Straighten up this line here!" Commands rapped out, one after another, in staccato—snap—snap—snap.

"Heads up! Chins in! Drag your chin in there, number four! Number two, put your hat on straight! Pull that stomach in! Arms straight down, fingers pointing toward the ground! Pull your thumbs back in a line with the seam of your trousers!"

Straight—straight—straight. Richard and John both felt the force of that word. That was West Point. 'Straightness! Discipline! Rigidity! Straight as a soldier!

In two hours after their arrival they had been assigned to quarters, austere quarters. Two men in a room. Two iron cots. An iron washstand with two enamel basins. Bare floor. On the iron mantel a plain mirror, flanked by two japanned metal frames. In one of these frames was a time schedule of the class instruction, and in the other a bulletin on which the cadet's whereabouts at any hour of the day had to be recorded. Shortly afterward, Richard and John returned to this room, staggering under a tremendous burden of bedding, blankets and pillows, a bucket and a broom.

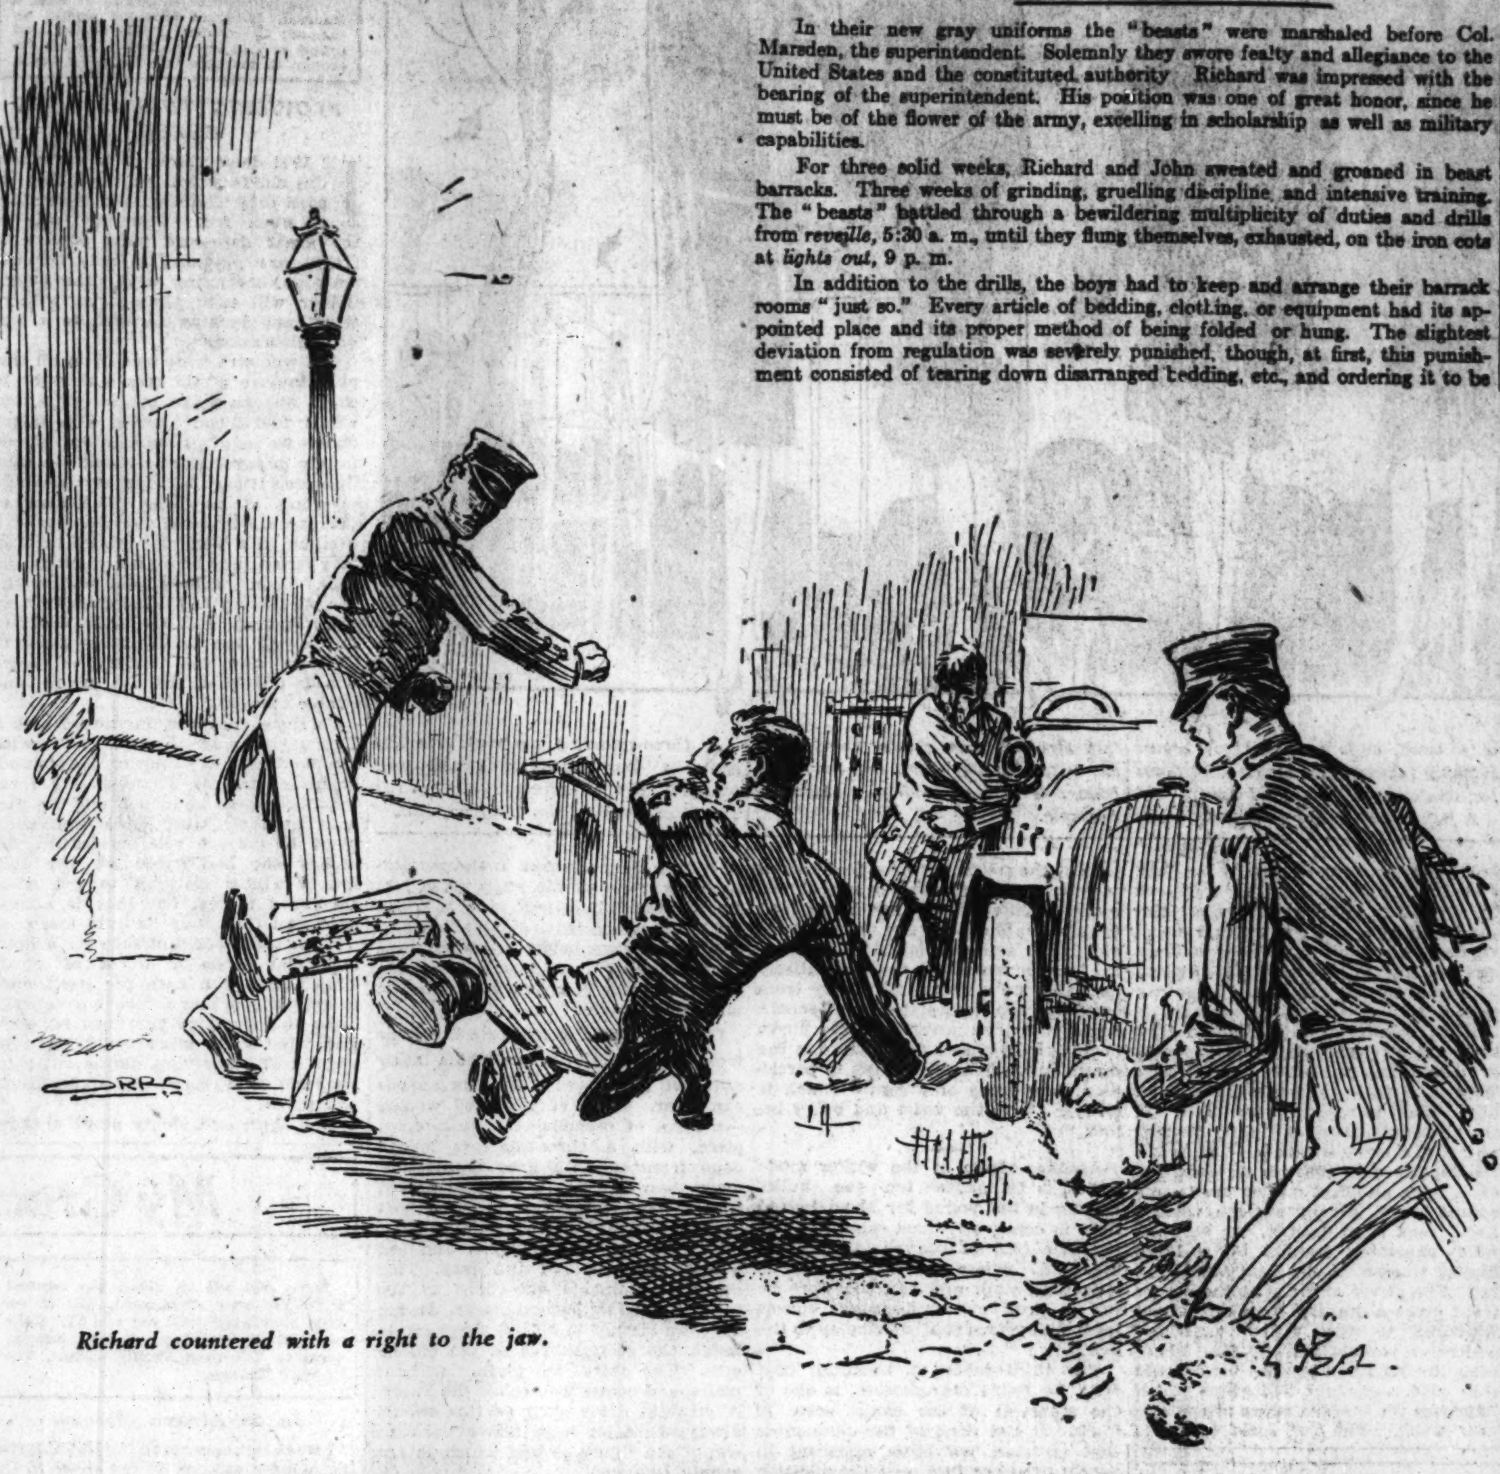
"Double time, there!" rang out the stentorian voice of a watchful cadet officer.

Later the sheep were sheared. Carefully cultured locks fell to the floor, routed by the barber's clippers. By one means and another the raw recruits were fashioned into something resembling uniformity. They were now full fledged "beasts."

In their new gray uniforms the "beasts" were marshaled before Col. Marsden, the superintendent. Solemnly they swore fealty and allegiance to the United States and the constituted authority. Richard was impressed with the bearing of the superintendent. His position was one of great honor, since he must be of the flower of the army, excelling in scholarship as well as military capabilities.

For three solid weeks, Richard and John sweated and groaned in beast barracks. Three weeks of grinding, gruelling discipline and intensive training. The "beasts" battled through a bewildering multiplicity of duties and drills from reveille, 5:30 a. m., until they flung themselves, exhausted, on the iron cots at lights out, 9 p. m.

In addition to the drills, the boys had to keep and arrange their barrack rooms "just so." Every article of bedding, clothing, or equipment had its appointed place and its proper method of being folded or hung. The slightest deviation from regulation was severely punished, though, at first, this punishment consisted of tearing down disarranged bedding, etc., and ordering it to be rebuilt in the prescribed manner. For three weeks they were drilled and drilled. Soon the cadets lost their care-free civilian habits and acquired some measure of precise, soldierly bearings.



Richard countered with a right to the jaw.

In camp, during the summer months, or in barracks, from September to June, the same rigid discipline holds. After "beasthood," the period of "plebedom" ensues. In accordance with tradition, "plebes" are confined to camp or barracks during the whole of the first year. Social life is denied them. With what indescribable joy the "plebes" look forward to the completion of the first twelve months, when they will become "yearlings," accepted as equals by the upper classmen, and be permitted social privileges. This time finally arrived for Richard and John.

The transition from "plebes" to upper classmen was welcome to both. As "yearlings" they rejoiced in the freedom that allowed them to attend the "hops." After one such "hop" they were returning after having escorted their femmes to their homes. For this they were allowed ten minutes extra leave. It was a beautiful night; the recent rain had rendered the air deliciously cool. The moon shimmered in the puddles on the road, transforming them into pools of liquid silver. Behind, they heard the whirr of wheels, and they stepped aside to allow an automobile to pass.

In the car, behind the little chauffeur, was a girl. As Richard's glance fell upon her, a strange storm of emotions surged over him and, from that moment, her face was stamped, indelibly, on his memory. Her hair escaped in bewitching tendrils from beneath her hat, and he was sure that her eyes were blue—blue even in the moonlight. The subtle fragrance of Trefle Incarnat lingered in the air after the car had passed.

Farther up the road Richard could see Aaron Rath, a member of the class above Richard's. He, too, stepped aside, and, as the car passed, he saluted its occupant.

"He knows her," breathed Richard. "Lucky dog!"

But alas! The immaculate white trousers of Aaron were spattered with mud as the car splashed through a puddle. Apparently imperturbed, he stood there until the car reappeared without its passenger. Then Richard heard a voice raised in anger, and saw the chauffeur pulled from the taxi, while Rath rained blow after blow upon the upturned face of the defenseless man who crouched, in terror, against the side of the car. Rath was in the throes of an overmastering passion. When the little man slid to the ground, Aaron, no longer able to hit him, kicked him savagely.

The events of the next few moments were swift and crowded. Richard raced up the road and pulled Rath from his victim

For a moment the two men faced each other. Richard was cool. Rath glared at him with a passion that caused the veins in his temples to stand out like knotted cords.

With the fury of a tiger he hurled himself upon Richard, who sidestepped a vicious swing and countered with a right to the jaw. Aaron fell to the ground, where he seemed content to remain for a space.

"I'll get you for this some time, you—you——." Aaron was inarticulate in his rage.

John, fearful lest the incident should be discovered by the authorities, hurried Rath away to his quarters.

The little chauffeur was overwhelmingly grateful. He took both of Richard's hands in his own bloodstained palms.

"Tanka you, meester, tanka you!" he sobbed out. "Some day, maybe, Tony Amazzi do somet'ing for you. Tony no forget!"

As Richard was departing, the girl, whose manner indicated that she had returned for some forgotten article, came toward the car. She was Patricia Marsden, daughter of Col. Marsden, the superintendent, to whom she paid occasional visits from her school, Vassar, near by. She had seen nothing of the fight and stood aghast when she saw the swollen, blood smeared face of the unhappy chauffeur, whom she knew by reason of her habit of hiring his car. Misunderstanding the situation, she shot a malevolent glance at the retreating form of Richard. As he passed under the lamp she caught a glimpse of his face and saw that he was wiping blood from his hands. When he walked through the gate, she noted the powerful set of his shoulders. Then she turned to Tony for explanation.

But the latter was too agitated to be coherent. He waved his arms in the air vociferating volubly: "He beata me up! He beata me up! Some day I get even. I keel him."

Patricia followed Richard with her eyes as he passed through the sally port.

"The cowardly brute!" she exclaimed indignantly.

(To be continued next Sunday.)

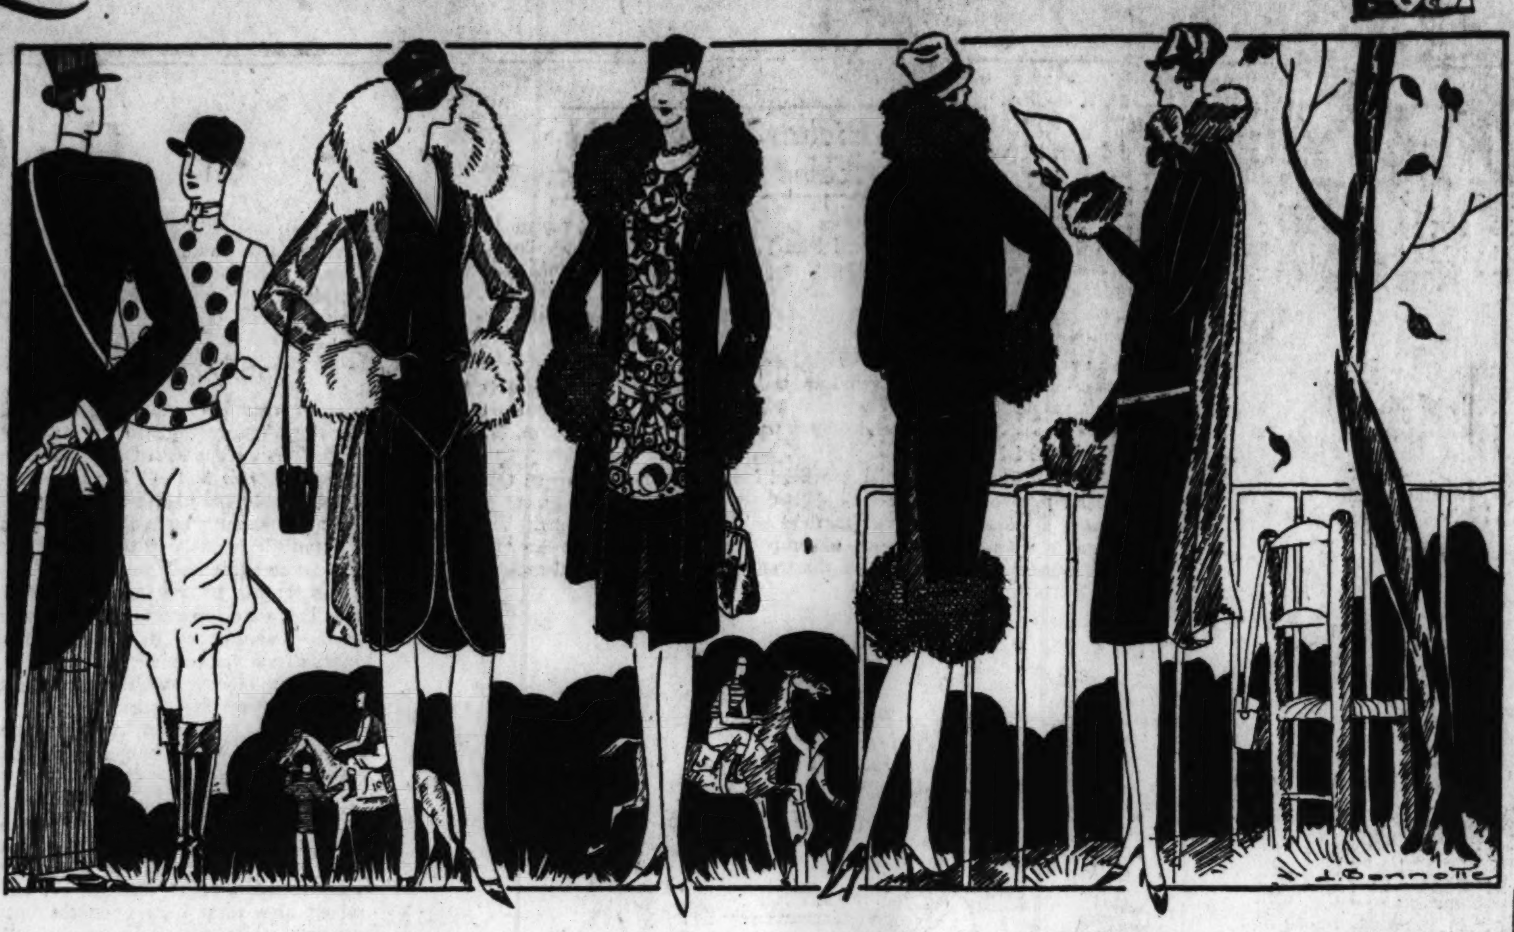
The Last Word in Paris Fashions



This frock of gray and beige mixed woolen, shown at the extreme left, gains distinction by its unusual cut.

Myrtle green velours Leda trimmed with band, cuffs and scarf of brown suslicky fur makes a smart coat dress for winter wear, sketched next.

A favored Paris fur is broadtail, and this straight coat shown third from the left, with its bolero and beige fox collar, is a particularly fashionable example.

A three-quarters squirrel trimmed cape, a long casaque blouse and straight skirt, of red crepella, form the sports ensemble from Redfern, last.

An Unevenly Balanced Figure May Appear to Be in Perfect Proportion if It Is Cleverly Gowned

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—We're not all of us Venuses, and it is a mighty fortunate thing, for if the famous lady of Milo were to try to get into the latest Paris clothes she should certainly have an awful time of it. She'd have to join the reducing squad and thin out a bit. However, the modern Venuses who are lucky enough to have all of the celebrated curves without more than half the bulk haven't it all their own way, either. As the world sees us, all dressed up in the smart autumn styles, it is a pretty difficult task to tell who is a Venus and who isn't. Clothes are kind as well as necessary.

H. L. Mencken says that "it is extremely rare to find a woman whose person reveals even such modest charms of aspect as it is theoretically capable of." "The average woman is indeed misshapen." I do not know if this keen critic has actual figures on figures, but I know this, that if they are misshapen they certainly conceal this handicap very well indeed. I also know that any woman who chooses her clothes well can so cleverly balance unequal and asymmetrical curves as to have all of the appearances of a figure in perfect harmony with the balanced one.

Artists have been busy for centuries proving to us that the ideal feminine figure is bulky below the waist line and slight above. These are beautiful curves, but every daughter of Eve knows that such a figure, no matter how ideal to the artist, is hard to dress to advantage. It requires some balance above the hips to give the streamline silhouette that is the necessary attribute of chic these days. Such ladies must avoid the robe de style and choose the kind of frock, coat, or ensemble which increases the appearance of weight between shoulder and hips. On the other hand, women who are inclined to plumpness and who at the same time have rather small hips and slender legs have to do just the opposite. When these two very different types are well dressed in the real sense of the term they appear taller and more slender, with evenly balanced weight.

Now that Paris has discontinued, apparently permanently, the use of fussy trimmings and nicknacks that disturb the beautiful line from shoulder to hem, it is simple for women to redistribute weight which is awkward or embarrassing.

Neither of the types of women I am speaking about can successfully wear a fitted bodice, and this season's fashion of making the upper part of the silhouette soft and draped is one which might have been particularly designed to benefit them. Of course, I don't mean those Chauve Souri blouses with the waist deep sleeves and the exaggerated blouse at the waistline. These are only for really slender women. What I refer to is the kind of frock which is shown in our first sketch, with hardly a blouse at all, but just enough to lend grace to any awkwardness in the upper figure. This frock of beige and gray mixed woolen in a fine and supple weave has no more weight than a silk dress, and the cut of the skirt is one that is good for slenderizing the hips. The curved front panel and the slightly flaring sides of the skirt tend to flatten the hipline, and the gracious flare at the sides of the hemline is becoming to most women. This frock is exquisitely simple and its only trimming is the two tabs that hold the waistline trimly close, buttoning over two cloth covered buttons. The sleeves, too, are essentially appropriate, for they are loosely fitted and finish with a trim band that hugs the wrist. This model varies just enough from the absolutely straight line to be supremely graceful and to erase defects in the irregular figure.

Many women have the notion that they cannot wear any kind of dress or coat which fits their hips closely. That is, if they happen to have large hips. This is an erroneous idea. If the blouse of a frock is slightly bloused and if the skirt is slender just below the hipline this effect is an excellent one. Such an effect as you see in our second model, a myrtle green velours Leda frock from Premet, can be worn with charming results by a large hipped woman, if she isn't downright fat. The clever shirring at the center front gives a drapery from the actual waistline to the visible waistline, which is a band of suslicky fur. These folds are held flat by bias bands, and they give a straight line effect which improves the marked curve of the natural waist. The fur scarf collar is part of the frock, but may be removed at will, revealing a simple untrimmed round neckline. The skirt has a long triangular panel at the center front and back, and circular sides, so that the line in front and back is entirely flat, and the sidelines flare only from below the hip, where the body beneath begins to curve inward. Every curve in this model offsets some curve in the figure which is badly placed, in particular the curves of a figure which is slender above the waist and bulky below.

Another phase of the winter mode which is fortunate for the bulky woman is the vogue for short haired furs, in coats, and most especially the supreme chic of shaved lamb and broadtail. These furs are almost as supple as cloth and can therefore be cut to iron out undesirable curves from the surface that we display to the world.

Our third model, a broadtail coat from La Reine d'Angleterre, is one of the smartest of fur coats seen in Paris. It has none of the clumsiness that is, alas, too often apparent in nearly priceless furs, and the addition of a little bolero jacket to the perfectly straight cut of the wrap gives just the additional bulk necessary to make the figure which is too small above and a bit too heavy below the waist look perfect. This coat has a becoming collar of beige fox and straight, but not tight sleeves.

Our last model is a sports ensemble from Redfern, and is one which many different women with varying shapes can wear. Made of wine red woolen—a form of crepella—this is a three piece, with a three-quarters length cape trimmed with gray squirrel, a more than hip length casaque of red that is loose above the hips and well fitted below. It buttons down the front with tiny red bone buttons, and has a scarf collar of red and gray. This collar is drapable according to the fancy and to its becomingness. It can be worn simply in a long streamer to break the straightness of the silhouette. The skirt is plain, without plaits, and comes well below the knees. A straight dress such as this should always be a bit loose above the hips where the figure is one which is not evenly balanced.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

PROVIDING THANKSGIVING CHEER.

IF WE don't think of it ourselves, the children will be reminding us soon that Thanksgiving is coming. A week from Thursday will be the great day—and most of us, no doubt, are planning already for the occasion, arranging where the happy dinner will take place, who will be there, and looking forward to a joyous celebration.

But wouldn't it be nice if, in all this planning we would give a thought to those we can make happy easily, but who'll find Thanksgiving a mockery unless we help? I am thinking of one family in particular as I write—a family which is hard hit right now througn no fault of its own. This summer the parents invested the savings of a lifetime in a little business in a factory town and for two months did well. Then business went bad for the the big factory of the community; men were laid off, and the little business failed. So the family came back to Chicago with the savings of years wiped out—and the father ill and unable to work!

So there they are, facing as blue a Thanksgiving as you could ask—with the children, too young to understand, beginning to talk Thanksgiving from what they hear at school, and the parents at their wits' ends wondering what to do! A relative loaned the money she had saved for her children's winter clothing to get some furnished rooms, but that is almost gone and they may have to leave.

Now, isn't that a chance for a helping hand to do a world of good? This family can care for itself once it gets a start and recovers courage after the blows it has been struck—and what nicer start could there be than a Thanksgiving dinner, with its message that somebody understands and cares?

And there are plenty more chances like this—enough for every one who will feel happier, as he celebrates with his family, from knowing that elsewhere in the city another family as well is happy, thanks to him. So if you would like that extra happiness let me know immediately and I'll provide the chance to help.

Fatherless Children.

"There is a family of nine children, whose father was recently killed, leaving them penniless and in urgent need of clothing, fuel and food. The boys are [illegible] 14, 6, 4 and 2; the girls are 13, 11, and [illegible]. There is a baby 10 months old. Any clothing you may able to get for them will be greatly appreciated. "R. K."

Can you be of any help to these fatherless children? The things your boys and girls have outgrown might solve the clothing problem for them.

Clothing Needed.

"Could you please help me secure an overcoat, size 36 or 38? I am working, but my wages are small and I have the children to support. I would be glad of anything in the line of underwear, size 36 or 38; shirts, 14½ or 15; sox, 10½, and clothing for a girl of 10. F. J. W."

It's hard to resist a plea for clothing with winter and cold weather upon us, especially when there are so many articles we're not able to wear ourselves which these people could use to good advantage.

Unable to Work.

"Do you ever have any suits or sweaters offered, size 36? I weigh only 89 pounds and can't work. I would appreciate any clothing in this size and shirts, size 14. R. W."

The suit you are about to discard would keep this poor fellow warm during the coming winter, and if your shirts are a little worn, he could make good use of them, too. May he have them?

Articles Offered.

"I find I have a few things such as a small size galvanized tub, a large pan and other articles of the kind I have no use, nor room for. I'd like to give them to some one in need of them." Mrs. J. H."

Some housekeeper will be able to use to good advantage these articles Mrs. J. H. is offering. Write in for them.

Rug and Carpet Needed.

"I am writing to you, hoping I could get a 9x12 rug and also a strip of carpet no longer in use. My husband left me with four children and many unpaid bills, so with what little I make it is hard to manage. "Mrs. T. T."

It would make things a trifle easier if we could supply this mother with the rug she needs. The one you are about to replace would do quite well.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, throat tickle, or bronchial asthma.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified honey. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

In an African Mosque.

I went into a mosque in North Africa last winter, slipped off my shoes in the outer court, no one seemed to pay any attention to me, and I wandered around at my leisure, watching the faithful at their prayers, washing their feet and hands at the fountains, etc.

I had returned almost to the door again, still leisurely, and with no sense of fear, when the priest, head man, or whatever he was, caught sight of me and called out. In a moment I was surrounded with yelling, screaming Arabs, over 200, so close I couldn't move. The priest, a magnificent, handsome man, exquisitely clean in his white turban and burnnoose, was not so fanatical, but he scolded me and scolded me in Arabic, not one word of which I understood, but I got his meaning. All the rest were fiercely, madly angry.

I had a feeling that I might be stabbed in the back at any moment and I learned later that is just what might have happened, and that I had done a most dangerous thing.

I never knew just how I got out, and I do not blame the Arabs. I, "a dog of a Christian," and a woman at that, had no right to go into their sacred place:

Thrilled? Well, rather more dazed, until it was all over. Mrs. J. A. W.

In Africa.

Living in Africa for two years in a mud house with thatched roof, snakes often crawled over the threshhold and coiled up in any comfortable place.

One day our little boy, who was then 4, became much excited, saying that there was a pretty snake on the porch.

As he told us, he turned and started running back towards it. The snake, by this time angry at the disturbance, struck at him as he approached.

Except for the quick action of one of our black boys who had grabbed a stick and who struck the snake down as it sprang, it would have been a serious matter. Later we found out from the natives that it was a poisonous reptile, which made it too much of a real thrill for me. Mrs. E. A. L.

The Cheekiest Person I Ever Met

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Follows Her Inclination.

The cheekiest person I have ever known is a neighbor who so frankly and freely expresses her disapproval of morning callers, who take up her time and hinder her in her work, that not one of her neighbors will call on her in the morning. But when she has a little time to spare she runs into any of her neighbors' homes with the remark, "Don't let me bother you, but I have been working so hard this morning, I felt I must get away for a little while."

And sometimes that "little while" consumes the greater part of the morning. S. O.

Expecting a Lot.

I recently was in charge of a small variety shop. One day a well dressed woman came in with an old pocketbook to exchange. She had purchased the pocketbook before Christmas and now, ten months later, she expected me to change it for her.

The pocketbook looked as though it had gone through the war, the inner compartment was torn out and the change purse was missing. It must have received some hard wear.

I refused to exchange it but offered to have it repaired, but she left in a huff. She had only paid $1.98, for the purse in the first place. L. S.

Vacillating.

Joe is a famous college half back. A few days before a big game, B, a mere acquaintance, beseeched him to get him two tickets. After a lot of trouble, Joe was finally able to buy two from another player. They were selling for ten times their regular price on the street.

About ten minutes before the game B phoned Joe at the dressing rooms to say he didn't want the tickets, after all. Joe felt disgusted, as it was too late for him to sell them. Imagine his feelings when B called a few minutes later and offered to take the tickets—at half price! A. E. R. W.

Practical and Fancy Needlework . . . By Clotilde

These Flower Letters Make Attractive Decorations for Towels, Bureau Scarfs, and Pillow Cases

A NUMBER of requests for another flower alphabet have been received and the first installment of the letters begins today. It is an unusually pretty one, and the letters will work up well on many things.

Buy some transfer paper at an artists' supply store and transfer the letters to your material. Or the work can be done without it. Lay a smooth piece of tissue paper over the letter, and go over every part of it, using a soft, well sharpened pencil. Then lay the pencilled side of this tissue paper down on another piece of paper and go over each part again. Lay this second tracing on your material, traced side down, and go over the letter for the third time. This last work will transfer the marking to the material. The reason for doing the second tracing is that the letter would be reversed if the first tracing were transferred to the cloth.

The paper should be carefully pinned before tracing, so it will not slip.

Outline the letter with a single strand of darning cotton.

You will find the raised satin stitch the prettiest for these letters, using the outline stitch where there are single lines. For the tiny flowers the outline, seed and stitches may all be employed.

In the first work of outlining the letter use a small running stitch. These stitches must be accurately taken, so as to follow perfectly the shape of the letter.

The next step is the padding. This is done by taking a couple of strands of the floss and taking running or chain stitches, keeping the stitches short on the under side. The filling must be heavier in the center of the space, thinning down as the outlines are reached.

In the satin stitch the stitches are always at right angles to the edge. It is an even over and over stitch, and this work is always done in a frame. It must be done slowly so as to be done evenly. Where there are curves the stitches are taken unusually close together on the inside, and on the outer edge there must be no space—but try to have them just meet. And at the same time they must never lap on the inside.

A little practice will make it possible to do beautiful work, and where one is inexperienced, time will be well spent by practicing first on an ordinary piece of cloth. It is one of the most fascinating forms of needlework, but unless it is well done there is no beauty in it.

The second installment will appear next Sunday.

CHINESE CHIROPODISTS IN PARIS

by Antoinette Donnelly

In a Bizarre Far-Eastern Setting the Smart French Woman Attends to the Details of a Brilliant Polish.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Your true Parisienne lets no single detail escape her. If there is one tiny item, that, improved, would leave her with a sense of being better pleased with herself—she attends to that item. That is why her lingerie is not something merely to put next the skin to protect the dress. It must be dainty, freshly beribboned, finely plaited, and perfectly fitted, which contributes immensely to her wellbeing.

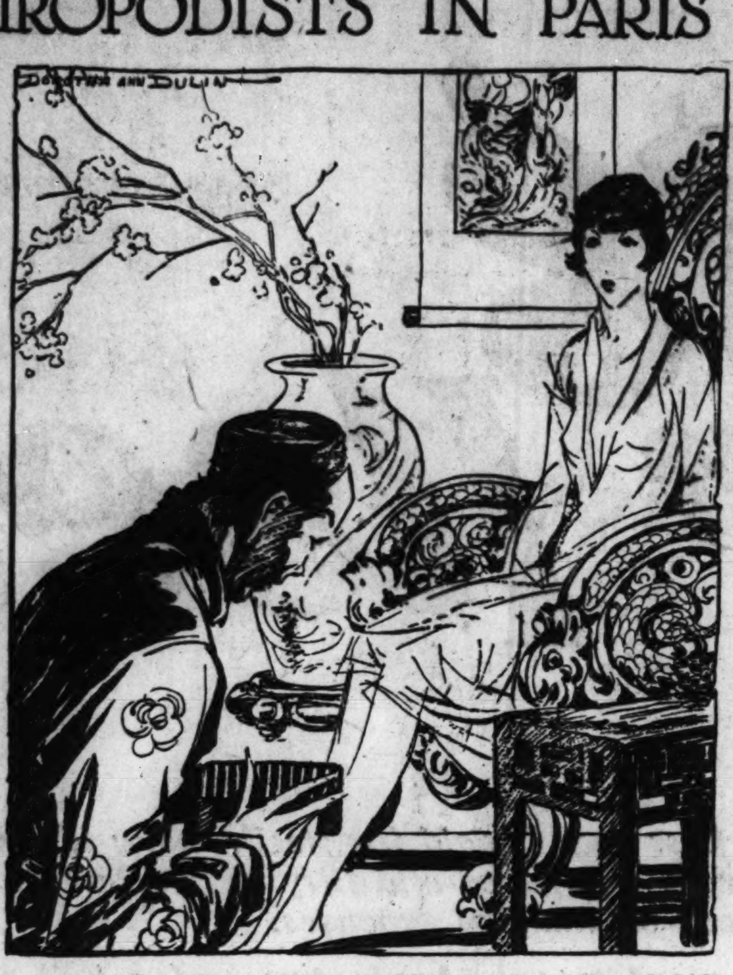
Also, this is one of the reasons why every beauty establishment carries on its staff of employés a chiropodist whose business is not only to remove callouses and other foot irritations, but to produce upon the toenails a polish of as elegant a luster as madame has upon her hands.

To your average American woman this pinking the toenails savors too much of Bacchanalian orgies for common pursuit. But to your Frenchwoman it's part of the business of beautifying that is every woman's duty, and, as I have said, it adds to that feeling of contentment that all is well with herself.

Chinese Chiropodists.

All over Paris one sees signs, "Pedicures Chinois." At the moment the Chinese are having the run of popularity when madame's feet are committed for treatment. Just why the Chinese should know more about chiropody I am not able to determine, unless much practice was allotted the profession when bound feet and the Chinese maiden were synonymous. There is a little of the Chinese, I suspect, in every Frenchwoman when she goes to buy shoes. A long foot to her is nothing short of a calamity. Consequently every artifice of the shoemaker's trade is stimulated to make a shoe look short.

I went with a French girl one morning while she bought shoes. The pair she chose were obviously uncomfortable, but she ordered them sent home on the assurance of the attendant that after she had worn them a few times they'd stretch and fit more comfortably. So, possibly, this pedicure business is not entirely built on madame's vanity for pink tipped nails. For shoes in any language, if they are short, cause no end of foot troubles.



Anyway, I thought I had better look in at one of these Chinese establishments and find out what it was all about. It looked so much like a chop suey place that I wondered for a moment if my friend hadn't misunderstood my request.

"The famous Chinese pedicure" was what I asked for. "You know the one that all the famous stars like Sorel and Mistinguette go to."

This was the address, all right. But in America one rather associates the idea of a chiropodist with a nice, quiet back room office, where a small sign hangs out, and the less said about visits there the better taste it is considered.

But here was a huge place just off the Rue de la Paix, marked "Grand Salon" in gold letters a yard tall, and underneath "Pedicures Chinois." It was built as we are taught to believe a Chinese tea house is built, with enormous double windows reaching the level of the street, and an enormous door flung wide open. At the door were grouped several pretty French girls, wearing the most heavenly colored kimonos. One of them, O shades of the American invasion, was chewing gum!

I said I had an appointment. They said they could not find my name on the book. But after a few months in France you don't let an unregistered appointment bother you much. You go through the formality of getting an appointment hour. For what, you ask yourself frequently?

An Amusing Setting.

Monsieur Tzi, it appeared, had just finished a job and would take me.

The setting designed for the work going on struck me as most amusing. It was done in red lacquer with much gilt decoration, many fantastic pagodas in each available corner, incense in carved iron bowls, bits of cherry blossoms here and there, a great many suspended lights dangling the little slivers of tinkling glass which we see in our Chinatown, and miles of thick red carpet.

I was told to go in "there." There happened to be the first booth. It was large, also red carpeted. I was seated upon a red and gold chair up on a dais, feeling for a moment that some oriental honors were about to be placed upon my brow instead of a shine on my nails. There were prints on the walls of fierce warriors with swords in their mouths, and fiery steeds snorting smoke and flame.

On a little black enamel table there were innumerable bright shiny steel implements, all alike except that some were a little wider than others. They were the only shiny objects in the room. Everything else looked a bit dusty.

It was not comforting at this moment to remember that sanitary methods are not everything they ought to be over here. The fact that the haute monde patronize the place would be cheering, I suppose, if the haute monde means more to you than sterilized tools.

Enter M. Tzi.

M. Tzi, an earnest looking young man, entered presently carrying a stool about four inches tall. I waited for him to put on a nice white coat, bring on fesh towels and an antiseptic lotion. Not at all. He sat himself on the stool and began. The job was thorough enough, but if mind has any effect over matter, I would be afraid to go again.

We've been so spoiled in America by sterilized tools, and white enamel, and clean aprons, and fresh towels. He pulled a towel, somebody's towel, out of his pocket and wiped off the first of the steel implements that he used. After that he forgot the towel.

The Chinese don't cut the toe-nails. They shave them. Most deftly, too, with a sharp edged piece of steel. They use a soft pumice stone over any sensitive or calloused places which they first tackle with the knife.

At that moment I heard a voice, a voice from home, outside.

"I would like an appointment right away."

Mademoiselle would find out. Whereupon she opened wide the doors of my little coupé, brought the new client to the door, and the conversation about the appointment was carried on right there.

The woman from America decided to wait, though she had to listen to an harangue from M. Tzi that they were giving him too much work to do.

"Please close the door," I begged. "In America when one is being pedicured she is entitled to a certain amount of privacy."

"Madame is droll," was the answer. They thought I was joking.

The American woman decided to wait—but where?

"What, here? Before this open window? With everybody who passes along the street seeing me? O no!" she objected.

"These Americans," sighed the girl at the desk. When she became convinced that it was down with the shade or lose a client, she let down a screen over one of the large windows. The American then seated herself in a large dragon embossed chair and proceeded to read where to eat, dine and dance—after her toes were trimmed and tinted.

Polish and Massage.

Removing the thin layer of damp cotton with which he had almost covered my feet, Mr. Tzi proceeded to polish the nails and massage the arches with a heavy scented but cool liquid. A secret preparation, he insisted, when I inquired. Probably boric acid with a drop of chypre, I decided.

"If you can get over being squeamish about hygiene," confided the other American when she got through, "you might be quite delighted with the idea of buying anklets, a few yards of chiffon and applying at the Follies for a rôle. Your 'pieds,' when they get through with them, do look different."

ISN'T IT ODD

by William Atherton DuPuy

ISN'T it odd that the deadly cobra of India should have but a single representative of its family in America and that in an obscure and well disguised little snake of Florida?

The little coral snake, sometimes called the Harlequin snake, is a cousin to the cobra. It injects the same sort of poison, a poison quite different from that of the pit vipers, the only other poisonous snakes in the United States

The Harelquin is a pretty little black, yellow and crimson snake, hard to tell from other harmless reptiles of the region. It can be identified by its fangs, weapons not possessed by the nonpoisonous snakes. It has one of these at the point of each upper jaw.

Like the rattlesnake, the Harlequin stabs its victims with fangs that thrust straight to the front. When they are driven home it squeezes a bulb that injects the poison as though it were being put in with a hypodermic needle.

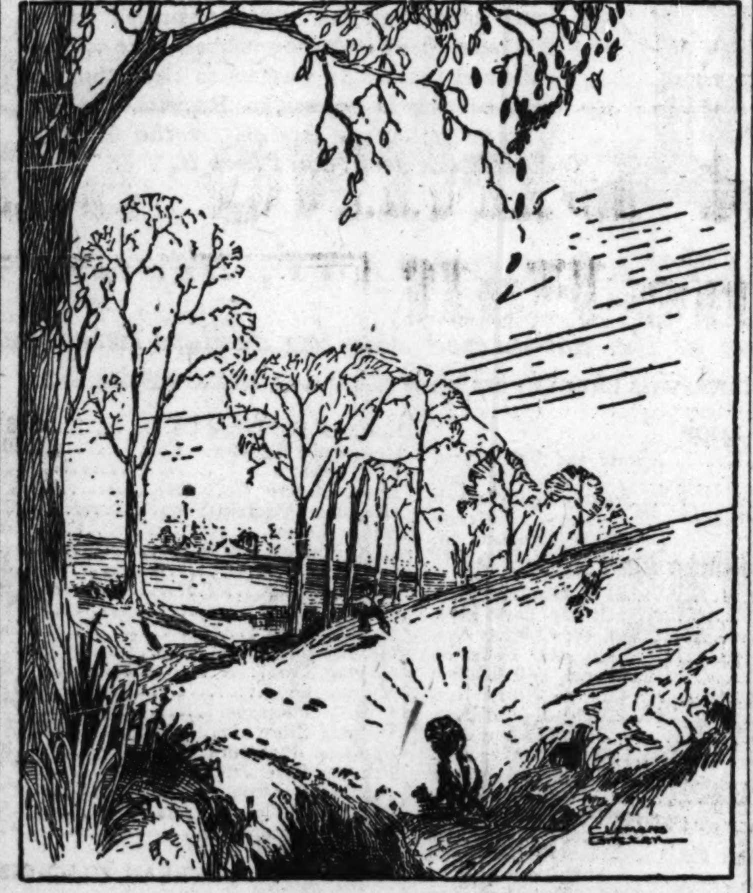
This poison is quite different from that of the rattlers, moccasins and copperheads, and other poisonous snakes of North America, all cousins, called pit vipers because of the depressions in the sides of their heads. The poison which the pit vipers inject is a blood poison. Their wound causes a great deal of inflamation at the point of the bite.

The bite of the Harlequin snake does not cause much inflamation at the wound. Its poison, like that of the colbra, is not a blood poison. It is a nerve poison. It affects the heart. It tends to paralyze the victim. It is more dangerous than the pit viper poison. In India every year 20,000 people die of cobra bite. There are few deaths from the Harlequin snake largely because there are few snakes. One rarely hears of a person bitten by one of them, but occasionally it happens along the Gulf coast.

The poison of the Harelquin snake is 90 per cent nerve poison and 10 per cent blood poison. That of the rattlesnake is 10 per cent nerve poison and 90 per cent blood poison.

Yet the treatment is the same in each case. The thing to avoid is whisky, which used to be regarded as snake medicine. Whisky puts an additional strain on the heart and increases the probability of death. The first thing to do is to suck the wound to get the poison out of it. There is no danger in doing this as the poison would not hurt one if he swallowed it. It is injection into the blood that is dangerous. Then the wound should be lacerated to make it bleed freely. This is that the poison may be washed out. Then crystals of permanganate of potash should be rubbed into the wound. These crystals are the proper antidote for any sort of snakebite and much easier to carry than whisky.

Hippity SKip Puzzle



Skunk Speeds Skip on Journey Home

"O SKIP, it's Sunday, and no school today. What shall we do?"

Skip cocked his head and squinted his eyes, as if to solve a deep problem. But he wasn't thinking of what Hippity was saying. In fact, he didn't even hear him. He was looking at the snug little nest his body had made in the straw during the night, and wishing he was tired enough to lie down again.

"I know, Skip. Let's go down to the pasture and get some walnuts and a lot of pretty yellow and red leaves and acorns."

Since Skip loved to dig for field mice and chase the lazy old cows, just to see them stretch their tails out behind them, he agreed.

After playing about all afternoon, and almost too tired to move, Hippity and Skip began to wonder how they would ever get home. It looked so far away over the hills. Skip, who was in the lead, began to bark and Hippity saw him looking at a nice big black and white cat caught in a trap.

He screamed, "Haven't I told you a dozen times to quit teasing cats? You might get your nose scratched."

At this Skip only barked louder. Then, in order to save the cat all the trouble of scratching Skip, Hippity picked up a stick and threw it at him, only to miss him and hit the poor cat.

With a sudden impulse Skip started out over the hill in a manner to cover the greatest distance in the shortest time, and Hippity—well, he had Skip beat a foot. I am sure he will know a skunk after this.

Find the squirrel, a lazy cow, and the hunter that set the trap. They are all in the drawing shown today.

Mary Lou is the possessor of a lovely white collie called Tam o' Shanter, which is quite the envy of her small cousins who live near by.

One winter Mary Lou had the mumps. Cousin Jackie kept begging his mother to call her up and finally mother consented, pleased at her son's seeming concern over his cousin's illness.

However, a moment later she received a surprise.

"Hello, Ma'y Lou, hello!" she heard him call. "Me thought me'd phone up an' see if Tam got mumps!" D. K.

Little sister was lost. Father and brother were out searching for her; mother and I were anxiously awaiting news; dinner was getting cold. Finally father and brother returned, unsuccessful. What to do?

Suddenly we heard a noise at the back door, and on rushing out, discovered the erstwhile lost child, smiling cheerfully and asking if dinner was ready.

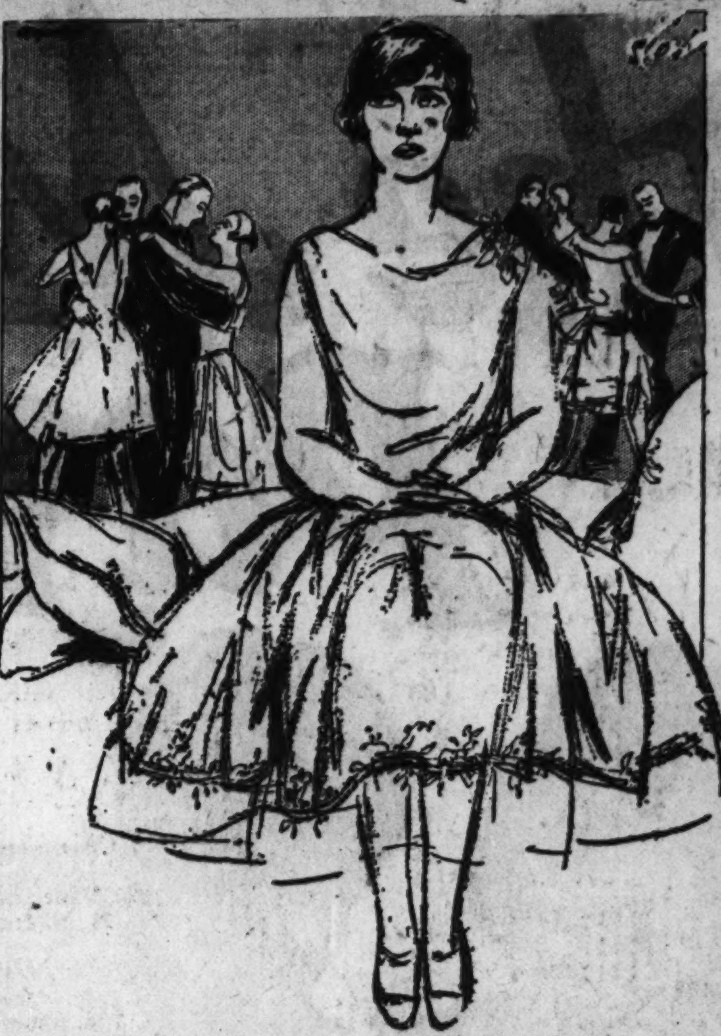
Her anxiety turned to anger, mother started to scold, the object of which looked for it and to her utter astonishment and said, "But, mother, I thought you knew I was somewhere." F. F.

TACKLING THE PROBLEM OF LONELINESS

by Doris Blake

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Armed with a Little Self-Confidence, a Sincere Interest in Others, and an Agreeable Manner, Any Girl Can Put Unhappiness to Rout.



"WHY is it some girls have all the beaus they want and I have none at all?"

"Lonely," "Discouraged," "Unhappy," "Blue Eyes," and "Brown Eyes" ask that question of me daily and probably ask it of themselves much more frequently.

Why is it, then, that some girls have no trouble attracting boys, and others are passed by? The Lonelies and the Discourageds assure me they dress as nicely as the other girls, that they love the gay times of youth as much as the girls who are enjoying them—but men do not find them attractive, for some reason or other.

What is that "reason or other"?

There is no question that some girls are so born with that indefinable charm for men that little effort is required of them to attract a swarm of suitors. Exactly what the component parts of this appeal consists of is difficult to analyze. No one has done it successfully yet. Some have laid it to sex appeal, others to beauty, again it has been ascribed to a merry disposition. A dozen different definitions have been attempted but none seems to cover the popularity of all the popular girls the lonely one watches with envy and bewilderment.

So, for the benefit of the Lonelies, let us tackle the problem from their point of view, rather than waste time on the girl born with a flair for men. She is well taken care of.

Why Try to Imitate Others?

Accept this type of girl as you accept a girl born with superlative beauty. If you cannot be like her, you just can't, and there is no use trying. That doesn't mean you have to sit at home and twiddle your thumbs. It does not mean for a moment that you cannot have men friends. You may not be able to attract as many men, nor as showy a type of man, but for every girl who is lonely there is a man that is lonely, too. He is the solution for the lonely girl problem, rather than the man one finds among the admiring circle surrounding the popular girl.

I think this is where a good many of you young women who write me that your companionships are necessarily confined to girls make your mistake. You consciously or unconsciously feel that unless you can be like that outstandingly popular girl in your crowd there is no hope for you. Also, unless you can attract the same type of young men as she there is not much use in trying for any.

In almost every girl's acquaintanceship, in her business environment, or at any social gathering, she will find, if she uses her eyes to see him and her wits to ferret him out, a boy that is shy, suffering the identical qualms of feeling himself superfluous and quite possibly, wondering why Bill can get so many girls and he cannot get any.

He is the boy for the girl who is not oversought after to pin her hopes on. Maybe you think that is not a promising outlook for you? But you never can tell about just what they will amount to a few years hence when some girl takes these shy ones in tow and buoys them up with courage and assurance.

Tackle a New Claim.

There's no use digging around a mine that is worked out. Tackle a claim no one else has heard about. In other words, draw out that lonely chap. You ought to know how to do it. You ought to know how to be friendly to him as you would others were to you. You know if some such chap came along and picked you out and showed a sincere interest in you how it would make you feel. In this business of making friends men are not different from girls. They want to be drawn out of themselves and they want some one to take notice of them. And, as I say, you never can tell, once you start drawing them out of their shells, just what revelations of character you may make.

Within my own circle of friends there is the most popular girl of my youth who married the beau of the moment living in a haphazard, hand-to-mouth way. The least sought after girl in the crowd has her two boys in college and her daughter in a school on the Hudson. She and her husband just got back from a trip around the world. He was one of those quiet, neglected young men, and lonely, as I see it now, until she took an interest in him. No one of the whole group has done so well as she because her husband today is not only a highly successful man but one of the greatest integrity—and, what is more to the point, the most devoted of husbands.

Loneliness is the most destructive thing in the world to youth. The foolish things, the desperate things it will drive young people to makes it an appalling vice to encourage in yourself.

No one need be lonely, really, if he can adjust the values of life and separate the gold from the glitter. There is a lot of selfishness about encouraging oneself to hide away and neither give friendship where it is needed nor ask it for oneself.

Your Own Valuation Counts.

We live in an age where we are taken pretty much at the value we set on ourselves. If we are willing to admit for a moment that no one cares about us, that we are unnecessary to any one's happiness, the bald fact must be faced that it is so.

A certain amount of assurance you must have in order to gain the attentions of men. You cannot feel you are unpopular and that you are going to remain unpopular always without having them sense the depression, too.

Instead of envying the "favorites" of your group look at the girls who have no more native charm than you, who dress no better than you, who dance no better, and tell yourself if they can get invitations so can you or you are going to know the reason why. Put a little spunk into this campaigning for men friends. I don't think there is anything wrong with the way you lonely ones dress, nor the way you look, but it is the spirit with which you meet men that counts against you. You have not faith in yourselves and only you can cultivate that.

Of course, if you have a disagreeable manner, a formidable one, a curt way of addressing people, these things will count against you, but they can be changed. Usually, however, the lonely ones are more afflicted with an inferiority complex than with any other ailment, and that simply gets you nowhere in this world and the sooner you work yourself up to a good, wholesome appreciation of your own value, the quicker you'll dispel those lonely hours in your life.

BRIGHT SAYINGS of HUSBANDS & WIVES

The snappy comeback of the better half when cornered has often been a source of wonder to husbands and wives! The husband or the wife has come across with a bright saying that will never be forgotten by the other half of the matrimonial sketch. What was that bright saying, Mr.? Mrs.? Send it to us, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. Address Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Aha!

Maybe sometime, somewhere, a husband taught his wife to drive the car without any exchange of harsh words. Such was not the case in this family. After things had been going anything but smoothly for some time the gallant husband turned to his wife in exasperation and said, "I wonder why the good Lord made you so dumb?"

She sweetly answered, "Probably so you wouldn't have to die an old bachelor." H. H.

More than That.

Hubby—Here is ten dollars, dear! Don't you think I deserve a little applause for giving it to you without being asked for it?

Wife—Applause! Why, darling, I think you deserve an encore! F. F.

Sharing the Honors.

My brother, with wife and baby, while spending a vacation at a Wisconsin summer resort, were one evening sitting on the porch with a group, the wife doing some sewing.

As it was getting late, the wife said, "I will go up and put my baby to bed."

"All right," says my brother, picking up his wife's sewing, "I will bring up our sewing." M. V.

Teeth Like Pearls

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My teeth, as countless women know, glisten like a row of pearls.

This tells you why. I use a new type tooth paste which combines all helps in one. The ablest authorities I consult told me to employ it.

The name is Quindent, meaning five in one. It is made by Quindent Laboratories. It contains an olive oil cleanser of the highest order. Two harmless polishers which beautify the teeth. Four antiseptics and iodine, to combat germ attacks on the gums. Magnesia and other antacids, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay. And breath deodorants.

I have used all these helps—always. But I had to use several tooth pastes then a mouth wash, then magnesia then deodorants. I spent a half-hour daily on my teeth.

Now Quindent tooth paste combines all in one. Four great organizations collaborated on it. It typifies the utmost in a modern dentifrice. The 14 ingredients do everything required. Now I use it exclusively, and use nothing else, by the ablest advice I can get.

The makers supply me samples—enough for 20 uses. They are for women who wish to use what I use—who follow my advice. Let me send you one. It will bring you new conceptions of a tooth paste. It will show you what modern authorities advise. This is the dentifrice of today.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and sitmulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

"A SPECIAL DELIVERY" FROM SANTA CLAUS

Young Folks and Big Folks:

Such a tragedy as I had today when I was loading all the Christmas toys and pretties into the huge grip I am bringing with me to Chicago.

You see—I was trying to keep Jack-in-his-Box, and was being VERY careful not to break a whole forest of candy canes. Almost before I knew it—

GUINEVERE, THE BABY GIRAFFE, CLIMBED OUT TO THE EDGE OF MY GRIP, AND—SNAP!—IT WENT SHUT ON HER ANKLE.

She cried terribly, but her saw-dust is all healed now, and she is feeling happy because I promised her

A RIDE ALL THE WAY TO CHICAGO IN MY POCKET!

You should see the kitchen cabinets and doll buggies fill one whole end of my grip. (The horns are making an awful racket in the other end).

I'M ALMOST READY TO TAKE THE DOG TEAM TO NOME, ALASKA—and from there I'm coming like lightning to Chicago.

See you soon,

Santa Claus

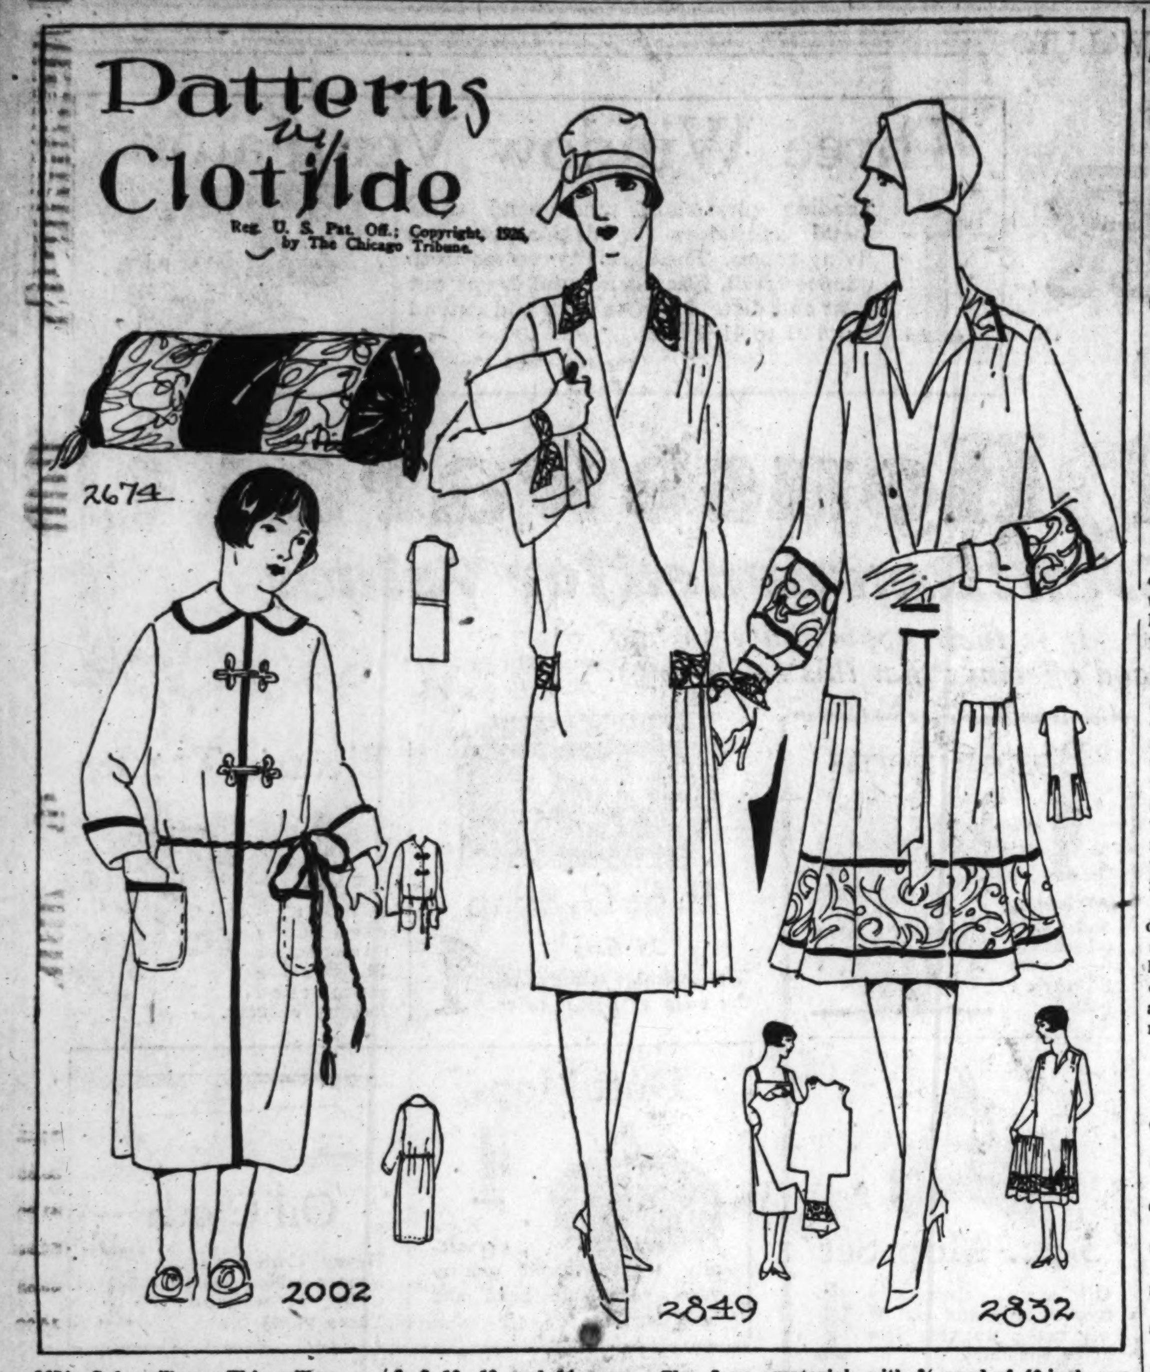
Patterns by Clotilde

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1926, by The Chicago Tribune.



2674—Sofa pillow. This pillow requires ¾ yard of 40 or 54-inch material, dark, and ⅝ yard of 32-inch light material, with ⅞ yard of 44-inch material for the lining.

2002—Child's bathrobe. Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅝ yards of 36-inch material.

2849 — Woman's and misses' coat frock. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 40-inch material, with ⅜ yard of 40-inch contrasting.

2832 — Woman's and misses' afternoon frock. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 40-inch material, with 3¼ yards of banding.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

CLARET colored crêpe satin. if becoming, will make up beautifully by pattern No. 2849. The design is smart and rather unusual in some points. The back is plain from top to bottom, and the fronts show a clever arrangement of plaits on the left side only, the surplice closing sloping down to the top of the plaits. On the shoulders in the front there are clusters of tiny tucks. These, of course, are pressed flat, and if one has a full figure the slight fullness will be good; if one is straight and slim, the fullness will be becoming.

There is a prettily shaped collar that doesn't come down as far as the opening of the dress, and this, with the cuffs and belt, will look well made of something contrasting. If crêpe satin is used, the reverse side of the material will look well.

Black crêpe satin, jungle green wool rep, moire in a becoming color, or one of the soft twills are among the choice of materials to be had. The plaited section is cut separately, the plaits laid and basted before attaching to the dress. Perforations of both the dress and the plaited section show just how the latter is to be set in. In doing this, start pinning in place across the top, then work from the top, down, on both sides. After this section is set in place on the right front, and the shoulder tucks finished, put the dress together. The collar is made and basted in place, and a narrow facing is stitched on from the bottom of the opening on one side, to the opposite lower edge of the other side. This must be invisibly hemmed or tacked down over the seam.

The sleeves are long and close fitting. They are cut in one piece and a dart up the outside of the lower part makes the fitting possible.

Pattern No. 2002 is an excellent one for a bathrobe—a necessary item of everybody's wardrobe, no matter how young one may be. Flannel, courduroy velvet, checked velveteen, cashmere or one of soft novelty woolens are all suitable materials. Be sure and make this sort of garment roomy, and long enough. The cutting and making will not be difficult, and the result should be satisfactory. Patch pockets, a collar and cuffs finish it attractively. If you choose, the collar may be omitted, and the neck finished with a binding or facing.

Pattern No. 2764 is for one of the oblong pillows. Satin and velvet, plain and printed materials, ribbon, metallic cloths, and so on. almost endlessly, might be suggested. If you are thinking of making some of your Christmas gifts, this pillow pattern should help. Such a gift would surely be appreciated by any woman.

Pattern No. 2832 is a most attractive design for an afternoon frock. It is suitable for any of the dress materials such as crêpe satin, chiffon velvet, crêpe Elizabeth or Canton crêpe. The middle of the back and front give the effect of panels, and at the sides of front and back there are gathered sections. These give the dress a graceful fullness at the bottom The dress is slashed down from the neck in the front, underfaced and rolled with the collar, forming revers.

A long scarf tie of the dress material gives the finishing touch. It is slipped through slashed openings placed about the waistline. The full length sleeves are gathered into narrow bands at the wrists.

Strange Weddings

Have you ever seen a wedding so outlandish that it upset all your ideas of the traditional ceremony? Some marriages are foreign and quaint in their adherence to ancient customs; others are ultra modern in their haphazard speed and unconventionality. The Tribune would like to know the story of the strangest wedding you've ever seen. We will pay $1 for every letter published. Address: Strange Weddings, Chicago Tribune

Undignified.

The childish conduct of the bridegroom made a wedding I attended last year one of the strangest to which I was ever invited. The couple were Italians and celebrated their matrimonial venture in the man's home with a host of relatives and friends.

A five piece orchestra was playing in one corner of the parlor and the bride often left the table in response to a dance request. But after each of several numbers she danced the bridegroom sprang up from his chair, ran to the new wife, and, firmly gripping her hand, pulled her back to the table amid the laughter and clapping of the gathering. Of course, the groom's action was not in accordance with custom, but it certainly was an exhibition of jealousy which all easily recognized. And the affair was not dignified, either. A. S. M.

More Like a Funeral.

The strangest wedding I ever saw was the marriage of a young girl in mourning for her deceased sister. She was dressed entirely in black, with a heavy black crêpe veil.

At various intervals she would break into tears. More like a funeral, don't you think? D. G.

Solving Sartorial Problems

by Persis Standish

Convention Tells Us What and What Not to Wear on Certain Occasions.

THE season of junketing and festivity has come and with it to my desk, like a flight of white birds, come also the "what-shall-I-wear" letters. "I am going such and such a place, and what shall I wear to be properly dressed?" "I am invited to the opera," "My daughter is invited to a Prom," etc.

They recall a great-aunt of my mother's who used to say, "If a woman's gown is black and her mind and her gloves are white she can go anywhere." It is not quite so simple these days. True, the corset and the "rats," the switch and the petticoat are now historic relics and some persons think white gloves are nearing the same fate. Not so. The fashion editors to the contrary notwithstanding, white gloves have still a definite place in a correctly gowned woman's life. It is fashionable to attend evening entertainments gloveless, but one must know what entertainments these are. They should never be a formal dinner, a wedding, or a formal reception, and never the opera. On those occasions white gloves are as necessary as stockings.

There are definite things Mrs. Grundy says one must and must not do sartorially. Perhaps it will help to have ten of each, and if they are obeyed one will have a hard time to commit any grievous sin against the good manners of dress.

Sartorial Don'ts for Women.

Don't wear fussy clothes.

Don't travel in a satin dress. Wool or dull crêpe or jersey are correct.

Don't wear lace in the daytime.

Don't wear too much jewelry.

Don't wear satin shoes with a street costume.

Don't wear thin silk hose with a sport costume.

Don't wear a hat with an evening gown.

Never allow lingerie to show through any costume.

Don't leave a trail of scent behind you.

Don't use makeup so that it is obvious.

Sartorial Do's for Women.

Dress simply at all times. Wear small hats on the street.

Always have your shoes in good condition, heels straight, well polished.

Have your wardrobe harmonize. Never wear more than two colors at the same time.

Be under dressed rather than over dressed.

Wear gloves on the street and be sure that they are clean and whole.

Wear your hair simply dressed, and wash it every two weeks at least

Let your first consideration be your person and your second your garments.

Do your best to look best before leaving your room, and then forget about it instead of adjusting hats or garments in public.

A well cut and well fitted old dress is better than a tawdry new one.

Have your clothes cleaned at regular intervals, whether they are spotted or not.

occasion.

Have your shoes in good condition always.

Wear gloves on the street.

Do not wear brown gloves with a dinner coat. Pale gray or white suede are correct.

Wear full dress when you are expected to do so and don't be uncomfortable about it.

Some people have the idea that

Don'ts for Men.

Don't wear loud colors.

Don't wear tricky clothes that will go out of style and are really never in.

Don't wear fancy shoes or shoes of odd shades of reddish tan.

Don't wear golf knickerbockers anywhere but on the golf course. They are not proper for travel.

Don't wear striped collars.

Don't wear loud shirts with stripes, dots, etc.

Do not wear expensive jewelry with sport clothes.

Don't pomade your hair.

Don't smell of a barber shop.

Don't smell like a tobacco pouch.

Sartorial Do's for Men.

Be manicured.

See that your tie, and your shirt, and your muffler all harmonize. Wear garters.

If you are wearing dinner clothes don't wear wool socks, no matter how thin and fine they may be. Silk ones are proper.

Wear your hat straight on your head—not sideways.

See that your clothes, and especially your trousers, are properly pressed

Wear a dinner coat after 6 o'clock unless especially told not to by your hostess, no matter how informal the clothes do not matter. They do matter, very much, indeed, Women have been known to make good marriages just on the strength of being properly and becomingly dressed. I know of a case where a pretty but dowdy girl lost her fiancé to a homely and smart woman who was twice her age. That's all quite well for women, you are probably thinking, but for men clothes do not matter so much. You are mistaken.

Jealousy

We're all acquainted with jealousy, the monster that smashes love affairs, wrecks homes, causes business quarrels, and generally plays havoc with us mortals. We'd like to know your most notable experience with a jealous person or persons. If you have encountered a situation where jealousy led to a tragic or ridiculous climax, tell us about it The Tribune will pay $1 for every story published. Address Jealous Editor, Chicago Tribune.

An Insincere Friend.

Some time ago I had a girl friend who was continually telling me of a young man who was anxious for my friendship. He had asked her for a proper introduction to me of which she spoke often. Time passed and I failed to meet the young man.

I learned later that she had fallen in love with him, and that because of her insincerity or jealousy he had been denied the introduction. L. G.

Catching the Trickster.

A jealous younger sister invariably answered the phone when boys called her popular older sister, telling them she wasn't at home. After a while they all were aware of her trick, so this time a boy called and received the usual answer.

He surprised her by saying, "Well, I'm sorry, because if she were there I have a boy friend and I was coming for you both to go to dinner with us." R. E. A.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP
PEPSIN

Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No Other Laxative Can Replace Dr. Caldwell's in the Confidence of Those Who Use It

THERE are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective in grown-ups, so compounded that elderly people who are constantly forced to take a laxative find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for thirty years, and over ten million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world! The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to do as claimed or your money will be refunded.

Millions of carefully conducted homes are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, billiousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, coal tar in candy form, salt waters and powders. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin empties the bowels more cleanly and without any danger.

Makes Hair Behave But Doesn't Show!

There's a way to keep your hair just-so, without any of that objectionable, "plastered-down" look. Just use a few drops of Danderine—comb it through hair, or use a Danderine-dampened towel—you'll be amazed at the way your hair then behaves, and its beautiful lustre! Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff. Dissolves every bit of it. Puts scalp in the pink of condition. Invigorates hair and hair-roots. Why use anything else?

Bring Out the Hidden Beauty

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or wrinkled complexion is one fair to look upon? Mercolized Wax will gradually and gently peel off the devitalized surface skin, revealing a new, fresh, white, beautiful skin underneath. The new complexion is a perfectly natural one, therefore in no way to be compared with a make-up. The wax leaves no trace but that of increased loveliness.

A New Skin—Your Own!—at small expense and effort. Simply apply Mercolized Wax at bedtime as you apply cold cream; wash it off in the morning. Fine, almost invisible skin particles are flecked off with the wax. No harm possible. No detention indoors. The lively young, healthy underskin is brought gradually to view—you have the exquisite complexion of robust girlhood—and every one will tell you.

You Look Years Younger—Assist Nature if she needs your help. Obtain an ounce of Mercolized Wax from your druggist or department store, use as directed—and you will bless the day that you made the acquaintance of this wonder working product.

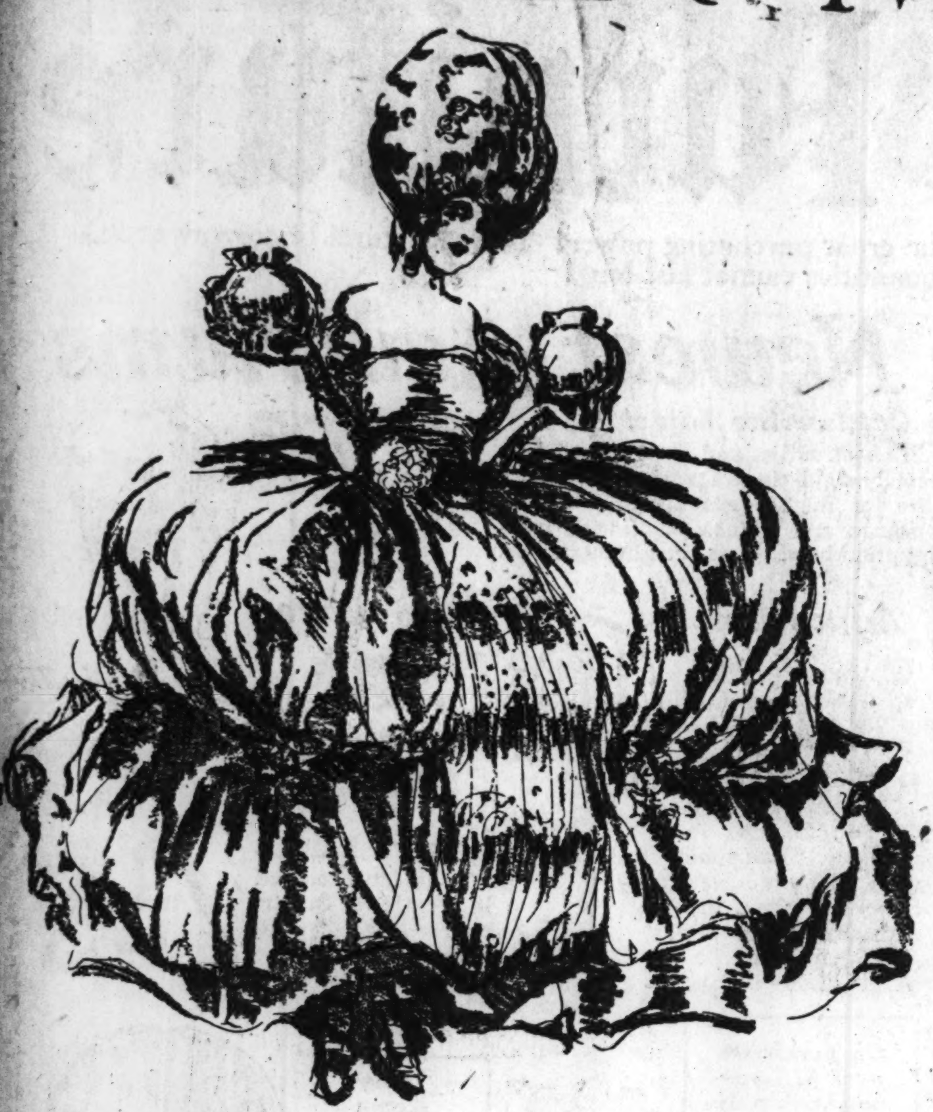
MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

by Sara Moore



A Study in Face Values.

Cleopatra is here, they say,
Starred in a new Belasco play.
Josephine spills her story cold—
One million copies oversold!
Movies have signed up Pompadour—
(Guess why they won't let her come ashore!)

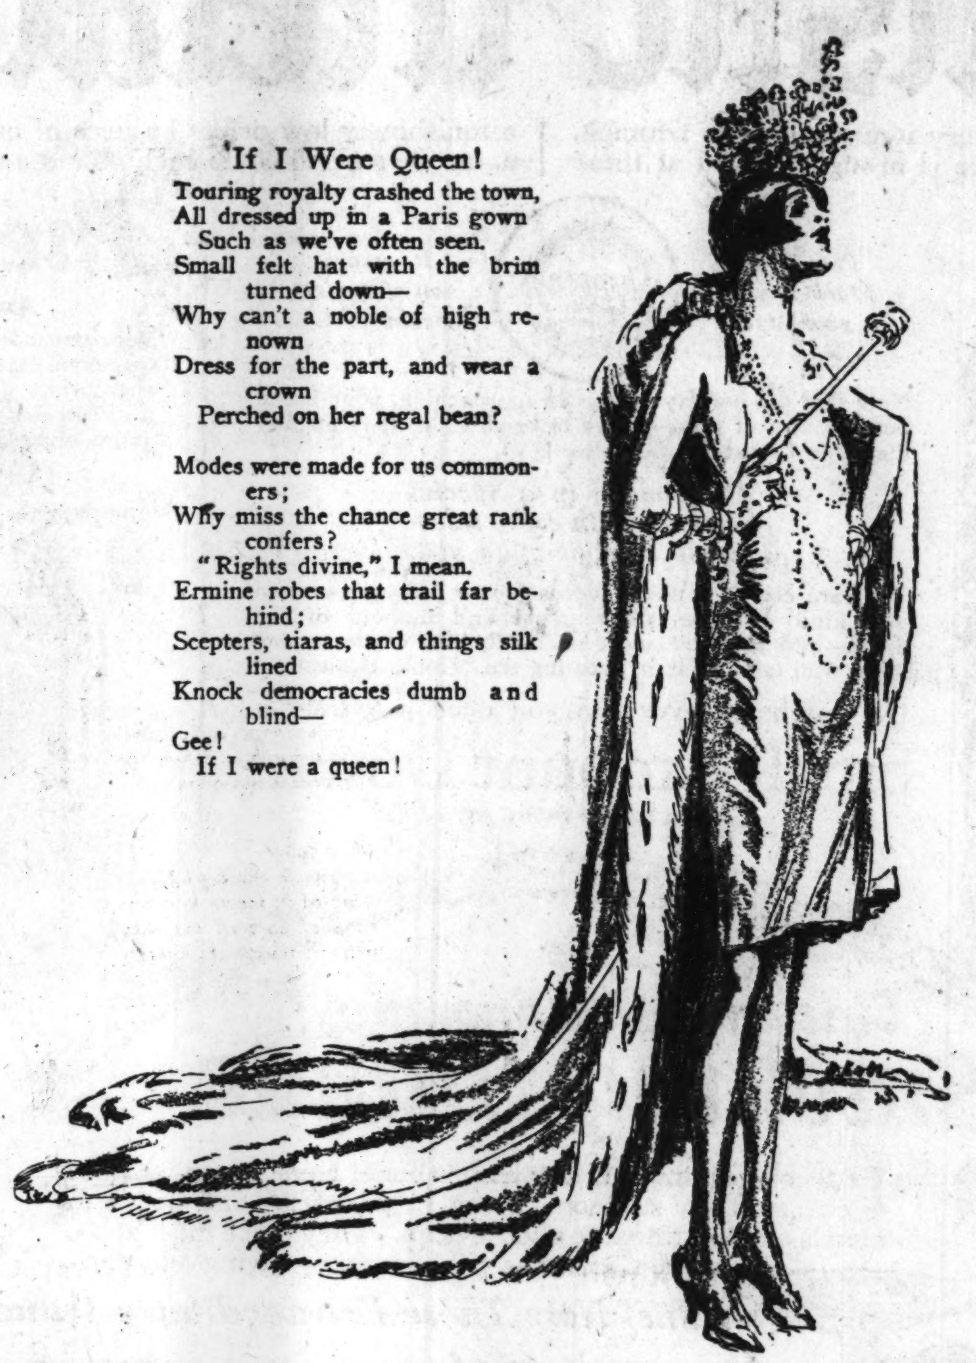
Helen is featured in two-a-day,
Sappho sings in a cabaret,
And Caesar's wife—a la Boheme—
Is pushing a greaseless facial creme.

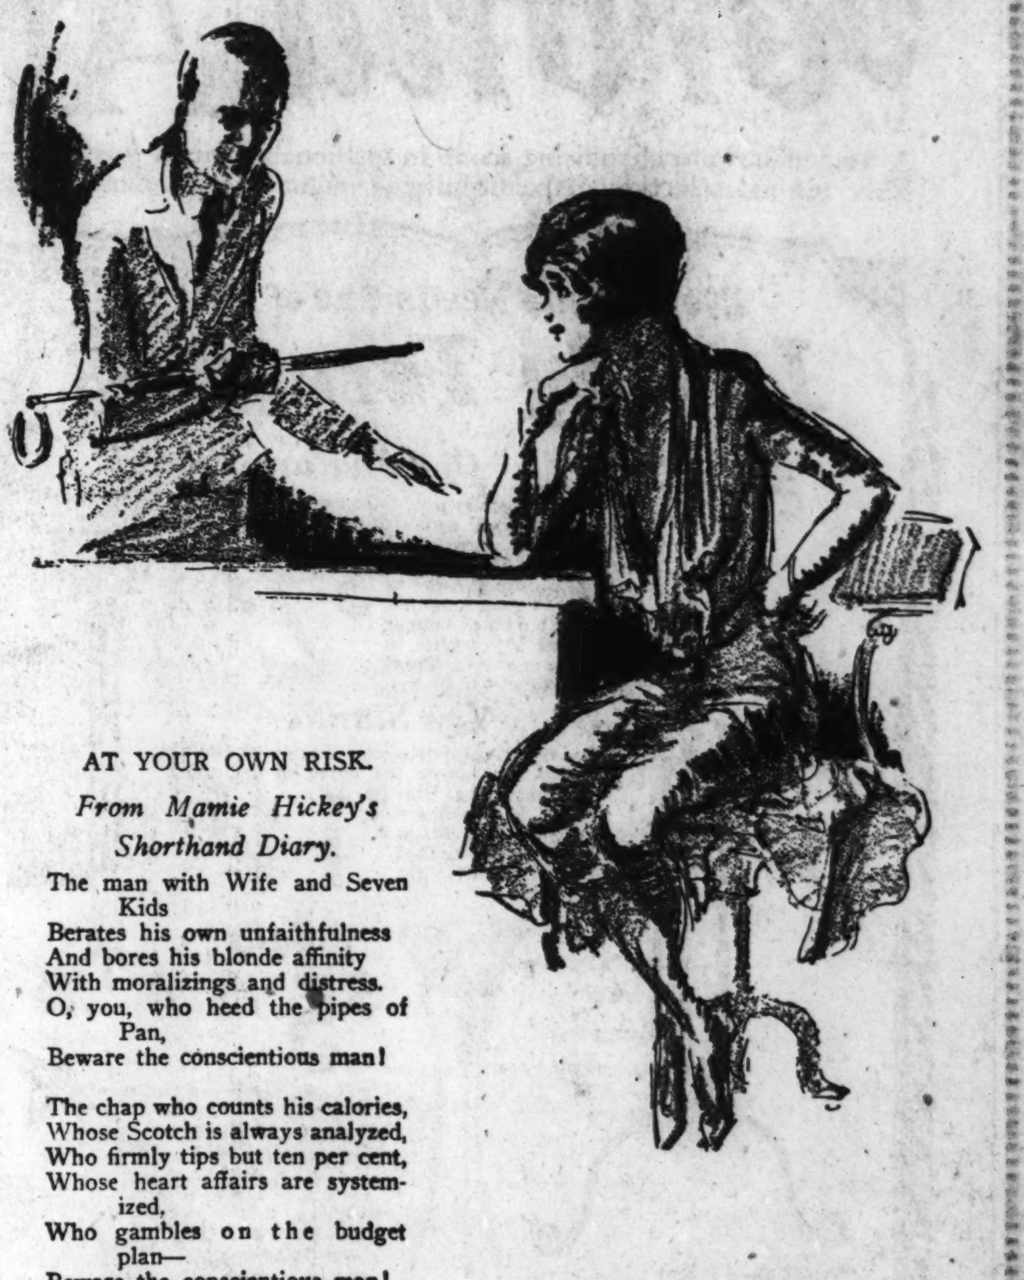
If great dames' pasts can be made to pay,
What would the great past's dames assay?

If I Were Queen!

Touring royalty crashed the town,
All dressed up in a Paris gown
Such as we've often seen.
Small felt hat with the brim turned down—
Why can't a noble of high renown
Dress for the part, and wear a crown
Perched on her regal bean?

Modes were made for us commoners;
Why miss the chance great rank confers?
"Rights divine," I mean.
Ermine robes that trail far behind;
Scepters, tiaras, and things silk lined
Knock democracies dumb and blind—
Gee!
If I were a queen!





AT YOUR OWN RISK.

From Mamie Hickey's Shorthand Diary.

The man with Wife and Seven Kids
Berates his own unfaithfulness
And bores his blonde affinity
With moralizings and distress.
O, you, who heed the pipes of Pan,
Beware the conscientious man!

The chap who counts his calories,
Whose Scotch is always analyzed,
Who firmly tips but ten per cent,
Whose heart affairs are systemized,
Who gambles on the budget plan—
Beware the conscientious man!

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

As Birds Go, the Turkey Offers the Most Special Facilities for Work with the Long Spoon and the Purposeful Knife, and Is Seemly in Made Dishes

To skip a discussion of the preparation of the turkey, as most cook books do, we may begin by saying that last, if not first, the most essential agent in the roasting of the turkey, after the heat, is the long handled spoon of generous bowl.

It is provoking that so many people in the world seem content with dry cooked meat, dry fish, dry food in general when with correct cooking these foods might all be juicy. The watery content of lean meats is likely to be somewhere near to 75 per cent, when they are raw. To dry them up is to cook out flavors that make them attractive, which flavors can be retained if these juices are. And here is where the long spoon—the basting spoon—comes in.

And now we must get into an argument, as the little boy of three says, as he tells his stories. What is true basting? It is dipping over a piece of meat while it is cooking, and frequently, some fat, which protects its surface as well as the interior from drying out and enriches the meat. Water dripping on a piece of meat, as in a covered roaster, mostly dissolves, rather than makes the meat more compact. In other words, it cooks it by the method anciently called "seething." Water not only dissolves, as designedly we have it do in making meat soups, but it dilutes, and so the sweetness that comes from basting meat with fat, while it cooks, is lost.

Expert cooks, knowing how delicious breast meats of fowls can be, if properly protected, and how the fowls have no fat of their own on this part, often use a thin slice of larding bacon—pure fat and not smoked like breakfast bacon—over the breast of the turkey, as over the breast of all small birds put to roast.

In expert cookery, too, a mixture of fats in cooking meats is recognized as a means of perfecting flavor, and as the turkey roasts and its own fat blends with that from the bacon blanket, we get a medium of explicit worth for basting it. But instead of using the bacon blanket we may pour some hot fat, exceedingly hot fat, over the turkey before it is put into the baking oven, or in a deep broiling oven. This will make it unnecessary to have either oven as hot as it would be if this were not done, and insures a more even and harmonious cooking.

The Chief Cooking Caution.

Every precaution must be taken when roasting any meat not to burn the fat in the pan. A little water in the pan, all the time, helps. Once burned it is ruined for the basting. Since butter burns at a lower temperature than other fats the inexperienced cook should not use it, but may "froth" a fowl with it when it is cooked, to finish the seasoning. It is about the same thing as buttering a loaf of bread when it comes from the oven or seasoning a vegetable with melted butter and is more sensible than that.

The Stuffing.

One of the eminent American cooks advises against sausage stuffing or anything of the sort, because it flavors the meat. Some of us object to many sorts of stuffings because they are nothing to eat. In fact, to make a fine stuffing requires a great deal of skill and judgment, but any one who can make a fine meat loaf can use the mixture, mashed as fine as possible, for a stuffing. Bread stuffings, if too wet, are not good, and if dry they draw to themselves too much of the juice of the fowl. The whole business is so nice a one that it is safest to omit the stuffing, which has been so often used as a way of making the roast go farther.

Time for Roasting a Turkey.

The time for roasting any meat cannot be given arbitrarily because there are a number of things that must be taken into consideration, the first of which is the amount of heat you apply. It will take less time to cook the turkey, also, if it is not stuffed. If you open the oven for ten minute bastings this fact has to be taken into consideration. If you are expeditious the temperature of the oven may not be greatly changed, but if you are slow it may be so lessened as to make it necessary to keep the meat in the oven for a much longer time than that generally prescribed. Judgment is the most important item in the work. I do not like to put the meat into an extremely hot oven at the start as some people do, much preferring to pour hot fat over it and to do the browning more gradually, and at the last. The long and regular work may be done with the oven at 350 degrees, or the thermometer may be allowed to go a bit above that when good basting is lowering the temperature every ten or fifteen minutes.

When Carving Was Carving.

There can be no real carving of a turkey if it is not correctly trussed and cooked, but it is not hard to find books which give pictures of correctly trussed fowl and there are endless accounts of how to carve—some quite bad and some excellent. Mrs. Lincoln in her little book "Carving and Serving" goes into detail in reference to carving a turkey, but we need to hark back to the time when ladies and gentlemen took lessons in carving, sometimes having a model of the bird to to be carved in wood, and learning all the lines before trying to touch the real meat, so high was the ideal of that time in reference to the cutting up of meat.

The most we try to do in general, today, is to get thin slices off the breast and perhaps try to get the same from the thigh, but cannot when the cooking has been done in a covered roaster, for the meat will be more like boiled meat than roasted, the binding tissues dissolved and the long fibers prominent. The oyster pieces, the perquisites of the epicure, are often forgotten, as they hide in the side pieces.

As in carving any meat, so in carving turkey one must not cut in the wrong relation to the grain, for ragged pieces and wasteful will result. An experienced carver will serve twice as many persons and serve them more satisfactorily than can the inexperienced.

Mrs. Henderson's Roast Turkey.

There are reasons for putting a good deal of faith in the book "Practical Cooking and Serving" [1888], by Mrs. Mary F. Henderson, when it comes to some of the best American practices of the past. She does not emphasize, as some of the great cooks do, the roasting of the bird by an oven, nor the modern great variation in temperature, but she does advise a length of time that is greater than most cooks prescribe. Perhaps she was reckoning that the frequent basting made this imperative. She says "The secret in having a good roast turkey is to baste it often, and to cook it long enough. A small turkey of seven or eight pounds [the best selection, if fat] should be roasted or baked three hours at least. A very large turkey should not be cooked a minute less than four hours; an extra hour is preferable to a minute less. If properly basted, it will not become dry.

"With much experience in hotel life, where turkeys are ruined by the wholesale, I have never seen a piece of turkey that was fit to eat. Besides being tasteless, they are almost invariably undercooked.

"First, then, after the turkey is dressed, season it well, sprinkling pepper and salt on the inside; stuff it, and tie it well in shape; either lard the top or lay slices of bacon over it; wet the skin, and sprinkle it well with pepper, salt and flour. It is well to allow a turkey to remain some time stuffed before cooking.

"Pour a little boiling water into the bottom of the dripping pan. If it is to be roasted, do not put it too near the coals at first, until it gets well heated through; then gradually draw it nearer. The excellence of the turkey depends much upon the frequency of basting it; occasionally baste it with a little butter, oftener with its own drippings. Just before taking it from the fire or out of the oven, put on more melted butter, and sprinkle over more flour. This will make the skin more crisp and brown."

The putting of some water in the pan protects the fat and keeps it from burning, and if it should all cook out it may be necessary to add more.

The HOME HARMONIOUS

Cozy and convenient is the fireside corner of this living room.

Draperies, Once a Matter of Necessity, Are Now Color Factors in Schemes of Decoration

More than 2,500 architects and draftsmen, representing every state in the Union, have entered The Tribune's Small Homes competition. This project has been launched to interest the best of architects in the beautifying of small homes. Rich prizes will be awarded for the best designs, and the prize efforts will be available for Tribune readers who wish to incorporate the best architectural ideas in homes of modest price. The competition will close on Dec. 1. Prize winners will be announced on Jan. 2.

Centuries ago, before glass was used in windows, it was necessary that heavy draperies, tapestries, etc., be hung so that they might be drawn across the openings to shut out cold, rain and wind. These were mostly in dark colors, as nothing in any way fragile could be used. Draperies were a matter of necessity rather than a factor of decorative charm. Quite different is the modern method of curtaining. We strive for unusual effects and decorative schemes and, with our present day manufacturing improvements, all sorts of interesting combinations may be achieved. Curtains and draperies are now of vital importance in the furnishing and decoration of every home, many rooms taking their complete color scheme from that shown in the window treatment.

In a lovely home which has just been done by an eastern decorator, curtains and draperies are particularly fascinating. The living room has a group of recessed windows at each end, one of which is shown in today's illustration. From a brass rod extending across the full width of the recess, draperies are hung, by means of brass rings, at each extremity. They are made of a rough weave material, reproducing the effect of fabrics of India, woven from raw silk, or the silk of uncultivated cocoons. They are copper color, with an uneven texture shot with silk of golden color, creating an iridescence. The jaunty sash curtains, which may be drawn together at night for the sake of privacy, are of thin printed silk, showing jade green and copper rings on a gold colored ground.

Boxed cushions on the window seats are of the same copper colored material that makes the draperies. Decidedly convenient are drawers and cupboards built in beneath the seats, and little niches for books, which have been knocked in at each side.

Walls in this room are painted a soft gold color, and the woodwork is jade green. Jade green and gold brocatelle upholsters the wing chair by the fireplace. An interesting feature of the room is a built-in cupboard for wood.

At one side of the fireplace, placed at right angles, is a luxurious davenport, upholstered in black mohair, piped with copper. Accessory cushions are of jade green silk. Behind the davenport is a narrow table on which a pair of jade green pottery lamps, with gold and black shades, flank a low black bowl filled with flowers.

A commodious desk, lacquered jade green and decorated with a design in gold and black, is beautifully proportioned to one wall space. It is accompanied by a side chair lacquered to match, with the seat upholstered in gold and black.

Against another wall space is a carved cabinet which houses a combination radio-phonograph. A small chair stands at each side. In the corner opposite the fireplace is a comfortable little love seat, upholstered in a heavy striped silk, in jade green, old gold, copper and black. An end table beside it holds brass smoking accessories.

Chintz, flowered in a large pattern in subdued tones on a French gray ground, makes the dining room draperies. Repeating the faint touches of yellow in the pattern are clear, buttercup yellow, China silk glass curtains. The walls are paneled and painted French gray, with panelings picked out in fine lines of moss green and yellow. Chair seats are upholstered in moss green velvet. The furniture is walnut.

French doors lead from the dining room into a little square breakfast room. Here two of the walls are made up almost entirely of windows. Draperies for these are of blocked linen, showing clusters of large, bright tulips, in shades of amber, burnt orange and mauve, with blue-green leaves, on an ecru ground. Glass curtains are of burnt orange casement gauze. The walls are painted ecru and the woodwork is a soft, blue green. Furniture is painted to match the woodwork, and there are boxed cushions for the quaint wooden chairs made of burnt orange sateen, piped with blue green. The floor is covered with linoleum, in a pattern of large, black and ecru squares.

Upstairs in the main bedroom glass curtains of a lustrous ivory gauze are hung under draperies of mauve silk, with fine, widely spaced ivory stripes. Woodwork is painted ivory and the walls are done in a turquoise green paper, marked off into large diamond shapes by means of mauve and gold lines. In the center of each diamond is a delicately decorative flower in shades of rose and ivory. The furniture is painted turquoise green, high lighted with gold. On the twin beds are covers of mauve silk, finished with turquoise green ruchings. A little night stand between the beds holds a lamp with a white parchment shade decorated with flowers copied from the wall paper and banded in mauve and green.

Near the fireplace is a luxurious chaise longue, upholstered in mauve damask. Tiny accessory cushions are of taffeta in rose, mauve, green, blue and old gold. The floor is carpeted in mauve chenille. An adjoining bathroom is tiled in turquoise green and fitted with a mauve shower curtain and mat.

A young girl's room has window draperies of glazed chintz, showing a quaint design in shades of old blue and cream on a dull rose ground. These are finished with short, box plaited ruffles of plain, old blue glazed chintz. Glass curtains are of cream colored silk marquisette. The walls are cream color, and the woodwork old blue. All of the furniture is maple.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold. Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for only 75 cents, all ready for use.

It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

No Diet for Chicago Beauty

Miss Lillian Rau

CHICAGO, ILL.—To meet and talk with Lillian Rau in her charming home at 8117 Exchange Ave., no one would guess that a year ago she was a nervous wreck, and could eat nothing—not even apples. Everything she ate fermented and formed gas in her stomach. Today, thanks to Adlerika, she looks wonderful and no longer has to diet but can eat anything.

Intestinal Stasis

RECENT medical discoveries show that such cases as Miss Rau's—in fact, nearly all cases of stomach and bowel trouble—are due to just one cause, Intestinal Stasis. World-famous specialists tell us that this insidious disease, which is caused by improper food and lack of correct exercise, afflicts three people out of every four.

Intestinal Stasis means the too slow movement of waste food matter through the intestines. By staying too long in the body, this matter ferments, forms gas and poisons, and is the cause of sour stomach, gas bloating and indigestion. Even if the bowels move daily, enough old matter may be left to form gas, hinder digestion and poison the system. Ordinary laxatives or soda or magnesia cannot give more than temporary relief from Intestinal Stasis or Gas. Only continued, REAL intestinal cleansing can help permanently.

Dr. Carl Weschcke, in his private practice, first used the bowel cleanser and intestinal prophylactic now known as Adlerika. It is a compound of the best saline intestinal evacuant with vegetable buckthorn and cascara, together with glycerine and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. Unlike other medicines, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel.

Stomach Gas

THE FIRST effect of Adlerika is to relieve gas on the stomach and gas bloating. Often ONE spoonful brings out a surprising amount of old poisonous matter which you never guessed was in your system, and which may have been the hidden cause of gas, indigestion, nervousness, sleeplessness and other trouble. Even if your bowels move daily, Adlerika frequently brings out an astonishing amount of additional matter which might otherwise poison your system.

Many doctors recognize Adlerika as the one dependable remedy for Intestinal Stasis and Gas, or whenever REAL bowel cleansing is necessary. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you.

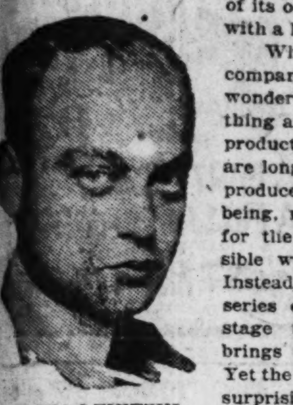
Opera Reaches High Point of Attainment

By Edward Moore.

THE first part of the operatic season is, generally speaking, an era of good feeling, harmony being only disrupted by those who borrow hotel stationery whereon to write harsh language to critics. The producing organization, in other words, the Civic Opera company, having labored intensively for a period of weeks, presents the first of its offerings at high tension, and with a high average of good results.



MISCHA LEVITZKI.
Soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week.

When you look at what the company is doing, you sometimes wonder how it is able to do anything at all. High speed, quantity production is the rule. Repertoires are long and intricate, a work once produced is laid aside for the time being, never repeated immediately for the purpose of doctoring possible weak spots in performance. Instead, another work, a whole series of other works, takes the stage until the wheel of time brings the first to the fore again. Yet the company does them all, and surprisingly well. They are in a high degree expert over the task.

The music department is quite firmly of the opinion that a long step forward in production has been made this year, perhaps the longest step since the Civic Opera company was organized. It is the department of stage direction, in the hands of Charles Moor. Those hands are apparently efficient ones, and the only efficient ones this company has possessed, except in the single case of "Der Rosenkavalier," which Mr. Moor paused long enough to stage last season. Otherwise, opera performances have been competent enough musically, but dramatically have more or less been allowed to happen, except when some star like Miss Garden came to rehearsals with a few ideas about what should take place in her own performances.

Fine Performance of "The Jewels of the Madonna."

For an example of new conditions, one has but to look at "The Jewels of the Madonna" last Tuesday night. Seldom does one see a performance that meant so much and used to mean so little. It is tricky beyond all telling. Only the second act is left to the principals for their own personal dealings. The first and third are almost continuously matters of major principals, minor principles, choristers, processionals, dancers, with every chance in the world of creating confusion and usually taking advantage of the opportunities. In the last performance, however, everything was organized, each person on the stage had something to do bearing on the general idea of the opera, and each person did it.

With a background of incidents so intelligently detailed, the foreground of the major principals stood out in sharper relief than ever before. That kind of a performance tends to the belief that "The Jewels of the Madonna" might easily again become as popular as it was fifteen years ago, when Cleofonte Campanini used to conduct it and Wolf-Ferrari came to Chicago for the first hearing of his own work.

Speaking of "The Jewels of the Madonna," Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini, who have important shares in its proceedings, are likewise the best evidence of continuing existence of the opera company. They have already signed contracts for three more years of appearances, to take effect at the close of their present contractual obligations.

The week's schedule calls for a performance of "Aida" Tuesday night with royalty in the audience, a first performance of Donizetti's "The Daughter of the Regiment," and another of Giordano's "La Cena delle Beffe" later in the week.

Queen Marie to Be Guest of Honor.

Queen Marie of Roumania will be the guest of honor on Tuesday. The reception committee, of which Arthur Meeker is chairman, has all arrangements in hand. The demand for seats is so great that a crush equaling that at the premiere last Monday is expected. The advance subscription sale for Monday evenings was so large that few seats remained available for that occasion when the box office was opened, and first night "fans" and curiosity seekers swarmed for the precious pasteboards granting admission to the musical festivities. In consequence, in some instances impecunious and commercial minded Monday subscribers disposed of their first night tickets for a consideration that gives them the remaining eleven Monday performances for a song.

The same conditions, somewhat intensified, now confront the fortunate Tuesday night subscribers—and the choicer seats are almost as nearly sold out as for Mondays. The situation is intensified to their advantage through the fact that the committee having the distinguished guest of the occasion in tow absorbed all available boxes, main floor seats, and a large part of the balcony, with the result that large contingents of Chicago's elect will again take to the galleries with thankfulness for finding accommodations there.

With these facts in mind the tentative arrangements of the committee contemplate abandonment of the tradition that the center of the "diamond horseshoe" is the ideal spot for the entertainment of honored guests, for comparatively few seats command a view of that spot.

So instead it is planned to place the royal party in boxes at the right hand of the auditorium in full view of practically the entire audience. As yet preliminary arrangements have not been given final confirmation, but these conditions have been accepted as facts, and Tuesday subscribers, in the enjoyment of choice locations, are besieged with petitions to name their own price for the use of their seats on this occasion. While as yet opera tickets are not quoted on any exchange, a "curb" market is rapidly developing.

The queen's performance will be sung by Rosa Raisa, Cyrena Van Gordon, Charles Marshall, Cesare Formichi, Alexander Kipnis, and Lodovico Oliviero. Giorgio Polacco will conduct.

An Interesting Event.

Thursday evening the first performance of "The Daughter of the Regiment," heard in Chicago in at least two generations and the first performance ever given by Chicago's resident company, will hold the boards. The cast will include Toti Dal Monte, Hackett, Cotreuil. Frank St. Leger will conduct.

Friday brings one of the outstanding events of the year, when Giordano's "La Cena delle Beffe" will have its Chicago premiere. This work is better known to Americans in its dramatic form through the appearances of John and Lionel Barrymore in it under the name of "The Jest." It will be sung by Muzio, Loring, Jackson, Pavloska, Cortis, Montesanto, and Lazzari. Polacco will conduct. "La Cena delle Beffe" provides rare opportunity for the scenic artist, and advance information is to the effect that Julian Dove has designed some impressive settings.

Beethoven Program.

Once again the time approaches for a Beethoven concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, an organization most eminently fitted by endowment and accomplishment for such an observance. This time the overture will be "Die Geschöpfe des Prometheus," the sympony will be the third of the list, otherwise known as the "Eroica," and the second half of the program will be turned over to the third, or C-minor piano concerto. Here the soloist will be Mischa Levitzki, who has not appeared with the orchestra since the season of 1922-'23.

This music will be played on Friday afternoon and Saturday night, two items in the week's activities of the orchestra which elsewhere include a trip to Milwaukee for afternoon and evening concerts tomorrow, a popular concert on Wednesday night and a children's concert on Thursday afternoon. The "pop" schedule calls for concerts on the second, fourth, and occasionally the fifth Thursday nights of the month,

SIX YEARS ago, Fans, this same ballot appeared in THE TRIBUNE. The contest we ran at that time to decide who were the most popular movie stars, male and female, was won by Wallace Reid (heaven rest him!) and Norma Talmadge.

MUCH WATER has run under the bridge since then. Norma Talmadge, still high in favor, has numerous rivals, any one of whom is likely to wrest the crown from her if the question is put to a vote. In the old contest Mary Pickford was chief challenger. Now, with the fields full of new daisies, she will have Norma Shearer, Dolores Costello, Corinne Griffith, Colleen Moore, Leatrice Joy—not to speak of Blanche Sweet, Gloria Swanson, Constance Talmadge, Irene Rich, Mae Busch, and Florence Vidor to reckon with.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO, who would undoubtedly win the king's crown, is dead. What living actor, then, in your opinion, should be King of the Movies?

GOOD MORNING!

And AREN'T you excited about our new contest? It's certainly going to be an interesting one to follow, for there are so many favorites among the screen players of 1926 that to discover who are THE two most popular ones will be to learn something worth while. However, the contest has been talked about quite enough for one Sunday, so let's start gossiping about little Miss Prevost's latest picture.

It has been adapted from a stage play by Rudolf Lothar and Hans Bachwitz, that was known as "The Critical Year." The action takes place in Vienna, where you discover Miss Prevost as Mrs. Rittenhaus, bride of a physician with an enormous practice among the fair ones of that community. They are willing to assume that one so handsome and with such soothing manners is a fine doctor, and there is rarely an hour of the day when the reception room of Dr. Rittenhaus is not filled with gorgeously gowned creatures; its air heavy

Life Under Bureaucracy

By H. L. Mencken.

AS the bureaucracy under which we all sweat and suffer gradually swells and proliferates in the republic, life will become intolerable to every man save the one who has what is called influence. It is, in fact, almost so already. The obscure and friendless man can exist unmolested only by being so obscure and friendless that the bureaucracy is quite unaware of him. The moment he emerges from complete anonymity its agents have at him with the complex and insane laws and regulations that now crowd all the statute books, and unless he can find some more powerful person to aid him, either for cash in hand or in return for his vote, he may as well surrender himself at once to ruin and infamy. For if the jobholders don't fetch him with one law they will fetch him with another. Their one apparent purpose in life is to fetch him.

Suppose, for example, he is one of the millions of Americans of foreign birth, duly naturalized but still unaccepted socially as a full fledged citizen. He saves his money and decides after a while to make a visit to his birthplace to show off his American watch and contemplate the tombs of his ancestors. He must have, obviously, a passport, first to get out of the United States and then to get back. Well, procuring this passport is now so onerous and complicated a matter that to such a man, with no friendly 100 per cent American to help him, it has become practically impossible. It takes him weeks, and in the end the chances are at least 10 to 1 that he will fail.

The blame lies not upon the laws but upon the bureaucracy. The laws simply say that no man who is not actually a citizen shall have the passport. But the bureaucracy goes much further: it apparently assumes that no man at all is a citizen. The moment an applicant is heard of he is put down as a fraud, and thereafter the burden of proving that he is not is upon him. As a practical matter, it is often impossible for him to furnish the proof. Long before the bureaucracy is satisfied the man is worn out and in despair. Unless he can find some person of influence to help him he may as well give up before he begins.

It is the invariable habit of bureaucracies, at all times and everywhere, to assume in this way that every citizen is a criminal. Their one apparent purpose, pursued with a relentless and furious diligence, is to convert the assumption into a fact. They hunt endlessly for proofs, and, when proofs are lacking, for mere suspicions. The moment they become aware of a definite citizen, John Doe, seeking what is his right under the law, they begin searching feverishly for an excuse for withholding it from him. A competent bureaucrat is simply one who is skilled at such withholding. A mutt is one who gives Mr. Doe what he is entitled to, without resistance and at once.

I have spoken of the poor hyphenate, the special mark and victim of our American bureaucracy. But the 100 per cent Nordic, in his different way, suffers almost as cruelly. Consider, for example, his typical adventures with the bureaucrats of the income tax office. To begin with, they give him a blank to fill out that not one man in a hundred, assuming that he has not had long training as an expert accountant, can understand. Its very complexity is a triumph of bureaucracy. It is made unintelligible deliberately, and by bureaucrats of the highest professional genius, expressly hired for the business. No ordinary man, filling it out, can conceivably avoid errors.

Well, the minute it is deposited in the bureaucratic machine the taxpayer is assumed officially to be a criminal. His slightest slip is proof that he has tried to swindle the government. And how do the bureaucrats deal with him? By framing a definite accusation against him and giving him his day in court, as provided by Articles V. and VI. of the bill of rights? Not at all. That would not be bureaucratic. They proceed by levying an additional (and often grossly excessive) tax upon him and demanding that he pay it forthwith. He is now easy meat. The charge against him is no longer that he has deliberately falsified his return, which would be difficult to prove, but simply that he has failed to pay a tax lawfully levied, which is easy to prove. So he pays up, and thereafter, for five or six years, he struggles to get his money back.

Not infrequently, it must be said, the bureaucrats finally give it to him. But only after a desperate resistance, made brilliant by innumerable demands for affidavits and endless conferences and hearings. All this hocus-pocus is of the very essence of the bureaucratic art and mystery. The bureaucrat, whatever his deficiencies otherwise, at least grasps clearly the central fact about government: he knows that it is the eternal enemy of the citizen. In his own eye he is an attorney employed to represent it in combats with citizens, and as a conscientious man he naturally tries to do the best he can for his client—legally, if possible, but, if not, then in any way feasible. His professional standing runs with his success. If he permits too many citizens to prevail against him, and so recover and preserve their rights, he loses caste, just as a surgeon loses caste when too many patients die upon the table, and his career is imperilled. The ideal bureaucrat is the one who beats the citizen every time.

Obviously, the realization of this ideal would make life almost impossible. We move steadily toward it, but so far we have not actually reached it. Many citizens, getting into the clutches of the bureaucracy, manage to escape. They achieve the business, commonly, by mustering up what is called influence. That is, they either demonstrate to the bureaucrats that they are themselves of such power and importance that oppressing them unduly would be dangerous or they get the help of some other person of that sort. The fact explains the continued prosperity of political machines, despite the long effort to put them down. They offer even the humblest citizen an avenue of escape from the bureaucracy. In return for his vote they protect him. When the bureaucrats discover him and proceed to practice their art upon him the machine brings pressure to bear upon their political superiors and so hauls them off.

This hauling off is now the principal occupation of congressmen, and is fast becoming a crushing burden to them. In the early days of the republic they spent their time at Washington debating the great problems of government, often eloquently and sometimes with what, on such levels of the human mind, passed for sense. But today, with the federal laws enormously multiplied and the federal bureaucracy full of professional skill and enterprise, they are forced to devote practically all their energies to protecting their constituents. If a congressman failed in that duty he would return home to find half of his constituents in jail and the rest fugitives from justice. So he has had to resign statecraft to a few chosen leaders, mainly from remote and sparsely settled states. While they carry on the business of congress he busies himself in the departments and bureaus, rescuing his constituents from the clutches of the bureaucracy.

Thus democracy turns upon and devours itself. Launched upon the world as a scheme for putting down privilege, it ends by making privilege absolutely essential to a safe and peaceful existence. The citizen who is too obscure to make a congressman or some other such professional dealer in privilege want to help him, and too weak to help himself—this citizen, under our bureaucratic jurisprudence, now has no rights at all. He is, indeed, no longer a citizen; he is a subject, and his lord is the bureaucrat. He must do whatever he is ordered to do or face dire and devastating penalties. All of his natural daily acts become converted into crimes. It is even a crime today, in certain situations, for him to criticize his oppressors.

If, writhing under their oppressions, he appeals to their official superiors, he usually only makes his case worse, for one bureaucrat always supports all other bureaucrats. Of late, in fact, even the courts refuse to give him relief. A few judges, remembering the bill of rights, continue to dispense justice, but the majority have become simply bureaucrats, and are thus unable to imagine any fault in their colleagues. The only man who escapes is the man with a pull. The aim of every enlightened American is to get all the pull he can. He may need it at any moment.

FAY BAINTER KEEPS THIS PLAY MOVING

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It was a busy Monday in the New York theaters, but nothing much happened. Gertrude Lawrence, taken over from the "Charlot Revue" to become the English star in an American musical piece called "Oh, Kay," is credited with a hit. My scouts tell me that she was better than her material, which is not uncommon in the theater. She plays a lovely lady bootlegger down the Jersey coast and sings many songs about one thing and another.

FAY BAINTER, whom Chicago saw and New York is now seeing in "First Love."
[Mishkin Photo.]

Into the Booth, which lost "White Wings" after an unprofitable three weeks, Fay Bainter came with a piece called "First Love," adapted from the French by Zoë Akins. Just why Miss Akins, who has real talent as a designer of original dramas, should sell herself down playwrights' row to do an adaptation of a labored and artificial romance is one of the things it is not easy for a journeyman play reviewer to understand. Unless, which is possible, she needed the advance.

Anyway, here is "First Love" telling of Jean, who was a count's son, and Maica, a young Hungarian studying medicine in Paris. They loved each other desperately and lived for three years in a garret on what Jean could get for his funny songs and Maica could pick up singing them in cabarets.

Then Jean's father offered his runaway son a half million francs and complete forgiveness if he would come home and marry a silly goose of a girl who happened to be the daughter of the count's business partner. The situation may appeal to you as being a trifle frayed.

A Resourceful Maiden.

But here is the new twist. Maica, determined to save Jean from this unlovely marriage, decides in a sweetly innocent Hungarian way that she will sell herself to a rich man for a half million francs and give Jean the money, so he can go right on loving her. And when she goes to meet the man, who do you suppose he turns out to be? Jean's own father! Yes, sir!

When the count knows the truth he behaves generously and even nobly. He had only wanted one last fling at romance anyway. He thought he might pluck the beautiful boutonniere of youth and wear it for a season again in his buttonhole. But he found it blossoming on the other side of a very high wall, he says, as he leaves the castle to the lovers.

Rather foolish, this "First Love." But the Bainter lady, being a sterling little actress and gifted, with the power to take a cheap scene and often make it very lovely, helps it greatly. And Geoffrey Kerr plays wholesomely opposite her, while Bruce McRae, bless his dignity, tries his best to seem an aging chaser of petticoats with lecherous tendencies. Which you know he can't do at all.

Through the Wall.

We have a new kind of keyhole comedy. "The Play's the Thing" is the title, the audacious Terence Molnar, the author, P. G. Wodehouse, father of Jeeves and the better British humor, made the adaptation, and that slyly adventurous showman, Gilbert Miller, fathers the production.

This piece might be described as the thin-partition comedy. You do not feel that you are peeking through the keyhole of a boudoir. But, overhearing the rapturous pleadings of an excited lover through the wall separating a sitting room from the heroine's sleeping quarters you vaguely wonder if you should not quietly sneak out of the theater. It will be fearfully embarrassing for the lovers to find you there when they emerge.

Of course, you don't sneak out. Your Victorian ancestors could not drag you out. You wait and see what you see, and hear all you can. And what you see and hear after the incident of the overheard amorosities is audaciously amusing and cleverly theatrical.

In the play Sandor Turai is the playwright, Albert Adam his most promising composer friend and protégé, and Ilona Szabo the prima donna he hopes will sing his next musical comedy.

Young Adam, being 20, artistic no end, and fearfully ardent, is desperately in love with Ilona. He has come with Turai to meet her at a castle on the Riviera, a sort of private inn. They arrive at night before Ilona expects them, and while they are in the sitting room of the castle they overhear Ilona repulsing, or trying to repulse, the advances of her former music teacher and lover, one Almady.

A Play Saves the Day.

An eager person is Almady, and gifted in description of Ilona's charms. The soft, fragrant roundness of her shoulders he dwells upon particularly—until young Adam is wild with rage and disappointment. He will write no more music. He will tear up what he has written. He will throw himself into the ocean, or from the high cliffs.

Of course, something has to be done about it and Turai takes the big chance. To convince Adam that Almady was only speaking in jest, as it were, he sits up all night and writes a one-act play in which he incorporates the more lurid of Almady's pleadings—particularly those in reference to the lady's shoulders. Then he arranges to have a rehearsal of the play staged next day with Ilona and Almady playing the parts.

In this highly farcical interlude Almady is a demon fruit grower, and it is the soft, fragrant roundness of one of his prize peaches that excites him. Adam now realizes how foolish he has been. He begs Ilona's forgiveness, renews his engagement to her, and under the spur of a new inspiration is prepared to write better music than he has ever written.

The audience, smartly Broadwayish and semi-professional, reveled in "The Play's the Thing" at its opening performance, but it is distinctly a comedy for the shaker set in society. The hammered silver shaker set. Holbrook Blinn plays Turai the schemer with impressive suavity, Catherine Dale Owen is a frigidly beautiful Ilona and young Edward Crandall, a promising youth who started with "Young Woodley," is the boy.

The Ugly and Strong.

Holding in story and ugly in speech is a new drama called "Seed of the Brute." Too brazen in speech for comfort, I think. I have little objection to the modern realistic and naturalistic drama as drama. But I do resent the determination of the younger producers to speak their pieces profanely when there is no reason for it, save that of creating talk.

"But," they say, "a man (or woman) of this type, faced by these circumstances, would say these things."

Perhaps. Then again perhaps if it happened to be a quiet day he wouldn't. If we take one liberty with staged characters why not another, so long as the dramatic effect is the same? This later-day tendency to establish character by goddaming the universe and calling men out of their names grows not only common but cheap.

Knowles Entrikin, who hails from out west, if Moline, Ill., is west to you, is the author of this newest brute play. He has written savagely rather than cleverly, but there is a definite strength in his drama. His hero, Calvin Roberts, is a small town politician, masterful, semi-literate, determined to rule. Women, they say, flock to him, though why they should is not quite clear to any save the women who do.

Married to a gentle, bookish, intellectual type of woman who loves him in spite of everything, Roberts finds himself eventually standing alone in his own family circle. His son, following his mother's trend, has little use for his father and refuses to acknowledge his dictatorship. The only human with whom Roberts feels a sympathetic contact is a fighting young newspaper man, come to town to bust up the Roberts'

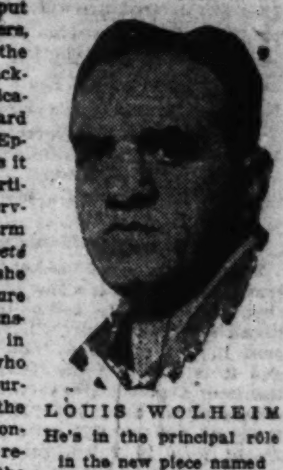
This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

LETTERS come in about many things, and are, for their contents, more pertinent and far more interesting than such thoughts as arise in me with respect to the state of the drama in this week-end. Most of the letters in recent days have to do with the play in the Adelphi, and express either rage with me for not liking it or rage with the insolence of the producer who put it on. I'm told, in these letters, that my inability to admire the piece betrays a lack of background, a comical unsophistication, a Bourbon attitude toward progress in the theater, an Epworth League outlook on life as it is, an absence of "the social fortitude essential to the task of serving as a judge of art in any form of expression," and "the naïveté of a half-wit girl who fancies she has been through all literature after having read the Elsie Dinsmore books." And I'm told, in these letters, that the men who produce such plays are encouraged to do so by the failure of the critics to serve as a sort of constabulary of morals in their reports on the theater, by "the cynicism of much that is printed in the theatrical and the editorial columns of THE TRIBUNE," and by my own "sneering discouragement of such agencies of betterment as the play-juries instituted in New-York and the morals-squad of the Chicago police when they insist that women on the stage should observe some of the decencies in their attire and deportment." . . .



LOUIS WOLHEIM
He's in the principal rôle in the new piece named "In This Room."

The most temperate of these letters is from Mr. Samuel Sanders, who describes himself as a disgusted but loyal reader of this newspaper. He says that (a) he doesn't like me any more as a drama-reporter, (b) he is sorry I "found the play so revolting" (although I didn't), (c) distaste for the piece indicates that I still believe in Santa-Claus, and (d) "Miss Elsom's acting has not been equaled since Katharine Cornell's performance here in 'The Green Hat.'" While I'm uncertain whether he means to compliment Miss Elsom, Miss Cornell, or neither, I'm sporting enough to say that I am in complete alignment with Mr. Sanders as to d, and am willing to assume that he not only knows what it was Miss Cornell did in "The Green Hat," but also what Miss Elsom does in "Sin of Sins." I don't know; and I unrestrainedly confess that there are phases of talent in our players that are either above me or beyond me.

My interest in the thing in the Adelphi need not, so far as readers of THE TRIBUNE are concerned, go beyond its values as a play, although Mr. Woods didn't put it on for such values, actual or assumed, and did put it on for the sake of its theme, which is in use in a play now so prosperous in New-York that the theater is crowded nightly at five dollars a chair. The use of the theme,—that of the female urning,—in the drama or in any other form of art may be justifiable: the especial work of art would have to be the ultimate proof of justification. It has such justification in the Yiddish piece named "God of Vengeance": not that the piece, itself, is of importance as art, but that the episode which caused the New-York police to put the actors of an English version in jail is integral, and serves the purpose of drama in the author's clear design, however unlovely and repellant the play and its characters may be. I have not seen "The Captive," and have been unable to obtain real information as to its form and contents from either the twaddle written about it by the New-York reviewers or the twitter printed about it in the Continental journals.

But it is not necessary to know anything about any other play dealing with the homo-sexual, as a type or as an individual manifestation of psychopathic affliction, for the purpose of authentic reporting on "Sin of Sins." Its sole importance resides in Mr. Woods' justified, if leering, audacity in putting it before the public. Not even its author can conceivably believe it to be worth three cents a dozen as a play; and all the brains, the wisdom, and the learning of that Spinoza from whom Mr. Woods quotes so liberally without knowing who he is could make the thing appear even to the consciousness of mattoids as other than planned, wilful, eager vileness.

As to James K. Hackett.

SIR: Sometimes when a famous actor dies you write about him in your column, and sometimes you don't, leaving the record of his passing, with data on his career, to the news-columns of the paper. This is the business of THE TRIBUNE and of you, no doubt. It may be that the death of an actor is reported at a time when your duties as a reviewer of new plays use up the time and space you would otherwise devote to the dead man's achievements and talents. You have the gift for stirring and renewing and making to glow again the fond memories of playgoers when you write thus of the players, writers, singers, and other artists who have been contemporary with you. My letter is prompted by disappointment in not finding something by you about James K. Hackett, who died within the week. He was popular, active, and important for many years, and a fine actor of big achievements in a day not at all remote. I am but one of many who have commented on the fact that "Princess Flavia," now in Chicago, derives from "The Prisoner of Zenda," in which he created the title-rôle and that of Rassendyl, the king's double.

LESTER T. MOBRAY.

Chicago: November 12, 1926.

It seems to me that Mr. Hackett's career in the theater was amply summarized in THE TRIBUNE the day following his death. He was not an actor of especial talent, but, rather, a performer with a personality that was in agreement with the popular notion of cape-and-sword heroes when, in the 'Nineties, Stanley Weyman, Anthony Hope, and other minor novelists were trying to rewrite the elder Dumas. He was to the theater-goers of that decade and most of the next what Valentino was to movie-patrons. And, Mr. Mobray, he did not "create" the rôles in "The Prisoner of Zenda": Mr. Sothern was the first actor of Rassendyl and the king in this country, and was at his best in that play. After Mr. Sothern's New-York run in it, the piece was put on by the old Lyceum Theater company, of which Mr. Hackett was at the time a member. He was not nearly as good as Mr. Sothern in the rôles, which he afterward played in the poor piece made from Hope's poor sequel-tale, "Rupert of Hentzau." . . . I note that the accounts of Mr. Hackett's career carried in the newspapers stressed his activities in Shakspere. Those activities were few and unimpressive: he made a try in his father's famous part, Falstaff, in New-York, and appeared in London as Macbeth and in Paris as Othello. These were brief and costly indulgences, and not successful. I saw his Macbeth in London, where he had Mrs. Campbell vis-à-vis, and found it rather trying.

But he had his share of gifts for the theater: he was picturesque, bold, unafraid, and intelligent, and was a shrewd business-man, a good showman, and an ambitious fighter for such rewards and honors as the commerce of the stage could be made to yield up.

Miscellany.

Fear is expressed that there will be popular confusion as between the respective titles of the piece made from "The Constant Nymph" and Mr. Maugham's "The Constant Wife," in which Miss Barrymore is about to appear.

A play of Pirandello's, called for this country "Say It with Flowers!" is soon to be staged in New-York and the impresario thinks it will stimulate general interest if he give the première at midnight. . . . Another piece of Italian make, "Puppets and Passion," is being prepared for New-York by Ernest Boyd.

Fay Bainter Keeps This Play Moving

power and he, it transpires, is Roberts' illegitimate son.

This revelation is dramatically made, with many oaths and plain statements of heredity. But seed of the brute though he be, the illegitimate young man will have none of his natural father. Rather he will cling to the man who has foster-fathered and loved him all his twenty-odd years.

Vibrant, forceful and ugly is this drama. But for all its crude strength I'm afraid it will displease more play goers than it will please. Robert Ames, whose talent for colorful and ugly characterization will be recalled by those who saw him play "The Hero," is the youngish but forceful hero of "Seed of the Brute." Doris Rankin, returning to this stage for the first time since she divorced Lionel Barrymore, plays the wife, and Hilda Vaughan, once a "Rain" substitute for Jeanne Eagels, has a cursing part.

Such a Nice Murderer.

Dion Titheradge of the London Titheradges is here with a play of his own that is entitled to better treatment than New York, I fear, is likely to accord it. "Loose Ends" he calls it, and it is strung upon the gorgeous theme of a murderer's return to fast society fifteen years after his incarceration to find himself quite the most decent man in mind, manners and morals of any he meets.

Titheradge is a little fellow and a good actor. Not, however, of either the heroic or the typically romantic type. He plays the murderer—by way of introduction he is run down by a beautiful actress in a motor car in Hyde park. She picks him up and carries him home with her to be sure he is not seriously hurt.

From this meeting romance naturally develops, and from the romance a proposal of marriage and an acceptance. But the nice murderer, Malcolm Forres he calls himself, is much too good for the wapish, liquorish, profane set the actress moves in. She is drawn to him by his simplicity and directness, but once they are married she is inclined to return to her gin parties and the cynical parasites who flock around her.

Finally discovering that her modest young husband has done his bit for having killed the insulter of his sister, she feels that she should get a divorce. Her best friend, an honest, restive, unhappy human, offers frankly to help furnish the required evidence. But the actress, having a better self in reserve, makes a second decision and returns to her murderer, convinced now that she could have done ever and ever so much worse.

NOTE: Mr. Hurlbut's dramatic study found basic inspiration in the somewhat daring philosophic deduction from the pen of Spinoza, as follows:
"I have labored not to mock, lament, or execrate, but to understand human actions; and to this end I have looked upon passions not as vices of human nature, but as properties just as pertinent to it as are heat, cold, storm, thunder and the like to the nature of the atmosphere."

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

WHEN, the 28th, "Yes! Yes, Yvette!" is shown in the Four Cohans, "Princess Flavia" will not be transferred to the Olympic, as announced in THE TRIBUNE of Friday last. The Messrs. Shubert have decided to send it on tour; so, it will be put on a train for Cincinnati. . . . Meanwhile, there is no indication of what will follow Miss Moore in the Olympic, "Sweetheart-Time" in the Garrick, "The Shelf" in the La Salle, or "Sin of Sins" in the Adelphi. . . . That the Greenwich Village Follies will be held in the Apollo until December 18 seems likely; for the next show there, "The Great Temptations," is scheduled for Christmas night.

The Drama League of Chicago found its way to the Palace Theater last week, thereby giving the organization's first nod to the variety-stage.

The long run of "Sunny" in New-York is to be ended, it is stated, January 15, when it will have been on continuous view there sixty-nine weeks, in which time, there seems to be no reason to doubt, it has been performed to the highest average receipts in the annals of what is still called "show-business." . . . That the piece will be brought hither this season seems unlikely; for it is to be sent to Boston at the end of the run: any kind of success there would carry too late into the season to warrant bringing it to Chicago, unless a Summertime run be hoped for. Its refuge here will, in all probability, be the Illinois.

The Harris is carrying the last-weeks line in ads of "The Jazz-Singer"; and that is foolish réclame: the piece is booked here until late next month. . . . If it be taken out then, the next offering in the Harris, as has been stated in THE TRIBUNE, will be George Kelly's fine play of "Craig's Wife," with Miss Chrystal Herne.

New in Manhattan.

These are the new plays listed for the week in the New-York theaters:

"A Proud Woman," by Arthur Richman, with Miss Florence Eldridge, Miss Elizabeth Risdon, Miss Margaret Wycherly, Miss Anne Morrison, John Marston, Percy Ames, and Herbert Yost. . . . Report by persons who have seen the piece in try-out performances is that it is something like "Craig's Wife," expected in Chicago about holiday-time.

"Lily-Sue," by Willard Mack, with Mr. Mack, Miss Beth Merrill, Curtis Cooksey, and William Courtleigh. . . . This is a piece which would, if a movie, have classification as a "Western." Mr. Mack first called it "All the Way from Texas," and then "Just You, Sue!" Miss Merrill is the young woman who acted in Chicago last year in the gratuitous dirt named "Ladies of the Evening."

"Twinkle! Twinkle!" by Harlan Thompson and Harry Archer, with Joe E. Brown, Miss Ona Munson, and Alan Edwards. . . . The authors wrote "Little Jessie James," "My Girl," and one not yet submitted to Chicago, "Merry! Merry!" They have been helped out in this by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, two-a-day lads whose business is fixin' up other writers' "books" and scores.

"Gertie," by Miss Tadema Bussière, with Miss Constance McKay, Pat O'Brien, and Edward Reese. . . . And there are four names that mean nothing to THE TRIBUNE.

Semi-novelties of the week down there include a revival of Shaw's "Pygmalion," made known in this country in 1914 by Mrs. Patrick Campbell, and one of "The Witch," a play by a Scandinavian writer, H. Wiers-Jenssen. The latter was, it seems, acted without success some time ago in New-York. The revival is in a new adaptation by John Masefield, and has in it Miss Alice Brady. . . . As to the revival of "Pygmalion," it is by the Theater Guild, with Miss Lynn Fontanne in Mrs. Campbell's old rôle of the Cockney girl. With her are Reginald Mason, J. W. Austin, Miss Beryl Mercer, Henry Travers, and Charles Courtneidge.

Shifting Playbills

Tonight:

"In This Room" in the Princess.—A new piece by Edward Locke, who won a measure of celebrity years ago with "The Climax." The incoming play was formerly known as "The Leap." Louis Wolheim, Miss Olive Tell, Miss Maude Odell, and Donald Gallaher are in it.

November 22:

"Young Woodley," with Glenn Hunter, in the Blackstone.—An English play about the awakening of biologic consciousness in a schoolboy, with Mr. Hunter here for the first time since his engagement, in 1923, in "Merton of the Movies." The play had a long run last season in New-York.

"The Butter-and-Egg Man," with Gregory Kelly, in the Selwyn.—A comic play about showmen and their alleged art by George S. Kaufman. It was acted through about all of last season in New-York.

November 28:

"Yes! Yes, Yvette!" in the Four Cohans.—The song-and-dance version of James Montgomery's farce named "Nothing BUT the Truth," with Lynne Overman, not here since the run of "Just Married in 1922 in the La Salle, in the rôle acted first by Grant Mitchell, afterward by the late Will Deming, and then by William Collier.

"The Open Door," with Miss Mabel McCane, in the Playhouse.—A piece by Walter Lawrence, who will be in the cast with Miss McCane: she is recalled easily by patrons of song-and-dance shows and of the two-a-day.

December 19:

The Ziegfeld Follies in the Illinois.—A show that has had a New-York run under the name of the Ziegfeld Revue: the Follies label is restored because of the settlement of certain litigation that seemed to affect its value.

December 25:

"The Great Temptations" in the Apollo.—A show from the New-York Winter Garden, where its personnel included Billy B. Van and some Gertrude Hoffman girls.

December 27:

Miss Ina Claire in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" in the Blackstone.—The popular comédienne in the piece by Frederick Lonsdale wherein she had a long run last season in New-York. Roland Young and James Dale will be with her.

THEY'VE BEEN AWAY SINCE 1924

MISS OLIVE TELL MISS JANE COWL

MISS TELL classifies as an occasional visitor in the Chicago theaters: that is, she comes along just frequently enough to keep her name among those of the well-knowns. She was here something more than two years ago with Lowell Sherman in a fierce piece named "Morphine," in the Adelphi;—or, if she wasn't, then it was Miss Alma Tell. It really doesn't matter; and what does matter is that Miss Olive Tell returns tonight in "In This Room."

Miss Cowl hasn't been here since late in 1924, when she gave an interesting portrayal of Juliet to poor attendance in the Garrick, and then, moving around to the Selwyn, gave a ham portrayal of a street-walker in a bad German piece, "The Flame," to poorer attendance. She has since then been in other pieces, including one by young Mr. Coward named "Easy Virtue," in which she has been performing in London. Miss Cowl is bill-topping this week in the Palace.

Broadway Praises 'Main Street' Singer

By Joan King.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Gotham has received another prima donna from "Main Street." Kansas City will have to look to her laurels, for Allentown, Pa., has provided a second Metropolitan candidate—this time a soprano. Last season a young contralto, Dorothea Flexer, joined the Metropolitan opera ranks from that town. This year, with a retinue of some 200 home towners, Louise Lerch made her entrance to the metropolis.

Although originally billed by General Manager Gatti-Casazza for a small debut rôle in "The Jewels of the Madonna," Miss Lerch, who is a pupil of Mme. Sembrich, actually made her initial bow in a solo position, though it was in concert instead of opera, at the first Sunday night recital of the Metropolitan's 1926-'27 season.

A Friendly Audience.

Greeted by bursts of friendly applause which bore strong reminder of the reception staged for Marion Talley last season, the Allentown girl sang the aria "Depuis le Jour" from "Louise" and captured the fancy of her audience through sheer voice quality. The high point of this first appearance was reached, however, in the queen's song from "The Magic Flute," when the singer took Mozart's original key with high F, which, incidentally, was not essayed by Talley's "The Queen of the Night" in the same house the day before.

There will be further opportunity for judgment of this new voice this winter, as the young singer is scheduled for operatic rôles. In the meantime it must be noted that her first performance disclosed a voice of beauty.

Novelties in Music.

Judging from early orchestral doings, the new symphonic season here is to be one of novelty and experiment. A recent program by Willem Mengelberg did much to substantiate this opinion.

The Philharmonic conductor brought out three novelties, two of which were new to his subscribers, and the third, a suite from Casella's ballet, "La Giara," was played for the first time last year. He also altered the usual order of the program. All the new music of the evening came first, the last half being devoted to an established symphony—the Brahms F major. To those who have come to expect that their favorite symphony will be half over before they arrive at the hall, having been delayed by traffic or held up in the subway, this change was of a welcome nature.

The new music included Honegger's prelude to Shakespeare's "The Tempest," eight pieces for small orchestra by Stravinsky, and the aforenamed Casella suite.

More Surprises.

Walter Damrosch's second program of the season also had its experimental angle. The appearance of Albert Spalding, America's greatest contribution to violin virtuosity, was of chief interest. Berlioz's dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet," opened the program. Then came Mr. Spalding in Joachim's "Hungarian Concerto" for violin and orchestra, which had not been given in New York for ten years, demonstrating anew his mastery of that most difficult of the stringed instruments. A conglomeration of pieces by Chopin, orchestrated by a Frenchman, Louis Aubert, and used in a ballet called "La Nuit Ensorcelle," by Leon Bakst, was the final number.

Mr. Damrosch himself provided the novel aspect. Having described the antics of toys and the admonitions of parents—with mazurkas, waltzes, and preludes—through the medium of the orchestra, the conductor suddenly stepped from the conductorial pedestal to a piano, which just as suddenly had appeared on the stage, and repeated the first movement, the E major Etude of Chopin, on the keys. Such orchestral experiments would seem to go beyond the ken of a mere listener. Perhaps Mr. Damrosch was undertaking to outdo the recent Stowkowski proceeding.

Program of Piano Concertos.

Returning to the field of the concert recital, another unique happening must be noted. Entire programs of piano concertos are rare. Ernest Schelling, known for his work as conductor of children's concerts, both with the Philharmonic and in Boston, has three such scheduled for this season with the coöperation of Mr. Mengelberg and his orchestra. The first was given with Mr. Schelling in the dual capacity of pianist and composer at Carnegie hall.

Chopin's F minor piano concerto, Mozart's A major, and his own variations for piano and orchestra, "Impressions from an Artist's Life," dedicated to the memory of Gustav Mahler, comprised the program. The last mentioned called forth the greatest enthusiasm.

LIKED HERE

GREGORY KELLY

He's been away since, early last year, he acted in the Garrick and the La Salle with Miss Madge Kennedy in something named "Badges." He's been here of late mostly in bad pieces—in "King for a Day," in "Little Jessie James," and in "Bristol Glass." . . . Mr. Kelly is returning next week in "The Butter-and-Egg Man," a comic play about the laughable and incredible business-men of the theater by George S. Kaufman, who knows they're laughable and incredible. The play ran through most of last season in New-York.

Embarrassing Moments

He Had 'Em On.

The other day I joined two fellows in the hall and one asked me what I thought of a fellow who wore high shoes. I replied I thought they were just the thing for old men or invalids. Bill, one of the boys, kept egging me on by saying he thought any fellow who wore high shoes ought to be in the hospital.

I gave an elaborate opinion of what I thought was wrong with high shoes and when I had finished the first fellow said, "Take a look at Bill's new shoes."

My embarrassment was supreme.

"Well, at least I found out your honest opinion of high shoes," was Bill's consolation.

E. J. Z.

A few days ago I invited twelve women to a demonstration dinner to be given at my home by a certain aluminum company.

The table was set with the necessary china, silver, and glassware. At 12:30, the appointed hour, the guests arrived promptly, but no representative of the aluminum company, who was supposed to furnish, cook and demonstrate the dinner.

Here I was with a dozen hungry guests and no food in the house. To say nothing of the expense I went to, my embarrassment can hardly be surpassed.

M. N.

Surprised.

I am fond of horseback riding, and when Mr. B. invited me to ride I was much pleased and accepted the invitation readily. We were riding along comfortably when his horse, being a spirited animal, gave a sudden lunge forward, causing Mr. B. to lose his hat and with it his toupee. Up to this time I did not know that he wore one, always having seen him with his hat on.

I was indeed surprised and much embarrassed to see him trying to get control of his horse with neither hat nor hair, and turned my horse in the opposite direction so that he could recover his belongings unobserved.

N. McC.

She Had Heard.

I was a freshman in a big university. I was to meet my junior adviser whom I had never seen at 8:30 on registration day in front of one of the buildings. I arrived late at the appointed place, at 8:45. I looked in vain for a girl corresponding to the description of my junior adviser.

Some friends came up and I complained loudly to them of my plight, saying I had waited for ten minutes for that silly girl and she had not shown up. A voice behind me just then said, "O, you're the girl I was to meet. I have been around here since 8:30 waiting for you and you weren't here."

She had heard everything I had said! Did I feel squelched? My education started right there!

Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off—root and all—without pain or soreness. Yes, Magic! A few cents buys a tiny bottle at any drug store, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes.

Opera Reaches High Point of Attainment

By Edward Moore.

plus enough Wednesdays to fill out the quota of sixteen.

This will be one of the Wednesdays. It will have a soloist, the first of the season's series, in the person of Franz Polesny, violinist, who will play the Wieniawski Concerto in D minor. The program also includes Glazounow's "Salonnelle" Overture, Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, Edward German's "Henry VIII." dances, and Strauss' waltzes, "The Bat."

Something Different.

If one is on the search for something different in music, the Tipica orchestra will perhaps be the answer. This band was organized in Mexico City in 1924-'25, and was, but no longer is, the official musical organization of the president. It will make its first Chicago appearance at Orchestra hall Tuesday night.

The chances are that it will play no symphonies, not even a symphonic poem, but advance reports speak with enthusiasm of how the native music of Spain and Mexico sounds when produced by guitars, marimbas, and the other instruments of the semitropics. Other information tells of its colorful costumes, its serapes, velvet jackets, buttoned leggings, and enormous hats. Its conductor is José Briseno, one of its solists is Samuel Pedraza, and it has a vocal quartet, and a sextet of marimbas, the Marin brothers, who get a word of extra enthusiasm in the notices.

Sad Words from Sir Thomas.

Sir Thomas Beecham's announced intention of coming to America and bringing as much as possible of what is left of his estate with him is accompanied by some pessimistic reflections on the subject of radio. He is the son and heir of the famous pill maker and inherited a large fortune, a good part of which he spent in a vain attempt to popularize opera in England.

Elmer will perhaps not agree with Sir Thomas, but John Steele, the representative of THE TRIBUNE in London, reports him as saying:

"England is finished. It is the twilight of the gods.

"Concerts in England have no future. I have no future. Nobody has any future. Now the government has subsidized broadcasting, there is nothing for a self-respecting musician to do but pack up, too. I am taking as many English musicians as I can persuade to go with me. Just think of it—we have got a wonderful human voice and miraculous fabric of an orchestra. What does it sound like on the wireless? A most horrible chattering, gibbering, chortling, and shrieking of devils and goblins."

Again the Indians.

Portland, Ore., has been stepping out with a new opera, "Winona," with book by Perry Williams of Minneapolis and music by Alberto Bimboni of New York. As the name might possibly imply, it is an Indian piece.

The first performance was scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 11, too recent for any reports to have percolated thus far east. An advance notice tells of Mr. Bimboni's theories of Indian music, that it was similar to Gregorian chant, monodic, and almost always based on free rhythm. The composer tells that he used it in the opera "very seldom for songs, but occasionally developed with it an orchestral background, so that the work is Indian in spirit rather than for actual use of the melodies—in the way, it might be said, that Liszt used Hungarian music in his rhapsodies."

Which, as William Schwenk Gilbert remarked in one of the Bab Ballads, is pretty, but I don't know what it means.

Mostly About Music.

Karin Branzell, contralto of the Royal Opera of Stockholm and the Metropolitan Opera of New York, will make her first Chicago appearance this afternoon as assisting artist with the United Swedish Singers of Chicago, H. William Nordin, director. She will sing an aria from Bruch's "Ulysses," a group of Scandinavian songs, and another group consisting of MacDowell, Brahms, and Wolf.

The Allied Arts program to be given tonight at the Eighth Street theater in honor of Queen Marie of Roumania will include a series of works to be conducted by Eric De LaMarter and the Solo Orchestra and several ballet scenes by Adolph Bolm's ballet. Among the latter will be "La Farce du Pont Neuf," to Mme. Clement-Herscher's music, Scriabin's "Visual Mysticism," and several oriental dances by Vera Mirova.

The Chicago Bach chorus, specializing in the music of that composer, will sing at Orchestra hall Thursday night with William Boeppler conducting. Chorales and choruses from cantatas are bulletined, one, "Freue dich erlöste Schar," being announced as the first performance in America. The program will be diversified by the violin playing of Jacques Gordon and the organ playing of Edward Rechlin, both of Bach compositions.

The United Choirs of the New First Congregational church send word of a music festival for Thursday and Friday nights and a week from this evening. The first two will be old time concerts of an old homestead and an Indian scene, with Mrs. George L. Tenney, Lucy J. Hartman, Margaret Lester, Leon Jones, Luke Gask, Percy W. Fairman, Emma Ewen, Mary Crowther, and Walter Boydston as soloists. The Sunday evening event will be a sacred concert of Gounod's "Ave Maria," and the St. Cecelia Mass, and Haydn's "The Heavens Are Telling." George L. Tenney is the director and William Lester the organist.

The song recital given by Lillian Evanti, coloratura soprano, at the Eighth Street theater, Thursday night, will be under the auspices of the George L. Giles post No. 87, American Legion.

Henri Casadesus has bought and the Boston Symphony orchestra has received the collection of ancient instruments that he assembled during a period of years. It contained instruments of the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth centuries, ranging all the way from a "consort of viols" to an accordion of the first empire, and was said to be the best of its kind in existence.

Times grew hard, and M. Casadesus was forced to sell. The few who gathered in the Auditorium one Sunday afternoon in December, 1919, will remember what an entrancing program of old music M. Casadesus and his associates played upon some of these same instruments.

THEY not only specialize in the lower ranges of the female voice, but they will be appearing at the same hour this afternoon, and each will be making her first appearance in Chicago. Mme. Branzell, who comes here by way of the Stockholm Royal opera and the New York Metropolitan opera, will be at Orchestra hall with the United Swedish Singers. Miss Doe will give a song recital in the Goodman theater.

The Story of Tinee Locks.

Dear Miss Tinée. Your demand for leads to your monthly survey of films has "intrigued" me, as Lorelei says.

Don't know whether I could write a satisfactory lead or not, but I have a little "bedtime storrie fer grown up guys" to tell you.

Once upon a time there was a little movie critic known as Tinée-locks. She was a good little critic and loved her movies.

One day she was out walking and came to three theaters, all in a row. The first was a large one, the second a middle sized one, and the third a tiny one.

"Well," said little Tinée-locks, entering the large one, "we'll see what we shall see."

She sat down and took a sip of "Purple Passions."

"M-m-m! This is too hot!" said little Tinée-locks, after watching a few scenes, "I thing I'll go next door and try that one."

So she got up, walked out of the large theater, and entered the middle sized one.

After watching quite a bit of "Is Your Newsboy Honest?" she murmured, "Uhg, this one is too cold and thick."

She walked out on this film and then entered the tiny theater, and sat down to watch "The Boy Friend."

"M-m-m, is this just grand," sighed Tinée-locks, as she settled back in her seat and remained to see the whole picture.

When the film was over she walked back to her office and wrote a ripping review of it, urging everyone to go to the tiny theater and see the "Boy Friend."

Little Tinée-locks lived happily the rest of the day.

Don't know as that's much of a story, either, now that it's done. But, anyway, I've done my duty, as I see it.

Hope you won't be bored to tears and say, "Ugh, this is too cold and thick," as you read this, because this is my second attempt only, at writing you. The first letter I wrote got such a prompt answer I thought it would not hurt to try another.

Here's hoping you get some good leads for you dandy column.

Storily yours,
F. PAUL R.

Editor's note: Not quite what I needed for the lead, but entirely too good for the waste basket. Thank you, sir, said she.

More Praise for Lionel.

My dear Miss Tinée: May I venture to tell you that in your review of "The Bells" it seems to me you hardly did justice to the splendid acting of Lionel Barrymore in that picture? Certainly you praised it; only I feel that his characterization was worthy of more enthusiastic praise.

I am sure you intended to give that wonderful actor his due. It seems as if he has so seldom had rôles that give him opportunity to impress his ability on the public mind that when he does have one it seems a pity not to raise at least as great a shout as when some less gifted but more popular actor appears in a picture that entitles him to praise.

Lionel Barrymore has not always had luck on his side; he has not captured the popular fancy to the same extent as, for instance, his brother, John—also, it is true, a splendid actor, but not [in my opinion] so able as Lionel.

There are faults in the picture, I agree with you. There is no accompanying program, and the theater is not attractive. But I like to see a good man get a real boost when he has it coming.

Be sure that I do not intend this as a criticism of you. I only want to remind you that merit often attracts less notice than less worthy but more showy qualities, and sometimes it is necessary to strain one's self a little to do true justice to the best, instead of applauding more vigorously the amusing second rate.

I read your column with much interest daily. Very truly yours,
G. McD.

Editor's Note: Thank you for your interest.

Box Office Shows Stars' Real Value

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.] — Personal and business rivalries are at fever heat in Hollywood, due to the ublication of a list of the year's show- g of favorite stars at the box office. matter how many ermine coats, althy suitors, titles, or foreign cars picture star may be able to boast of, is all settled in terms of hard cash the end of the year.

Hence there is an enormous amount excitement over the annual list t out after the exhibitors of motion tures have checked on the stars that ve brought the lines of cash custom- s to the box office window. Salary justments, prestige, and new rôles greatly influenced by these yearly ults.

Colleen Moore Heads List.

Colleen Moore was found to be the t bet. Tom Mix was second, twenty- ree votes behind. Fred Thompson, B. O. western picture star, was ird; Harold Lloyd, fourth. This last s a surprise, as Lloyd has the repu; tion of being the best money maker pictures, along with Tom Mix.

Hoot Gibson, Universal western o, came fifth. Norma Talmadge fol- ed as sixth, Mary Pickford, seventh, Douglas Fairbanks, six votes be- d, came eighth.

Ninth was Tom Meighan, then Regi- ld Denny, Milton Sills, Richard Dix, n Chaney, Buck Jones, Norma arer, Gloria Swanson, closely fol- ed by her ex-husband, Wallace ery, Bebe Daniels, Corinne Griffith, ck Holt, Constance Talmadge, Rin n Tin, Jackie Cogan, Marion Davies, arles Chaplin, and Richard Barthel- ess.

Farther down the list trail some of r most popular heroes, including hn Gilbert, John Barrymore, and e late Valentino, Ramon Novarro, d Lewis Stone.

Not So Popular Now.

Considering that these figures are oted direct from the box office, the sults are astonishing in many in- ances. The placing of Gloria Swan- n as sixteenth on the list suggests at she is not the rage she was with e flappers and that Charles Chaplin s allowed the comedy crowd to be atched from him while he has been eaming of tragedy and Napoleon d Josephine.

Mary Pickford evidently retains a rprising hold on public favor, far outstancing her contemporary, Con- ance Talmadge, by holding seventh ace while Constance rates twenty- rst on the list. The popularity of male stars over female ones is note- rthy, there being a great preponderance of males.

The western heroes run near the top, rprisingly. One obvious point in such a list is that frequently a player is well known and liked in the small towns throughout the country, while his name is of little consequence in the large cities. The cities show the changeableness of public favor more readily than the outlying centers where old favorites die hard.

Among Friends.

Emil Jannings has been greeted enthusiastically here by his confrerees of European picture days who include Pola Negri, Mauritz Stiller, Eric Pommer and many others. The famous star of "Variety," "Deception" and other successes is living in a bungalow at the Ambassador with his wife and the pet mocking bird, named Ferdinand. The bird has been Jannings' mascot for years, and his interpreter explains that he always has it on the set or stage when he acts. Just to prove that he was not an ordinary shy bird, Ferdinand broke into a spell of loud clear whistling at which Jannings became most enthusiastic.

So far Jannings' English confines itself to the remark, "I am very happy," which he does with gestures and a large, engaging smile. He becomes so enthusiastic when speaking of how kind his American friends and audiences are that his interpreter can not keep up with him at all.

Mrs. Jannings, who has been his wife for four years, speaks English fluently. She says she acquired it in the days when she worked for the Shuberts on the New York stage. She holds, like a good frau, that no woman can have a career and be married. She has done no acting since her marriage, "though I was a very good actress," she adds naively.

Hollywood's greatest envy is expended on the pluperfect valet of Mr. Jannings, who anticipates every request for services before it is made, in the manner of continental servants.

John Barrymore, unlike some who have delusions of grandeur, has a great yen for making cosmopolitan friends and wearing informal attire. Hollywood has learned to know the screen's and stage's greatest star as an unconventional and always interested spectator of life as it is lived. The latest escapade to delight his friends is one now being told about a recent excursion of John's into the world outside the professional one which knows him so well. A young woman who works in an automobile agency in Hollywood has an equally charming and perhaps more quick-witted sister. Through a mutual friend John was introduced to the girl of the auto agency, whom he promptly drove home from work.

The sister came in after noting a disreputable and rattle trap car at the curb, wondering who the guest might be that had come in the strange equipage. As she entered the family parlor her young sister invited her to meet her new acquaintance. The newly arrived sister looked over the stranger with baggy and slightly worn trousers, shirt open at the neck, no tie, and with some mental reservations accepted the introduction.

"What did you say your name was?" she inquired.

"John Barrymore," said the stranger with a quizzical smile. The sister burst into a roar of laughter and mincing into the room held her hand high and in mock heroics answered, "Pleezed to meetcha, I'm sure. I'm the Duchess of Sutherland."

The two ragged back and forth for some time, and it isn't known for certain that she ever did find out that it was the real John Barrymore. As for John, he is reported as having enjoyed the incident hugely.

Over on the Lasky lot, where Adolphe Menjou is making "Blonde or Brunette," a new word has been applied to the generally accepted adjectives used to describe the golden haired ones. It is "mayonnaise blonde." The shade is what it says, a vivid yellow shade darker than the straw blonde but lighter than the American blonde. It is mostly obtained hereabouts by the aid of peroxide. Kathryn Hill, player of the sweetheart in "The Wanderer," seems the prefered blonde so far as Menjou is concerned. Kathryn is suing her husband, Ira Hill, a New York photographer, for divorce, and meanwhile is seen constantly with Menjou, who has now obtained his divorce.

Charlie Murray, the comedian, is now in the ranks of those owning expensive cars. When he was asked if he wasn't going to get a chauffeur to drive it he said: "Why should I? I needed one when I had a cheap car. I want to drive this car myself."

SOUBRETTE

MISS FLORENCE WALTON

She's in "Princess Flavia," wherein her duties call upon her to sing and to dance in the rôle of the girl who has to listen to the heroine's confidences. . . . Miss Walton was here last year in "June Days." And she is a native of Englewood.

Who's King, Queen of the Movies Now?

By Mae Tinee.

with the fragrance of their expensive perfumes and powders, and its supposed silence shattered by the yappings of coddled canines who resent one another's presence quite after the manner of the fluttery females to whom they belong.

These ladies, each supposedly in a state of physical disrepair, give no signs of being unhealthy. Which is, no doubt, one reason why the doctor's wife finds her nose a bit out of joint most of the time. The one of her husband's patients she prefers least of all is a certain extremely wealthy countess who is panting to donate a hospital and grounds to her husband, but demands that the dear doctor accompany her to the proposed location—which means quite a trip—a deux.

"I want to go, too," says the doctor's wife.

"But you simpally cawn't, my love, my life," says the doctor.

Mrs. Rittenhaus hies her to the faithful bosom of one of those dear old family retainers who have been with the family for generations. You read a lot about these old family retainers, but in reality they're as rare as King Tuts. Aren't they?

Well, Mrs. Rittenhaus hies her to her dear old nurse, who is right there with comfort and a solution. She tells her pet that she helped her mother (Laura's mother) out of a similar predicament in years gone by.

The doctor goes on with preparations for his journey. He tells his pretty wife that he will leave her in charge of his old college chum—a Dr. Tanzer.

Another Flirting Doctor.

What Dr. Rittenhaus doesn't know is that Dr. Tanzer, while undoubtedly a good doctor and a good college chum, had turned out to be not the best friend in the world. To be perfectly frank, he had kissed Mrs. Rittenhaus behind the ear when she had been expecting her husband to kiss her there. And he had laughed to scorn her vituperations and warnings to tell her husband.

"But I WILL tell him!" had said that lady. Husband arriving upon scene, she had remarked: "What would you think about a man's best friend who makes love to the man's wife when the man isn't looking?"

The doctor had replied, laughing easily: "I would think that the wife had given the best friend encouragement."

You see——?

Anyhow—just before the doctor leaves he finds a letter that makes him exceedingly uneasy regarding his wife. So uneasy that instead of leaving one best friend to guard the dear he delegates THREE of them for the job.

He arrives home to discover that all men are alike and that it is a foolish husband who goes away on trips and leaves his wife at home.

As screened, "For Wives Only" is farce comedy and nothing but that. But it moves right along, is attractively staged, nicely acted, and pretty well subtitled and directed.

Doctors' wives, I should think, would take to it greatly. One often wonders what the wife of a popular physician thinks about.

See you tomorrow!

CONFEREES FACE CRISIS IN RADIO BILL SITUATION

Tangle Worse than When Session Ended.

BY FRANK HINMAN.

[Radio Editor.]

The congressional committee of five representatives and three senators which meets in Washington tomorrow in an effort to draw up a compromise radio bill for submission to congress will find itself facing a much more critical situation than existed when the session ended last spring without any radio legislation being passed.

At that time, with radio under the control of the department of commerce, there were slightly more than 500 radio stations on the air, a large majority of them low powered transmitters on the lower wave lengths. The conference committee, however, will be greeted with a rather imposing list of more than 600 stations—how many more it is hard to estimate. Last week the addition of ten new stations brought the total to 605, the greatest total ever reached, and as numerous others have announced their intention of going on the air the list undoubtedly will be much higher.

Hoover Predicts Chaos.

The increase of the number of stations, however, tells only part of the story. When the department of commerce relinquished supervision of the broadcasting field, numerous stations, dissatisfied with the wave lengths which had been assigned them, jumped to more advantageous bands. Other stations increased their power, while the new stations took any wave length and began using any power that pleased them, so that even in the summer there was confusion and Secretary Hoover predicted that chaos would result.

Many radio listeners believe the test has come and gone, but, as a matter of fact, it will probably be several weeks—at least until we get some good cold nights—before it can be definitely determined whether Secretary Hoover's prediction was a false alarm.

Reports of Interference.

The few cold nights we experienced last week have already brought reports of interference from distant stations and with more than 600 stations attempting to use the 89 wave bands available there undoubtedly will be many more when cold weather sets in in earnest.

The practice of stations contemplating the use of another wave length has been to take one in use by a station in some distant city. New York stations have taken wave lengths used by Chicago or other middle western stations. Chicago stations have taken the wave lengths of Pacific or Atlantic coast stations while northern and southern stations have taken each other's wave lengths.

In the summer, when distant reception is exceedingly poor, the use of the same wave length by stations a thousand miles apart was not very noticeable, but experts say it is bound to cause trouble when cold weather sets in. They point out that the programs of many stations are certain to be distorted by the signals of distant stations on the same, or approximately the same, wave length, but none will predict what effect it will have on the broadcasting situation.

Government officials state that it is a little too early to say just how much interference will be caused by the new station and the ones which have increased their power and jumped their wave length, but they admit they are watching the situation with considerable interest.

The salvation of the entire radio industry depends in a large measure on what action congress takes in the matter of radio legislation, and broadcasting is the heart of the radio industry. The limiting of the number of stations on the air has long been conceded by radio experts to be the solution of the broadcasting problem, and the present situation is bound to bring it very forcibly to the attention of the conference committee when it meets tomorrow.

SUZANNE ON AIR

SUZANNE LENGLEN.

SUZANNE LENGLEN, tennis queen of the world, makes her first appearance in Chicago next Wednesday evening, when she will be interviewed over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

The famous French woman, who left the amateur tennis ranks and turned professional at the instance of C. C. Pyle, is engaged in her first tour of America, and she is making the W-G-N studio atop the Drake her initial port of call in Chicago.

In answer to an announcement over W-G-N, listeners are already pouring in questions which Quin Ryan will serve to the champion of the clay courts when he quizzes her before the "mike" next Wednesday evening. The appeal has been directed mainly to women listeners, and Suzanne will be called upon to divulge her health, beauty, and tennis secrets for the benefit of the radio audience.

Mlle. Lenglen is acknowledged to be the greatest woman tennis player the world has seen. Her interview over W-G-N will be her first radio appearance in America. She will go on the air at 10:40 p. m.

OHIO STATE IN ILLINI CLASH NEXT W-G-N STUNT

W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, approaches the climax of its season of football broadcasting with the presentation next Saturday afternoon of the clash between Ohio State and Illinois direct from the Memorial stadium in Champaign.

Following the Ohio State-Illinois game Quin Ryan will spend a week tuning up his voice for the following Saturday's broadcast of the Army-Navy game. By a strange turn of fate, the result of the Army-Navy game, while always an important contest, will be of a decisive nature in determining where national football honors for the year will fall.

This is the first time that the annual gridiron struggle of America's future admirals and generals has been played west of the Alleghenies, and W-G-N is making every effort to see that not a single item of the colorful scene will be lost. The entire student bodies of both academies are coming to Chicago for the game, and the spectacle promises to be one of the greatest Chicago has ever seen.

Today's professional football game between the Chicago Bears and the powerful Milwaukee team will be broadcast by W-G-N, starting at 2:05 o'clock, direct from Cubs park, home of the Bears. In next Sunday's game, which W-G-N is also to broadcast, Paddy Driscoll will lead the Bruins against the Green Bay Packers. In a previous game the Packers held the Bears to a scoreless tie, the only blot on the otherwise perfect record the league leading north side team has hung up this year. While the tie has no effect on league standings, the Bears are determined that it will not happen again.

Wonderful new Loud Speaker

You've no idea what a difference the Acme makes!

"I THOUGHT I was getting the best possible reproduction out of my set. But I found I really had no idea how clearly it could reproduce music, until I got your new Acme Loud Speaker. It certainly makes a surprising difference..."

The wonderful new Acme Loud Speaker successfully reproduces voices and music in your own home as clearly as they were originally created in the broadcasting studio. It reproduces the voice of the singer in all its thrilling, tender beauty. It brings out the different personality in each voice, so that you can tell one voice from another. It recreates orchestral music so clearly that you can hear each instrument playing. It reproduces low notes and tones as clearly as high notes and tones. You hear the bass and treble, harmony and melody.

All this was not done in a moment, Acme engineers worked five years and made 256 experimental speakers, before they arrived at the new Acme Enclosed Free Edge Cone and Acme Reproducing Unit, which together are responsible for this great increase in radio enjoyment.

Acme K-3 Enclosed Single Free Edge Cone Speaker, (shown above). Diameter of cone, 11 ins. Green bronze metal case. Price: $18.50

Acme K-1 Enclosed Double Free Edge Cone Speaker. Diameter of cone, 14 ins. Tan metal case. Price: $25.00

Acme Enclosed Free Edge Cones and Acme Reproducing Units, (Designed for use exclusively with the free edge cone) eliminate resonance and preserve the tones, pure, round and clear. A fixed edge cone, to produce the same results, would have to be three times the diameter, too clumsy for your living-room. High notes are reproduced toward the center of the cone; low notes, toward the edge. The laws of vibration make it possible to produce low notes with a small cone, provided the edge is free and enclosed, and provided the reproducing unit is especially designed for use with a free edge cone.

"WILLIAM TELL," DAMROSCH TREAT ON WGN PROGRAM

Overture to Be Played Saturday Night.

The composer, Rossini, whose William Tell overture will be played by the New York Symphony society at 8 o'clock next Saturday over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel has at least one little point in common with the conductor of the symphony, Walter Damrosch. When he, Rossini, stopped writing opera he stopped for a very long period; in fact, he stopped until he died. Thirty-nine operaless years passed between the production of "William Tell" and the death of Rossini. For some reason, never completely explained by those who write of this great Italian composer, he never turned his mind to writing musical-drama after this his greatest achievement.

Of course Walter Damrosch has a long time to go before he even thinks of death since he is physically, as well as musically, in his prime. Yet the parallel exists between these two great artists for Mr. Damrosch has let many years go by without writing an opera.

Last Opera in 1913.

His second musical-drama was performed at the Metropolitan opera in 1913 and thirteen years have passed without his composing another. Like Rossini he has been a very active man in other lines of music but while Rossini turned his attention to music of a religious nature, Damrosch has given his time to the task of making America the world's greatest music center.

However, there is still a great possibility Mr. Damrosch's work on the air may prove the inspiration from which another great opera may spring for radio and broadcasting is great enough to inspire another opera so new and so great that the critics of the world will acclaim it as the musical spirit of America.

Four Nations in Program.

In using the William Tell overture in this broadcast Damrosch has selected a musical stand-by that thousands of those that listen in will learn the name of one of the musical selections that is played the world over in motion picture as well as vaudeville theatres.

The other three numbers of his program of the fifth Balkite Hour will be less familiar to his audience. He has assembled for this occasion a musical league of nations: France, Germany and Russia. France will be represented by both Debussy and Pierne; Russia by Glazounow, while Germany's representation will be Wagner.

TRAINED TURKEY TO GOBBLE FOR WBBM LISTENERS

One turkey will be saved from the Thanksgiving day slaughter. While other turkeys lie in succulent state on the festive platter this turkey may be gobbling both a protest and a Thanksgiving hymn through the radio sets of the country.

A week ago WBBM, the Stewart-Warner Air Theater, sent out a request for a "mike trained" turkey who would gobble on signals and would broadcast the proper atmosphere for a Thanksgiving dinner.

There came a letter from Dean M. Hewit of David City, Neb., offering a thirty-five pound gobbler, appropriately named "Mike," who is guaranteed to gobble when a polka dotted handkerchief is waved at him. Negotiations are now being carried on to train "Mike" to appear before the microphone on Thanksgiving day.

Hempel on Air Tonight

FRIEDA HEMPEL.

THE opportunity to hear the greatest artists of the opera and concert stage over the radio, at all times and in all places, makes America the ideal place to learn the art of song, according to Frieda Hempel, noted soprano, who will broadcast in the Atwater Kent series over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel tonight.

"There is no need of dashing off to Europe the moment one begins to practice scales," she says. "Some of the greatest teachers in the world are right here in America, and most of them are Americans. I do not under estimate the good that Europe can do. Europe has centuries of music behind it and Europeans go to the opera as we go to the movies. Here, through the radio, the opera is brought right into the home."

Frieda Hempel is a native of Leipzig. She made her operatic debut in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" in 1905.

RADIO SCHOOLS NOW GREAT AID TO U. S. FARMERS

U. S. Stations Co-operating in Education.

BY S. R. WINTERS.

A radio receiving set is to be installed in every rural schoolhouse in Connecticut, 112 vocational teachers scattered throughout Arkansas will assemble farmers in as many rural schoolhouses to participate regularly in the United States Radio Farm school, and every schoolroom in Atlanta, Ga., is to be equipped with a radio loud speaker.

These are among the striking tendencies of radio to form an affinity with education; symptoms which were observed by Sam Pickard, chief of radio service of the United States department of agriculture, who recently returned to Washington from an automobile trip of approximately 10,000 miles, extending through twenty-four states. Moreover, he reports, more than 100 radiocasting stations have definitely agreed to participate in the United States Radio Farm school, which opened Oct. 4, 1926, and extends to May 20, 1927.

Most Stations Coöperating.

"Practically all of the radiocasting facilities of the United States, representing millions of dollars investment," Mr. Prichard said, "have been placed at the disposal of the department of agriculture for dispatching to farmers by radio the interesting, concise, and pertinent information at their disposal. Without exception, both the small and large commercial stations, as well as the college radiocasting stations, in the east, south, and middle west, all expressed themselves as anxious and grateful for the opportunity to coöperate to the fullest extent in radiocasting farm information."

Three special feature writers will assist Mr. Pickard in this gigantic educational project to reach by radio a potential audience of 1,000,000 farmers.

"I know of no field into which educational agencies have entered that offers keener competition than that of radio," asserts Mr. Pickard in suggesting the function of these special feature writers to dramatize agricultural information to be imparted through the medium of the United States Radio Farm school.

"The day has passed when the mediocre speaker can hold a radio audience. The lecture of long difficult words and sentences must give way to the more friendly natural dialogue presented by effective radio voices. Until educational institutions value the effectiveness of radio instruction highly enough to finance adequately a competent staff, trained in the technique of radiocasting, they cannot expect successfully to utilize this new invention, probably the greatest boon to education since the printing press was invented.

Radio Aiding Farmers.

"Radio on the farm is yielding more dollars and cents return on the investment, developing a more prosperous American agriculture, and bringing about a better contented, understanding class of farmers than any other single scientific contribution of the age."

The dramatization of facts is illustrated in service No. 1 of the United States radio farm school, known as noon farm flashes—a fifteen minutes, five day a week, noonday program of interest, holding dialogue which no farm family is likely to tune out. The farmer, a good friendly personality, comes in at noon, gives his farm agent a telephone ring, and tells him his troubles. The listener will hear both sides of an intelligent, interesting conversation — questions and answers bearing on the most timely current farm problems, as well as "small talk," humor, and gossip. On Thursday there will be a so-called primer for town farmers—subjects of particular interest to urban dwellers, such as "Care of Golf Grenes," "Lawns," "The City Garden," "Flower Culture," "Pruning Shrubs and Trees," "Perch Boxes," and "Landscaping."

A farmer in the backwoods of Arkansas who told Mr. Pickard that he would not swap his radio set for a "gold guinea" was speaking with greater levity than he realized. This farmer, deep in the woods, away from railroads and other avenues of travel, probably typifies the average American rural home where antenna masts point skyward. Old time fiddling, Hawaiian music, and old time songs are of primary appeal to the farm radio fan, but Mr. Pickard found that if market quotations or other agricultural information was tied in with his agricultural operations that even entertainment received secondary consideration.

SAMUEL A. ELIOT TO BE TONIGHT'S SPEAKER AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Samuel A. Eliot, son of the late Charles W. Eliot, is the speaker scheduled for the main meeting of the Sunday Evening club tonight, to be broadcast by KYW. He intends to speak of the life and work of Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing, who, for many years before his death, was the friend of unfortunate prison inmates.

The story of the fight against leprosy, as told by Miss Lulu D. Ervin, western representative of the American Mission to Lepers, will be broadcast at 7 o'clock.

Horace W. Armstrong, a trustee of the club, will read the scripture, and an interesting feature of the music program will be the presentation by the choir of 100 of Stanley Martin's "Festival te Deum," which will be sung for the first time.

Arrangements have been completed so that persons who are turned away from the club from time to time for lack of room can still hear the services. These persons are invited to visit the Marble room of the Blackstone hotel, where services can be heard over the radio.

Holland Will Open Radiogram Service to N. Y.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Nov. 13.—Messages between Holland and the United States will be handled via radio from Amsterdam to New York after Monday, according to the Dutch postmaster general's announcement today.

MORE IMPORTANT CHAMBER RADIO EVENTS FORECAST

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The successful broadcasting of an early fall program of chamber music from the especially constructed auditorium of the library of congress in Washington, at which Alfred Cortot, pianist, and Joseph Szgetti, violinist, were heard, is the forerunner of more such concerts on the air.

On this occasion were present Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge of Pittsfield, Mass., founder of the famous music festivals given annually in the Berkshires, but which are now heard in the national capital.

To make this possible, Mrs. Coolidge, with the authorization of congress, provided funds for the building of a special auditorium in connection with the music division of the congressional library and an endowment to secure the services of the best artists. The auditorium cost about $90,000.

Although it was the original plan to broadcast these congressional library chamber music concerts widely, last winter's efforts to do so did not prove a success, but this winter, with the coöperation of WRC, a wider dissemination of the programs, which are of the rarest type of classical music, is expected. They will be announced from time to time as scheduled.

Seaplanes in Panama Flight to Have Sets

The Navy Department recently announced that the two P. N.-10 seaplanes which will make the flight from Hampton Roads to Panama will be equipped with radio equipment to enable them to keep in touch with guard ships and shore radio stations all along the 1,789 mile route. The equipment will have a daylight transmitting range of from 250 to 400 miles. At no time will the two planes be more than 200 miles from the coast or from islands.

FAMED ARTISTS FOR NATIONAL'S DEBUT TOMORROW

Opera and Stage Celebrities to Contribute.

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A four hour radio performance given by great stars of the opera, the stage, and the concert hall on Monday will introduce the National Broadcasting company to the American public. The program, announced today, will bring together a gathering of artists never before assembled for one evening on the air.

The artists are: Mary Garden, Will Rogers, Titta Ruffo, Weber and Fields, the New York Symphony orchestra with Walter Damrosch, Harold Bauer, the New York Oratorio society with Albert Stoessel, the Edwin Franko Goldman band, a grand and light opera company, both under the direction of Caesare Sodero; Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, George Olsen and his music, Ben Bernie and his orchestra, and B. A. Rolfe and his orchestra.

Mary Garden and Will Rogers will be miles away from the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City, where the majority of the artists will appear before the microphone. Nevertheless, their program will be "picked up" and relayed to New York, where it will flow along the circuit connecting the chain of stations broadcasting simultaneously.

Mary to Sing Here.

Mary Garden will sing from Chicago, in all probability before a microphone installed in her apartment hotel studio. Will Rogers, who is making a concert tour of the west and southwest, will be in Independence, Kas., on this night and will have his voice relayed from there at the conclusion of his concert.

All arrangements have been completed with the artists, and each one is anxiously awaiting the night of their "air appearance" on this stellar program. Weber and Fields are making their radio debut, having never before appeared before the microphone.

The program will be broadcast by WEAF and WJZ in New York City, linked together with the following stations: WEEI, Boston; WBZ, Springfield, Mass.; WTAG, Worcester; WTIC, Hartford; WGR, Buffalo; WLIT, Philadelphia; WRC, Washington, D. C.; WCSH, Portland, Me.; WCAE and KDKA, Pittsburgh; WGY, Schenectady; WTAM, Cleveland; WWJ, Detroit; KSD, St. Louis; WOC, Davenport; WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul, and WDAF, Kansas City. It is expected that additional stations will be added to this list. Broadcasting by these stations will begin simultaneously at 8 o'clock, New York time, with the exception of WDAF, Kansas City, Mo., which will join the chain an hour later. The program will continue until midnight.

Opens New Epoch.

"The 'open night' program to be given next Monday evening," states Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company, "is intended not only to mark the formal entry of the National Broadcasting company into the radio broadcasting field, but to present to the radio audience a glimpse of the goal which we will strive to reach in the presentation of programs under our supervision. It will be a demonstration also of the splendid coöperation which artistic and musical interests are now freely giving for radio broadcasting. We hope that this program will prove to be educational as well as entertaining, as it is our earnest desire to evolve programs containing both of these essential factors."

QUEEN SEES IN RADIO BIG AID TO ROUMANIA

Manifests Keen Interest in Industry.

"Queen Marie has already left her mark on radio, just as she has on nearly every other part of the world's daily life." Frank Reichmann, Chicago radio engineer, was not thinking of the recent mixup concerning her appearance on WJZ and twenty-one associated stations when he made this remark, but he was referring to her effect on radio in her home country, Roumania.

"She has always been interested in radio," Mr. Reichmann said. "In fact, she has in her palace one of the few multi-tube sets in Roumania. The sets in general use in the country are used for the most part to bring in German and Italian stations.

"She has long felt the need of a Roumanian broadcasting station, and lately interested a private enterprise in building such a station at Bucharest just before she left. This station will be in operation within two months—in fact, it is being rushed so that Roumanians may entertain her majesty at sea while she is returning to her home land.

"The planned station has shown its reaction on orders for American sets since the entire country is interested in the idea. This means just another commercial link between the two countries, which should eventually result in just the type of friendship that the queen is particularly anxious to further by her visit here."

Queen Marie's comment on radio operation in America has been very terse, but that she has been doing a great deal of thinking about it is a fact that several of her official family have remarked upon. Upon her arrival home she will no doubt give the operators of the station the benefit of her radio experiences here in America.

WGR to Give Queen Book of Applause Letters

As a souvenir of her first scheduled radio talk in this country, Queen Marie will be presented by WGR at Buffalo with a bound volume containing all the letters written into the station about her by listeners.

Message from Alaska to Washington in 98 Minutes

The war department recently succeeded in sending a message from Anchorage, Alaska, to Washington, D. C., in what is believed to be the record time of 98 minutes. It was sent by cable to Seattle and then relayed by the army radio net via San Francisco and Fort Leavenworth.

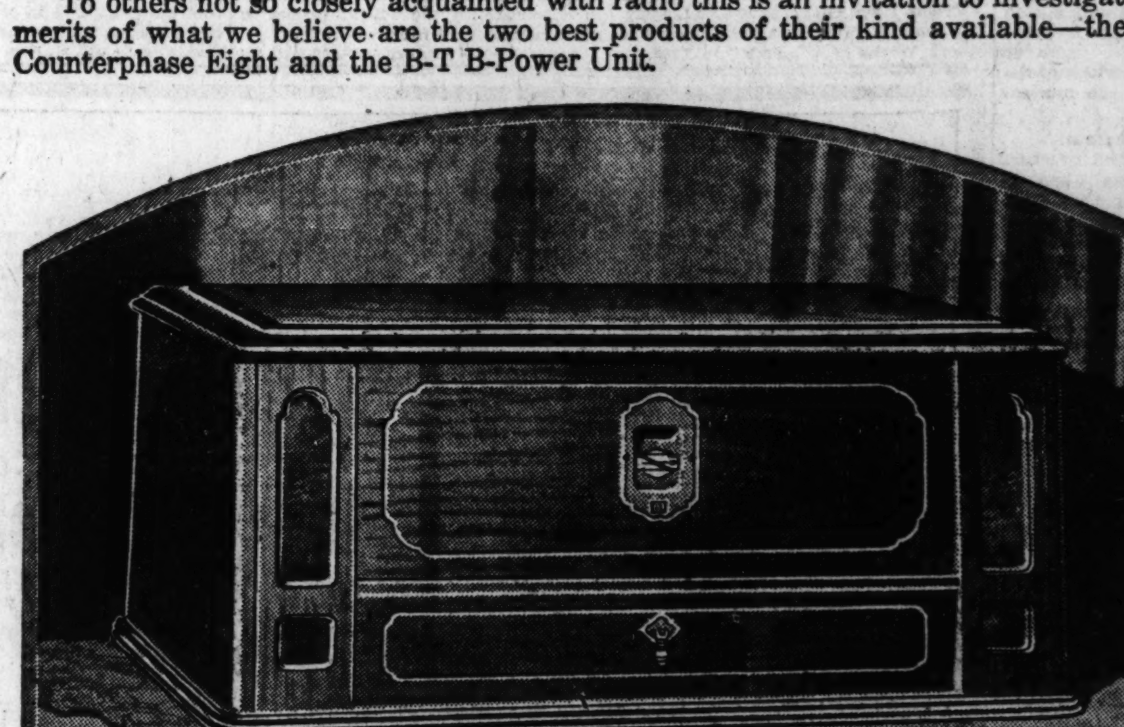
A RADIO SURPRISE

Tribune readers who are radio "fans" need no advertising to tell them of the Bremer-Tully record in radio developments.

They know the history of past successes as well as of the latest accomplishments. The value of their recommendations to friends and neighbors cannot be over-estimated. Their loyalty is based on a faith in the intrinsic merit of B-T products that has never been disappointed.

To them a B-T newspaper ad of this size will no doubt be as great a surprise as a new invention.

To others not so closely acquainted with radio this is an invitation to investigate the merits of what we believe are the two best products of their kind available—the B-T Counterphase Eight and the B-T B-Power Unit.



COUNTERPHASE-EIGHT CABINET MODEL

The Counterphase-Eight is a Receiver in which the pride of ownership grows with each passing week of possession.

We believe it unsurpassed in meeting the difficult requirements of the present and in providing satisfaction for the future.

Its great selectivity is but one of the reasons for the great demand. It requires no log-book to find stations. There are no dial numbers. Stations are read directly in wave-lengths by an exclusively B-T patented method.

The patented Counterphase circuit includes numerous other new features. The Counterphase uses the latest power tubes and allows for the use of your favorite speaker. It is the kind of set that users write testimonials about, and one that must be seen and heard to be appreciated.

Apply for a demonstration with any of the four hundred authorized B-T dealers in Tribune territory.

Your dealers will also tell you why the B-T B-Power Unit is the best investment. It has no knobs to turn—it eliminates guess-work.

Circulars are free on all B-T products. "BETTER TUNING" is a booklet that discusses many subjects in a way you won't find elsewhere. Send 10c for a copy.

RAZOR SHARP SELECTIVITY

Day-Fan

is the Radio Receiver used by Great Broadcasting Stations to listen to their own Programs

If you like music that sounds like music—if you want the voice of the announcer to sound like a human being—if you want crashing volume to dance by, one minute, and soft soothing violin tones the next—if you want a radio that gets a station by turning one dial to its newspaper number—if you want the guarantee of 37 years' electrical experience behind your radio—and if you want the same instrument that is used by the greatest authorities of radio—then it's Day-Fan for you, and nothing else.

Day-Fans are five, six, or seven-tube single dial control receivers in various models with or without self-contained Day-Fan Loud Speaker—moderately priced from $89.00 up.

HOW TO LEARN WHAT AILS SET WHEN IT'S SICK

Diseases Numerous and Some Are Curable.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Lack of operating experience on the part of the user, location, defective accessories, open circuit, short circuit, and high resistance connection are set down by Lee Manley and W. E. Garity, radio engineers, as general causes for failure of radio sets to operate.

Lack of operating experience may be the result of not following out instructions carefully enough, they declared, addressing the Institute of Radio Engineers in New York, the type of building in which the installation is made, the proximity of steel buildings, power lines, trolley and railway lines, and the geological and topographical conditions surrounding the installation are all important factors. Many sets fail or are returned to the dealer as unsatisfactory because of poor antenna and ground installations.

Tubes Cause Trouble.

Open circuits are generally found in the movable connections of the set, such as a condenser pigtail, loop leads, loud speaker leads, and may also result from burned out transformers or from mechanical failures in telephone jacks, rheostats, and switches.

The principal cause of short circuits that occur in the normal operation of a set is in the tubes. If the filament of the tube should break, there is a possibility of its falling in such a way as to cause a short circuit between itself and the plate and grid elements of the tube. When such a fracture of the filament occurs, the voltage of the "B" or "C" battery, as the case may be, is short circuited through the conductors involved.

High Resistance Connection.

The most difficult type of failure to locate is that caused by a high resistance connection. It is not only difficult to locate, but it is difficult to determine. This will cause the set to operate indifferently with rather unsatisfactory results. This condition is sometimes mistaken as location trouble. A high resistance is possible at any connection in the receiver. Soldered connections that are soldered with a corrosive flux that has not been properly treated after the soldering operation are probably the worst offenders. Weak mechanical springs in telephone jacks and switches may also introduce high resistance connections.

The experts then outlined a first aid manual for the treatment of "sick" radio sets that will enable the man who is not a radio engineer and who has only a slight knowledge of the art to recognize the trouble and make the necessary repairs. Sets as a rule do not go bad of themselves. The failure usually occurs while some operation is taking place, such as plugging in the loud speaker, turning the condensers, or making a change in the battery connections.

If the set has been in operation for a month or six weeks and has been giving satisfactory service for that period, the cause of failure is generally due to the weakening of the batteries.

May Be Weak Batteries.

If the set has been in operation for a period of six months or a year, the possibilities of trouble will increase. If the failure in this type of installation has been gradual, the first thought would be that the tubes were becoming deactivated through continual use.

If the breakdown was sudden, a mechanical failure might be expected in one of the movable connections or pigtails. A burned out transformer could be expected in difficulties of this sort. If the trouble is due to a noise condition, the failure might be ascribed to dust or dirt accumulations on the condenser plates or other important parts of the receiver. The defect might also be due to a soldered connection. It will require, as a rule, a rather long period of time for a soldered connection to corrode to such a degree as to cause this condition. The local atmospheric conditions under which the set has been operating may have some bearing on the cause of failure.

If the set has been operating near the seashore and has been subjected to the action of salt atmosphere, it may have caused sufficient corrosion of the connections or other metallic parts to introduce high resistance or leakage path. Moisture may saturate the cheaper grades of insulating material to such an extent as to cause high frequency short circuits.

SHORT WAVES

Finland is expecting to build a 25-kilowatt station, which plan, if realized, will add another powerful unit to the world-wide chain of stations now broadcasting.

Radio licenses in Sweden are increasing at a rate of 4,000 a month.

The designation of seaman radioman has been authorized by the navy.

The German Railroads company uses radio telephony regularly on its Berlin-Hamburg express line.

HOW OFFICIAL CALL LETTERS ARE ASSIGNED

The call letters assigned to the United States in the international system are three and four letter combinations beginning with the letter N and all beginning with the letter W, and all combinations from KDA to KZZ, inclusive. The international call letters assigned to the United States are reserved for government stations and stations open to public and limited commercial service.

All combinations beginning with the letter N are reserved for government stations, and, in addition, the combinations from WUA to WVZ and WXA to WZZ are reserve for stations of the United States army. During the war the combinations of three letters beginning with K, W and N were exhausted, and it was necessary to assign combinations of four letters beginning with K, W and N.

Money Needed to Catch Criminals by Radio

Although the New Jersey legislature has created a commission to consider the use of radio in apprehending criminals the important detail of granting an appropriation to carry on the work has evidently been overlooked.

Smooth silent light socket radio power—permanent and infallible—with Balkite Radio Power Units

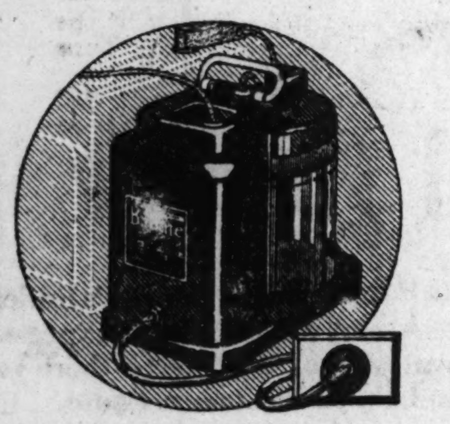
A New Balkite "B" at $27.50

Balkite "B," shown above, eliminates "B" batteries and supplies "B" current from the light socket. Noiseless. Permanent. No bulbs. Nothing to wear out or replace. Over 75,000 Balkite "B"s are today giving satisfactory service. 3 models for all types of sets: Balkite "B"-W at $27.50 for sets of 5 tubes or less requiring 67 to 90 volts. Balkite "B"-X, for sets of 8 tubes or less, including power tubes—$42. Balkite "B"-Y, for any radio set—$69.

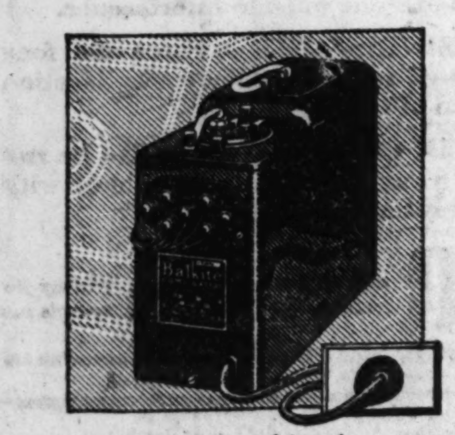
Balkite Trickle Charger—$10

MODEL K, shown above, can be left on continuous or trickle charge thus automatically keeping the battery at full power. Converts your "A" battery into a light socket "A" power supply. Rate about .5 ampere. 200,000 in use. Price $10.



The New Balkite Charger

MODEL J. Has two charging rates: a low trickle charge rate and a high rate for rapid charging and heavy-duty use. Can thus be used either as a trickle or as a high rate charger, and combines their advantages. Noiseless. Large water capacity. Visible electrolyte level. Rates: with 6-volt battery, 2.5 and .5 amperes; with 4-volt battery, .8 and .2 ampere. Special model for 25-40 cycles. Price $19.50.



Balkite Combination

Supplies automatic power to both "A" and "B" circuits. Controlled by the filament switch already on your set. Entirely automatic in operation. A permanent piece of equipment. Employs no tubes. Requires no replacements. Serves any set now using either 4 or 6-volt "A" batteries and requiring not more than 30 milliamperes at 135 volts of "B" current—practically all sets of up to 8 tubes. Price $59.50.

All Balkite Radio Power Units operate from 110-120 volt AC current with models for both 60 and 50 cycles. The new Balkite Charger is also available in a special model for 25-40 cycles.

Over 650,000 radio receivers are today equipped with Balkite light socket Radio Power Units. In the ease of operation which it brings, Balkite, providing radio power to either or both circuits at the turn of a switch, has been one of the greatest contributors to the advance of the radio art.

Originally purchased because of their convenience, Balkite Radio Power Units have become really popular because of performance in the hands of their owners.

Balkite Radio Power Units are noiseless. They have no hum. They convert the alternating current of your lighting circuit into the silent direct current essential for radio reception.

Balkite Radio Power Units are unvarying in output. Once installed, they deliver exactly the current required by your set. They have nothing to adjust or fluctuate, and no dials to complicate tuning.

Again, Balkite Radio Power Units are permanent pieces of equipment. They have nothing to wear out, replace, recharge or renew. They employ no tubes. They require no other attention than the infrequent addition of water. They are built to conform to the Underwriters' requirements. Many of the first Balkite Chargers, purchased over 4 years ago, are still in use.

Likewise, the first Balkite "B," purchased over 3 years ago, is still rendering satisfactory service and will do so for years. To our knowledge not one of 75,000 Balkite "B"s has ever worn out. It is during the third and fourth year that the long-run economy of Balkite becomes evident.

Finally, Balkite Radio Power Units are unfailing in operation. The Balkite principle of Electrolytic Rectification is one of the most important developments in the entire power field. In radio it has led to the development of the first charger that could be used during reception, trickle charging, the first popular light socket "B," and now the new Balkite Combination. In other industries it is used wherever power must be infallible—in the signal systems of railroads, lighting systems of hospitals, emergency power systems of all kinds. The Balkite equipment here selected to protect the public is the same used to provide power to your radio set.

Add one of the Balkite chargers and Balkite "B" to your set now. Or add the new Balkite Combination. Either way will give you the last word in radio convenience and economy and full, silent, unfailing power from the light socket. Ask your dealer. Fansteel Products Co., Inc., North Chicago, Ill.

BEAM RADIO FOR N. Y. AND LONDON PROJECT FOR '27

Depends on Success of Canadian Service.

It is understood that if the Montreal to London beam radio service proves successful the system will be installed between New York and London early next year. When the Canadian service was inaugurated last month messages were sent at a speed of nearly 200 words a minute and instantaneously recorded in the Central telegraph office in London.

The first message that went out from the Canadian metropolis was from Lord Atholstan to Lord Burnham, chairman of the Imperial Press union. This message was sent at 11 o'clock, Montreal time, and was immediately transmitted to Lord Burnham, and his reply was filed with the Central Telegraph office at 4:58 London time, which is five hours later than Montreal time. Before the expiration of a minute the message had been received in the Marconi office in Montreal, decoded and handed to Lord Atholstan.

World's Fastest Wireless.

"The wonder of the beam wireless system seemed greater than had been imagined by newspaper men who had some knowledge of cable work," the Editor and Publisher comments. "The messages are handed to an operator who sits before a Creed perforator which is a peculiar shaped typewriter with an ordinary keyboard. He copies them out, but instead of punching letters on to a continuous tape he punches the Morse code for those letters. This tape is then run into a Wheatstone transmitter at a speed which can be regulated from 20 to 400 words per minute. That transmitter operates the main transmitter at Drummondville by a system of wired wireless controls over Bell telephone wires and from Drummondville the message is sent out instantaneously by the directional beam, and at the same instant is recorded in Bridgewater, Somerset, where the general receiving apparatus is, automatically transferred to the land line of the British general postoffice and recorded in the Central Telegraph office in London.

Method of Operation.

"There is no retransmission of the messages anywhere—immediately the tape goes into the transmitter in Montreal it operates the high speed undulator in London which records the Morse code on a moving tape, which passes in front of an operator at an ordinary typewriter in London who decodes the message as it passes in front of him.

"So far, the highest speed attained by the receiving undulator is 265 words a minute and in order to handle the messages the Marconi company have a corps of typists who take the strips of Morse code as they come in and divide it up into sections. The signals are so intensified by the beam system that no matter how fast they are sent they are recorded on the tape in a readable manner."

WHIST EXPERTS

MRS. E. G. PIMM. H. A. LORICK.

THE fifth of a series of twenty-six radio auction bridge games will be broadcast from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, Tuesday, Nov. 16, at 9 p. m. Each game of the series will feature Milton C. Work and Wilbur C. Whitehead, New York experts, in association with players from cities throughout America and Canada.

The contestants in the present game are H. A. Lorick of Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. Ella G. Pimm of Montreal, Canada, and Mr. Work and Mr. Whitehead.

As a supplement to its series of evening auction bridge games W-G-N, starting Friday, is also to offer a series of afternoon games. During the Friday afternoon contests the experts will be drawn from the long roll of bridge enthusiasts in the states of Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa.

The same methods used in reporting the evening games will be followed in the afternoon series, with the announcer describing the play as it transpires between the experts seated before him. The afternoon games will be broadcast between 3 and 3:30 o'clock. Copies of the games played will be furnished to listeners who request them.

RADIO EXPORTS OF AMERICA LEAD REST OF WORLD

U. S. Ships Equipment to All Nations.

The United States is the world's leading exporter of radio apparatus, its total 1925 shipments of $9,903,857 being $3,407,325 greater in value than the radio exports during that year of the United Kingdom, which was the nearest competitor, according to E. F. Bemis, electrical equipment division, department of commerce. American radio products are making satisfactory progress in the markets of the world with the single exception of Europe, a price market, where the British products have secured a stronger foothold.

Sales of radio apparatus to Europe are largely on a price basis, but the gradual progress of standardization throughout the world is tending to encourage the purchase of high grade radio material, in which the United States specializes rather than equipment at lower prices and quality. The Oceanic and African markets have nearly completed their efforts at radio standardization, and American products are increasing in popularity and demand in those areas. The sale of American equipment predominates in the western hemisphere and in Asia, where American exporters have developed substantial markets for quality products and developed popular confidence in their goods.

England Gets Irish Trade.

The value of direct exports of radio apparatus from the United Kingdom was $6,274,918 and that of re-exports $220,614, making total exports $6,496,532. British exports to Europe, excluding those to the Channel islands, amounted to $2,681,339 during the year and were slightly more than three times the value of American exports to that area. British radio sales to Europe constituted more than 41 per cent of the total British radio exports and over 15 per cent of the total was sent to divisions of the British empire, such as the Irish Free State, Malta, and Gibraltar. The leading European markets for the British exports in 1925 were the Irish Free State, Netherlands, Spain, France, and Sweden, which countries took more than $1,305,949 of the exports from Great Britain during that period.

American shipments of radio to Canada during 1925 reached a total of $3,703,133, as compared with those of the United Kingdom, which were valued at $259,251. American sales to Latin America also greatly exceeded those of the United Kingdom, totaling $1,485,023, as compared with the British figure of $343,317. Mexico purchased $272,135 worth of American equipment, as against $1,713 worth of British apparatus.

U. S. Leads in South America.

United States exports to Central America and the West Indies were more than seven times greater in value than those of the United Kingdom, and sales to South America were more than three times the value of British shipments to that area. British sales in Central America and the West Indies exceeded those of this country only in the British West Indies and the Dutch West Indies, which two groups took about 88 per cent of the British equipment shipped to Central America and the West Indies.

American sales of radio to South America in 1925 were more than treble those of the United Kingdom to that continent and the Falkland islands, although British shipments to British Guiana and Peru exceeded those of the United States to those countries.

American shipments of radio equipment to Asia, excluding those to the Philippine islands, exceeded those of the United Kingdom to the same area by $808,909. British shipments to Asia were valued at $1,497,350, of which over 23 per cent went to divisions of the British empire. Japan was the leading British market, but American sales to that country totaling nearly $726,000 were more than double in value those of the United Kingdom, and, in fact, were greater than the total sales of British radio in Asia. United States exports of radio to the Netherlands' East Indies exceeded those of the United Kingdom, and American exports to the Philippines were valued at $109,030.

MESS OF TROUBLES CAN RESULT FROM OVERCHARGED BATTERY

Overcharging of storage batteries produces excessive gassing and increases the temperature and in general may prove injurious to the batteries, George W. Vinal of the bureau of standards advises.

Some cases of buckling of the plates are to be attributed to overcharging, although this is by no means the only cause of buckling of the plates. Occasional overcharging is beneficial, but habitual overcharge decreases the period of useful service which the battery can give. On the other hand, consistent undercharging results in a gradual running down of the cells. Likewise insufficient charging is also one of the most common causes of buckling of the plates.

Corroded terminals on storage batteries are a hindrance to the passage of the normal amount of current and cracked or broken jars invite the addition of water, which weakens the cell capacity. Impurities in the cells may be eliminated by pouring out the electrolyte and flushing the cells with distilled water. Corrosion of the grid, the reversal of the negative and positive plates, the growth of positive plates, the shrinkage of negatives, and explosions, Mr. Vinal concluded, are the main sources of battery trouble.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

"There's no place like home"—make it true, with radio

"I HARDLY EVER knew where my youngsters were in the evening until we got our radio," says a mother.

Many another parent echoes her words. All kinds of attractions drew the boys and girls away and people had begun to say, "The old-fashioned home has disappeared."

Radio is bringing it back. Among the letters we receive, none are more fervent—more touching—than those from parents telling what Atwater Kent Radio is doing for their home life.

The easiest, surest way of bringing fine diversion for the whole family into your home is through an Atwater Kent Receiving Set and an Atwater Kent Radio Speaker. You will find that Atwater Kent engineering has again improved tone, range and the ability to shut out undesired stations.

The nearest Atwater Kent dealer is a specialist in the home uses of Radio. The programs are at their best now—visit him TODAY.

EVERY SUNDAY EVENING

The Atwater Kent Radio Hour brings you the stars of opera and concert, in Radio's finest program. Hear it at 9:15 Eastern Time, 8:15 Central Time, through:

Sweeps the Air! Gets Them All!

Today there are over 100 broadcasting stations operating on wave lengths below the limits of ordinary receivers, but the Grebe Synchrophase gets them all.

NEW broadcasting stations are being assigned low-wave lengths. Ordinary receivers have to miss 150 or more of these stations. But the Grebe, with about double the ordinary range, gets them all because of its Low-Wave Extension Circuits.

Ask a Grebe dealer for a demonstration of the seven exclusive features of Grebe design from which comes Grebe's remarkable performance.

POLITICS LURES LISTENERS TO ENDURE TALKS

Radio in Campaign Proves an Educator.

Politics, the questionable sister of universal suffrage, has at last accomplished something for which it cannot be denied credit, according to George H. Kiley, an eastern radio expert. It is Mr. Kiley's contention that politics has educated the radio listener not to tune out a station just because a lecture or a talk is scheduled.

Ever since the inception of radio broadcasting, fans have been heard to say, as some one began to talk: "Let him rave, let's try to get a regular program." And then they set the dials about looking for some jazz band, or blue singer.

Thousands Listen In.

The past political campaign has gone a long ways toward correcting this condition, for, as Mr. Kiley claims, there has always been the possibility in the minds of the public that the political speaker, differing from the ordinary run of mortals, might have some dynamite to explode and this possibility, combined with the fact that the public really wanted to know something about the men they were voting for, made thousands of set owners listen to speeches.

Once the idea that the speakers on the air were made to be listened to, not to be tuned out, was established, the radio family also discovered that they enjoyed listening to real lectures and talks. They found information came over the air with much greater ease than it came to you while you were seated at a banquet table or in some uncomfortable seat in a lecture hall.

Whole Family Enjoys Talks.

The family now slips off its shoes, its outer clothing and into slippers and lounging robes, in order that it may comfortably listen to this "prof" and what he has to say for himself.

They've discovered that not every speaker is a bore, and that this part of the radio meal is a very important part of the broadcasting program.

It is politics and electioneering speeches that must receive the credit for educating the public that all is not

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer

THERE are times when we are privileged to sit back and reflect that this radio racket is getting on in years.

Last Thursday night station KYW celebrated its fifth anniversary, and we who remember its first broadcasting days now talk like old timers.

Five years ago, in 1921, the boys used to plant a phonograph in front of the microphone and broadcast the three minute records. Wallie Evans, engineer of KYW, was with the station then, and Sally Menkes and Jun Cook, who was the original "Uncle Bob."

Many a famous name has been associated with the upbuilding and the constant progress of KYW—"Scoop" Weatherbee, "Shorty" Fall of football renown, "Bill" Clark and Frank Haben Clark, his son; "Sen" Kaney, Wendell Hall, the wandering minstrel; "Uncle Bob" Wilson, Father C. J. Pernin, the bookman; Morgan Eastman, Herbie Mintz, and so many others.

Congratulations and a long life to blah that speaks into a microphone. you, boys and girls! Sorry we couldn't attend your party. And we hope we'll be invited to your tenth anniversary blowout!

FOOTBALL IS becoming so prevalent on the radio that we fear for the effect of the cheer leaders on the announcers. In our case, we have agreed raptly on so many Simian cheer leaders from Minneapolis to Philadelphia this fall that we talk and act like them at times.

Almost any night now we expect to hear some well meaning announcer break out with:

Chee-hee. Chee-hee. Chee-hee. Chee-hee.
The next selection's going to be
The Russian etude number nine
By C. Sylvester Rubinstein.

Or maybe:

Breckety—reckety—bing!
Our tenor's going to sing
A little song
That won't be long
And doesn't mean a thing!
Yea!

Or perhaps one like this:

Hickory, dickory, dock!
Why, now it's ten o'clock!
We'll all let out a lusty cheer—
The Sam 'n' Henry boys are here!

And naturally one of these:

Tel-e-gram, tel-e-gram,
Send us a telegram.
Write, listeners, write—write, listeners, write—
Write, write, write!

Or from Washington:

Sizz——boom——ah! [Whistle]
Coolidge is going to talk.
Who?
Coolidge.
Who?
Coolidge.
Cal! Cal! Cal!

THERE WILL BE plenty of good seats for the Army and Navy game—right beside the radiator in front of the loud speaker.

A GENTLEMAN in southern Illinois writes to ask if we can't broadcast the fact that he does "hauling, local and long distance," and states that he will be listening at 10 o'clock for "results." He'll, no doubt, have the loud speaker on the wagon seat, waiting for hot tips or cries of help from benighted folk who are in dire need of general trucking.

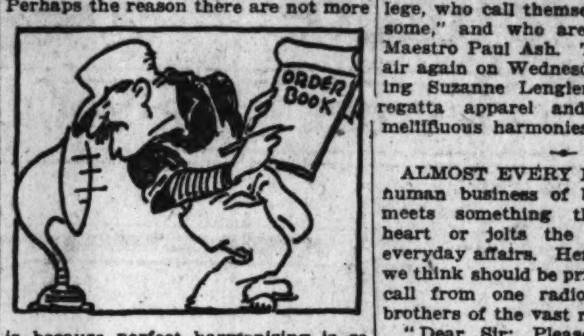
THERE OUGHT TO be more male quartets on the air, don't you think? Perhaps the reason there are not more is because perfect harmonizing is so difficult to attain for the hypercritical microphone, and another reason is that quarteting means the submergence of the individual in the interests of mass production.



Few there are who do not love barber shop harmony. Were you ever in any group of men for a length of time when a foursome didn't automatically collect itself and start to croon, every man for himself, his country, and his flag?

Excellent quartet harmony comes as sweetly over the radio as does excellent dance orchestra music. We encountered a quartet last week which is about as spiffy a group of ensemble yodelers as we've heard. They're college boys from Washington State college, who call themselves "The Foursome," and who are appearing with Maestro Paul Ash. They'll be on the air again on Wednesday night, following Suzanne Lenglen, wearing their regatta apparel and blowing their mellifluous harmonies.

ALMOST EVERY DAY in this very human business of broadcasting one meets something that wrings the heart or jolts the complacency of everyday affairs. Here is a letter that we think should be printed here, a long call from one radio listener to his brothers of the vast radio audience:

"Dear Sir: Please broadcast this letter. I am a disabled war veteran of the world war, having an arm and leg off and other disabilities. Would appreciate corresponding with any one listening in on the air. I am sad and lonely. Yours respectfully, William G. Byrne, Co. 7, National Soldiers' Home, Milwaukee, Wis."

We leave the rest to you.

RADIO MESSAGE TO MARS BRINGS GURGLE REPLY

Once "Got Them" in Trance, Sender Says.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Dr. L. Mansfield Robinson, an income tax official of King George V.'s empire, a doctor of laws, and a psychical research expert, spent seven shillings and six pence (about $1.90) the other night to send a radiogram to the planet Mars from Rugby, Britain's high power station.

The postoffice authorities accepted the message, which read, "Opesti, Nipitia Secomba."

The call to Mars—MMMMMMMMM—repeated nine times, puzzled them.

"We don't know this station, but we'll send it out," they told Dr. Robinson, without a sign of levity. The latter paid for it, and that night several million fans in this country, including Dr. Robinson, waited for a reply to the cryptically drafted message.

Most of them laughed and joked about it, but all of them listened carefully, it seems.

Dr. Robinson claims he had a radio communication with Mars about a year ago, sending and receiving a message while in a trance condition. He described his message as "a language of the brain" and asserted that he understood and was understood by the inhabitants of Mars. He has for long been a radio enthusiast and was assisted by his son, Lieut. L. Robinson, who is a member of the Wireless association.

Undeterred by the fantastic nature of the experiment, a group of wireless experts and journalists actually joined in this supreme act of optimism of the century.

They held a seance during the evening around a special fourteen tube superheterodyne, which was capable of receiving signals on wave lengths of from 30 meters to 40,000 meters. The wireless engineer in charge explored the whole range of wave lengths without producing anything more unusual than a vast quantity of Morse and a variety of weird gurgling noises from the enormous loud speaker in use. Soon after 8 o'clock one of the wireless experts, amid a jam of extraneous noises, declared he heard the letter "M" in Morse on a wave length of 30,000 meters. Two other listeners agreed with him, but the others in the room could distinguish nothing.

Sig. Marconi aroused interest in this experiment some two years ago when he announced that there had been certain disturbances in the ether observed from his yacht Electra, which he thought might be due to planetary influence.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS LINKED BY BEAM RADIO TO RELAY MESSAGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Nov. 6.—An interesting development of the new beam wireless service, enabling direct communication between Australia, America, and Europe, will be the comprehensive organization and linking of the islands of the southern Pacific and stations of Australia, enabling messages to other parts of the world to be relayed.

It is expected that the Amalgamated Wireless company, in which the commonwealth government has fifty and the Marconi company twenty per cent interest, will control the stations in the Fiji and other islands and organize a network of communication between every important British commercial and stragetic center in the Pacific, which will be invaluable in the event of future Pacific difficulties.

It is understood that the Australian government is prepared to coöperate with the United States, providing communication with the Philippines, Guam, Hawaii, Samoa, and other American possessions in the Pacific and protection of common interests.

IT took seven years of ceaseless experiment to produce the Farrand Speaker.... That's why it takes but a moment to sense its superiority. Listen! Compare!—at your dealer's today.

BACK of the Farrand Speaker is the enthusiastic endorsement of over half a million nightly listeners, reflecting a public preference that is spreading countrywide.... The Ear says Buy!

Senior Model, $32.50. Junior Model, $16.50.

Festive Occasions Crowd the Calendar

By Mme. X.

SUCH a hullabaloo as has escorted November so far: What with queens of society and real live queens of ancient dynasties appearing in our midst; what with people returning to town from distant lands and nearby country estates; what with balls and banquets ahead for the nation's two great defense forces and the struggle to secure tickets for the year's most notable football match—well, the town just doesn't know whether it is on its head or its heels; that is, of course, that part of our three million and then some inhabitants who are involved in these various festivities don't know. There are, of course, at least three million who are not directly concerned in these plans and problems, though the rest of them may perhaps all take an interest as to whether or not Mayor Dever kissed Queen Marie's hand yesterday. You all know by the time these lines reach you just how our municipal chief comported himself, and it is safe to prophesy that it was in a manly, dignified, and suitable manner.

A Young and Playful People.

I don't think that all the fuss made about royalty means that we, votaries of the great god Demos, are really attracted by the monarchical system. We're simply a young, playful people who just revel in doing something gay and colorful, just as the advent of a circus means more to a rural community than the arrival of the greatest living scholar. When we, as a nation, assembled and sent forth our young men nine years ago "to make the world safe for democracy" we did not bind ourselves not to get what fun we could out of any wandering royalty that might in the future come our way. To our critics, and they are many and right in our midst, this col. ventures to suggest as a thought and a reminder that after all we Americans invented advertising. It is one of our greatest businesses.

If Queen Marie has any sense of humor—and after reading her book of fairy stories I am sure that she has—she must be getting a lot of fun out of this tour. So will future historians. Europe is in too serious a state of mind to smile easily, but when it has time to look west it's a safe bet that it giggles a little.

Meanwhile let us hope that Chicago will put her best foot forward for the next two weeks. We do so want to make a good impression on our various visitors. Ours is a fairly decent young metropolis, barring some of our specialties like smoke, beer gangs, and local politics.

Reason to Be Proud.

We are still much in the making, but there are some features far enough along in their development to give the intelligent observer an idea of the vision of that city beautiful which has for three decades been in the minds of the planners and workers who are responsible for what has already been accomplished and for what is yet to be done. For instance, there is the Clarence Buckingham memorial fountain in Grant park, which is now emerging from its primeval rock and taking shape and form. I don't believe that many of my fellow citizens have the remotest idea what a wonderfully beautiful adornment Chicago is to have in this, the most superb of its kind to be found today on this round old globe of ours. It outranks the famous Versailles fountains, Neptune and Latona. Also the Schoenbrunn at Vienna, the Trevi at Rome, the Peterhof at Leningrad. When it is finally completed and all its soaring sprays are in action Chicago will possess the most striking and exquisite spectacle of any American city.

A thousand tons of rosy Georgia marble have gone into its construction, marble on which nature and the action of countless ages of grinding force have traced charming designs of torrents, forests, rushing winds, and turbulent seas. Our fountain measures 300 feet across the lowest of its three basins. Its total height is 30 feet, though it seems much higher from the floor of the first basin up to that graceful topmost bowl standing on its squared and tapering dark red pillars. There are 73 jets of water spouting from the main fountain. Up and up the water will spring, leaping from pool to pool until it reaches the topmost one, whence it can soar skyward 90 feet. Springing from basin to basin, in exquisite delight, ever upward, shimmering, sparkling, it will reach the top only to fall back again over the thick, round lips of the big basins and the shell-shaped little basins, until it returns to its source, only to be thrown up again. Four groups of rearing bronze horses are to adorn the large lower pool. Hidden electric lights are to throw rainbow colors up and through or on to the springing waters, so that at night the effect from Michigan avenue or adjacent outlooks will be an ecstasy of colorful delight. Verily, I know of nothing that will equal it in any city of today.

It is the gift of Miss Kate Buckingham, in memory of her brother, the late Clarence Buckingham, and is the creation of Edward H. Bennett, assisted by Jacques Lambert, the noted French artist, and Marcel Loyau, sculptor of the horses. It is well worth your while to make your way across that still unfinished stretch of land and make a close inspection of the work at its present stage, as did the writer recently on a chill November day.

Honored by the Government.

Chicago owes more than it realizes to Mr. Bennett, who has been the artistic force animating that fine group of men interested in city planning and in making out of our utilitarian western metropolis a community where beauty was an inspiring force and an actual possession. Mr. Bennett is responsible for the design of the boulevard link bridge and for the adornment of the river's southern bank with that stately two story highway where Chicago's first highway, old South Water street, used to ramble along. What would the first white inhabitants of Chicago who trod that river path think could they return and see its present spacious beauty, its thronging traffic?

Mr. Bennett has been lately promoted to one of the most important posts, esthetically speaking, in the country, as far as controlling the outward aspect of Washington, D. C., is considered. He is now the personal representative of the secretary of the treasury on the art commission committee of public works at the national capital. This means that he is really the chief directing force in city planning, which is going on there as briskly as ever it has done here.

It is a job whose only emolument is honor. He is what we Americans call "a dollar a year man," a high class patriotism hard to match in other lands.

Another fellow citizen of ours, Charles S. Dewey, second assistant secretary of the treasury, is much interested in the work of this commission, and it was through him that Mr. Mellon came to ask Mr. Bennett to undertake this work. It already necessitates frequent trips to Washington, and may in time require an extended stay there for Mr. Bennett.

The two Chicago men who are in Washington as first and second assistant secretaries of the treasury, Maj. Garrard Winston and Mr. Dewey, have made a success there both in their jobs and in that brilliant, varied and cosmopolitan social life which makes Washington the cynosure of the rest of the country.

Striving for Earlier Hours.

In view of the fact that the season of balls and dinner dances is at hand, it is apropos to call attention to a movement started by some of our best known social leaders to have the dancing begin earlier and, if possible, end earlier. The Chicago Assemblies, which might be called our most distinguished social function, sends out invitations this season to its customary two balls, the first on Friday, Dec. 10, and the second Friday, Jan. 14, and incloses a little card saying: "It is requested that guests arrive not later than eleven-thirty," and signed "The Governors." It will be interesting to note the attention paid to this entirely reasonable request. It is to be hoped that the suggestion will be heeded. The late hours which have been prevailing the last decade are sufficient to keep many a desirable and attractive youth from going to balls.

With American young men, business comes first. Europeans, especially the folk of the Latin races, feel that civilization is to be measured by the hours kept; the later the hours, the higher the civilization. That may be true in Europe, but here we of the west are yet in the young and hard working period of the nation. The hours after midnight have to be paid for, if used for gayety, with brain fag and bodily inertia the following day. I know that a hostess feels that the later her guests stay the more they have enjoyed themselves. But if they can be made to come early, and not, as is now the custom, to have dinner dances before the ball, they will give her just as much of their society as if they came late and stayed until cockcrow.

It is a valiant effort on the part of some of our best known and most popular hosts and hostesses, but I doubt if it succeeds. Hot and headstrong youth has never yet taken the advice of the generation ahead. "Let us eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we will get as easily tired as our elders!" Besides, if smart folk keep late hours in London, Paris, and New York, how provincial of Chicago to get up early and go to bed early! Let us be cosmopolitan even if it kills us.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

first visit to Chicago of the United States Corps Cadets, U. S. M. A., and the Regiment of Midshipmen, U. S. N." As it will be just after the great game at Soldiers' field it will be an occasion of high jollification. It will be brilliant with uniforms, and the matrons and maids present will have to wear their most dazzling costumes to compete with the army and navy men present.

A few days later, on Dec. 3, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Motley Viles are giving a debut ball at the Blackstone for their lovely young daughter, Miss Glee-Louise Viles. This is sure to be a gay and charming ball. The personality of host and hostess always permeate any entertainment, no matter how numerous a company may be. A stodgy or self-distrustful host and hostess will give a stodgy, awkward ball. The ball given by a host and hostess who are gay and light hearted will have the same qualities. That's the kind that the parents of Miss Glee-Louise Viles will give.

The American debutante is an institution without parallel in other lands. In England and continental countries the young girl on the threshold of grownupness is introduced to her mother's friends and goes to balls and big parties more or less under her mother's wing. She is, of course, much emancipated nowadays, but even this emancipation doesn't give her the social importance of her American cousin. By the way, I am told on good authority that in New York that old and somewhat moth eaten institution, the chaperon, is being taken out, brushed up, and renovated. If this be true, it shows that the pendulum has begun its swing the other way. How far it will go it is not now possible to foretell. Probably not to the extent where the simpering, shy, foolish young thing will return to society with the female dragon guarding her from the assaults of licentious man.

To Entertain the Queen.

To return for a moment to that vigorous, energetic, and interesting royal guest who, with a suite of sixty, arrived by a round about route from Roumania yesterday. One of the many entertainments provided for her is a special performance of the Bolm Ballet of the Chicago Allied Arts tonight at the Eighth Street theater at half past nine o'clock. The program will include several numbers recently given at the opening of the Allied Arts' season, and also there will be a special Russian Carnival staged by Adolph Bolm and the ballet.

The invitations read: "In Honor of her Majesty, the Queen of Roumania, and their Royal Highnesses, Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana, the Chicago Allied Arts, Inc., invites" and so forth. (That "Inc." always intrigues me. It comes out a little like a hiccough.) A list of names of fifty prominent people, beginning with that of our mayor, and including a lot of our social lights, accompanies the invitation. The occasion is almost the only one that can be called an opportunity for the public to get a close-up of the royal party, as all of the other elaborate and numerous engagements made for the queen and her escort are of a private, or semi-private nature, with the exception of the gala performance of the opera on Tuesday evening. But the Auditorium is such a big place that most of those there present who want to scan the beautiful features which have gained Queen Marie such a world wide reputation will have to do so with opera glasses.

An Explorer at 14.

A bright and interesting little book, product of a Chicago lad, is Kennett Longley Rawson's story of his polar experiences with Commander Donald B. MacMillan's expedition last year as cabin boy. The account of his impressions and adventures is published under the engaging title of "A Boy's-Eye View of the Arctic." Kennett is a son of the well known banker, Frederick H. Rawson. The lad was 14 when he started off on this momentous experience. His parents must be a stout hearted pair to speed their young hopeful off to what are still bleak and dangerous regions, where possible death and certain hardships are the everyday lot of even the most up to date expeditions. Surviving these, a youth like Kennett Rawson is not unlikely to develop a passion for such explorations hard to satisfy.

Another book, product of a well known and popular member of Chicago's beau monde, which has had a great success since it came out a year ago, is Mrs. J. Allen Haines' "Tried Temptations." Mrs. Haines is noted for a real genius for devising rare and choice dishes that would make the mouth of old Lucullus, himself, water with anticipation, could he study the little book. I don't know how many editions she has put out, but she is publishing the very last one now. After this the value of these booklets will rise as time goes on and the hard handed genus that rules our kitchens shall have worn out what now exist.

The Haineses have taken what sounds like a quite new and delightful style of habitation in New York. They call it a pent house. It is on the roof of a new apartment building at 19 East Eighty-fourth street. It has a garden on three sides of it, a garden adorned with a fountain and a pergola. The dwelling itself is T shaped and has a large living and dining room with a great open fireplace. The furnishings of the sky-high abode are of early American—what is known as Salem furniture.

How those Pilgrim Fathers and those Puritan dames would gasp and shiver could they stand on the top of a New York skyscraper and see their rag rugs, their quaint and cherished china, their mahogany and maple beds, cupboards, chairs and tables in use high up above the good, solid, trustworthy earth. Mr. and Mrs. Haines are coming to Chicago for a five or six weeks' sojourn, arriving here Dec. 15.

Chicago to Have a Salon.

I am asked to make a mention of a new "cultural" enterprise in Chicago to be known as "The Salon of Fine Arts." Its mission, according to a little circular, is to establish "an American salon, a rendezvous where famous wits, brilliant writers, talented musicians can meet with social leaders and exchange ideas to the end of lifting everyday life to a higher plane." This seems to the writer quite an ambitious program—also a somewhat vague one. If life gets much higher hereabouts, the X. family will have to go west.

A list of patronesses includes many well known names. When the enterprise takes more form and shape I will give these names. Meetings are spoken of, but as yet no place for these rendezvous seems to have been definitely selected. The whole plan is rather inchoate for more information from this p. p. p.

A much more practical and quite opposite enterprise for the energetic is the Free Class in Finance which the women of Chicago are invited to attend. It is under the auspices of the Federal Securities corporation, 231 South La Salle street. It is also under the guidance of a committee of well known women of which Mrs. Jacob Baur is chairman. The first meeting will be next Friday morning at eleven o'clock in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. On this occasion David R. Forgan, vice chairman of the National Bank of the Republic, will speak on "The Present Financial Situation."

That one of our best citizens, Miss Harriet Vittum, is busy these days organizing what promises to be an interesting show. It is to be at the fine new Illinois Women's Athletic club, which has given the sixth floor for the event. For three days—Nov. 18, 19, 20—there will be, for the benefit of the public, an exhibit of model small homes for wage earners, little four room cottages and demonstration kitchens where it will be shown just how a housewife can furnish and run a comfortable home on a limited income. Interested in this are the Lewis institute, the National Kindergarten college, the Chicago Teachers' college, and several other similar institutions that have made studies of these various problems. It will be of interest to many different classes of folk. Be sure to go to it, whether you live in a gold coast palace or a back-of-the-yards cottage.

SECRETARIAT OF THE HOUSEHOLD OF HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN OF ROUMANIA

Mme. G. G. d'Arcis
17 Boulevard Helvetique
Geneve

June 23, 1926

Madame:

To my great surprise I have just learned from Madame Helene Gr. Romniciano that you have never received the letter which Her Majesty the Queen commanded me to address to you last February on the subject of the Royal Vacuum Cleaner.

In that letter I had the honor of conveying to you the sincere thanks of Her Majesty the Queen and of telling you how delighted she was to possess the Royal Vacuum Cleaner which Her Majesty considers a very practical and satisfactory machine and one which renders unvaryingly efficient service.

This vacuum cleaner really deserves its name, and although extremely simple, it works perfectly, without any difficulty and it is remarkable how with so little effort, upholstery, carpets, floors, frames, walls, everything in fact, can be quickly and thoroughly cleaned.

While deeply regretting that my earlier letter did not reach you, I am only too pleased to transmit again the opinion of Her Majesty the Queen.

I have the honor to be,
Your Obedient Servant,
[Signed] G. Denize,
Private Secretary to
Her Majesty
The Queen of Roumania

Queen Marie's Palace at Sinaia

Women Voters Hold Annual Convention

By Kate Webber

PLANS have been completed for the annual convention of the forty-three branches of the Illinois League of Women Voters, to be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at the Palmer house. Speakers of interest and prominence will discuss the several topics in which league members are particularly interested.

Mrs. James W. Morrisson, state president, will open the sessions on Tuesday morning, and Mrs. A. A. Carpenter is general chairman in charge of arrangements, assisted by several committee chairmen.

The opening morning will be given over to reports of departmental and committee chairmen, reports of the nominating committee, and greetings from the national organization, with Mrs. William G. Hibbard, fourth regional director, as the speaker. Other state organizations also will have representatives, and Mayor Dever will give greetings from the city.

Following luncheon various departments will have conferences in private dining rooms. Prof. Paul Douglas of the University of Chicago, Prof. Charles E. Merriam, and Miss Florence Harrison will address the efficiency in government department in the afternoon.

Local league presidents and state board members will be guests at an informal dinner on Tuesday evening at the residence of Miss Mabel Linn, 209 Lake Shore drive, president of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters. Mrs. Ralph L. Pierce of Hinsdale will preside, and Miss Julia Lathrop will speak.

Reports of the committees on social hygiene, child welfare, citizenship training and education will take up the fore part of the Wednesday morning session, and Miss Mary E. McDowell will preside at a conference to follow on international coöperation to prevent war, with Miss Ruth Morgan of New York as the speaker.

Organization conferences will be held on Wednesday afternoon, and that evening Mrs. William G. Hibbard will preside at a banquet at which the principal speaker will be Chester H. Rowell, regent of the University of California, who will speak on "Publicity and Propaganda."

Mrs. Henry W. Cheney, past president of the state league, will preside at the Thursday morning session, when Miss Mary Anderson, director of the woman's bureau of the United States department of labor, also Miss Marguerite Wells of Minneapolis, fifth regional director, will be speakers. Reports on legislative stands and past work of the league will be given at this session.

"Where to Begin Politically" will be the subject for discussion at the buffet luncheon on Thursday, when Mrs. A. A. Carpenter will introduce convention chairmen and new officers will be inducted. The piece de resistance of this meeting will be the speech of Mrs. Bertha K. Landes, mayor of Seattle, Wash., who with Miss Belle Kearney, state senator from Mississippi, will be on the program.

A new voters' tea on Thursday at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick will give the younger and prospective members opportunity to meet those seasoned in the work. Two students from the University of Chicago and Northwestern university will speak.

Club hospitality has been offered league delegates by the Chicago Woman's Aid, the Chicago Woman's club, the Woman's City club, and the Cordon.

The Southern Woman's club of Chicago will give its annual dinner dance on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock at the Hotel La Salle, the proceeds to go toward the philanthropic fund. Mrs. Louis W. Hall, president, Mrs. Luther H. Atkinson, and Mrs. John T. Ingold are in charge of arrangements.

A card party will be given on Friday evening at the new St. Ita's church, under the auspices of the St. Ita's Woman's club, it being the first time parishioners will have to inspect the church interior. Mrs. Patrick J. Hall is chairman in charge of the affair. The proceeds will be used for furnishings.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans

THE members in charge of the monthly dinner program were planning for a coming affair.

"Let's have something different, something the members are not expecting," Mrs. Winter suggested.

"I was at a meeting last week that had an unusual number," Miss Salter remembered. "On the program it was given as a talk, but when the speaker appeared he announced with a solemn face that he'd decided to preach them a sermon and that his text was to be taken from the Book of Numbers. He placed a telephone directory on the table and after fumbling around in it gave the number of the text as Central 58794, which is the telephone number of the club. Then he proceeded to give comical bits of gossip about the members, indicating them by telephone number only, and drawing a humorous moral from each bit. It was a great hit."

"Near the end of a long program I attended," recalled Mrs. Williams, "the speaker, after he'd been introduced, came forward with a bulky paper and read a dry subject. He announced that for convenience he'd handle the matter under eight heads, and he gave them. The members of the audience began to look at their watches and to conceal the persistent yawns, and wonder how they'd ever live through it.

"Then the speaker started in. The first the audience knew more about than he did; he'd skip the second, third, and fourth; the fifth was fully explained in the encyclopedia; the sixth and seventh were too deep for him; the eighth was too deep for the audience; he thanked them and sat down in about two minutes from the time he started. The chairman declared the meeting adjourned. It took the audience several seconds to come to."

"The unexpected program number that stands out in my memory," said Mrs. Winter, "happened during the war, when I attended a banquet in honor of two returned heroes. After one of them had given an impassioned talk on conditions in France, a charming woman of French type arose unexpectedly, in the back of the room, and in a beautiful voice sang the Marseillaise with spirit and feeling. The audience went wild."

Question.

When a motion was presented at our club recently, nearly all those the chairman recognized were for it, and then the previous question was moved and carried and those against the motion didn't have half a chance to give their side. Was it fair? CORA L. G.

Reply.

A chairman should try, as far as she can, to alternate between those for and those against a question.

Question.

The chairman of a committee was called out of the city. Can the members call a meeting. M. P.

Reply.

Yes, any two members have the right to do so, notifying every member of the committee.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

American Duchess Arrives for Visit

By Dolly Madison.

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — The question that society seems ready to answer with an unusually strong "aye" is, does the arrival of a bona fide English duchess mean more than the presence of a continental royalty?

Certainly it would seem that New York's notables are more concerned with the arrival of May, duchess of Roxburghe, than they have been with the presence of Marie, queen of Roumania.

Of course, the comparison is far from fair, for while Marie is also an English princess, she is not an American, as is the duchess of Roxburghe, who since the divorce of the erstwhile Consuelo Vanderbilt and the duke of Marlborough, shares the honor of sporting the strawberry leaves with the one time Gladys Deacon of Boston, the present duchess of Marlborough.

To Visit Her Mother.

Her Grace, the former May Goelet, arrived this week on the Olympic to visit with her mother, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, before whom so many social registrants tremble like leaves in an autumn wind. The great Mrs. Goelet, who recently returned from Ochre Point, at Newport, is getting her house at 608 5th avenue in condition for a strenuous social season. At present she is staying at the Ambassador, where her daughter will remain with her until the 5th avenue house is in readiness.

The former May Goelet is decidedly persona grata with King George and Queen Mary, who were sponsors for the marquis of Bowmont, heir to the duchy of Roxburghe. The royal pair have often been guests at Floors castle the Roxburghe ancestral home in Scotland.

Incidentally, Bowmont, with the Marquis of Blandford, represent the heirs to English duchies who have American mothers. In the case of Blandford, his mother, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, and present Mrs. Jacques Balsan, had always hoped that he would choose an American girl to be his marchioness. However, young Blandford, following the dictates of his heart, disappointed the New York debutantes by marrying the Honorable Alexandra Cadogan, daughter of the late Viscount Chelsea.

A Lull Before the Debuts.

There is the faintest suspicion of a lull before the avalanche of debutantes descends upon New York. This year, with the number of debuts approaching the two hundred mark, lunches, dinners, and balls will necessarily interfere with one another. Between now and New Year's, in which period most of the presentations take place, there are far from enough days to give each notable youngster an evening to herself. Most nights will have two parties, and a great many will have three girls making their bows at the same time.

Almost the first of the debutantes to see the social light of day was Aurelie de Mauriac Murchison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Murchison, in whose honor Mrs. James N. Hill gave a luncheon at Pierre's.

Hope Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Courtlandt Richardson of Morristown, N. J., was presented the following day at another luncehon at Pierre's.

This coming week the debuts will begin in true midseason form. Among the many score of notable additions to society who will make their bows are Katrina Auchincloss, Elsie Barber, Katherine Temple Biddle, Betty Bliss, Eleanor Boardman, Edna Brokaw, Virginia Chapin, Florence Kip Clarke, Jean Cochran, Anne Colby, Edith Darrach, Constance Fox, and Margaret Gallatin.

Also Cordelia Gurnee, Rachel Hammond, Frances Learned Hand, Ruth Hanna, Frances Heckscher, Marie Iselin, Betty Jenney, Martha Kountze, Hope Livermore, Almira Rockefeller, Ethel E. Schniewind, Katherine Tod, Mildred Van Der Poel, Barbara Van Rensselaer, Evelyn Whitehouse, and Carola Winter, not to mention a hundred others.

Every One at the Hunts.

The second of the two days of the United Hunts meeting at the Belmont track on Long Island was quite as much of a success as the first had been. Once again society was blessed with perfect autumn weather, and the crowd in the Turf and Field club for luncheon was positively unwieldy.

It was indeed a happy crowd. Under a leaden sky society cheered the riders in the steeplechases and chatted and strolled between races. As on the first day, Mrs. Harry C. Cushing III, was one of the much remarked young women present, the former Cathleen Vanderbilt possessing the faculty of attracting attention wherever she may be.

Mrs. Lewis Latham Clarke had her debutante daughter, Florence, in tow. Mrs. J. Hoxton Ijams, Mr. and Mrs. Norman O. Whitehouse, who have since left for Middleburg, Va., the Esmond O'Briens, Mr. and Mrs. Devereaux Milburn, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Penn Smith Jr. were among the several thousand who made the pretty course a picture in subdued colors, with the brown of sable and mink vieing with the brown of autumn leaves.

The PN Corrective Figure Garments

—Third Floor—Dearborn Street—

Miss Louise Gifford, body director of the Theater Guild, New York City, a noted authority on posture and body expression, has discovered the secret of slenderness—she has published a course of non-strenuous "Corrective Movements" that make the years and pounds seem actually to disappear. This booklet will be presented to our many patrons in Our Corset Section Monday, while a limited number last. At sixty retain the youthful lines of sixteen.

Miss Gifford's corrective exercises point a way to correct posture and straighten the spine. The P. N. Practical Print Corset points the same way. The latter is an immediate remedy because the P. N. Practical Front Corset gives a woman "the true joy of looking slim."

Beautiful and stylish, straight in front and back, made of coutil, a striped material and beautiful brocades. Has the exclusive feature of the inner elastic vest that nestles around and hugs abdomen; topless and medium bust; sizes to 36, at $5 to $12

Extra sizes 38, 40 and 42 are priced at .... $7 to $12

A copy of "The Joy of Looking Slim" free Monday.

P. N. Comfolette

ART

Arts Club Exhibits Chinese Paintings

By Eleanor Jewett.

AT the Arts club there is an extremely interesting collection of early Chinese art, paintings for the major theme and as minor chords a case or so of early glazed pottery, with a piece here and there illustrative of the craftsmanship that was created in bronze, centuries before Christ. The collection was brought together by Mr. A. W. Bahr, who has lived for many years in China and has an intimate knowledge of the value of things Chinese.

The paintings are exquisite. Their dull colorings are like the sheen of a butterfly's wings dusted with fairy dreams. A soft brown, a delicate olive, a cloud of dusky gray, a hint of spring with a tender rose blossom, a quiver of summer in the gold of a fish scale—of such nuances of color are the paintings composed. One might think this repeated emphasis on the more somber shading an accident, but the contrary is true. Whereas the decadent Chinese art of the last century or so is famed for its prettiness and lightness of tone, for its vivid blue, and pinks, and everlasting sunshine, the art of old China was a more serious affair, one long contemplated before attempted, and one created with the soul and brain of the artist as well as with his facile fingers.

Early Chinese art was meant to be more than decorative. It was meant to be a serious addition to the knowledge and philosophy of the world. The painter painted more often than not in symbols. A bird stood for one thing, two for another, three for a third, whereas a flock of the same birds flying in a cloud above a stormy sea (a favorite decorative theme) would have no intimate meaning at all and, therefore, would have no excuse for being painted.

Birds, animals, insects and flowers, by themselves or in combination, carried with them various significances. Their attitude connoted various emotions: joy, sorrow, melancholy, warning, prayer, all these and a thousand other circumstances, and conditions, and prophecies, and statements were recited by the artist on his parchment sheet. Another thing, the Chinese painter of early times had to think well before beginning his work, for his paints were such that the picture had to be completed at one stroke. He could not start, and hesitate, and be of divided mind, and still hope for success. His paint would dry as he watched it and the hardened crudity would have to be tossed aside to be replaced by an entirely fresh effort.

Accuracy and Sincerity.

Therefore, in these early paintings one reads more than the lesson of beauty. One reads accuracy and sincerity. To the student more than these obvious qualities are revealed. The student knows the meaning of presence and juxtaposition of the objects which compose each picture. The layman cannot hope for such knowledge. Nevertheless, there is enough in the simple beauty of these paintings to enchant the most ignorant of laymen. There is enough which may be recognized at a glance to make the enchantment a spell of long duration. The charm is one that does not easily free its captive.

The little fish, the tiny birds balancing on the spray of blossoming cherry, the plump white rabbits with pink, slant eyes, the melancholy heron, the landscapes towering up to God, the few stalwart and honest portraits, these may not be forgotten readily. With it all there is the infinite fascination of their dull coloring, so dull and yet so tender that it seems almost as if the red and gold were sleeping, waiting the kiss of a wandering princess to bring them sparkling into a new life.

The exhibition will remain at the Arts club through Nov. 18.

Posters and Illustrations.

In the large first gallery of the print department at the Art institute there has been arranged a most intriguing exhibit of posters and of book illustrations. There are posters and books from France, Italy, Germany, Austria, and Hungary. The posters are great, daring splashes of color and motif hung high on the walls.

The books are more conservatively exposed in cases. Of the posters, there is an irresistible one showing the devil in the clock tower hurling astonished visitors from the high windows with demoniac skill and glee. There are enchanting posters, French and Italian, inviting one to break the eighteenth amendment. There is a delicate poster illustrating, it seems to me, a soap or some such ordinary commodity, showing a slim and lovely maiden perched like a butterfly, and as delicately balanced, to and from whom, in clouds of gay colors, little butterflies are winging.

Interesting as are the posters, the books are much more so. For one who cares for beautiful binding and beautiful printing, for illustrations which are beautiful in themselves, as well as illustrative of a passing moment in the story or poem, for such a one this exhibit will prove a delight and a revelation. The differences between the nations, France differing from Germany, Germany from Hungary, Hungary from Italy, is also finely annotated here.

It is by all odds one of the most important and one of the most interesting exhibitions of the kind that has been offered by the Art institute since the Caxton club exhibits were held in Gunsaulus hall. The book lover should be careful not to miss it.

Of Interest to Children.

In the children's museum, a room on the first floor of the Art institute, another exhibition of books is on display. These are old and new books of interest primarily to children. The oldest book in the exhibit is a small Æsop's Fables published in Venice in 1618.

Nineteenth century English work is represented by an original water color by "Phiz" (an illustration for David Copperfield), "Oliver Twist," illustrated by Cruikshank; Spenser's "Shepherd's Calendar," illustrated by Walter Crane, and the beautiful first page of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," illustrated by Burne-Jones with a border by William Morris. This last is published by the Kelmscott Press, London.

Illustrators of today are found in the various pages by Arthur Rackham, Jessie Willcox Smith, Kay Nielsen, Kate Greenaway, Ralph Caldecott, Edmund Dulac, Warwick Goble, and Nancy Barnhart. Boutet de Menvel brings a touch of French to the exhibit, and H. Willebeek Le Mair, of Dutch charm. Possibly the rarest, though not the most picturesque, feature of the exhibition is found in a collection of original manuscripts by Eugene Field.

The books and plates have been lent to the children's museum by Mrs. Emma B. Hodge, Mrs. F. W. Gunsaulus, Miss Helen Gunsaulus, Mr. Harry Sickels, Marshall Field's juvenile book department, and the Printing Arts and the Ryerson libraries of the Art institute.

Juvenile Plays.

The plays for children, which last year proved themselves exceedingly popular, will be given again this season in the Goodman Memorial theater. The Studio Players of the department of drama will give these plays every Saturday afternoon promptly at 2:30 o'clock. The first performance was given yesterday afternoon, with a splendid and realistic rendering of the jolly adventures of Robin Hood.

Last season more than 7,000 children came to these plays. This year will probably see an even larger number in attendance, as the plays promised are all of them of a character to fascinate the child, be he 5 or 12 years old.

Announcing a New Gallery.

A new gallery is opening in Chicago. It is at 104 East Oak street and is under the direction of Paul Gaulois, who is already the successful manager of a New York gallery called Painters and Sculptors' Gallery.

Charles L. Morgan is holding an exhibit of the charming and informal water colors and pastels which were the fruit of a hasty six weeks in Europe last summer, at the Architects' club, 18th street and Prairie avenue.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Vanderpoel Art association was held last Friday evening in the Vanderpoel school. Joseph P. Birren was the speaker of the evening. This school has an excellent collection of art pieces, and during the last year twenty-four pictures, etchings, etc., were added to it.

The play which follows the amusing "Why Not?" of Jesse Lynch Williams at the Goodman theater is "The Game of Death," by Romain Rolland, that opened last Wednesday evening. This play will be given every Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evening, with a Friday matinée each week, until further notice.

The Fullerton hall lecture for this Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, will be the first of three lectures to be given by Dr. Edward Howard Griggs, author and lecturer. His subject is "Art for Art's Sake."

TWO-FOLD BENEFITS

Cod-liver oil not only helps build disease-resistance in the young child—it is also a wonderful vitamin-rich food for expectant mothers.

Scott's Emulsion contains everything in the way of vitamins that cod-liver oil contains. It is so tastefully presented that literally thousands take it with relish who refuse all other forms of cod-liver oil.

Scott's Emulsion has during fifty-five years earned the right to be called Nature's pure food-tonic, the National Strength-builder and Health-maker.

Beauty for the Teacher

By HELENA RUBINSTEIN
International Beauty Specialist

A NEW type of feminine pedagogue has come into existence—the chic, well-groomed, good-looking instructress! This modern teacher realizes that beauty is not necessarily a natural endowment. Sun, wind, dust, indoor air and the outdoor elements, all conspire to wreak havoc with the skin.

The secret of real beauty lies in daily care. Even five minutes a day, correctly spent, will prevent sallowness, enlarged pores, blackheads, wrinkles and surface blemishes.

I am happy to recommend a scientific beauty regimen, which I am sure will appeal to teachers, as a class—and to every woman who values her youth and beauty!

The basis of beauty

VALAZE PASTEURIZED FACE CREAM—revitalizes the cells and tissues—molds out "tired look"—coaxes out all impurities and keeps the complexion smooth, protected, healthy. Unsurpassed for all normal skins—also the only cream that positively benefits an oily, pimpled or acne-blemished skin. Excellent as a foundation for make-up. (4 oz. 1.00, ½ lb. 2.00, lb. 3.50).

VALAZE CLEANSING AND MASSAGE CREAM—particularly recommended for dry, sensitive skins, alternating it with the Pasteurized Cream every other night—ideal for quick removal of dust and makeup. (75c, 1.25)

For greatest skin perfection
VALAZE BEAUTIFYING SKIN-FOOD—apply, after cleansing with either of the above creams. Lightens the skin, gradually bleaching away sallowness, tan, freckles. Refines the texture, creating an alluring delicacy. (1.00, 2.50)

Whenever you feel fatigued
VALAZE SKIN-TONING LOTION—pat this bracing beauty lotion all over face. This refreshes, cleanses the skin, and tones up the tissues, preventing flabbiness, and obliterating fine age-lines. Also keeps pores invisible. (1.25)

Safety first—in cosmetics
For intensely flattering touches of beauty—absolutely free from harmful contents—use the exquisite Valaze powders, rouges, lipsticks, mascara and other make-up preparations scientifically compounded by Helena Rubinstein.

Individual Beauty Service
You are invited to visit the trained counsellors at Helena Rubinstein salons—for an expert diagnosis of your individual beauty needs. Advice is given on the correction of open pores, crowsfeet, drooping chin, blackheads and all facial blemishes.

MIAMI By the Sea
"The City That Never Stops"

Not even the severest hurricane that ever struck the United States mainland stopped this Magic City. Before the wind ceased blowing the work of relieving the injured began and in the days and nights following, the spirit which built this amazing city, manifested itself in reconstruction without parallel in speed and efficiency.

Mayor E. C. Romfh of Miami in an official statement made September 24th, six days after the storm, following a thorough inventory of the damage declared:

"Of the 150 hotels in Miami, Miami Beach and Coral Gables, 75 per cent were not damaged to any great extent. The year around hotels are operating as usual. Of the 1200 apartment houses, 70 per cent received little damage. All hotels and apartment houses will be completely repaired and put in first class condition within 60 days.

"I want to give positive assurance that our friends will find Miami this winter the same enjoyable, hospitable, comfortable vacation city it has always been."

The "Comeback" to normal has been even faster than predicted. The greatest entertainment program any resort ever planned will be carried through without change.

Eleven sporty golf courses, with many tournaments for professionals and amateurs; thoroughbred horses racing on a million dollar track; fleet dogs in thrilling speed tests; skilled Spanish players in exciting Jai-Alai contests; Surf bathing daily in an emerald sea warmed by the Gulf Stream, or your choice of pools in magnificent casinos.

1200 miles of smooth, dustless motor roads through tropical scenes. Game fishing aplenty. Motor-boating, yachting, horseback riding, tennis, polo—whatever your favorite sport—it's here.

Sound Sleep in Silent Rooms At Chicago's 46-Story

Morrison Hotel

A GUEST ROOM IN THE TOWER, MORRISON HOTEL, CHICAGO

HARRY C. MOIR

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

YOUR waking hours, on a business trip, mean too much to you to permit the least interruption of a single night's sleep.

The Quietest Hotel and the Most Central

The Morrison stands closer to retail, wholesale and office districts than any other Chicago hotel. It is also nearest to railroad stations and theatres. Yet, in a tower room, undisturbed by street noises, you enjoy the same unbroken sleep as in a remote hunting lodge.

Restaurants That Are Landmarks

Yet, at the foot of the mighty tower, distant only a few seconds by elevator, is Chicago's liveliest "24-hour corner"—the home of the Morrison's historic Boston Oyster House, and the renowned "dance-and-dine" Terrace Garden.

Rates, $2.50 Up, at the World's Tallest Hotel

The Morrison has 1944 outside rooms, each with bath, running ice water, bed-head lamp, and Servidor—an assurance of privacy. Every floor has its own housekeeper, and all guests enjoy garage service. Yet rooms are rented for $2.50 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 elsewhere; at this location—the very center of the city—the valuable subleases pay all the ground rent, and the saving is passed on to the patrons.

San Antonio

"The Winter Playground of America"

San Antonio, with its exhilarating climate and quaint Old World atmosphere, holds an irresistible appeal to those who seek a vacation that is different ·· more enjoyable ·· more refreshing to mind and body.

Here are new sights to see ·· new entertainments of all kinds ·· new links to play ·· new smooth highways that lead to seaside mountains and to Mexico. Here there is no thought of Winter ·· the skies are blue ·· the air warm, dry and invigorating and always bright sunshine to lure you forth into the great outdoors.

You'll thoroughly enjoy San Antonio. Its hospitality is proverbial. Fine hotels, furnished apartments and private homes offer ample accommodations for all at reasonable rates.

Things to See and Do

The Alamo
The historic mission-fort, where Davy Crockett and his little band of Texans held out against overwhelming odds and perished to the last man in defense of Texas Liberty.

The Missions
Built 225 years ago by the Spanish padres. Mission San Jose is the finest example of Spanish architecture in the Western Hemisphere.

Fort Sam Houston
By far the largest army post in the country. Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery all represented in an amazing army.

Brackenridge Park
Second to none in beauty, improvements and facilities for outdoor sports—golf—horseback riding—polo—tennis—picnics and other recreation.

Mexican Quarter
Quaint and interesting by day—see the native costume dances at night, to the tune of strumming guitars.

San Fernando Cathedral
In the heart of the city, adjoining a modern office building—a strange contrast of the Old World and the New.

Play Golf
On the finest and sportiest courses in the South—nominal greens fees and ample competition of the keenest sort. Texas Open Golf Championship, attracting national stars, played over Brackenridge Park municipal course.

Ride Horseback
16 miles of bridle path in Brackenridge Park—suitable mounts available at reasonable rates.

Hunt and Fish
Medina Lake—30 miles away by perfect road—is the paradise of the hunter and black bass fisherman. Paved roads to Gulf Coast points, where water fowl winter, and tarpon and deep sea bass abound.

Motor
More miles of paved road in Bexar County (San Antonio) than any county in U. S. Paved roads to Corpus Christi on Texas Gulf Coast, and to Laredo, Brownsville, Del Rio and Eagle Pass, all on Mexican border.

Play Tennis
On any of scores of finely kept clay courts—San Antonio residents play the year around—assuring adequate competition for the visitor.

Motion Picture Making
The war scenes of "The Big Parade" were filmed in San Antonio. "Wings" and "The Rough Riders," featuring Mary Astor, Clara Bow, Wallace Beery and others, made entirely at San Antonio.—New pictures constantly being filmed.

"Come and See Texas"

Go via the Texas Line

The principal highway to San Antonio lies through St. Louis or Kansas City and the Katy. Three fine, fast trains—the Limited, TEXAS SPECIAL and Katy Flyer offer a choice of suitable hours for departure and arrival. Smooth roadbed, through Pullmans and dining cars—and attentive service add to the pleasures of your trip.

THE M·V·ASTURIAS

ROYAL MAIL LEADS THE CRUISING WORLD

26 DE LUXE CRUISES—1926-27

Cruises That Combine New Features and Old Favorites

Fascinating alike to experienced travelers and those planning their first voyage.

AFRICA

Second Great African Cruise, sailing from New York January 15th, for 101 days, by the M. V. "ASTURIAS;" visiting South and East Africa—also West Indies, South America, the Sudan, Egypt and Europe—in cooperation with the American Express Company.

MEDITERRANEAN

The New Mediterranean Cruise from New York, February 26th, heads the Company's list of 11 Mediterranean cruises — 10 from England. Seventy days by the splendid cruising steamer "ORCA," featuring the Greek Islands and Dalmatian Riviera—in cooperation with the American Express Company.

WEST INDIES

Three Wonder Cruises from New York: Dec. 21st, Christmas Holiday Cruise of 15 days; Jan. 8th—26 days; Feb. 5th — 17 days; by the magnificent S. S. "ORCA." Also a 42-day cruise by the "ARCADIAN" from England.

NORWAY

Ten summer holiday cruises to the Land of the Midnight Sun, North Cape, the wondrous fjords and Northern Capitals. Sailing from England by the "ARCADIAN" and "ARAGUAYA."

In pleasure cruising, as well as regular steamship services, The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company holds first place. Chartered in 1839, it is now, with its affiliated companies, the largest shipping organization in the world.

The Royal Mail was first to introduce modern cuisine and comforts on its ships. It now has the world's most luxurious liner, M. V. "ASTURIAS," for its major cruise, to Africa. This will be the first great cruise ever to be made by a motor vessel. The Company also operates the largest vessel devoted solely to pleasure cruising — the "ARCADIAN," "The Cruising Ship Wonderful."

Last season The Royal Mail added South and East Africa to the world of de luxe cruising. This season its Mediterranean cruise from New York will include a number of new places, as interesting as they are unusual.

Regular Services to BERMUDA, EUROPE, SOUTH AMERICA, Etc.

The luxurious "A" steamers "ARAGUAYA" and "AVON" offer cruise-comfort and cruise-delight on regular sailings between New York and Bermuda, "The Gulf Stream Playground." First sailing December 11th; twice-weekly sailings, every Tuesday and Saturday, commencing in January.

Famous Cabin Liners from New York to Europe — Cherbourg and Southampton — are noted for their delightful home-like atmosphere—a wide range of choice accommodations, including economical Tourist Third Cabin. Also services with the invariable Royal Mail standard between Europe and South America.

Illustrated booklets and full information may be obtained from the Company's Offices or from any Steamship Agent

S.S. RESOLUTE—WORLD CRUISE

Sailing Eastward from New York, January 6, 1927

Take each point of this RESOLUTE World Cruise. Study it carefully and you will find that no cruise has ever been offered American travelers that surpasses it.

The Itinerary

25 Countries—59 Ports and Cities. Each one strange and fascinating—a striking contrast to our own land. Besides the usual Oriental Ports and Cities—Siam, Borneo and Formosa are also visited. The shore excursions included in the fare are extraordinary—their completeness will prove a most pleasant surprise.

The Ship

Travelers who have been on other cruises, and by their experience are qualified to judge the merits of a ship, declare the RESOLUTE the "Queen of Cruising Steamers". Designed for tropical service and with luxurious appointments throughout, she represents the perfection of cruising comfort.

The Personnel

A cruise staff, ship's officers and crew who, because of the experience gained on their former world cruises, are able to anticipate and perform those little niceties of service which contribute so much to the comfort and pleasure of every passenger. The same efficient management aboard ship and ashore.

Rates are $2,000 and up

HERE IT IS!!!

The ad you have been looking for. The most amazing opportunity in Chicago today. An extra pay check every week! "Gee, that job is made to order for me." Every now and then you hear about a position that just seemed to be "made to order" for you, but too many times you hear of this position after it is too late to apply for it. Make up your mind to answer this ad.

AND if you want a real opportunity, if your wishbone has not switched places with your backbone, and if you do realize the absolute necessity of earning more money each week, and the practical advantage of becoming a member [either part or full time] of this nationally known institution, we will put you in a good paying position if you will really devote 1 hour of your spare time every day in our work. NOW, THEN, IF YOU ARE REALLY SINCERE, READ ON. HENRY FORD'S latest industrial venture [the manufacture of automobiles and aircraft] has created a new department, making it necessary for us to open new positions for gentlemen over 25 years of age who are at present employed in some legitimate work. Ordinary common sense the only educational requisite; $35-$50 WEEKLY FOR YOUR SPARE TIME; YOU WILL BE NOT ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING; NO EXPERIENCE OR RED TAPE; successful applicants will immediately earn an extra weekly income from the moment their names are placed upon the pay roll, while still retaining their present positions. This is not an experiment, but a bona fide, dignified employment that every ambitious gentleman in Chicago would be glad to avail himself of if he knew the facts. NOW IF YOU REALLY NEED MONEY and if you are really sincere in your desire to better your financial position, DON'T HESITATE. Apply in person only at the time mentioned below. ASK FOR PAYMASTER, ROOM 1309, 105 W. MONROE-ST. [S. W. CORNER CLARK AND MONROE], at 8 O'CLOCK TUESDAY EVENING, NOV. 16. Idlers, star gazers and curiosity seekers stay away. [So much enthusiasm has been shown by scores of successful applicants who are actually doubling and tripling their income, that we have decided to open one more department and we will consider you applicants Tuesday evening only, but none will be considered after 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, Nov. 16. Now, make up your mind to answer this ad. ACT!!!!]

HERE IT IS!!!

The ad you have been looking for. The most amazing opportunity in Chicago today. An extra pay check every week. "Gee, that job is made to order for me." Every now and then you hear about a position that just seemed to be "made to order" for you, but too many times you hear of this position after it is too late to apply for it. Make up your mind to answer this ad.

If you want a real opportunity; if your wishbone has not switched places with your backbone, and if you DO realize the absolute necessity of earning more money each week and the practical advantages of becoming a member [either part or full time] of this nationally known institution, we will put you in a good paying position, if you will really devote 1 hour of your spare time every day in our work. NOW, THEN, IF YOU ARE REALLY SINCERE, READ ON: HENRY FORD'S latest industrial venture [the manufacture of automobiles and aircraft] has created a new department, making it necessary for us to open new positions for ladies over 25 years of age, who are at present employed in some legitimate work. Ordinary common sense the only educational requisite. $35-$50 WEEKLY FOR YOUR SPARE TIME. YOU WILL NOT BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING. NO EXPERIENCE OR RED TAPE. Successful applicants will immediately earn an extra weekly income from the moment their names are placed upon the pay roll, while still retaining their present position. This is not an experiment but a bona fide, dignified employment that every ambitious lady in Chicago would be glad to avail herself of if she knew the facts. NOW, IF YOU REALLY NEED MONEY, and if you are really sincere in your desire to better your financial position, DON'T HESITATE. Apply in person only at the time mentioned below. ASK FOR PAYMASTER, ROOM 1309, 105 W. MONROE-ST. [S. W. CORNER CLARK AND MONROE], AT 8 O'CLOCK TUESDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 16. Idlers, star gazers, and curiosity seekers stay away. [So much enthusiasm has been shown by scores of successful applicants who are actually doubling and tripling their income, that we have decided to open one more department, and we will consider you applicants Tuesday evening only, but none will be considered after 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, November 16. Now make up your mind to answer this add. ACT!!!!]

Lake Shore Drive

CORNER OF ELM-ST.

The apartments in this building are spacious, exceptionally well lighted and ventilated, and have every modern convenience for enjoyable living.

The total monthly operating cost of a five room apartment under our 100% co-operative plan is as low as $117.84; and in the seven room apartment as low as $169.40.

There is only one Lake Shore-dr., and it unquestionably is the finest location for residential purposes in Chicago. Its convenience and beauty have made it Chicago's fashion center and one of Chicago's most attractive real estate investments.

THINK THIS OVER.

1. THE BUILDING IS ON A CORNER. There is no other lot on Lake Shore-dr. available unless one wrecks an expensive mansion.

2. THE LAND VALUE of the lot at 1120 Lake Shore-dr. HAS INCREASED 30% since we first offered these apartments to the public, but we are still offering them at the original price.

3. OVER 80% OF THE APARTMENTS ARE SOLD. The building is a thoroughly successful 100% co-operative project right now.

4. ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE. The names of the group of owners who will be your neighbors are available to you.

5. THE BUILDING IS CONSERVATIVELY FINANCED. It has only one loan owned by the New York Life Insurance company.

6. A FEW APARTMENTS ARE STILL AVAILABLE.

The equities range from $12,800 up. You may purchase an apartment in this building with as little as $4,500, paying the remainder out of income rather than capital. This is the time to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

PLANS, SPECIFICATIONS, AND SCHEDULED PRICES WILL BE SUPPLIED UPON REQUEST.

Why not come with your family to the building and see these delightful apartments? There is no urge to buy—just courteous attention when you require it.

Goethe Shore

Gold Coast Luxury
at the Price of the Ordinary
Kitchenette Apartments
$85 to $145 Monthly

The Goethe Shore is set in the heart of Chicago's Gold Coast, in that narrow strip bordering Lake Shore-dr., between Lincoln Park and the Michigan-av. bridge.

World Famous Location

Diagonally across a vacant lot or two lies the world famous Potter Palmer mansion—within a stone's throw a little to the south is the Edith Rockefeller McCormick residence—catercorner across the street is the world renowned Drake Hotel.

Lake Michigan lies at the foot of Goethe-st., almost at the feet of the guests of the Goethe Shore.

Just far enough away to isolate our guests from its traffic noises is Chicago's most pretentious boulevard—Lake Shore-dr. The Wrigley Building and The Tribune Tower are within easy walking distance. 35c cab fare to loop.

No other residential district in the world, not even the magnificent Park-av. section of New York City, can compare with the wonderful possibilities of 61 E. Goethe-st.

Prices Extraordinarily Low

Now, for probably the first time in Chicago's history, it will be possible for the citizen of moderate means to live on the Gold Coast, within walking distance of his desk in Chicago's loop.

Until the Goethe Shore opened its doors, the family not prepared to pay a monthly rental of from $400 to $1,000 could not live in this marvelous location.

Goethe Shore apartments are offered at a monthly rental ranging from $85 to $145 a month—surely amazing value for furnished apartments of the better class—when one thinks of his neighbors as the business and social leaders of America—all within the sacred confines of this Gold Coast neighborhood.

Ten Minutes' Walk to Business

There is a growing demand for residence close to our business center. The business man of today desires to return as nearly as possible to the conditions of his boyhood, when he walked to work.

Chicago's streets are probably more crowded with automobile traffic than those of any other city in the world. This congestion on our boulevards with its consequent delay to the business man's trip from his home to his office has made it necessary for him to move in closer to business.

No Apartments Furnished Like These

Smartly furnished in the newest mode, complete in every detail, including linen, silver, glassware, china, electrical appliances, bric-a-brac, and all that goes to make up the comfortable, fashionable, and homey abode.

Waiting List Occupancy Soon

The Goethe Shore offers for popular demand Gold Coast Apartments almost within a stone's throw of Chicago's most pretentious hostelry—the Drake—at prices you would expect to pay in outlying neighborhoods.

It is a foregone conclusion that we will have a waiting list occupancy.

See 61 E. Goethe-st. Now

A telephone call to Mr. Olson, Delaware 0302, will receive immediate and personal attention.

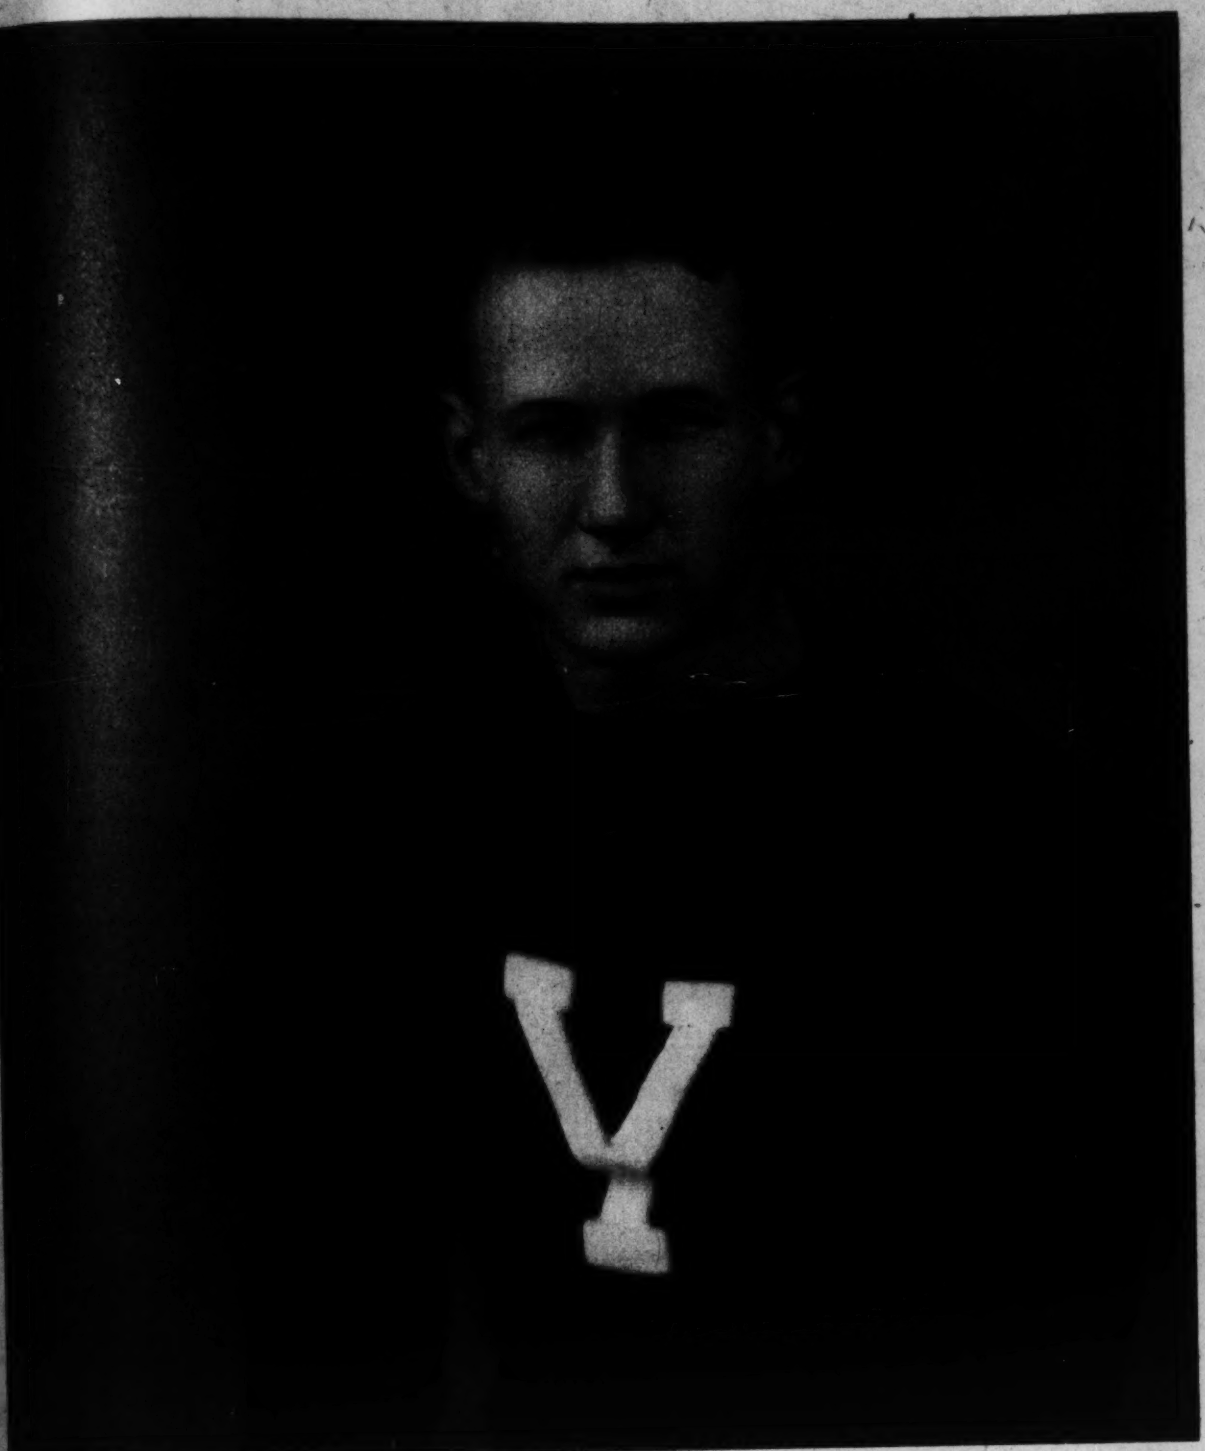
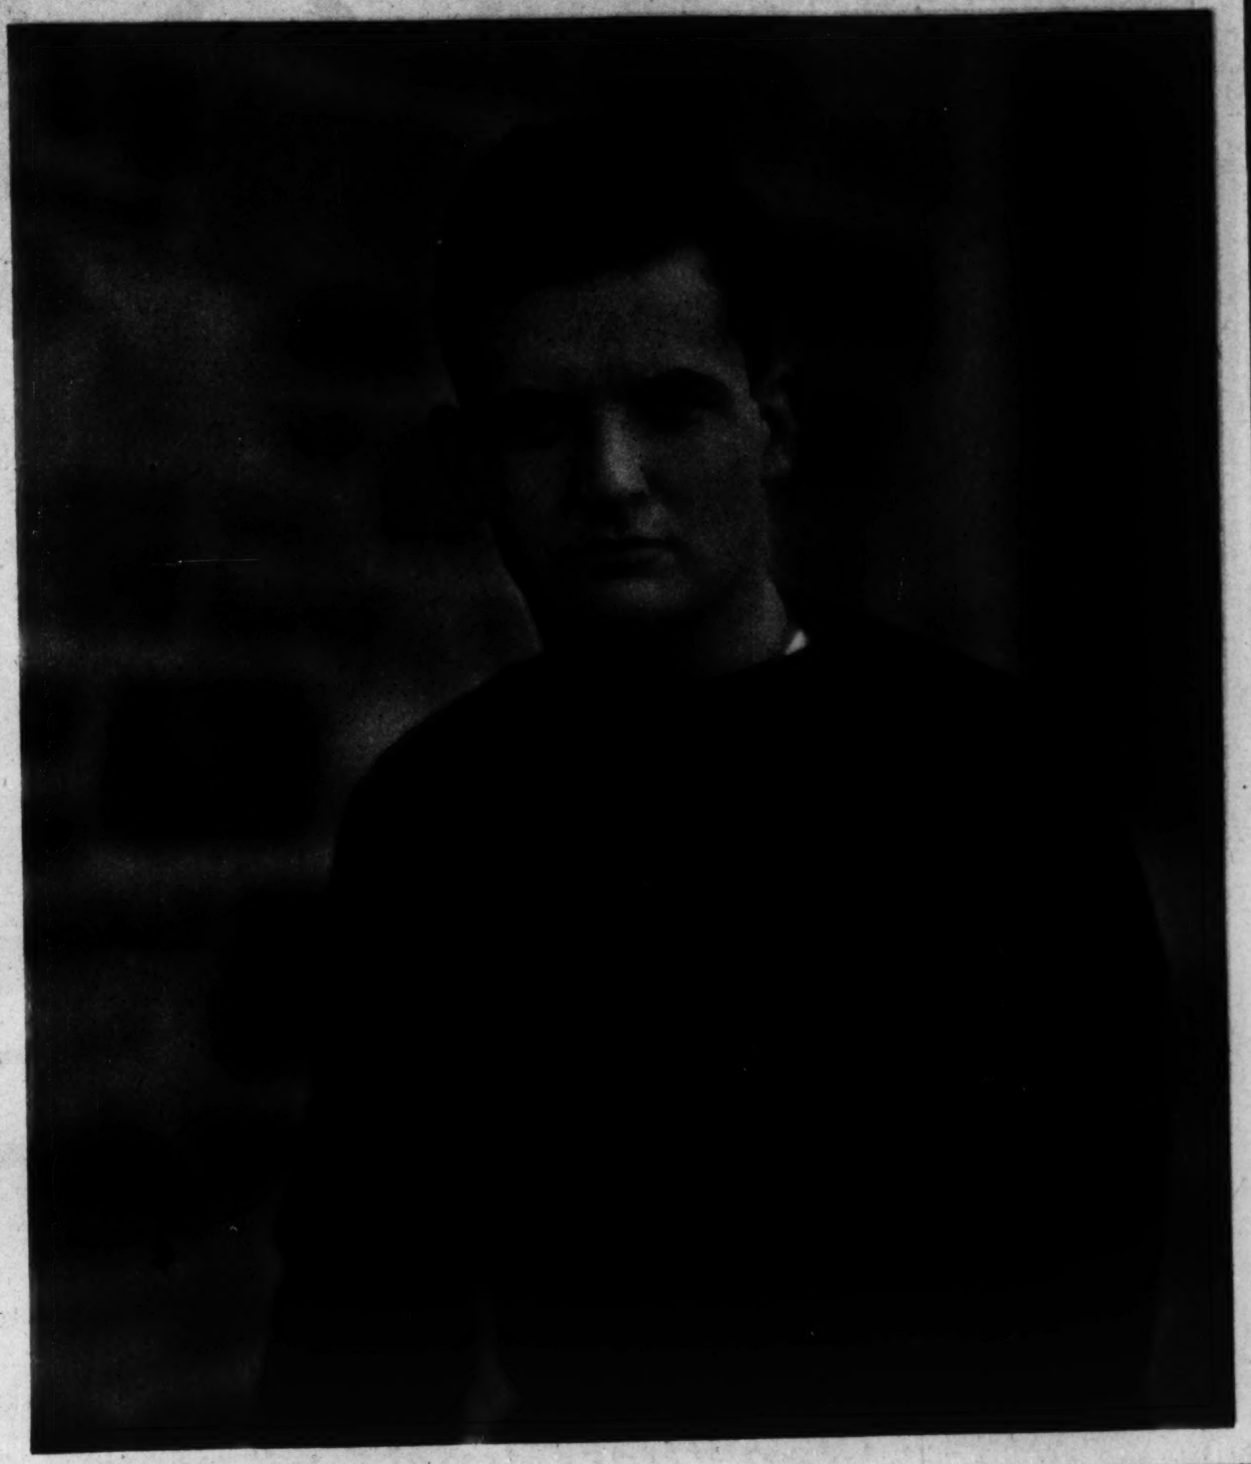
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

November 14, 1926

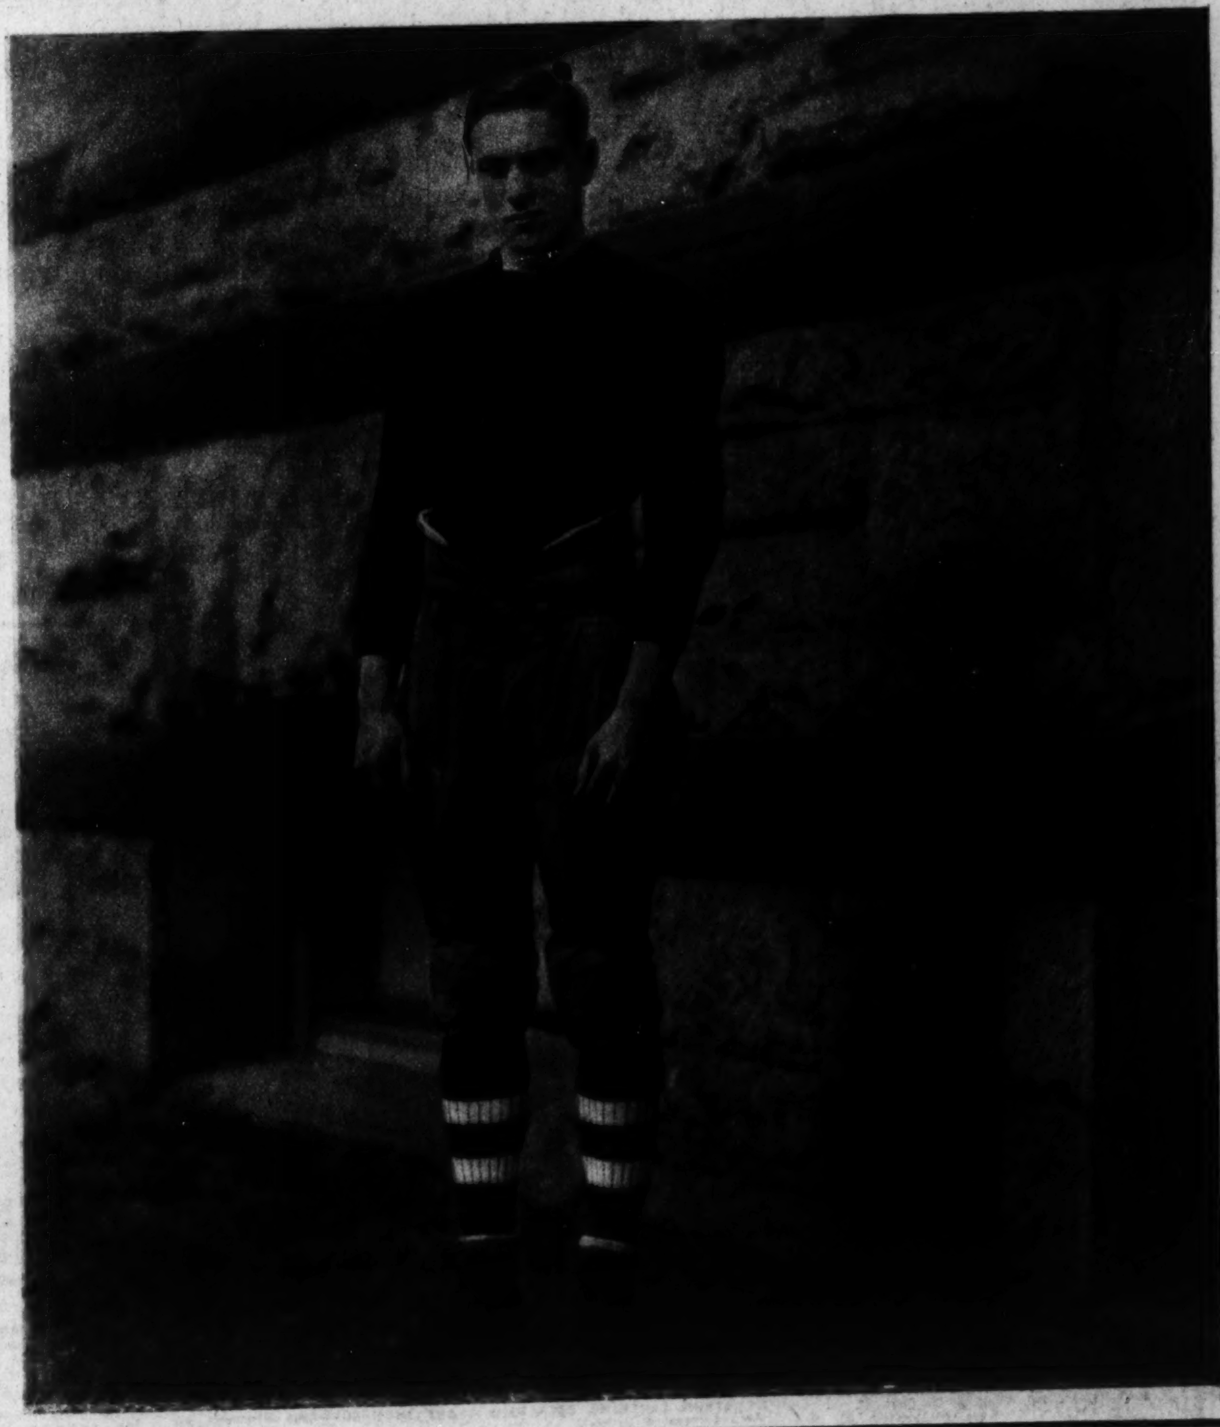


PHIL W. BUNNELL, a reliable quarter back, is captain of the Yale eleven. Yesterday's battle against Princeton on the Tigers' gridiron was one of the high spots of the year for Bunnell's squad.



PRINCETON is being led into battle by John W. Davis Jr. He plays guard and is rated one of the best men in the east at that position.

THE CRIMSON OF HARVARD is captained by Clement D. Coady, an outstanding tackle. Coady's great test will come when Harvard faces Yale at New Haven next Saturday.



HAROLD A. BRODA is captain of the doughty Brown eleven. Broda rates with the best ends along the Atlantic seaboard. Brown met Harvard yesterday at Cambridge.

IN NEXT SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE this page will be devoted to natural color photographs of the football captains at Nebraska, Dartmouth, Kansas State, and Drake universities.

Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil

To build teeth as fine as the Eskimos'

Babies need more of one element doctors say*

UP IN GREENLAND, where the limited diet of the Eskimos is dangerously lacking in certain necessary elements—a surprising condition is found.

Instead of the poor teeth and bones that might be expected, they have fine, strong teeth, well-placed, untouched by decay! Sound, straight bones—much better than are common here.

This is due, doctors say, to their getting through their fish oils, an abundance of one food factor* which is all-important in building bones and teeth—and which too often is not adequately supplied to babies in America.

Without it the best food, the richest milk, can't be turned into bones and teeth of the right strength and structure.

The richest known source

Tests have shown that the necessary bone-building factor* is practically lacking in milk, cereals, fruits and vegetables. So that a baby whose diet includes only these things will almost inevitably develop soft bones and poor teeth.

But when pure cod-liver oil is added to the diet—an amazing improvement takes place.

For cod-liver oil is the richest known source of the protective food factor which stimulates the deposit of lime in the bones and teeth.*

That is why giving pure cod-liver oil to babies is now so widely urged by baby specialists and other authorities. They say it is not an "extra"—but a vital need.

Nowadays the well-cared for infant is supposed to get his daily cod-liver oil just as he gets orange juice—as a routine preventive measure.

To stimulate growth and increase resistance

Children as well as babies are sick less often when they are getting a good cod-liver oil, doctors say. It increases their resistance to infections, because it contains a second vital food element which is indispensable for growth and for the maintenance of health.

So rich is Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil in this stimulating substance that one teaspoonful contains as much as is found in 6 quarts of milk!

Under the X-ray, tiny bones and teeth can be seen developing imperfectly

Relative size of twin animals at end of an experiment. The one on the right received cod-liver oil

The teeth your baby will have when grown up are being formed now

Now you can get a better cod-liver oil

The mother who begins to give her baby cod-liver oil should select one that is known to be reliable.

Important improvements in the methods of preparing cod-liver oil have been scientifically worked out by Squibb experts.

Methods which result in high purity and effectiveness. Methods which help preserve the vital values until the last spoonful is used.

Careful mothers everywhere are using Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil with the confidence physicians have taught them to have in the Squibb name.

SUNSHINE BRINGS SMILES—so Misses Katherine Bassinger, Wyn Richmond and Helen Abbott take advantage of a few fair hours for a drive. Smiles like theirs are seen everywhere today largely because of the new way in tooth care — Pepsodent.

IN SMILES LIES POPULARITY, so Miss Billy Bostick and Mr. T. E. Weber have discovered. Millions who know the power of smiles are turning to this new dental way of keeping teeth radiantly bright.

Glistening White Teeth

Are Teeth Kept Free of Film—Every Day in this Way

ANOTHER WOMAN CHAMPION is Miss Dorothy Dawes. You'll note this picture also shows a winning smile—the kind that accompanies the use of Pepsodent.

—Free of the dangerous film on teeth to which science ascribes many tooth and gum disorders. What numbers of authorities suggest doing for it

THAT many of the commoner tooth and gum troubles, and most cases of so-called "off-color" teeth, are due to a film that forms on teeth which ordinary brushing does not successfully combat, is the consensus of today's dental opinion.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel this film—a slippery, sort of coating. Film absorbs discolorations and thus makes teeth look dull and dingy. It breeds germs and bacteria and invites tartar, decay and pyorrhea. It is a menace to tooth and gum health.

Thus dental authorities now seriously urge that film be removed at least twice every day—in the morning and at bedtime. To do so, obtain Pepsodent—a special, film-removing dentifrice most dentists favor. It curdles the film, then removes it and polishes the teeth to high lustre in gentle safety to enamel. It combats the acids of decay. It acts, too, to firm and harden the gums; thus meeting, in many ways, the requirements of modern dental findings.

Old-time dentifrices did not adequately fight film. That is why this modern protective way, as a twice a day habit, and at least twice a year calls on your dentist, are being so widely advised today.

Accept this test

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube. Brush teeth this way for 10 days. Note how thoroughly film is removed. The teeth gradually lighten as film coats go. Then for 10 nights massage Pepsodent into the gums with your finger tips; the gums then should start to firm and harden.

SMILES ARE DAZZLING WHITE when film is gone. Teeth sparkle like polished jewels. Gums firm to healthy coral tint. Thus this new scientific way of dental care becomes one of the greatest beauty treatments of the day, and, with its unique therapeutic and prophylactic qualities, a great aid in oral hygiene.

DANDRUFF?

Now you can control it!

You need worry no more about dandruff, that unsightly nuisance, so embarrassing to both women and men.

As you probably know, dandruff is a germ disease that no intelligent, fastidious person can afford to neglect. Because so often it is a warning of more serious scalp trouble—possibly baldness.

There is one ideal treatment to control dandruff conditions—the systematic use of Listerine, the safe antiseptic. It really works wonders this way.

The use of Listerine for dandruff is not complicated. You simply douse it on your scalp, full strength, and massage thoroughly. You'll enjoy the cleansing refreshing effect. And you will be amazed to see how this treatment, followed systematically, does the trick.

Moreover, Listerine will not discolor the hair nor will it stain fabrics. And it is not greasy.

Try Listerine for dandruff. You'll be delighted with the results.—Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, U. S. A.

GRETA NISSEN, who has been absent from the screen for a short while, returns in "The Popular Sin," a Paramount picture in which she will be directed by Malcolm St. Clair. She looks like a kitten here, doesn't she?

Be Slim!

Reduce your Hip and Waist Line Two to Four Inches in TEN DAYS!

LOOK at the beautiful women in this supplement.

All slender, all graceful, all charming.

You can be just as slim. Just as graceful. Just as attractive. Neither fat nor fleshiness need embarrass you again.

Figure science now supplies the positive way to slenderness and charm. Quickly, too! Without dieting. Without drugs. Without heavy, hot under garments. Without exhausting exercise. It is . . . FIGURE CONTROL.

The Miracle of the Second Skin

Automatic massage is the best and surest means of reducing. Fat is 85% water housed in tiny cells; automatic massage squeezes out this water and the circulation bears it away.

Rubber garments attempted automatic massage—but they were too heavy, too stuffy, too uncomfortable, unattractive and of unsuitable quality.

But rubber gave a famous Parisian corsetiere a brilliant idea!

She designed a beautiful, fashionable girdle of elastic so light and sheer that it feels like a feather in your hands.

And when girdled about your hips and waist—like a second skin! Hundreds of tiny pores in the elastic provide skin ventilation . . . oh, it's wonderfully cool!

This magic girdle is named the PERFOLASTIC.

And it won't tip, split, tear or stretch out of shape . . . the quality is superfine.

Pounds Flee Unconsciously

Don this marvelous PERFOLASTIC. Instantly it controls the shape of waist and hips—imparts the touch of fashionable charm (a booklet tells you precisely how). Then this light, sheer elastic goes to work immediately reducing the fat.

With every movement, every breath, every bend the PERFOLASTIC massages away this fat. You are not conscious of it at all . . . but, oh! what a happy story the scale tells!

You will reduce your hips and waistline measurements two to four inches in ten days. That isn't theory—it's fact. Hundreds of women here and abroad testify to its miraculous weight-reducing powers.

Create the Figure that Charms —Send at Once for FREE BOOKLET and FREE SAMPLE OF PERFOLASTIC

Utter cleanness means healthy teeth. Modern science and modern dentistry insist on cleanness as the best health safeguard. "Cleanness, not drugs," they say, "prevents disease."

There is one thing that Colgate's strives for and creates—that is clean healthiness.

By its washing action Colgate's cleans.

Just a little squeezed onto your brush, and at the first stroke Colgate's sets to work to clean. It foams in and out between your teeth, over your gums, about your tongue—always cleaning, always purifying, always removing the causes of tooth decay.

There is no need, now, to be continually harried by mental dental ills. Just keep teeth clean, and what's to fear? See your dentist twice a year; use Colgate's twice a day. This is the basis for healthy teeth now, the foundation for strong teeth tomorrow.

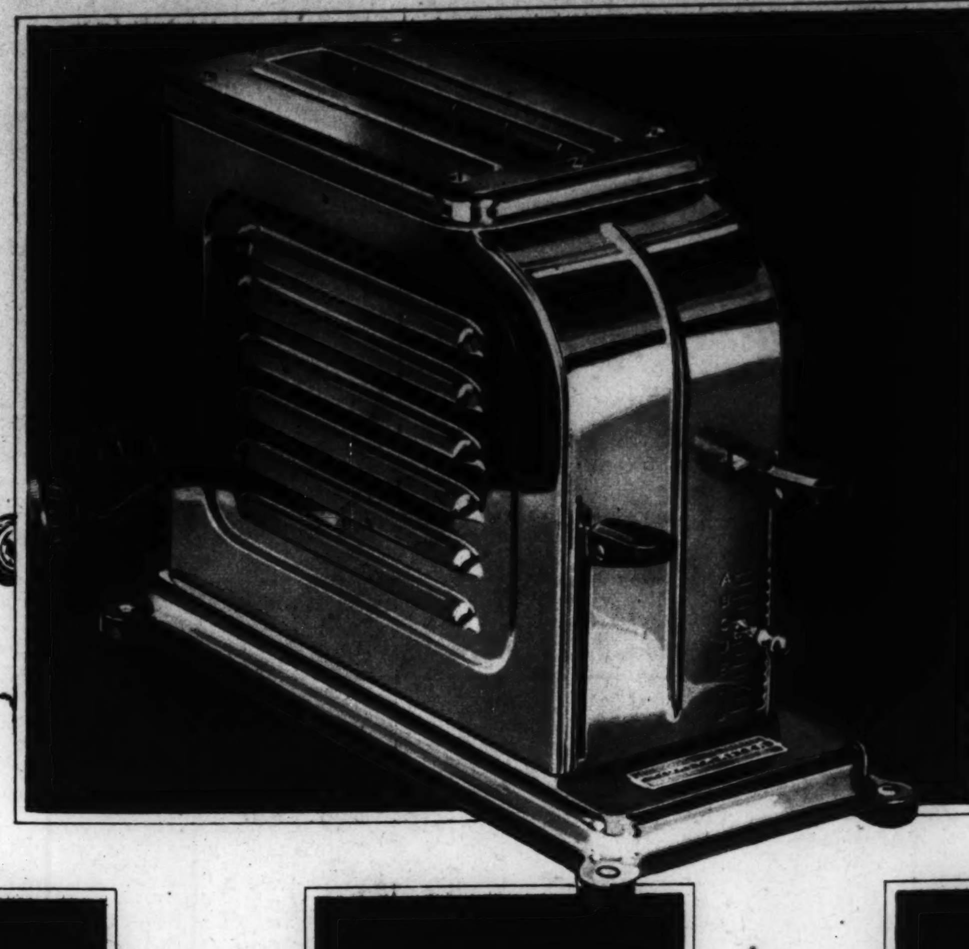
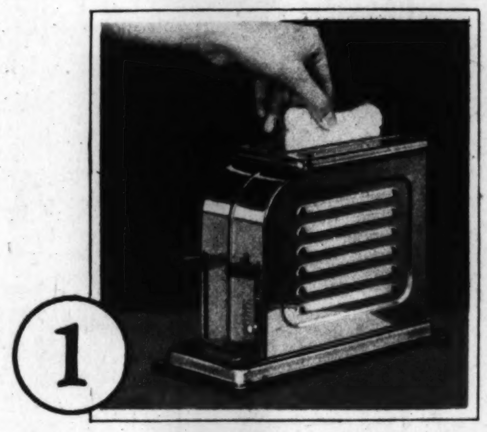
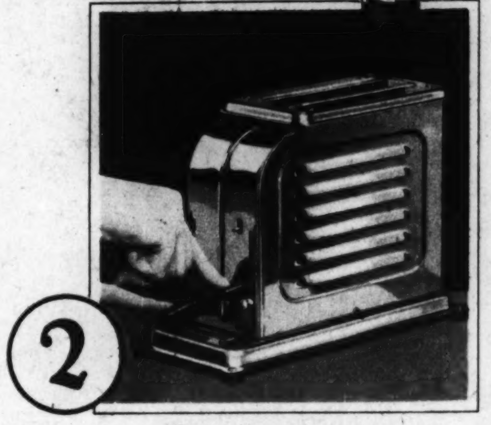
AN IDEAL CHRISTMAS GIFT

Now—at all leading State Street Dept. Stores and Commonwealth Edison Electric Shops

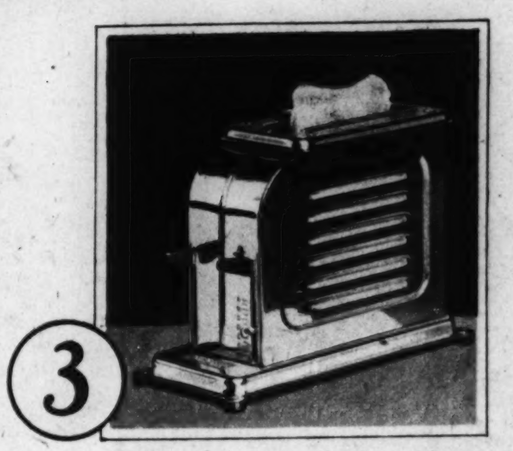




Drop a slice of bread into the oven slot



Push down the two levers



Pop! Up comes the toast when it's done—and the current is automatically turned off

At last!—an Automatic Electric Toaster for the home—Drop in a slice of bread and Pop! the toast comes up automatically, when it's done, and the current is automatically turned off

No watching—No turning—No more burned toast—and both sides are toasted at the same time

Here is the new Toastmaster—the first and only automatic electric toaster for the home. A toaster which makes the finest golden-brown toast—you've never tasted toast like it before—without watching, without turning, without burning. Toasts both sides of the bread at once.

Three Fascinating Operations

All you have to do to make toast with the Toastmaster is this: 1—Drop a slice of bread into the oven slot. 2—Push down the two levers as shown in picture above. This automatically turns on the current and sets the timing device. 3--Pop! Up comes the toast when it's done—and the current is automatically turned off.

No guesswork—and, my, what delicious toast. For both sides of the bread are toasted at the same time in an enclosed oven. Hence, all the flavor is sealed in, instead of being driven out as is the case when each side of the bread is toasted singly. And thus the toast is always piping hot when served. So hot that the butter melts and disappears in an instant.

Because this toaster is timed perfectly, every slice is toasted to a beautiful even golden brown. Crisp and crunchy on the outside. Soft and tender on the inside. Never in danger of burning whether you watch or not. For the current is automatically turned off when the toast is done.

A Beauty to Give or Own

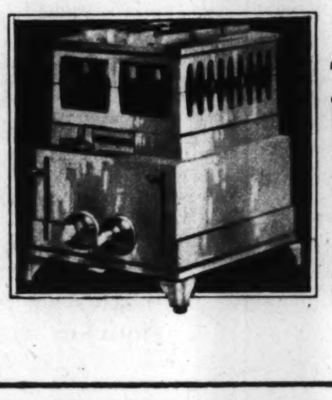
Finished in gleaming nickel, the Toastmaster is an attractive piece for the dining table or server. The little rubber feet prevent the heat from scorching the tablecloth or marring the finish of the table. So you can make toast at the table just the minute you are ready for it.

While this novel toaster is brand new, it has been thoroughly tested and found highly successful. For it is a small brother of the big Toastmaster which has been used for years in famous Restaurants, Hotels and Sandwich Shops.

Give a Toastmaster for Christmas

A Toastmaster makes an ideal Christmas Gift. Look below for the dealer in your town who carries this toaster. He has them packed in beautiful Christmas boxes.

In case there is no dealer listed now, simply send us the name of your dealer and a money order for $12.50 and we will ship you a Toastmaster, packed in a Christmas Box, postage prepaid. Waters-Genter Company, 229 North Second Street, Minneapolis, Minn.



The commercial Toastmaster has proved to be a veritable gold mine for hotels, restaurants, cafeterias, coffee and sandwich shops—made in three different sizes. A post card will bring full information without cost.

THE LAKE NAMED FOR THE FIRST LADY—Beautiful Lake Grace, on Revillagigedo island, Alaska, was christened in honor of Mrs. Coolidge by the navy's Alaskan aerial survey party. The expedition discovered rich timber lands hitherto unknown.

"DON'T BRING THAT CAT AROUND HERE AGAIN"—That was the plea of a Harvard Lampoon caricature before Princeton came down and trounced the Crimson by a 12 to 0 score in a pugilistic affray that included a sideline battle of Tiger rooters and Cambridge cops. Caulkins, Princeton quarter back, is on his way to the Tigers' only touchdown.

THE ILLINOIS NAPOLEON of football strategy does a beyond-the-Alps-lies-Italy exhortation for the benefit of the young gentlemen who overran Chicago. Bob Zuppke is a jolly enough figure except when he sings his customary blues on the eve of each successive game.

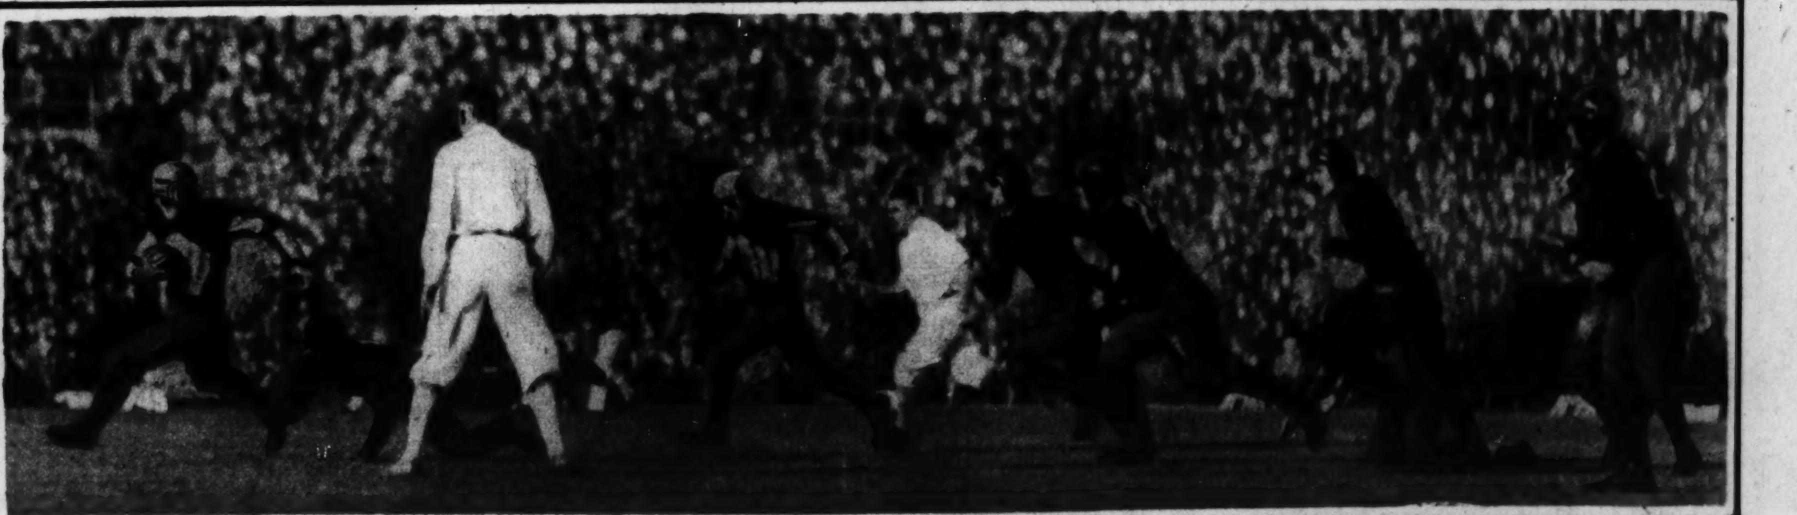
Marie

CHICAGO'S ROYAL GUEST is arising this morning to a festive round of entertainment within our gates, if nothing has happened to disarrange the schedule of her continental tour. Behold Marie, Queen of Roumania, in one of her most distinctive portraits, and the signature that is as queenly as her regal self.
(Photograph copyright by Underwood & Underwood.)

CLAP HANDS, HERE COMES TINY—And Lewis, the full back who tears lines to ribbons at ninety miles an hour, sprints down an avenue opened through Purdue by Northwestern's road wideners in the second quarter of the argument at Dyche stadium. You see here the greatest machine in Purple history in action that reveals why the Boilermakers lost 22 to 0.
(Tribune photograph.)



THERE GOES THAT ILLINOIS TOUCHDOWN that beat Chicago's Maroons, 7 to 0, in the Stagg field thriller witnessed by a throng of 50,000. "Pug" Daugherity is racing out of the picture toward the Chicago goal in his sixty-yard dash that followed a tackle slice. McDonough, Maroon quarter back and safety man, is tumbling to the ground after a reach for Daugherity that fell short. Behind McDonough are his teammates, stretching out in a futile effort to run down the Illini full back.

AN ICE BALLET FROM EUROPE has arrived for an American tour, and you behold it here about to glide into action. It numbers eleven girls, each a picked ballet skater from an Old World capital.

YES, THERE IS SUCH AN ANIMAL, and there are mamma giraffes and baby giraffes as well. In this instance the stork got out of its cage at the New York zoo, and look what it left at the neighbors'. Sonny Giraffe is five feet high (at the neck end, we think), and is the third baby in the family.

AFTER THE HURRICANE AT HAVANA the memorial to the Maine in the harbor lay in ruins. This bronze eagle was blown from its perch and remains as a memento of the storm, seemingly screaming defiance to the elements that brought it down.

BARBECUE WELCOMES "OLD ALECK" HOME—A throng of 20,000 at St. Paul, Neb., celebrated the belated homecoming of Grover Cleveland Alexander, the baseball idol of 1926, whose arm played a major role in giving the St. Louis Cardinals the world's championship. At the barbecue in the evening the crowd put away seven beeves, truckloads of bread, tanks of coffee, and hundreds of gallons of ice cream.

The magic touch that gives a room life—

A friendly clock

LOVELY hangings, beautiful furnishings, interesting things you've found in out-of-the-way places—these alone are not enough to give a room warmth and friendliness.

There must be some animate note to quicken the whole room, bring it to life.

Interior decorators have found that nothing can so surely, so effectively give this living touch as a clock—designed, of course, in a style harmonious with the room's furnishings.

Because of their authenticity of design,, their masterly craftsmanship and accuracy, Seth Thomas Clocks are being chosen by well-known decorators for this important role.

The price range is moderate—from $6 to $120. Local jewelers are now featuring special displays.

SETH THOMAS SHARON. Mahogany finished case, 14¼ inches high, $17. Other Colonial models: Salem, mahogany finish, 12¾ inches high, $15. Plymouth —mahogany case, 24 inches high, $32. Concord — 17 inches high, $30.

A WATER TERMINALS PLAN FOR CHICAGO

THE map at the right shows the industrial district of Chicago and all of the proposed water terminals referred to in Cscar Hewitt's article in the main news section of today's Tribune. The proposals are numbered, and each insert on the map is an enlargement of each project bearing the same number as shown on the general outline.

LOCKPORT-JOLIET CANAL AND LAKE TERMINAL

No. 1 contemplates a harbor located between Joliet and Lockport to be formed by the construction of a dam across the Des Plaines river at the power house and lock of the sanitary canal. The water from the drainage canal and the Des Plaines river thus forms a basin extending northeastward up the unoccupied valley of the Des Plaines river. A proposed rail connection is indicated. The commercial and industrial harbor thus formed has the following practical advantages:

1—Breakup and assorting point for the large tows of barges into smaller tows.

2—An excellent facility provided for interchange of through bulk freight between barge lines and all rail lines running out of Chicago. This interchange is intended to cover through bulk freight to and from interior points outside of Chicago reached only by rail.

3—A wonderful site for industrial development. Industries will have a rail connection with every Chicago railroad and a barge connection with the entire system of Mississippi valley waterways. They will also have barge connection with the Chicago river terminals and similar connection with the Calumet district through the Sag channel.

ARGO BARGE TERMINAL FOR BULK FREIGHT

Proposal No. 2 shows the location of a barge terminal at Argo. Bulk freight to and from private sidings within the Chicago switching district could here be interchanged.

BARGE AND RAIL TERMINAL FOR PACKAGE FREIGHT

The so-called Santa Fe slip shown in the enlargement of proposal No. 3 is the only location in the city of Chicago which affords a point of interchange between barges or lake vessels on the one hand and a belt line connecting with all Chicago railroads on the other. The proposed barge terminal is served by the C. J. and C. R. & I. Belt lines.

This location provides a point of interchange between barges and railroads where the interchange switching cost will be the lowest.

It furnishes a delivery and receiving point for package freight handled to and from industries on the south side by truck.

It is also the best place for transfer of carload package freight to and from freight cars for switch movement to and from industries in the switching district because no intermediate switching will be necessary.

It will serve the Central Manufacturing District directly at one switching charge.

It will provide a concentration point for barge package freight which can be moved by lighters to and from points on the Chicago river.

MUNICIPAL PIER AND LOOP DISTRICT TERMINAL

Proposal No. 4 includes construction of additional breakwaters at the Municipal pier as shown by dotted lines. It provides a point of interchange between canal barges and lake vessels.

Wacker drive terminal is also indicated, as well as proposed connections at this terminal with the Chicago Tunnel company's 62 miles of underground tracks. Tunnel extension to the Municipal pier is indicated.

FORTY-FIRST STREET PIER

Proposal No. 5 contemplates construction of piers, freight yards, and warehouse at 41st street.

This pier will serve as an interchange between lake carriers and all rail carriers handling through merchandise freight as well as freight for delivery to industries with private sidings in the Chicago switching district.

The pier is to be operated in the same manner as the Bush Terminals in New York City.

CALUMET HARBOR

Instead of rail connection with the Nickel Plate as contemplated by a recent city ordinance, this proposition contemplates rail connection with the Belt Railway of Chicago. Dredging operations should begin at the entrance to the lake. As fast as industries are located the improvements could be carried on by further dredging operations extending northward. This harbor would provide terminal facilities for the interchange of both bulk and package freight between lake carriers and barge lines and rail carriers. It would be a proper terminal for bulk cargoes handled by lake carriers to and from industries located there and a terminal for the barge lines operating through the Sag channel handling heavy commodities. The plan contemplates an industrial as well as a commercial harbor.

INTERSTATE HARBOR

Proposal No. 7 contemplates a harbor of made land extending from South Chicago to Gary. Its construction can be made as fast as the location of industries warrants it. The State Line Generating company's new million kilowatt plant is indicated, with rail connection with the E. J. & E. Belt line.

THE WILD WEST IS IN THE EAST on the elk farm at Middleboro, Mass., where you behold a Yankee cowboy busy at the annual roundup. As winter approaches, the babies of the herd are cut out and herded on a separate range. They are put on a special diet, consisting chiefly of milk.

TWO BASEBALL STARS sharpen their batting eyes by sighting over the rifle barrel at Wyoming's big game and pulling the trigger, with the success attested here. Left to right are Carl Downing, guide; Ty Cobb, who recently resigned as manager of Detroit's Tigers; Max Wilde, guide; and Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians. And in the foreground, new rugs for the front hall, if the women folks don't decide on fur coats.

"Tea for two"

and REM for two--- coughs

You can't enjoy a tea-party when you have a nasty cough bothering you -- and that's what happened to these two little cousins not long ago.

But REM brought quick relief to the hostess, little Ruth Boesch, -- and to her cousin Bernice Walsh, too! Ruth's mother, Mrs. John Boesch of 3121 North 12th St., St. Louis, gives the details:

"My two sisters and I think there's nothing like REM for relieving a cough quickly.

"I used it first last winter when my little Ruth had a cough. I got a bottle of it down at Koetter's Pharmacy, 14th & Angelrodt, and it fixed her up in no time.

"My sister's daughter Bernice had a bad cough too, and she knew what REM had done for Ruth so she started giving her some. It got rid of her cough too and now we both think REM is fine. Our other sister is using REM in her family also."

Grateful users who have passed the good word along are largely responsible for REM's great popularity.

A special ingredient in REM---effective, harmless--- is not found in ordinary cough syrups. Clinging to your throat, as it is swallowed, REM spreads a soothing, healing film over the inflamed and irritated membranes. No Opiates in REM. And it is pleasant to take.

Ask your druggist for REM—the blue package with the round orange label. You can have your money back if it doesn't help you. You're the Judge and Jury.

POND'S
VANISHING CREAM

They cleanse, protect and freshen the most easily wearied skin!

Miss CAMILLA LIVINGSTON in party frock and evening wrap. A favorite in the smart younger set, she says: "Pond's keep us right up to the minute."

The crowding of the Social Calendar calls for clear fresh skins . .

Mrs. WILLIAM E. BORAH wife of the United States Senator from Idaho and a leader in society, receiving friends in her Washington apartment. She is an enthusiastic user of Pond's

THE social calendar scribbled full! The shining hours of every day fitted together like gay mosaics in a brilliant pattern of pleasure. It takes its toll of beauty—this life—smooth round cheeks begin to droop, unless exactly the right care is given the skin.

Certain of the beautiful women of the social world have learned it—how to keep dazzlingly fresh and unwearied despite the steady round. You marvel at their clear smooth cheeks, snow-white shoulders, firm round throats. This is how they do it:—

Before dressing for the evening and again before retiring, they pat over face, shoulders, throat, and hands, Pond's Cold Cream, letting it stay until its fine oils force from the skin's deep cells all dust and powder.

With a soft cloth they wipe off all cream and pore-deep dirt and repeat, finishing with a dash of cold water or a rub with ice. If the skin is dry, at night they apply more Pond's Cold Cream and leave it until morning.

After every cleansing with Pond's Cold Cream except the bedtime one, they smooth on a little Pond's Vanishing Cream. This gives shoulders, throat and cheeks a lovely even finish, keeps hands soft and white.

Powder and rouge blend beautifully now and Pond's Vanishing Cream also protects the complexion from city soot, winter winds and the fatigue and strain of long, late hours.

See how fresh and soft these Two Creams will keep your skin. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson Street, New York City.

The lovely smiling MOUTH of YOUTH

How proud and confident you are when your mouth and breath are always fresh and sweet as a child's!

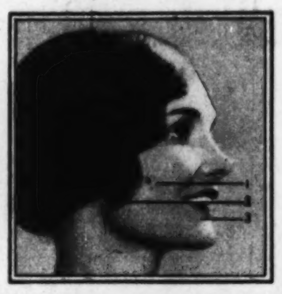
Yours always if you keep the tiny Mouth Glands young

SO much depends on keeping six little glands in your mouth always active. They pour out natural fluids that protect teeth from decay.

But, unless we watch out, the mouth glands slow up. The formula to correct this was worked out in Pebeco Tooth Paste.

Brush your teeth with Pebeco. Instantly you get the sharp clean tang that leaves the whole mouth tingling and refreshed. The mouth glands are restored to normal vigor. The fluids they pour out cleanse and protect the teeth even where the tooth brush cannot reach. Use Pebeco daily to keep your whole mouth wholesome always.

Made only by Pebeco, Inc., a division of Lehn & Fink Products Company. Sole distributors: Lehn & Fink, Inc., Bloomfield, N. J. In the blue tube, at all druggists.



Where the mouth glands are. Keep them always working!

The numbers show where they are—three on each side. The mouth glands are 20 times more active when we chew—but our soft foods do not exercise them. They slow up and decay begins. Pebeco contains an important salty-tasting ingredient that restores their youthful action.

TREADING OUT THE VINTAGE is no archaic expression among the French of Medoc, the famous old wine district, where the must of the grape is pressed out by foot power to the accompaniment of ancient dancing songs. "MY FACE BROKE OUT WITH PIMPLES. They got so bad I was ashamed to go out the way the other fellows did. One day one of my friends told me to take Fleischmann's Yeast. I started in eating from two to three cakes a day. In a short time my skin began to improve and soon my face was clear." James W. Kelly, San Pedro, Calif.

(Below)
"CONSTIPATION FORCED ME TO TAKE PURGATIVES OFTEN. The intervals gradually lessened until I was taking a purgative daily. I was in a very serious condition. Gas formed in my stomach in such quantities that it became both distressing and dangerous. I was impressed on reading an article about Yeast and began to eat Yeast freely. I quickly obtained relief from gas. After about three months I cut down my dose and in less than one year I quit medicine entirely. I now eat two cakes of Yeast a day and keep well." J. E. Wright, Dallas, Texas

"BECAUSE MY LIFE IS A BUSY ONE including club organization and welfare work, I have found it extremely difficult always to feel my best—to answer effectively all the calls made upon me. For a year and a half now, I have taken daily Fleischmann's Yeast dissolved in milk. As a result my system functions normally, a state rare for busy American women. I have added energy and zest in living and am definitely more useful to society." Mrs. Edward Castle, Denver, Colo.

(Left)
"FROM CHILDHOOD I HAVE SUFFERED FROM STOMACH TROUBLE. I began to think my case was hopeless. At last I decided to give Fleischmann's Yeast a trial. My appetite began to improve and now I can eat any kind of food. I can say positively that Fleischmann's Yeast has banished my stomach trouble." Bertha Gordon, Staten Island, N. Y.

THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—aids digestion, clears the skin, banishes constipation.

Present Day Conquerors

By a surprisingly simple method thousands today conquer their ills—win Health and Happiness

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active, daily releasing new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day, one before each meal: on crackers, in fruit juices, water or milk—or just plain, in small pieces. For constipation dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before meals and at bedtime. Dangerous habit-forming cathartics will gradually become unnecessary. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days.

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. N-772, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., New York.

Youngsters today simply must have the newest, the latest, the best. That is why they would rather have the music of the Duo-Art than any other.

When they want the very latest Charleston, one of Broadway's most famous dance pianists plays it for them on the Duo-Art. That marvelous new number by George Gershwin? Why, the composer himself is seated at the piano!

The acknowledged masters, the experts in their field, are recording the music for the Duo-Art, whether it be modern or classic. The youngsters dance at home to rhythm that no cabaret could rival. And Mother and Dad have Paderewski, Josef Hofmann—a hundred incomparable masters—to charm them in the quiet hours.

The Duo-Art plays wonderful accompaniments for singers and violinists. Pianists who assist Kreisler, Zimbalist, Spalding, Hempel, Schumann-Heink and other world-famous artists, are recording these Duo-Art Accompaniment Rolls. They are invaluable as personal lessons in interpretation and style.

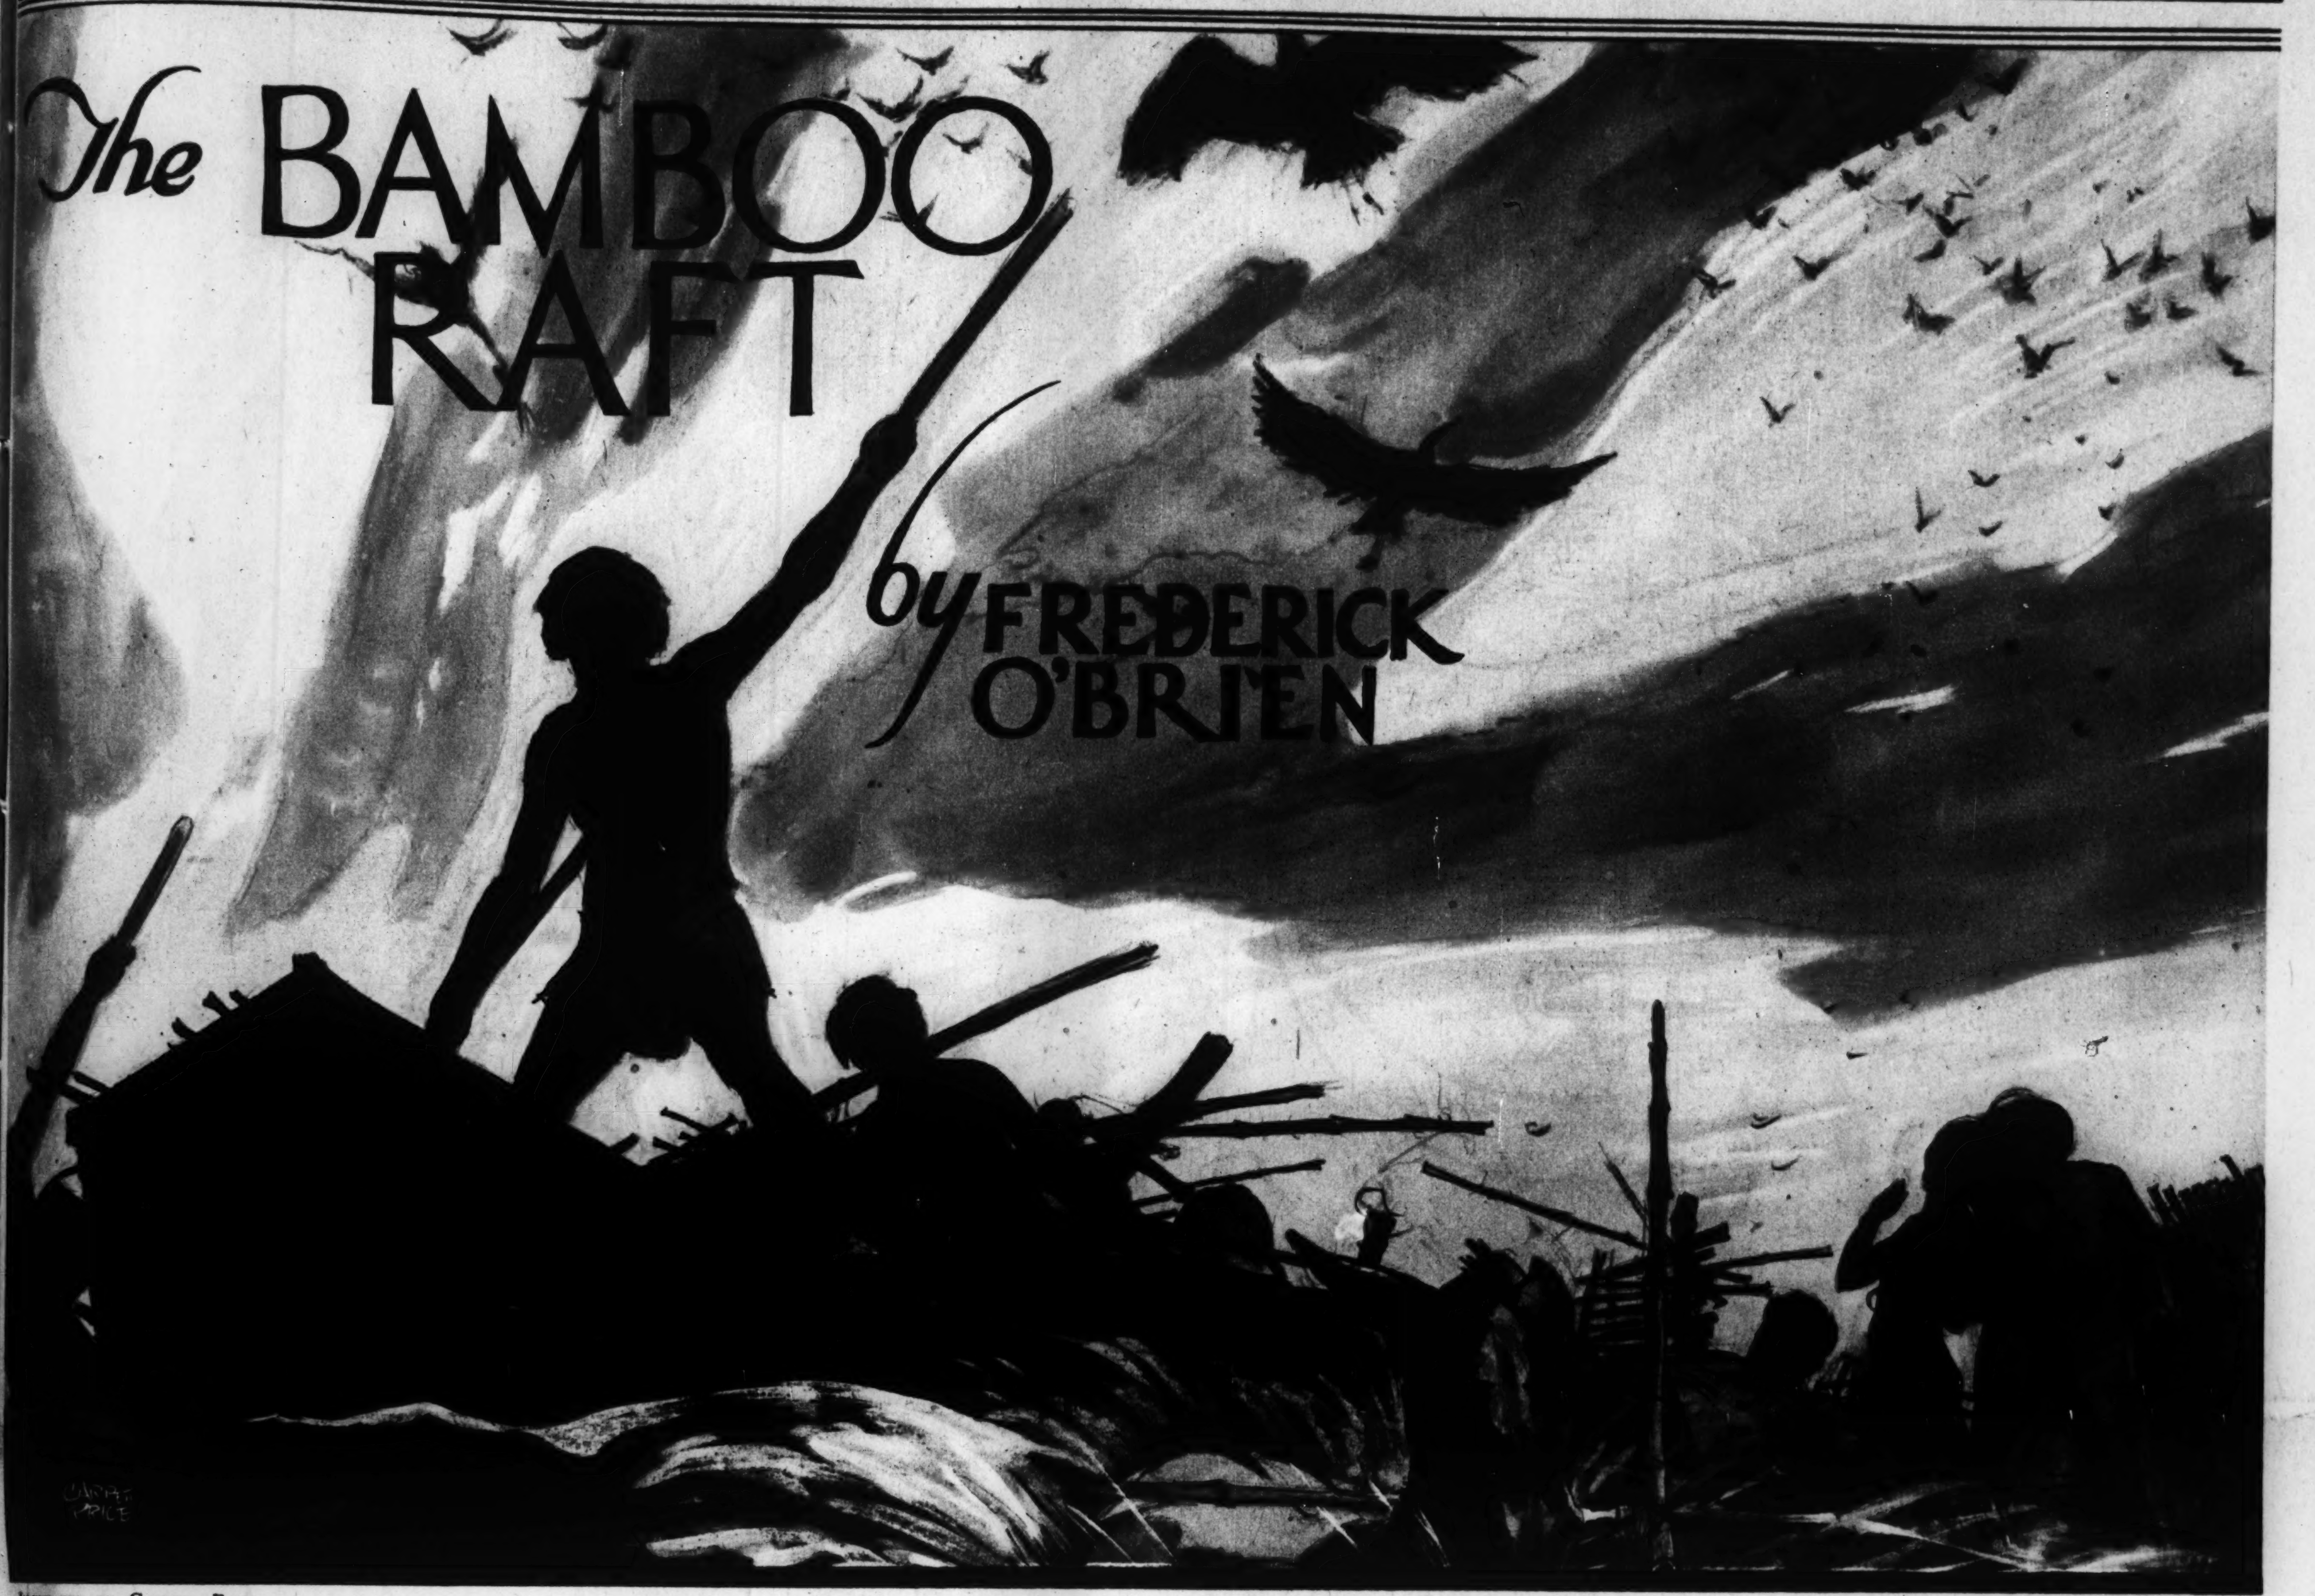
The BAMBOO RAFT

by FREDERICK O'BRIEN



After an almost human cry of despair the beast leaped into the river.

ILLUSTRATED BY GARRETT PRICE

Strange Things Happen in the Warm, Primeval Jungles of the Tropics, and Horror Lurks Under the Surface of an Outward Peace.

IN the tropics are the mysteries of earth. Where life began it is still almost as secret as its start. Near the equator the soul of man is direct and simple, allied with the hot, fecund nature of his jungles and seas. The land crawls with parasitic growths which climb the Erect, and strangle their supporters. The waters are quick with fish and reptiles that devour one another. Strange birds and beasts haunt the dark solitudes of forest and swamp. Hurricanes, floods, and earthquakes again and again lay low all achievements. Man knows a tenure as insecure as the garden ant from the foot of the passerby. The amazing and wanton aspects of nature are reflected in his primitive heart. His thoughts are as instinctive as hunger; his actions as spontaneous as lightning.

Except for the savage first comers, expelled to the mountains, man has stayed by the water. The rivers are the living arteries of the social body; the brooks and creeks its veins. To the Malay these are the most familiar ways of movement. On them he is more at home than on the soil.

The Rio Tinto, though a broad river when it reaches the high plains of the island of Luzon, still pulsates with violent currents, the curse of its mountain birth and its memories of torture in narrow, bouldered gorges.

At the village of Palma the river knows a quiet moment, and for hundreds of years the only crossing in a dozen miles has been there. Though far away from any city or even considerable town and itself with only a thousand or so people, the passage over the Rio Tinto made the village notable throughout Luzon. In the dry season there was a bridge of strong timbers, which each year, at the approach of the torrential rains, was taken down or, more often, caught by a sudden rise of the river and swept in fragments to the distant sea.

But the absence of the bridge did not detract from the importance of Palma nor of its people, the Palmenos. Then began their real activities. With canoe and raft they made the ferry of the Rio Tinto, carrying all who willed, with their animals and even vehicles, to the other side, where were the wild country of the blowgun pygmies and, farther on, the fastnesses of the head hunting Igorots, with gold ore and pine woods. The Palma people were masters of the river, unequaled in skill in the handling of ancestral raft in the currents of the Rio Tinto. But they themselves made little of their incredible competence.

They had always prized most their reputation abroad for dignity, hospitality, and courage. So long established was this distant fame that the very word Palma was a synonym for pride, for leisurely and fine manners, throughout Luzon. Even in the great city of Manila, with its half million shod people, one spoke of an inhabitant of Palma as in Spain one says caballero, meaning a gentleman and a brave man. The Spanish of Manila explained that for a century Palma was the farthest outpost of Spain in the north of the island and that a small garrison of soldiers from Seville was stationed there for generations.

Harrison and I came to Palma for the first time in the late afternoon, wearied with travel and the heat of a July day. We had chosen a lull in the rainy season to go hunting in the lower lands of the Igorots.

"'Susmaria!'" said Harrison, a Californian. "This is the first really true story I've heard in the Philippines. Look at the shady lanes and the neat houses! Did you see the people bowing from the windows? How about a couple of green cocoanuts before we cross the bridge? Suppose I ask that pretty señorita, under the palm tree there, to sell us two. They're worth a couple of centavos for copra. Hombre, it's hot in this man's country!"

"Spera!" he commanded the cochero, the driver of our cart. We dismounted and sought the shelter of the grove in which a native girl was gathering the fragrant, pink blossoms of the Cadena de Amor—the Chain of Love.

She looked at us shyly and saying, "Muy buenas dias!" "A very good day to you!" went with her handful of flowers into the nearby house.

"A good day won't wet my throat," said Harrison quizzically. Almost immediately a Filipino came out with several cocoanuts, a packet of cigars, and a bolo—a huge working knife.

"Señores," he said, with a flourish, "my house is yours! Come into the veranda. It is pleasanter."

With his bolo he pierced the tops of the nuts to make an entrance into the interior, in which what would later be firm, white meat was now a delicious liquid: nearly a quart of a natural lemonade, slightly acid and cool. At ease, we tilted the verd chalices and let the refreshing content flow into our parched mouths. Then, with our thanks, a "Muchos gracias!" we lit his rustic cigars and forgot our long, rough ride.

We talked in Spanish of the weather and of the crops, especially of the price of copra, the dried cocoanut, which, in America, makes the floating soaps. In a few minutes the señorita of the grove came out and we were presented to Inez, the host's daughter.

"Inez has been at the convent in Manila," he said. "She has just returned after five years. She is now sixteen."

Inez smiled at us with the sweet innocence of the gentle Malay girl, her black eyes large with curiosity, her white teeth small and beautifully set in a mouth as pink as a kitten's. Her mass of very dark brown hair was a swart halo about her exquisitely posed head and arched neck. She wore the bizarre Filipina dress, which becomes only the young and beautiful. Her rounded, satiny, pale yellow rose shoulders and arms were bare, a tight cotton bodice disclosing only a suggestion of her maiden bosom; and her lavender colored panuelo, a gauzy kerchief of pineapple weave, enveloped her torso like a summer cloud, through which peeped the outline of her bewitching form.

"You go far, señores?" asked her father, with a light undertone of interest and not of mere curiosity. Manila corrupts manners.

"MANHATTAN NIGHT"
How a young architect found beneath his window a diamond bracelet and an appeal for aid that led to romance and adventure. A sparkling short story by William Almon Wolff.

"To hunt across the river," I replied. "We must push on now to make the village on the other side before night."

We rose to leave and the planter stood up, too, and made a gesture of regret.

"Ah, señores, you must wait awhile. The bridge is down a month and we have no bancas or balsas. A typhoon a few days ago destroyed them all."

"Well, I'll be darned! That's hard luck for us!" exclaimed Harrison.

"Paciencia! Palma will see that you cross the Rio Tinto," said the Palmeno.

"Yes," drawled Harrison. "Mañana! You say you have no canoes or rafts. We must take our cart and mule, with our guns and ammunition and baggage. I'm afraid we must turn back and drive another day or two, to Salamit."

"Salamit, señor!" exclaimed our host in a high, pained voice. "Madre de dios! Can Salamit do what Palma cannot? Jamas! Never! I will go at once with you to the presidente. He will arrange for you. A balsa is being made. My daughter, too, wishes to cross, to visit her aunt, a few miles down, after all these years away in Manila. She has been awaiting the new balsa. No hay de prisa! There is plenty of time!"

THE village of Palma had but one wide street. On this were the houses of the leading residents, large roomed, two story dwellings with gardens of mangos, oranges, lemons, and bananas and many flowers. The presidente, the mayor of Palma, lived in the best.

"The family of Don Simplicio has been in Palma always," said our guide, as we approached the house. "His father was our presidente; they say his great-grandfather, too."

The mayor was on his veranda. He had learned of the presence of two Americans in the village and had hoped that we would do him the honor of calling upon him. He welcomed us as distinguished friends and ushered the way into the sala, a spacious parlor, the floor of a species of ebony, planks ten yards long and a foot and a half wide, polished by banana leaves, as the keys of a piano. Stiff chairs of fine woods and tables with lamps, a few pictures of saints and of the Virgin of Antipolo were the furnishings.

The mayor was in immaculate, starched white clothes, his feet in the white canvas shoes that America has sent about the world. He was a small man, dark, with Spain in his regular features and in his remarkable bearing. Not more than thirty, maybe several years less, he had the settled dignity of accustomed leadership and inherited position among aborigines. His feet were small, his hands more like a woman's than a man's, delicate; yet when he lifted anything, as a chair to seat us, one saw they were strong. His body was compact, alert, with the ease of limb of the man who squats mostly instead of sitting. I liked his eyes, black, sparkling, a little melancholy, as with all Malays of culture, resolute and guileless. He neglected nothing to make us comfortable; had our driver taken care of and our mule watered and fed.

After cigarets were lighted and another cocoanut drunk, Harrison, who thought only of his sport when out for game, brought up, at once, the crossing of the river. He lamented our loss of time and gave his opinion that a bridge should be built strong enough and high enough to withstand all floods.

"Señor Americano," replied the mayor softly, "you do not know the Rio Tinto. Just now it is as quiet as a paddy field, but a week ago it was like a Moro running amuk. Mucha calma! All our balsas were broken, but one is now almost built. Tonight you will do me the honor to rest in my humble house. Alas, I am a poor bachelor. I will make the price for you with the balseros. Tomorrow forenoon all will be ready. The best shooting is seven or eight miles below here. If you will permit me I will go with you to the spot, to show you where I have often gotten boar and deer. I will have the pleasure of your society, and a day on the river will do me good."

We thanked Don Simplicio, and after a shower bath and a siesta strolled at dusk about the admirable village. At every house the dwellers sat in contemplation at the windows. We were greeted with invitations to enter and with smiling questions of our impression of Palma. Few Americans came that way.

The mayor dined us well with fish, rice, bamboo sprouts, a sucking pig, and yams, with a bottle of Rioja, a mild Spanish wine. Harrison asked him if he did not find it monotonous living in Palma.

"Al contrario! Señor," he answered, "I had my education at Santo Tomas university in Manila, and then I hastened to return here. My father had died and I was appointed presidente by the governor of the Philippine islands. There is much to do. I have no family and the Palmenos are all my children. Tambien, I have a few books."

He showed us, deprecatingly, a study and office, in which were many volumes in Spanish—law, agriculture, essays, and the great Castilian prose authors, with a sheaf of poetry. When I read out the title he colored, with a moment's confusion. I had caught him in his weakness.

"It is true, señor," he acknowledged, haltingly. "I am mad on those poets. With them here one does not have to go away from Palma to see the world, to know the passions and virtues of the noblest."

The sweltering July humidity and the buzzing and biting of mosquitoes drove us under our nets early, on the beds of woven cane.

After breakfast of mangos, coffee, rolls, and eggs we went with Don Simplicio to where the balsa was being made.

"I sent word as soon as I heard of your arrival to hasten the work," he said to us. "It is almost finished. In an hour or two we will be off."

As he said, they were putting the last nail in the balsa; only figuratively, though, for there was not a nail nor any metal in it. Entirely from the forest, it was altogether of bamboo and rattan, with lashings of the latter tough plant, instead of iron nails or wooden pins. An extraordinary float, this Palma raft was the near perfection of man's first design in water craft, still in use in all the backward parts of the aqueous globe.

THE BAMBOO RAFT

By Frederick O'Brien

It was more than forty feet long and twenty broad, raised well out of the water and slightly pointed at both ends. Huge single pipes of bamboo, inches in diameter, formed the framework, and of this small bamboos, laid closely together, made a flooring through which no water penetrated.

A thousand strips of the pliable bejuco, which [illegible] the trees of the forest, tied the parts together in an interlacing of tremendous strength and tenacity.

"Great Cæsar!" said Harrison. "Are we going to drive our cart onto that and trust ourselves to this rampaging river? I hope you swim well and are not susceptible to crocodile bites."

"Crocodiles!" I repeated. "My boy, this isn't the Nile."

We spoke in English, but the mayor, guessing at the word, said in Spanish:

"Si, señores, there are cocodrilos in the Rio Tinto, but not very many. In the history of Palma we, alas! record many of our people eaten by them. A banca is swamped or a man falls into the water and his body is seen no more. A few months ago I had tried to put ashore a horse which I wanted to set loose. I drove it into the water from the balsa, to have it swim to the sand spit, but it hardly reached the shallow before it was pulled down before my very eyes. Señores, I hate few things; but los cocodrilos I detest. They are without heart. The demon may still be hereabouts. You have rifles; we will try to rid the river of him; though, lastima! there are, perhaps, many others."

FROM the high bank the balsa was a wonderful sight to us, like a floor in a new native house without walls, the rounded stems of the broad, golden bamboos glistening in the sun. Two flimsy structures were upon it; one a little hut with a roof of nipa leaves and seats within it for several; the other a stall, and inside it already our sturdy mule. The cart was fixed with cleats opposite. Two Palmenos with long bamboo poles tethered the balsa to the bank. In the nipa hut we perceived Inez, who was sheltering herself from the sun. The bank was brisk with the villagers, who had come to say good-by to their chief, and with girls who had renewed their childhood friendship with Inez. We were assisted onto the balsa by citizens of good will, being actually carried to our places as if we were children. The Palmenos do not credit any others with raftsmanship.

The father of Inez was giving her admonitions of caution, and consigning her, with fervid references to the Virgin of Antipolo, to the care of Don Simplicio.

The balseros, or pole men, had begun to shove off our stern, when there was a stir in the crowd, and two wild looking, near nude men appeared on the brink of the stream, carrying a large, round cargo basket on a pole. It was very heavy, and they set it down with groans of relief. They spoke to the presidente, who told us that they were woodsmen of another district, who wanted to carry their "jungle produce" down the river. Would we mind their coming along!

"My heavens!" said Harrison, "jungle produce! If we don't get away soon, they'll bring that carabao aboard."

He pointed to the long horned water buffalo, a ton in weight, wallowing in the shallow.

"They must know their business," I replied. "It's not our raft. Bueno, señor presidente, the more the merrier."

A traveling American pretends to be at home even in a whirlwind.

The woodsmen hefted the weighty basket, and set it down towards the stern, as indicated by the presidente. They lay down beside it, dripping with sweat, and, as is the fortunate gift of the tropics, they were asleep before we had gone a hundred yards. The Palmenos waved to us, and called out "Adios!" and we Americans shouted back bravos for Palma. The mule put back its ears and added a discordant neigh to the clamor. The raft bobbed up and down as it entered the light current. At last, we were on the panting bosom of the Rio Tinto. We were soon out of sight of Palma, in a turn of the shore, a new and delightful panorama greeting us each few minutes.

Don Simplicio had our cochero shift the cart to balance the differing gravities. The carriers of the basket, too, were sent to stretch out behind the stall. The passengers adjusted themselves to the space allotted them and I took an instant's survey of our clipper, before yielding to the beauty and fascination of the natural surroundings.

The balsa with its human, and other cargo, was indeed like a ship. In the hut, towards the bow—more like the pipes of Pan, than a proper ship's bow—we four sat, Harrison and I on a seat facing forward, and the presidente and Inez with their backs to us, facing the stern. We, as visitors, were given the place of honor. The hut was merely two uprights with a bench, and a thatched roof. Our shelter was about a dozen feet from the front of the balsa. Towards the stern was the bamboo stall in which our mule was firmly confined. A free mule on a raft would be worse than a bull in a China shop. The cart in which the cochero had climbed to slumber was on the other side, to offset the weight of the mule; in the rear of it, was the ponderous basket of jungle produce. That, too, was of bamboo, as was everything not living, except the cart. The basket was three feet across, able to contain four or five hogs, or a hundred cocoanuts, and with a lid fixed by a sliver. These natives make such a basket with their rude bolos, in the very spot where they gather fruit, or capture a hog. With the basket slung on their pingas, long poles, they jog along, carrying three hundred or more pounds suspended, for hours at a time.

Along the bow, and the forward sides of the balsa, walked, or ran the balseros, barefooted, oldish men, in breechclouts, long poles in their hands, with which they guided the raft through the errant currents, keeping it away from the banks, and fending off obstacles, floating trees, and extensive drifts of vegetation.

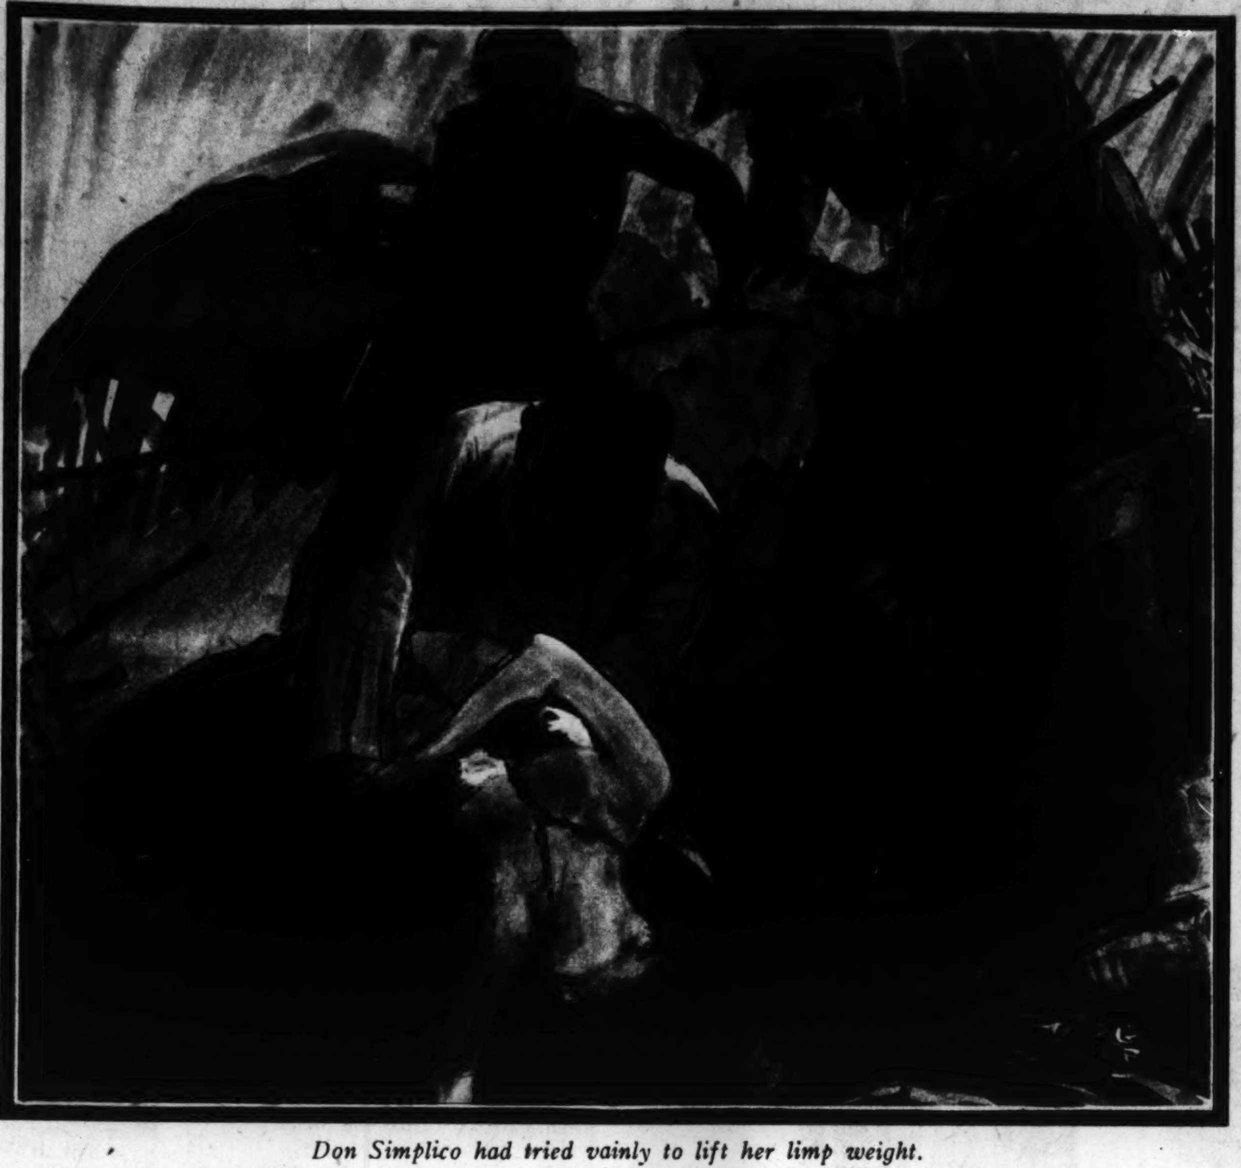
The presidente watched their movements with nice appreciation.

"Resurreccion and Pepe are the wisest balseros of Palma," he said. "They could take us all safely to the sea in a gale. But, gracias a dios! we have a smooth river, and no wind. Señores, know that you are perfectly safe, and enjoy the view. Is it not admirable, our Palma country? It recalls to me these lines from Camoens."

He recited in a sonorous voice, and in stilted Spanish style:

"On golden Tagus' undulating stream,
Skim the light barks, by gentlest wishes sped,
Trace their still way, 'midst many a rosy gleam
That steals in blushes, o'er its trembling bed."

The presidente hesitated, as he realized that he might not be with kindred poetic souls. The señorita, who listened, entranced, clapped her hands, and we applauded. The Californian, maybe a trifle homesick, sang a stanza of an old sea chantey, about his own Sacramento river.



Don Simplico had tried vainly to lift her limp weight.

He and I talked a while of the village downstream, and of the likely game near it. But soon the beauty and fascination of the constantly changing scene absorbed us, and we sat silent an hour or so. The river was not wider in these stretches than a few hundred feet, and from its middle, which we made our course, I could see the incredible richness of life on either bank.

From all the steaming jungle, the exotic trees and plants, the reeking banks, and the vivid life of limb and wing, of shell and insect, came an odor that filled my nostrils with bitter sweet, rank emanations of diluvial periods, a vital, piercing smell of living things, as in their earliest creation. I could have chanted a paean to the deity of Darwin.

A SNORT from the mule recalled me to the raft. This nervous animal had sounded a raucous note at the outset, but had apparently dozed for long. Now she called hoarsely to the blue heavens to witness her discomfort. She swayed her bamboo stall, and tried to peer around the upright that barred her movements. She leaned towards the water to discover in the yellow tide some cause of offense.

"I've been smelling something wild, and I'll bet she does, too. I guess it's one of those dam cocodrilos," said Harrison. "I'd like to get a shot at one with my forty-five. Mules have a better nose than horses. Hey, señor presidente! cocodrilo?" and he pointed to the water.

"Puedeser, señor," the mayor replied, "the cocodrilo is very quick in swimming. Maybe one has been about, perhaps smelling your mule. They are hard to shoot in the water. You must look along the low banks. They may be half hidden in the mangroves."

I went to the mule's side, and soothed her in soldier lingo, which was mostly profane, but said by the military to be the only suitable talk for mules. In Luzon, it was a compound of bad English, Spanish and Tagalog.

"Porque you abla so mucho? Lintig!" I said. "Usted smello cocodrilo? Putanamo. Shut your boca!"

The mule did not obey, but again protruded her head in a vain endeavor to look toward the carter. That sleepy youth had stirred at my words, and then relaxed again. The men who had brought the basket of jungle produce aboard remained inert. Doubtless they had walked miles during the night and morning to earn a few centavos by a sale of their burden. I patted the mule, and, though she sniffed the air with distaste, she gradually quieted under my familiar army dialect. I returned to my seat as another bend in the river brought an enchanting vista.

Harrison was now concentrated on killing a hated cocodrilo, and he fired at likely objects until he had exhausted the cartridges in his Colt. Then he cursed the wary saurians in Chaucerian English, which was Greek to any one else but me.

"All the other ammunition is locked up in the zinc box," he deplored, "and I'm too fatigado to hunt for it. We'll dust their scaly hides when we get to the sandspit. 'Sus, but it's hot!"

He curved into his corner of the bench and his head began to nod. The presidente was reposing silently and motionless, in the serene Malay way. Inez, after waking in shame several times with her head on Don Simplicio's shoulder, had settled down in a fragrant heap, her head now against my back. One of the balseros was prone beside his pole; the other held a drowsy eye upon the slow current. We drifted on this slack expanse of the Rio Tinto like a leaf upon the surface of a sluggish pond. The midday sun hung hot and glaring upon our roofless arc. I thought of myself as a benign Noah watching over his charges. What did he do, I wondered, when the elephant, the rhinoceros, and the hippopotamus all went at once to one side?

Suddenly the mule uttered a harsh squeal, the frustrated cry of alarm one hears from these hybrids in battle or in a fire. It tore the dull air of the noontide and woke instantly the sleepers. The presidente opened his eyes, Inez recovered her head with a shock, Harrison muttered as he came out of his nap, and the cochero sat up in the cart. I could not see the basket carriers, for they were behind the mule's stall. That beast immediately drew all our attention. Her ears flattened and rigid, she was daft as an Arizona cayuse that has eaten the loco weed; snorting, trembling, prancing, plunging, and continually venting a terrifying noise like the moan of a wild animal in a trap. She kicked violently towards the carriers, who rolled quickly from the range of her heels as she began to break down the flimsy walls of her stall. Harrison and I sprang to her head and tried to seize her by her mane, but without any halter we got no hold. She made a madder plunge, still another more desperate, and then, after an almost human cry of despair, with a frame of the stall about her neck, she leaped into the river. The balsa gave a fearful lurch and one side submerged for a minute.

"For the love of Mike!" shouted Harrison, as we were both flung down. "That comes from having no sides to your boat! There goes three hundred pesos' worth of mule to the cocodrilos. We can never get her back on this cursed gondola! We'll have to pull the cart ourselves——"

WE were all in motion, every one on his feet: the cochero in the cart, gazing stupidly at the remnants of the stall, the balseros balancing the raft, the carriers standing where they had risen in alarm at the mule's kicks, Don Simplicio and Inez sitting up in the hut, and I searching the water for a sign on either side of our crazy jennet.

Harrison's words of excited jocosity suddenly choked in his mouth. I looked to see what had come over him. He was gazing in horror at the stern of the raft. At the same moment Inez gave a scream of fright and sank, as if dead, to the bamboo floor. I followed Harrison's staring eyes and saw something that made my knees grow weak, so that I put out my hand to steady myself against the framework of the hut. The lid of the great basket on the opposite end of the raft had been thrust up, the clasp broken, and the enormous, frightful head of a monster serpent was protruding several feet into the air.

Harrison said in a weak voice, as if confiding in me alone, "My God, a boa constrictor!"

This was, indeed, the most incredible of jungle produce to issue from the basket of two barefooted natives on a raft upon a river of crocodiles.

The presidente, who was leaning over Inez, at that moment caught the fearsome sight and exclaimed, "Por Dios! Una culebra! Piton!"

I knew then what terrible scent had caused the mule to prefer the unaccustomed element of the river. Habituated to the forests, she had recognized, long before, the faint but, to her, unmistakable odor of her only land enemy, which, perhaps, Harrison, a born tracker, had also detected. Even I was conscious of a sickening sweet effluvium in the air very different from the tang of the jungle.

We stood paralyzed, the balsa floating at will, unmanned, as the boa constrictor, with rapid gyrations, unfolded its incredible length from the basket, and slid hesitatingly along the smooth surface of the raft, in a sinuous circle.

We watched, half hypnotized, the unwinding of the scaly black, brown, and yellow body, until a dozen feet or more of its astonishing length had left the basket. These few seconds passed with no other words, as if each could not believe the dreadful apparition was more than a jack-in-the-box, that would fall back with a squeak. Another moment the ominous presence moved forward the width of a bamboo, and the spell broke.

Next Sunday

"Harrison," I shouted, "for God's sake, where is the ammunition?"

I remembered suddenly that it was in a zinc box, secured against theft, as it was forbidden by law to all but Americans, and I fumbled in my pocket, wondering whether I had the key. Harrison, an accustomed hunter of dangerous beasts, dived under the bench, where were also the rifles in locked leather cases.

"The key! The key! Just a minute! Just a minute!"

But the boa constrictor did not tarry. While the carriers, the cochero, and the balseros stood petrified the serpent drew the last of its length from the basket and half coiled in a heap beside it, began a slow motion in our direction. It was impossibly large and threatening, seeming as if it unfolded all its coils it would reach across the raft.

Don Simplicio had raised Inez to her knees, where she cowered, unable to stand, hiding her face in her quivering hands and murmuring prayers to the Virgin.

Crouching beside her, to shield her, the presidente called to the balseros, in their native tongue, to attack the culebra with their poles, and in Spanish, to us, "Hurry with the guns! Fire at the piton's head!"

One of the carriers, maybe with a sense of guilt at our fearful plight, seized a piece of the stall and with it struck the serpent a resounding blow. This deflected it toward him, and it coiled in an instant motion to launch itself upon him. He ran toward us, yelling insanely, and the boa with a swift turn of its ugly head fastened its attention on the prostrate body of Inez, which, perhaps, it thought the most suitable prey. Its tiger colored, mottled scales shone evilly in the sun as its malignant eyes fixed upon the insensible girl.

Harrison had dragged the zinc box from under the bench, and I opened a rifle case as he kept crying, "Where is the key of the box? For God's sake, hunt for it!"

I HAD the rifle in hand, reaching feverishly for the cartridges still in the box, when the boa advanced and thrust its head out for a sudden closing in upon Inez. It was within five feet of her, and its coiling folds mounted higher and higher as it piled itself for the spring. At that moment Pepe, the balsero, thrust his pole through the heap, as one might through a coil of rope. The serpent converged its folds upon the heavy, strong stick and crushed it as if it were of glass. The sounds of it rending added to our conception of the brute's fatal strength.

But the attention of the python from the inert victim was taken away but for a flash. Its open jaws dripped with the saliva it made ready for its process of deglutition. The other balsero, who had been fending the raft from a floating tree that might have capsized it, now began to beat the gigantic folds with his pole as Harrison, the tears streaming down his face with fury at his helplessness, yelled, "I've got it! I've got it!" He had futilely tried to crush the zinc box and at last had happened on the key. But in the instant that I loaded the rifle an unexpected and terrible thing had happened. The boa, under the vehement blows of Resurrecion, launched its head directly toward the señorita. Don Simplicio had tried vainly to lift her limp weight, though the whole raft was a cage for us, and now, weaponless as he was, stepped toward the advancing snake. I had clutched the cartridges from Harrison's hand and was slipping them into the rifle, taking time against jamming, knowing that it was life and death, when the little mayor of Palma, with the mouth of the python gaping all but in his own face, struck at it with his bare fist, which in a twinkling was pulled far into the horrible, slavering cavity.

He seized at something within it, as if he would tear the boa's tongue out by the roots. The serpent pulled back its head and Don Simplicio was dragged a few feet by it. The gigantic coils began to gather to embrace him.

My rifle was ready, but his admonition to fire at its head could not be followed. At a yard I sent three bullets into its shifting body. Don Simplicio was struggling violently to free his hand, and at last it came out from the gaping mouth, pierced and bloody and grasping in its fingers a row of tiny, pointed teeth. The presidente fell back, exhausted.

Released, the boa turned toward me and I retreated, firing now at its head. It writhed madly at the terrific shock of the steel, twisting its wounded body in all directions and biting blindly at the bamboo floor. Another shot and it crashed against the cart, which in impotent rage it knocked overboard, and with it the cochero, who had remained for safety inside. Then with Harrison also firing at it, the python slid into the water and disappeared, riddled with bullets.

. . . .

With the snapping of the tension of appalling danger we all on the raft collapsed in reaction for a quarter of a minute and as abruptly returned to the new aspect of life. I rushed to Dom Simplicio, who stood staring at his bleeding hand and its dire treasure trove. Resurreccion, while Pepe improvised a pole from the remnants of the stall, steered the balsa toward where the cochero might be, but without avail. We saw him far ahead, holding onto the cart, which, caught in the current, was whirling down the river. I doubted not that he would climb into it and go to sleep.

Harrison, with implacable hatred in his eyes and his ammunition box now open before him, fired at any long, slim object in hope of wreaking further vengeance on the python. Inez had been brought to full consciousness by the detonation of the guns and the crash of the cart over the side. She sat up and drew Don Simplicio to the floor. She wept as she held his lacerated hand. I took our first aid kit from our bag and cleansed and bandaged his wounds. He let go with reluctance the trophy he had brought from the serpent's mouth—a bony band on which were set small, sawlike teeth. Many missing from this semicircle were imbedded in his palm and fingers.

Don Simplicio was otherwise uninjured, though pale, and in more pain than he avowed. He remained as cool and dignified as ever. He refused the brandy I offered him, but made Inez take a few drops.

"I got hold of his upper row of dientes," he said with a grim smile. "I had to pull them out or be dragged into his jaws. The piton has his teeth on a detachable bone, for yielding them in such an emergency. Is not the sandspit in sight? There I can find a banca to take me across the river where the raft cannot land, to the American army post. The American doctor there will extract the bruto's teeth. Or maybe a dentist might do. They are not poisonous. The piton kills only by crushing."

Inez would not smile at his pleasantries, but said, over and over again, "O, Don Simplicio, you saved my life! That piton would have killed me. I saw his eyes like Satan's fixed on me. I thought I was in his coils. I thank you! I thank you!"

I reproved Harrison, who was still idly shooting, for wasting our precious cartridges. My caution caused him to confront the two carriers, who were standing forlornly by their empty basket.

"Jumping Elija!" he said to me. "What in the hell did these idiots bring a live boa constrictor onto this raft for? Did Don Simplicio know about it? He told us the basket held jungle produce."

He shook the bigger of the two cargadores, who looked at him blankly. He questioned them roughly in American Spanish, but brought from them only brief, native words. Harrison, who was filled with rage, exclaimed, "I'll throw those scoundrels overboard. They've cost us, maybe, all our sport. Don Simplicio, why did they bring that devilish python in their basket? Did you know about it?"

DON SIMPLICIO was undisturbed. He spoke to the men, who replied with eloquent gestures of innocence of evil intentions.

"Si, señor, there are many kinds of produce in the jungle about Palma," the presidente explained, unruffled. "These poor men were ten miles from Palma, trying to net a deer, when they found the piton asleep, torpid in the digestion of, perhaps, a pig or a deer. They made a basket and brought it to Palma to sell. Our common folk eat the meat of the piton, which I myself have found not bad when camping in the bosque. They found no sale for it in Palma and hoped to sell it in the village we are going to. But why they did not kill it? Because, señor, in this heat the meat would spoil. Dead things do not keep but a few hours at this season. The piton was torpid and might remain that way for days. Puedeser, the movement of the balsa, the noise of your revolver, and the escapade of your very large mula woke it up prematurely. The poor carriers are sorry for causing us any trouble. They have always taken the pitons, when torpid, on the balsas. Fortunately this culebra was hardly awake or none of us would have remained on the raft. Alas, what a choice between the piton and los cocodrilos!"

Harrison shook his head, "'I see,' said the blind man," he grumbled. "Anyhow, I'll throw this trick basket overboard, to join the piton, our mule and the cart."

He kicked the empty hamper into the river, and with it, his burst of temper.

The balsa, burdened at our leaving, now tossed gently upon the Rio Tinto, and finding a streak of rapids, sped towards our landing. Our spirits, though nothing good had happened to us, save mere release from a fearful danger, bounded to the blue and beneficent sky. The heat was hardly felt. Don Simplicio bore equably his suffering and recited another stanza from his favorite poet, the Portuguese laureate. Harrison, himself a sentimentalist, followed with a cowboy song of love about the comic tragedy of "Frankie and Johnny," and at the fitting line, punctuated it with a shot at a snakelike log.

As we came in view of the sandspit, the village hidden a half mile back in the clear land, we descried the cart in a ravel of flotsam. The carter we found later at the village. Our wise mule we never saw again.

A banquero, who paddled his small canoe, and fished with a hand net, was drafted to take Don Simplicio to the army post, while Inez accompanied us to find her relation. With our cochero, we would return to rescue our cart, and, we hoped, our baggage.

We bade good-by to the gallant presidente with reluctance. In a few hours we had read his soul more deeply than in a lifetime of usual acquaintance. He was worthy of the best traditions of Palma, the proud.

IT was two years before I saw Don Simplicio again. I was hunting alone, and finding myself near Palma, I took a sudden notion to go there. My carremata drew up before the presidente's casa, and on the veranda I called out, "Don Simplicio, que tal?"

A servant came out, and seeing me, summoned his master. The presidente greeted me warmly, with, "Don Federico! Mi gusto mucho——!"

I shook his hand, and as I held it, felt curious, hard lumps under the skin. Instantly the whole scene of the bamboo raft rose before me.

"Ah, Don Simplicio," I asked, "your hand is perfectly well? The piton did not injure it? It feels strange."

"Señor," said the mayor, laughingly, "I am perfectly well. The good American doctor left a few of the serpent's teeth in my hand as a souvenir. I persuaded him to do so, with difficulty."

I looked at him with admiration. For the first time, his simplicity was a little complex to me.

"And the señorita?" I inquired. "Miss Inez? She owed her life to you. Doubtless she is married by now."

"Ah, señor Americano," said Don Simplicio, seriously. "She has repaid everything—Momento! Inez!"

She came from an inner room, smiling, gracious, and lovelier than before.

"Mi querida señora!" he said. "My dear wife!"

. . . .

That was twenty years ago. Palma has a new pride now. A permanent bridge of concrete leads to the country of the Igorots, where sawmills destroy the pine trees, and are golf links of nineteen holes. Yes, I saw Don Simplicio. His hair is now slightly gray, instead of raven, and his dignity is more pronounced. He came out to my automobile to greet me. "Ah," he said, cordially, "I remember you. You have been away a long time from Palma. You are just from America? You might have seen our son there. He is studying agriculture at the University of Kan-sass."

THE MAGIC MAN

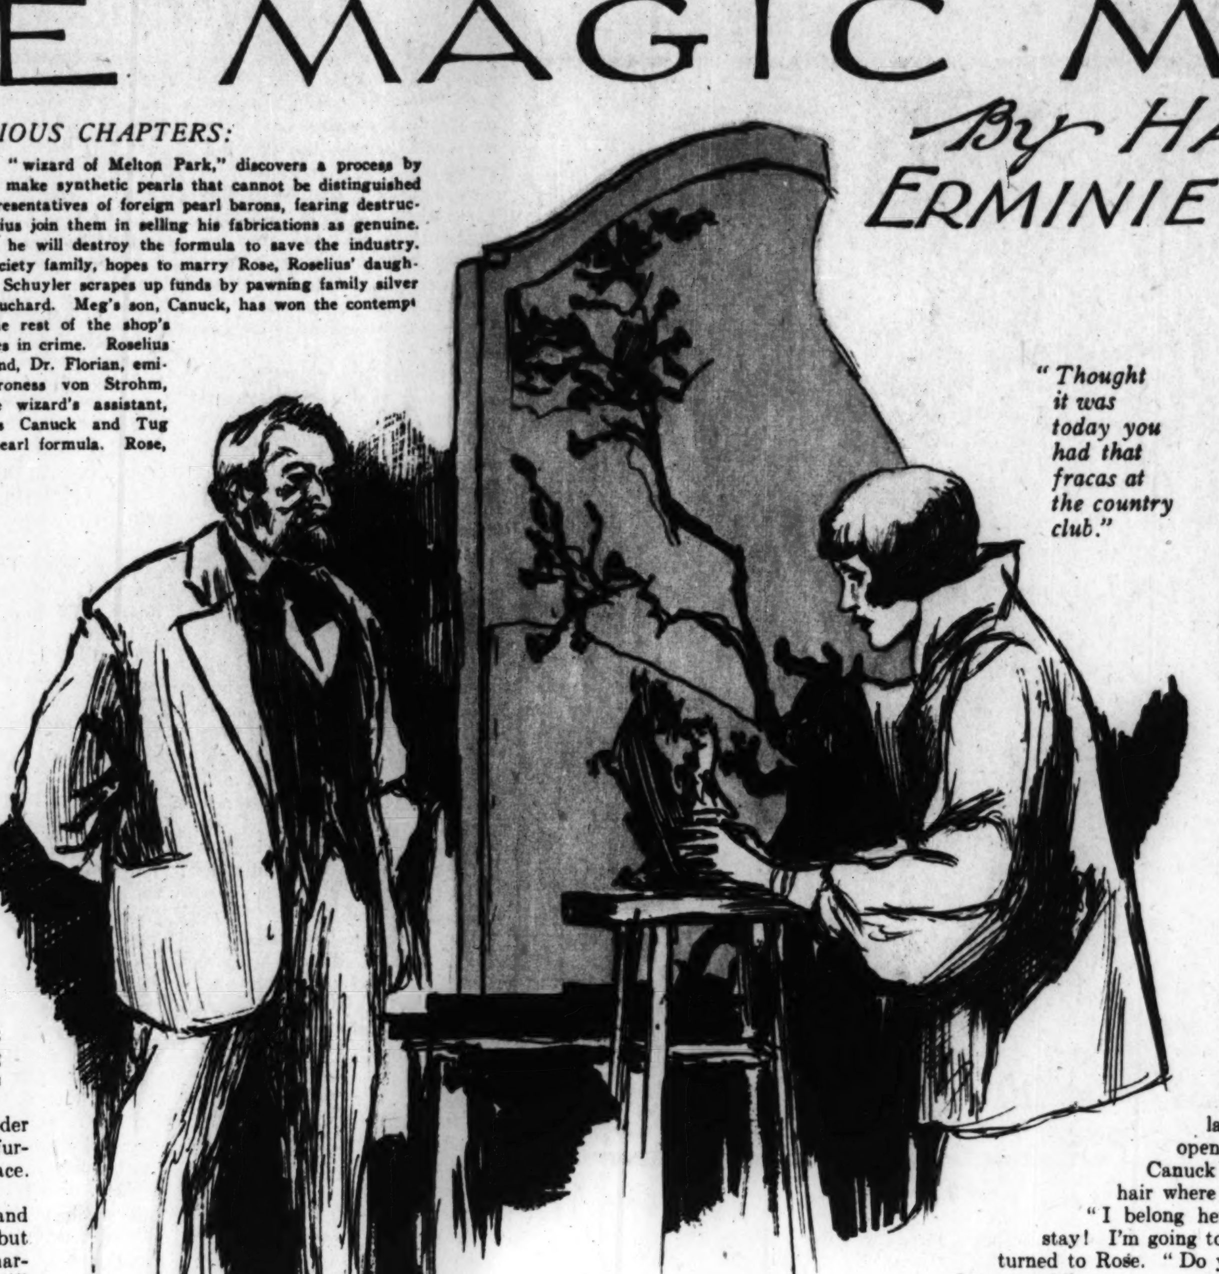
By HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

IN PREVIOUS CHAPTERS:

DR. KARL ROSELIUS, wealthy "wizard of Melton Park," discovers a process by which, for a few cents, he can make synthetic pearls that cannot be distinguished from the finest orientals. Representatives of foreign pearl barons, fearing destruction of their trade, propose that Roselius join them in selling his fabrications as genuine. The chemist refuses, announcing that he will destroy the formula to save the industry. Mitchell Schuyler, scion of a ruined society family, hopes to marry Rose, Roselius' daughter, despite the chemist's disapproval. Schuyler scrapes up funds by pawning family silver at the shop of a woman fence, Meg Huchard. Meg's son, Canuck, has won the contempt of Denny, Meg's handy man, and the rest of the shop's coterie by his lack of nerve and bungles in crime. Roselius exhibits his synthetic pearls to his friend, Dr. Florian, eminent Belgian surgeon; to the Baroness von Strohm, Florian's sister; to Miss Thorp, the wizard's assistant, and to Schuyler. Schuyler engages Canuck and Tug Holloway, safe cracker, to steal the pearl formula. Rose, attempting to capture Canuck at the safe, shoots him when he resists. Tug escapes. Florian pronounces Canuck dead. With a new invention Roselius coaxes back life, and Rose nurses him back to strength. Canuck's memory is gone, and Roselius plans an experiment of regeneration, giving the youth the character of Pierre Florian, a nephew of Dr. Florian slain in the war. Florian objects, and Roselius arranges to win him over with a test of Canuck's character. He throws the synthetic pearls on the laboratory floor and has his subject called.

INSTALLMENT VIII.

Soundings



"Thought it was today you had that fracas at the country club."

CANUCK looked again at the safe. What had made him lift that tapestry? It was almost as if he had known what was there! Something milky white and radiant caught his eye, lying on the rug almost at his feet—a rope of pearls with a broken string.

Canuck glanced over his shoulder with a sudden sharp inquiry. A furtive look had slipped to his face. Pearls!

He leaned with a quick motion and picked them up. No phony beads, but pearls—real pearls, as big as marbles. Probably dropped by a swell dame come to see some other sick man! Worth enough to keep him on easy street for the rest of his natural life! His eye leaped to the open window —caught the gleam of the white road beyond the gate. He slipped the necklace into his pocket.

She wouldn't need to nurse sick people any more—the girl whose face was the first thing he looked for in the morning and the last he thought of at night—if she'd come to him. He could get in touch with her, trust him for that! He could give her anything she wanted. He'd be rich!

He threw the cigaret he was smoking into the fireplace; his gaze went through the open door of the servants' stair—up along the gallery. There was no sound of voice or step. He saw the cloth cap on the table and put it on, pulling it well down around the bandage. Then he buttoned his coat snugly and went swiftly to the open window, his eye measuring the distance to the turf below.

He laughed noiselessly. A bank roll thrown at his head and the getaway all set! They'd always laughed at him, had they? Well, he'd show them a big thing at last!

Something clicked in Canuck's head, like a clutch slipping over its cog. He drew a breath that was like a gasp. He'd show them what? Who was it he'd show? Who had laughed at him? His hand went to his head and drew off the cap. He took the pearls from his pocket and looked at them. Not his, no. Steal them? Had he been about to do that? Why?

For a long minute he stood, his brows frowning, strange conflicting impressions racing past his mind into a confused and painful obscurity. The Canuck that had quarreled daily with Denny at Meg's place, shot craps with the crowd, and idled at the pool parlor and the dance hall—the Canuck that had hurled the vengeful half brick that had given Detective Timothy Hoye a longish stretch on sick leave—the Canuck that had hated everything and nearly everybody and despised himself—was staring abashed at the new Canuck of the clean swept mind, cut clear of the clogging weights of memory.

At length he laid cap and pearls on the table, sat down on the davenport, and put his bandaged brow in his hands. It was throbbing painfully.

He was sitting thus when Rose came in. She was dressed in a deep blue cape suit edged in silver, with a blue and silver scarf and a dark winged straw hat with a Napoleonic tilt. It was the first time he had seen her wearing other than white, and his eye kindled at the picture she made.

On her part, she was thinking how well the modish suit he wore became him. In the smartly tailored clothes he might have been anything, anybody.

"How well you look!" she said. Then, seeing his paleness——

"Has it been too much for you, coming down?"

He shook his head. "I'm all right. My head ached a bit, but it's gone now. Is Mr. Roselius coming here?"

"Yes, I think so. He's probably with Dr. Florian now. The doctor and his sister are sailing for Europe this afternoon."

"I expect he's going to give me the hook," he said.

"Why do you think that?"

"I'm almost well, and hospitals aren't for well people." He looked at her eagerly. "Say! I don't know your whole name, or where you live, or anything. Won't you tell me? For I want to see you again."

"You will," she said.

"But if——" He broke off as the door opened and Roselius and Florian came in.

"Ha!" Roselius' exclamation was explosive. "You're here, eh?" His darting eye caught the gleam of the pearls on the table and he picked them up and shook them, with malicious triumph, under the surgeon's aquiline nose. "What did I tell you, Prosper? I knew I'd mislaid them somewhere."

"I found them on the floor," said Canuck.

"Actually!" smiled Roselius. "I'm getting abominably careless in my old age. And I won't tell you what you're getting, Prosper!" He put the rope in his pocket. "Well, how does your patient look? Is he able now to hear all about himself?"

Florian twitched his eyebrows, and his gold pince-nez dropped to the end of the ribbon tether. He went to a chair and sat down.

"Go ahead," he said.

Roselius dropped a hand on Canuck's shoulder. "Your name, my dear boy, is Pierre Florian. Look at your watch. See, it has your initials. Think! Does the sound of the name mean nothing to you?"

Canuck shook his head.

"I saw the letters on my things," he said. "Florian! Where do I belong?"

"You belong here."

Canuck looked his bewilderment. "In this hospital?"

Roselius smiled. "That was only a little fiction invented to help you get well. This is my house."

"How did I get here?"

"You came from Brussels to be my assistant, ten days ago. With your uncle here, Dr. Florian."

"My uncle!"

"You are Dr. Florian's nephew. Can't you remember him? Not at all? Poor lad, poor lad! Strange, isn't it, Prosper?"

"Damned strange!" said the surgeon violently.

"Your uncle and your only near relative," said Roselius, rolling the words on his tongue with huge satisfaction. "For your parents are dead and you were their only child. He is the sole blood tie that binds you to your birthland. Belgium is very proud of your uncle Prosper! He's the greatest brain surgeon that ever lived. If you don't believe it," he added, wickedly, "ask him! It's lucky he was here to treat you, or you might have lost more than your memory, and lost it for good, too."

"What happened to me?" asked Canuck, huskily.

"The very night you arrived a burglar broke into this room. He was after my safe in the wall back of you. You were sleeping in one of the workrooms there"—he pointed to the row of doors under the gallery—"and discovered him. He escaped by jumping from that big window. But in the struggle he shot you. The bullet shattered your skull."

Canuck blinked. He wanted to laugh, but a silly, wobbly feeling made him swallow hard instead. His place here—in this splendid house, where he had had doctoring and nursing and all he could want!

"I'm your assistant?" he said, wonderingly. "What do we do?"

"I'm a chemist," said Roselius. "I take dreadful messes that smell to heaven and make lovely perfumes out of them and colors like the silks on that rack. I play with electricity and make it do all sorts of marvelous things. You and I are going to work together, and you're going to learn a lot."

Canuck's wide eyes were on the bright colored silks.

"I'll—like that!" he said.

"Aha, Prosper!" cried Roselius. "And you thought he'd want to go back with you!" He turned to Canuck. "Your uncle Prosper has been determined to take you with him to Brussels. Just as if you couldn't get well here as quickly as there! I've had a tremendous fight with him to make him agree that you should stay. Your aunt Hélène is inconsolable about it. But—ah, here she is now."

THE baroness was indeed entering at the doorway, her cane tapping, her eyes peering uncertainly. Roselius made a gesture.

"The Baroness von Strohm," he said. And in a tense whisper, "Don't break your poor aunt's heart by saying you can't remember her!"

Canuck put his hand to his temple, stricken.

"A baroness," he muttered. "My aunt?"

The baroness halted, with an expression in which humor struggled with helplessness.

"Don't distress yourself," she said. "We can't expect that you will know us. Yes, Pierre, Prosper and I are quite resigned to your staying—since you make such a point of it, Roselius." She turned to her brother.

"The trunks have already gone, Prosper, and the car is waiting for us. We don't want to miss the ship."

Florian got up quickly.

"So! Well, we must be off. It takes time to get aboard. He turned with her to the door. "You and Rose are going to the dock with us, Charles? Come, Hélène, we must see if all our small things are down."

Roselius gave him a vicious look. Then he stooped and, putting his leonine head close to Florian's ear, hissed:

"Pighead! Aren't you going to bid your nephew good-by?"

Florian whirled as if Roselius had kicked him, and held out his hand.

Canuck took it diffidently.

"Good-by, Uncle Prosper," he said. "Guess I'd have pasesd out but for you. Maybe I haven't thanked you—but all this—it's sort of put me up in the air. I haven't got hold of myself yet. It's fine of you to want to take me to Belgium. Sorry I didn't know before who I was—so I—so we——'"

Florian coughed.

"Thank nature, not me," he said, gruffly. "You have a good constitution."

What happened next surprised them all. When the baroness gave him her hand, her face turned a little aside, as her eyes were on her brother. "I used to wonder who you were," Canuck said, "when I saw you through the door. Why didn't you ever come in?" And with an impulse as sudden as it was unanticipated, he leaned and kissed her on the cheek.

It astonished the old lady so that she dropped her cane. He picked it up, wondering at the quick color that tinted her withered face, no less than at her smile.

"Your Uncle Prosper wouldn't let me!" she said, and the smile she gave him held a droll edge of mischief. "Adieu, then. We leave you in good hands. He is in good hands, very capable hands! Eh, Roselius?"

She followed Florian's precise figure and they went out with Roselius, whose gusty laugh came back through the opened door.

Canuck put up a hand and rumpled his hair where it escaped the bandage.

"I belong here!" he said. "I'm going to stay! I'm going to work with him! Here!" He turned to Rose. "Do you mind if I call you by your first name?"

"Um-m." She considered. "Why?"

Canuck, who never in his life had blushed at the badinage of a girl, turned red. "It's all so wonderful! That night when I went off my handle—you being here, you know—and everything since. I just feel that way about you, somehow."

"Rose! Rose!" The big bass boomed from the lower hall. "Come! We must start."

"Right-o," she sang out.

Something in the exchange smote through Canuck's incomprehension. He came close to her:

"That nurse business was all fluff! You're no nurse."

"I nursed you," she said.

"Mr. Roselius is your father!"

She nodded. "Wasn't it a rotten trick we played you!"

She ran out. In the doorway she looked back and nodded:

"I don't mind if you call me Rose," she said.

CANUCK sat at a small desk in the lib-lab. At his elbow, open, lay a text book, "The Elements of Physical Chemistry." It was valiantly dog-eared and acid-stained from contact with his hands.

From where he sat he could look through the window across the court into his room in the adjoining wing—all the rest of the working staff were housed in the village. A room of comforts; a single four-poster bed, valanced in old blue, on whose coverlet each night he found his pajamas laid out and the book he was reading (selected and marked by Roselius) to hand on the bedstand. The walnut writing table, with its square block calendar and

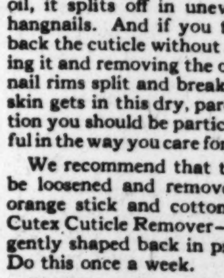
What's Wrong With Your Nails?

Northam Warren, foremost authority on the manicure, answers in this column questions on the care of the nails.



Question:
"How can I get rid of hangnails?"
Mrs. H. B.

Answer: Hangnails, rough, split or dry cuticle . . . these seem to be the special manicure problems of the housewife. They must necessarily have their hands in water a great deal. Often they have barely time to dry them or don't dry them at all.

Naturally the tender skin gets very dry. Robbed of all its natural oil, it splits off in uneven, painful hangnails. And if you try to force back the cuticle without first softening it and removing the old skin, the nail rims split and break. When the skin gets in this dry, parched condition you should be particularly careful in the way you care for the cuticle.

We recommend that the old skin be loosened and removed with an orange stick and cotton dipped in Cutex Cuticle Remover—the cuticle gently shaped back in pretty ovals. Do this once a week.

Then Cutex Cuticle Cream rubbed thoroughly into the cuticle, in the manicure and at night, will restore the needful oils and keep the cuticle soft and pliant.

Follow this method regularly and your hangnails will disappear. Send 10c for Introductory Sizes of each.

THE OTHER DAY - - False Steps at the Big Gorge - - By Donald Ogden Stewart

STANDING on the edge of the Grand Cañon and looking toward the other side, I was interrupted by a woman and her husband.

"I beg your pardon," said the woman, "but can you tell me where I can find the Grand Cañon?"

I turned around.

"This is the Grand Cañon," I replied.

The woman turned to her husband.

"See," she said, "I told you so."

The man stepped up beside me and gazed for several minutes out over the abyss. Then he spoke to me.

"I thought it would be bigger," he said.

"It's pretty big," I replied.

He gazed again. Then he shook his head.

"It isn't big enough," he said.

"Big enough for what?" I asked.

The woman interrupted.

"Come on, Henry," she said. "Maybe it's bigger farther down."

Henry turned to me questioningly.

"No," I replied, "I don't think so."

He sighed.

"All my life," he said, "I've heard about the Grand Cañon."

"Come, Henry," urged the woman.

Henry hesitated a minute, looked once more out over the cañon, and then turned his back.

"I'm going up to the hotel," he said, "and smoke a cigar."

The wife hesitated to follow.

"He smokes such bad cigars," she said.

I smiled. She watched her husband as he slowly moved along. Then she turned and looked at the cañon.

"I don't think it's so bad," she remarked. "Do you?"

"Why, no," I replied. "In fact, I think it's pretty good."

She sighed.

"Well," she said, "that leaves only the Panama canal and the Chinese wall. Have you ever seen the Chinese wall?" she asked.

"No," I replied.

"I hope it's big," she said.

There was a moment's silence.

"And what if it isn't?" I asked.

"Well," she said, "I don't know. I suppose we'll go back to Dodge City."

"Kansas?" I asked.

"Kansas," she replied. "And I'll be glad."

"Dodge City is where we change time, isn't it?" I remarked.

"Yes," she replied, "but there are other reasons."

"Won't you sit down?" I asked.

"Where?"

I looked around.

"Does it matter?" I asked.

"No," she replied. "It doesn't matter."

We remained standing.

"I was fourteen," she began, "when I first saw him."

"Henry?" I asked.

She looked at me and smiled.

"No," she said.

I bit my lip. Then I looked at my nails. Then I bit my nails. Then I looked at my feet. Then——

"I'm sorry," I muttered.

"It was stupid," she said.

"Shall we go on?" I asked after a moment.

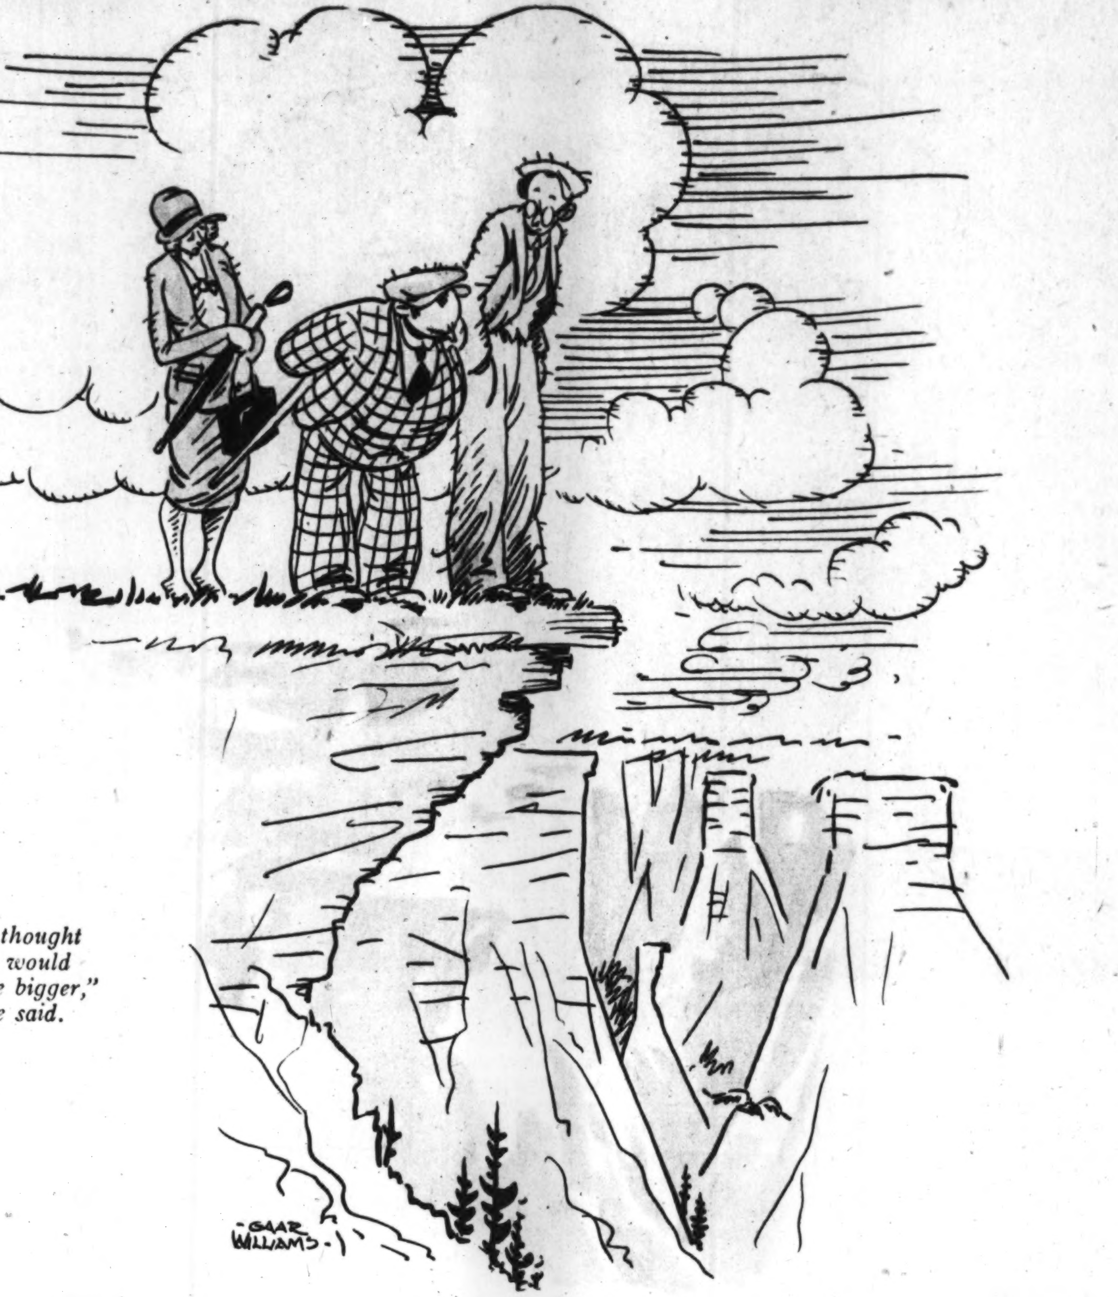
She hesitated.

"He was very beautiful?" I asked.

She smiled—that same sad smile.

"He was an Abercrombie," she replied.

"O," I said.



"I thought it would be bigger," he said.

"Do you know Dodge City?" she asked.

"Only to go through," I replied, and then I added, "Was it Oscar Wilde who said 'There are two kinds of towns—those you live in and those you go through'?"

"No," she replied.

"Was it Whistler?"

"No."

"Was it——"

I stopped. I could tell she was getting bored. In a few minutes, however, I had caught up with her. She was breathing rather hard from the violent run, and it was several minutes before we resumed. I led.

"The cañon is certainly wonderful," I remarked.

"Is that from Oscar Wilde?" she asked, with a faint mocking smile. She was tracing initials in the dust with her parasol, and as I stooped over I observed that they were the initials of my grandfather and also the initials of the Ambassador hotel. I wondered which.

"I WONDER which," I said.

"What which?" she countered.

"Ah," I replied, slightly ironically, "if one only knew."

She had stopped tracing initials and was engaged in drawing birds. Soon she tired of that and began drawing houses. Under one house she put a question mark.

"A house," I guessed.

She shook her head. I looked again.

"A canal boat?"

This was also wrong. I began to despair. Then she added a mustache to the drawing, and I saw that it was meant to be President Coolidge.

"Are you interested in politics?" I asked.

"He is," she said significantly.

"Coolidge?" I asked.

Again that quizzical smile.

"O," I said, and was silent. Then I ventured a question.

"Does your husband know about it?" I asked.

She shuddered.

"You can trust me," I said, encouragingly.

She seemed doubtful. I looked for something to give her confidence.

"Look," I said. "Here's a letter addressed to me. And here's a receipt for my last month's gas bill. See," I added encouragingly, "Paid in full—signed J. M. O."

"Who's J. M. O.?" she asked suspiciously.

"I don't know," I replied. "He's the fellow down at the gas office."

Still she seemed doubtful. I searched further.

"And here," I said, "is a picture of my uncle taken when he was quite a little boy."

She examined the photograph.

"It doesn't look like you," she said.

"I know," I said. "It isn't me. It's my uncle."

"And who is that lady with him?" she asked.

"That's his wife," I replied.

"I thought you said he was a little boy," she argued.

"Let me see," I asked. I took the photograph.

"O," I remarked. "That was my mistake. That's his mother."

"And who," she asked, "is that gentleman with the whiskers?"

"That," I replied, "is the photographer."

She seemed puzzled.

"You see," I explained, "the picture was taken by my uncle's father. That's why he doesn't appear."

"Hmm," said the lady. "It seems very strange to me that your uncle's father would have gone to a photographer and then taken a picture of the photographer."

"That was just one of those things," I explained, and then I added, "My uncle's father was in many respects quite unique."

"The photographer does not seem to be very happy," commented the lady.

"He later married my uncle's father's wife," I explained, "the lady you see in the picture."

"And what happened to your uncle's father?" she asked.

"He lived with them," I replied.

"With the photographer and his ex-wife?" she asked.

"It was very embarrassing," I said. "They didn't know what to do. Finally they bought a big telescope and got him interested in astronomy."

The lady was silent.

"I wonder," she said at last, "if there are any happy marriages."

"I can't tell you," I replied. "I am on my honeymoon."

"O," she said, "is that lady you are with your wife?"

"Would you like to see the license?" I asked.

"Where is it?"

"Right up at the hotel," I replied. "It won't take a minute."

THE lady smiled.

"They're always up at the hotel," she said, and then she added quickly, "No; please don't bother."

"You are very bitter," I said.

"You are very young," she replied.

"O, I don't know," I said. "I'm not so young."

"Why, you don't know anything," she argued.

"I do, too," I replied. "Ask me some questions."

The lady considered.

"Well," she said, "who was the eleventh President of the United States?"

"Andrew Jackson," I replied.

The lady laughed mockingly.

"Chester A. Arthur."

Again that laugh.

"And you call yourself an American," she taunted.

"I can recite the Declaration of Independence," I stated. "Would you like to hear it?"

"No," she replied; "I'm tired of the Declaration of Independence."

"How about the Gettysburg address?" I offered.

"I'm tired of that, too," she said, "but by any chance do you know that thing of Bernard Shaw's beginning, 'The preparation of a second edition of this book is quite the most unexpected literary task that has ever been set me. When it first appeared I was ungrateful enough to remonstrate with its publisher for printing, as I thought, more copies than the most sanguine person could ever hope to sell. But the result proved that,' etc., etc. Do you know that?" she asked.

"No," I replied.

We seemed at an impasse.

"I love Shaw," she said. "I could quote him by the hour."

I looked at my watch.

"I don't think we would have time," I remarked.

"Ah," she said with a faint smile, which might have come from anywhere, "there is so little time for anything."

She gathered her wrap about her and we moved toward the hotel. On the porch her husband was smoking a fresh cigar. She went over to join him and I walked into the hotel to find my wife.

THE MAGIC MAN - - - - - - - By Hallie Erminie Rives

blue blotter. The dressing table and deep cozy chairs and bookcases, and the colored Japanese prints on the walls. And opening from it the bath, black and white tiled, with its polished array of faucets and shower, that stood for a beatitude of cleanliness. On the farther side the room overlooked a pergola that later would be covered with crimson ramblers. Sweet, clean odors and pleasant sounds. The stuffy smells of the alley back of Meg's place and the clang of the "L" rattling the window of the pawnship had no part in his conscious recollection, but his subconscious mind—that plexus of sensation and emotion and secret record room of experience—was leaning out gratefully to this sensuous peace and awareness of well-being.

From the day he learned his story, concocted by Roselius, Canuck had been like an explorer opening eyes on a new world. In three days more he had been up and about. In five, with a cloth cap over his white bandage, he had taken his place with the staff of the lib-lab and was at work on some simple task.

"Slow at first," Roselius had cautioned Faris, his chief analyst. "He's got a long way to go yet. He's lost pretty much everything, but it'll come back. Just let him find his way. And no talk about his injury or lost memory, mind! Tell the others that, too."

This had been Canuck's introduction to the work, experiments with filter and retort, with textures and pigments and strange electrical appliances, to which before long he was to thrill gorgeously, even though he could not follow their intricacies.

During these months he had been a puzzle to himself. The threads that bound him to the old life were invisible ones—instincts and appetences that were involuntary, acts repeating themselves automatically from the ingrained habits of the past. He had no understanding of these any more than he had had understanding of the impulse that had seized him at sight of the pearls and the open window; for between him and the select coterie of the rear room at Meg's place, between this present and all the past of the old Canuck, lay a gulf of oblivion as deep as the sea. And with the resurgence of old instinct and habit there had crept from their coverts the dwarfed and almost forgotten longings of his childhood for color and beauty.

The stirring and conflict of these things, like blind currents meeting in some undersea cavern, had made each day a separate problem. For he had lost the key to the maze. He was fighting unseen enemies and fighting them mostly in the dark, without knowledge even of the meaning of the struggle. But he had for allies now the satisfaction of material needs, a hope and a future in terms of respect and position, purpose and responsibility.

And under all was the resilience of youth and health and natural high spirits, sweet waters that, now the damming barriers of discontent and hatred had been swept aside, strove to have their way.

But he suffered from a recurrent sense of unreality and unrest that at times amounted to positive torture, and he was struggling with this today.

He groaned and bent to the book:

> "The pressure exerted upon the walls of a vessel containing a mixture of gases is equal to the sum of the pressures which the single gases would exert were they alone in the vessel."

"I'm beginning to get outside of it," he said aloud, "but it beats me how I could forget all that and yet still know so many things. How is it I can still read at all, for instance?"

HE lighted a cigaret and, frowning, looked far away across the miles to the murky cloud that meant New York.

"Strange!" he said aloud. "I don't remember any more than I did the day I came to, after the burglar pinked me. Born in Belgium and I don't know a cuss about it! I can't laugh that off!"

It was curious; yet, after all, it had been the same with New York—where he motored so often with Mr. Roselius. Before the first trip he couldn't have told whether he'd ever set eyes on it. But he had known every street as well as he knew his pocket—when he had once seen it. Perhaps he had crossed the ocean before—Mr. Roselius apparently didn't know about that. He never had been inside St. Patrick's cathedral or the Metropolitan Museum of Art. But he knew all about the inside of the movie house at the corner of Forty-second street and Seventh avenue. He remembered a whole lot about little old New York! Probably when he saw Brussels he'd remember it, too.

"But, O boy!" thought Canuck. "What I've forgotten about some things! Mr. Roselius must think Uncle Prosper passed him a lemon. When you get down to brass tacks, I can still read and write and figure some, but that's about all. Since I used it to stop that lead pill, my skull's mainly a frame for features!"

The rides with Roselius had been apparently aimless and desultory, but wherever they went—Battery, Bowery, or Bronx—it had been Roselius' habit to talk of what they saw: of old New York and its history, of the modern metropolis and its vast achievement, of the New York of the future, with great buildings spiring yet higher and the pressure of population catacombing yet deeper; painting with his magic phrase pictures that stamped themselves ineffaceably on the young brain.

Sometimes, as they rode, Roselius would talk of the basic factors of city life—food, housing, wages. The beef and grain grown in the Argentine or Australia, coming to the great wholesalers, by them distributed to the corner stores, and so reaching the individual. Money, exchange, capital, labor, opportunity; one by one he traced them from far beginnings to the man on the street—to Canuck himself, sitting beside him in the throbbing motor. No cudgeling with stolid facts or dusty dates or outworn fetiches. Canuck absorbed this teaching as he breathed, without knowing that he did so. And now and then, at some comment or quick question of his, Roselius' deep set eyes would gleam and he would rub his hands together and chuckle, "Ah, it would take your Uncle Prosper to answer that!" Or, "When Florian comes over next fall, we'll put that up to him."

The panorama of the eye must needs be supplemented by the printed page, and Roselius had been driven to ransack his mem-

TEMPTING MENUS FOR THE WEEK

ANNOUNCING MELEAGRIS GALLOPAVO

TOM TURKEY'S annual trot to the honored center of our national table via the oven is at hand. It is said that by a similar route—namely, roasted—he was presented to the Spanish invaders by Montezuma as the most delicious of viands when that Aztec symbol of wealth entertained these Europeans in splendor. This would seem to indicate that we must not be too narrowly national in considering the genealogy of our most festive meat.

The Spanish invaders, and later European travelers, especially those of sporting instincts, were the means of giving the turkey to the cuisine of the world, and though the French seem to have thought of the turkey as a native of the Ozarks, the English probably took home from Virginia a prospective meat which was largely to replace their national Christmas viand, the wild boar. In England at Christmas time they set up roast turkey with a necklace of sausages and call him "an alderman in chains."

It was a French writer of the nineteenth century who gave us a sort of Hans Christian Andersen tale of "Meleagris Gallopavo," which is perhaps hog Latin for turkey, or at any rate pig Latin in this tale. It is the story of a vain turkey who came to a sorry end, and of a little gray pig, plain but clever, who called the birds and animals by their Latin names, and ended by living as the very prince of pigs. Erudition does count, sometimes. But in prosperity, and because he was sensible and a sincere pig, he was sorry for his poor friend and "has never since told any turkey that his family name is "Meleagris Gallopavo." Yet he had warned the turkey—enraptured in his pride—to stop his silly noise else "you and I shall go up as the alderman in chains on some horrid man's table." The pig had to explain what that meant to the turkey, who thought it a ghastly pleasantry. He is subject to such, annually, with us.

But the fact is that the turkey has humorous possibilities and it will not hurt our digestion to enjoy these. The gobbler is a prodigiously ridiculous creature, and the hen turkey at her prettiest has little grace, though great piquancy. Yet if we revert to the wild, we find the turkey "America's supreme game bird"—"of racy lines and rare flavor"—a bird that the Father of our Country loved to hunt, while sportsmen to this day hunt wild turkey in Washington's own state of Virginia.

Europeans, first and last, described the wild turkey so many times that those who did not cross the seas may have thought that all North America was a turkey fancier. As Thanksgiving nears it may interest us to recall that our national bird won long ago the heart of Europe, where for some strange reason it was called the Indian cock, and also Meleagris Gallopavo.

RECIPES—From The Tribune Cook Book

Halibut Steak Poached in a Sauce

1 slice halibut
½ cup fish stock
½ cup cream
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 or 2 carrots
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 scant teaspoon salt
Paprika and lemon garnish

HAVE a good sized slice of halibut an inch thick. Sweat a tablespoon or more of chopped onion in a tablespoon of butter without browning it in the slightest. Stir flour into the mixture and then add liquid cold—the fish stock and cream, or a cup of milk may be used. Cook till thick with constant stirring, take from the fire, and add the red part of the carrots cut in thin, long shreds. A little green pepper, cut fine, or pimiento added, will make the dish more of a picture, but it is that anyway if well prepared. Put the slice of halibut into a small buttered baking tin, pour the sauce over it, and lift so that some will run underneath. Cook gently, on no account allowing the sauce to boil and so be reduced. Baste frequently with the sauce. It may be cooked—that is, poached—directly over a gas burner, turned low, in twenty-five minues, or it may be baked in a hot oven in thirty minutes with basting. When it is done take it up carefully on a hot platter of the right size, baste the fish with the sauce so that the strings of carrot will be scattered over the fish ornamentally, and then set the whole under the broiler rather close to the fire so that little brown but not black blisters will form on the sauce. These are ornamental and palatable. A little paprika may be dotted here and there over the dish. Serve at once, dipping sauce over each portion served. Quarters of lemon may be served with this.

Parsnips

PARBOILING.—Parsnips parboiled ten minutes and rinsed in cold water will then cook in about one-third the time usually allotted.

BOILED.—Wash and cut out stem end—do not scrape—and parboil if you choose. Put on to cook with cold water to cover in closely covered vessel. Bring slowly to a boil and cook over a small amount of fire. This method is half boiling and half steaming and small parsnips cook tender in half an hour, largest in hour. If skin was not rubbed off with parboiling, pour cold water over parsnips and rub off skin with back of silver knife.

FINISHING BOILED PARSNIPS.—Boiled parsnips may be mashed, grated, sliced crosswise or lengthwise, used for escallops, for frying, for fritter, etc., or just plain buttered. Cut lengthwise in quarters and then fried they may have a surface which is a foil to the peculiar sweetness of this vegetable, not liked by everybody

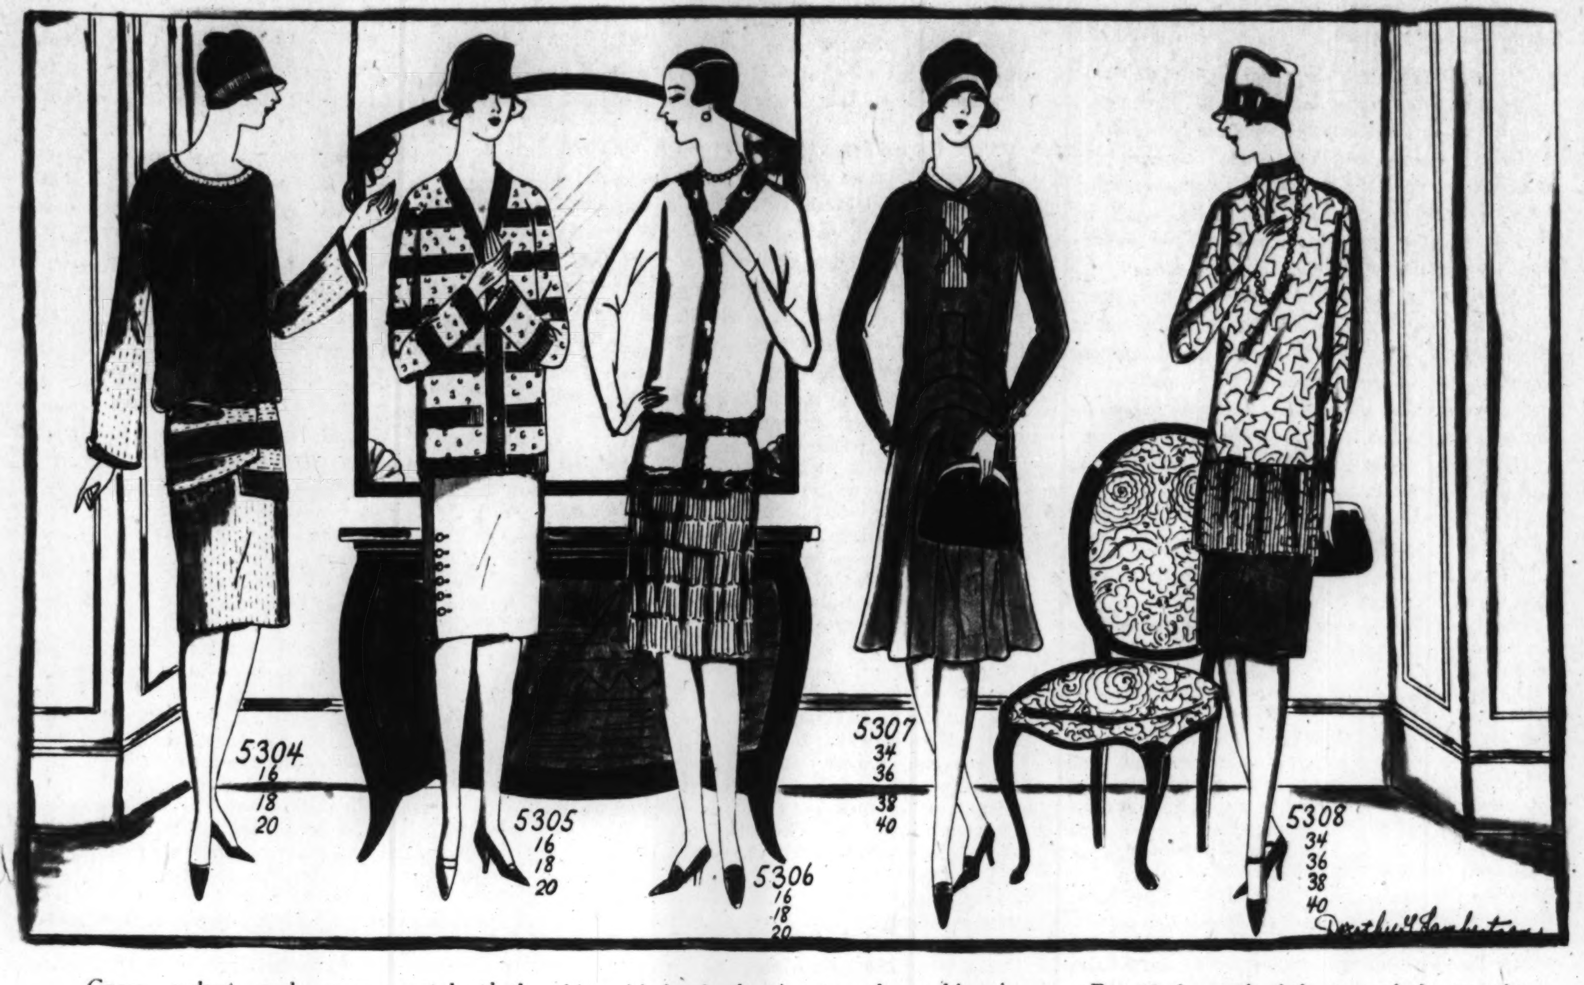
JUMPERS THAT ARE SEVERAL JUMPS AHEAD OF THE MODE

by Corinne Lowe



Green velvet and green metal cloth, sketched at the extreme left, join in the movement for reconciling the jumper mode with the swathed hip-line and the bloused waist-line.

Next, a three piece costume embraces skirt of beige kasha, jumper of matching jersey and a jacket alternating bands of beige kasha with a new clou d'or kasha.

In the center the more formal type of two-piece frock makes use of Chanel red crepe in a model topping a skirt with plaited tiers by a jumper trimmed with rabbit dyed to match.

Fourth from the left, one of the popular navy blue costumes is reflected in a model with unique treatment of circular bands and with touches of plaited rose chiffon.

Last, a metal brocade jumper with plaited flounce and fence collar of velvet almost submerges a skirt of dark green velvet.

THE TRIBUNE MAY MANTON FASHION
BUREAU, BOX 416, GRAND CENTRAL STATION, NEW YORK CITY.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Is the beautiful Lady Caroline of "The Enchanted April" right when she reflects that "clothes gave one no peace till they had been everywhere and been seen by everybody"? Also, that "you didn't take your clothes to parties; they took you," and that "a really well dressed woman never wore out her clothes; it was the clothes that wore out the woman"?

If she be a spokesman of the truth, there is no doubt but the attire of this autumn is bound to prove an especially harsh slave driver, a very Simon Legree. For the new things are so spectacular as to color and fabric that they can't be expected to mope at home. They've got to find "their public."

The events of the last month at Piping Rock indicated several things. One was the sustained popularity of the two piece costume. A second was the prevalence of those three piece costumes made with jacket and skirt of velveteen, contrasted with jumper of jersey in harmonizing tint. A third was the vividness of the color range, a range traveling through all the wine tones of red, the most decorative phases of blue, and a green that plunged from the lightest tint of the sea to the deepest verdure of the jungle.

The furs of the season look as if they had come from a caterer (no, there is no emphasis on "cat"). As a matter of fact, the felix domesticus is not involved in this scheme of dessert-like pelts. Our poor little friend, "B'rer Rabbit," is the chief support in that movement toward smaller and brighter furs. Again and again we find this humble pelt dyed to match the wineiest of red coats and the most verdant of green ones.

Several other furs look, this season, more like fruit skins than animal skins. Just take lynx, for example. This is used frequently on some of the smartest models to set off both cloth and contrasting furs, and one of its most approved tints is that same apricot to which I referred a few moments ago. Another of such apricot flavored wraps noted at Piping Rock was that nutria garment worn by Mrs. Earle T. Smith. This garment, cut on absolutely simple lines, was, however, eloquent of what the up to date furrier is after in his effect. For it was finished by mammoth bands of the apricot dyed lynx set two inches above the wrists on the sleeves and by another wide band placed several inches above the hem. And, of course, another bit of the lynx functioned in the collar.

Aside from exploiting wraps, these Long Island events invited us once more to consider in just how many ways we can vary the two piece frock.

Let us start with the one at the extreme left. One glance at this will persuade you that just because you choose a jumper theme you don't have to choose uniformity. Here, in fact, is a model so absolutely unlike every one of its relatives that you can hardly trace it to the same family tree.

It is made of dark green velvet combined with green metal cloth, and the jumper, in order to conform with the edict concerning the bloused motif, finishes with a lower section that wraps tightly about the hips after the manner of a gypsy girdle. This girdle-like termination of the bodice, with its irregularity of front length, is undoubtedly the salient point of the frock. Nevertheless, the combination of fabric alone would be sufficient to insure attention.

The metal cloth appearing in the skirt is utilized also for sleeves that emerge from a tiny cap of the velvet. It also appears in two bands on the jumper, and a touch of it outlines the round décolletage. The completing touches on the model consist of a narrow turn back fold of velvet on the metal cloth sleeves and of a velvet covered button adjusting the lower section of the jumper.

This is, needless to say, one of the more elaborate types of two piece costumes. Even more formal is the one sketched in the center. Here we have a silk crêpe which you may develop in numerous ways. One is to select a Chanel red, a Valencia blue, or a popular green. Another is to combine a beige jumper with a brown skirt of self-material. Still another is to choose black for the skirt and gray for the upper section. As to the value of this last suggestion, do not forget the waxing strength of this same alliance of gray and black.

Let us, however, suppose that the model be carried out in the monotone, and we shall choose for that the ubiquitous Chanel red. The skirt is obviously one of those tiered and plaited affairs and, although this kind of skirt is always graceful, it is of secondary interest as compared to the jumper. Absolutely, here is one of the newest and most unhackneyed ways of going about the dressy two piece costume. You make the jumper look like the old fashioned Russian blouse.

In this case the resemblance to the moujik's blouse is made more emphatic because of the fact that fur is used for the outlying sections. This fur is—yes, but of course it is rabbit, and all dyed to match the red of the background.

In our last model of two piece frock—the one at the extreme right—we find a long jumper of metal brocade finished with a plaited flounce and choosing for its neckline a fence collar of the green velvet forming the skirt. These penurious little collars of oriental inspiration are a theme sustained in the autumn program, and to certain women they are infinitely more becoming than either the V or the oval décolletage.

On this autumn bill of fair women we encounter as one of the specialities, not the tuber but the tube—with its jacket on. That is to say, the tube silhouette topped by a short, jaunty little coat, is so much the cry of the hour that even men of my acquaintance say absent-mindedly, "Say, aren't women wearing a lot of jackets nowadays?"

As I remarked previously, these jacket suits are so often in velveteen. Usually the costumes of this character are finished with a jersey jumper in lighter tone. Thus, a wine red velveteen will disclose a jumper of pink jersey or a hunter's green velvet will bring into relief a light green jersey.

But all types of three piece costumes are good, and we present as possessing unusual novelty the second model from the left. The combination is a kasha skirt in natural color, complemented by matching jersey jumper and completed by a jacket alternating plain kasha with clou d'or kasha.

Although not bearing directly upon my theme, the fourth sketch shows something so good and unusual that it really couldn't wait for another week. Look at the front of this navy twill frock. Don't you feel exactly as if you were peering at the diagram of the Metropolitan Opera house and were just about to murmur, "Dress circle, please"? Well, it is indeed a dress circle—and a charmed one at that—all achieved by circular bands applied in horseshoe effect and giving the smartest sort of flare. For the rest, a vestee, collar, and cuffs of plaited rose chiffon.

And don't forget these navy blue creations are exactly what Paris is telling us to do!

MATCHMAKINGS By CAROLINE S. KRUM

Fate Has a Way of Shuffling the Cards So That the Most Unexpected Pair Come Up Together

JIM and I have been married three years; so, of course, we're full of advice to young people about to take the fatal step. Worse than that, we're potential matchmakers—most couples who have had three years together of fun and tribulations are. We decided to get married rather hastily: so hastily, in fact, that we forgot to take our families into our confidence. But they, being old dears, soon recovered from the shock and found they were quite pleased with us, after all. Jim works for a substantial magazine, and he's a person with lots of ideas and a boyish grin. My family is fond of telling their friends that I married him for his ideas—I believe ideas are supposed to be money makers, aren't they? —but I'm inclined to disagree. I know it was the grin.

Anyway, we don't have a bad time of it at all, and we're always on the lookout for an unsuspecting pair to help toss into shackles. So it was natural, when Tom Billings laid down his violin, which he plays much too well for a chemist, over at the Putmans' that evening and remarked that he was looking for a frail old widow with lots of money, that Jim and I should prick up our ears.

"Why not a young one, Tom?" asked Jim, setting down his empty highball glass. "Get 'em young and rich. Treat 'em rough and make 'em like it."

Dick Putman roared. He knew that I didn't have a cent when Jim married me (not that I have now!) and that of all people in this topsy-turvy world Jim Tilden is probably the gentlest. But Jim has a way of saying things as if he knew all about everything.

"Every one wants that kind, these days," remarked Tom. "I know a dozen fellows looking them over until just such a one comes along."

"Don't be an idiot, Tom," I put in, looking up from the weekly magazine I had been pretending to read. "All you boys talk like that, and then one fine day you run off and propose to the poorest girl you know, because she looks, or cooks, or dresses, or dances like an angel from heaven."

"Not me." Tom had taken up his violin again and was starting Kreisler's "Venetian Bells."

"Ask Tom up to dinner Monday evening," I whispered to Jim under cover of the music. "I'll get Jane Simmons over. She's here doing some special research work for a Boston hospital, and she wears such funny clothes Tom'll never suspect she has a couple of cool million dollars. It ought to be a circus."

It just happened, of course, that Jim's sister, Joyce, blew into town that Monday. She's a darling, a widow—one of those hasty war marriages, you know, that were such a sign of the times, and when her husband died it was a clean, sharp blow that left her stunned for a while, but with a small income and lots of time on her hands. She's been using her legacies to forget and have a whirl with ever since, and Jim and I occasionally worried about her when we read that she was in Palm Beach or Monte Carlo or Santa Barbara with the gay young so-and-so's. However, she's a peach at heart, and Jim always said she'd marry another decent and reliable chap some day. Jim's so often right about things I never argue.

So when I knew she'd be with us I invited Terrence Newell to come in and make the dinner party an even six. He'd been wild about Joyce for years—too wild about her to make it interesting, I expect. Anyway, they were all asked for seven o'clock, and my maid-who-comes-in-by-the-day was staying to get dinner, so I could at least look like a hostess.

TOM arrived first. He hadn't brought his violin, as we have no piano, but he had a bottle of gin—being a chemist, we knew it was good—and a tiny French drip coffee pot that Jim has wanted for ages. Just as he and Jim were arguing as to the real New Orleans way of making French drip Joyce walked into the room in the wickedest dinner gown I've ever seen. She looks, as Jim always says, like a million pound sterling when she's dressed for the evening, and Tom couldn't keep his eyes off her.

As a matter of fact, Joyce has a clever little dressmaker, and her clothes cost less than mine, which is saying something. O, Joyce is smart! She can make a dollar last longer than any one I ever knew. I don't know why she had to get that streak, while it's completely missing from Jim's makeup, but it's like that, sometimes, in families. And just after Joyce had made her triumphal entry Jane came in, in a really French frock that looked like the wrath of God on her. Tom bowed politely, but that was all.

I did the best I could to throw Jane and Tom together. I sat them beside each other at dinner. When we cut in for bridge I almost cheated to have them left over while Joyce and Terrence played Jim and me. Jim isn't so good at bridge, and the first rubber was ended in no time, which left Tom and me out. I took Tom into the kitchen on the pretext of mixing Tom Collinses.

"Isn't Jane wonderful?" I breathed, tensely.

"Wonderful!" Tom was rapturous—for a second. "But I thought her name was Joyce," he added, suddenly.

"Joyce is Jim's sister. I mean Jane Simmons."

"O—Jane. Yes, she seems a peach. But Joyce is a knockout. Looks like a bit of Paris."

"Joyce is clever. Manages on nothing at all. Makes the pennies go a mile." I was base, I admit, but I was desperate. "But Jane is the wonder. She knows all about music—loves it almost more than anything else."

I nearly had him there. If there was one thing Tom Billings adored it was music. He should never have been a chemist. A flicker of interest appeared in his face.

"She looks like an awfully interesting girl, Madge," he conceded. And just then, of course, Joyce had to come out to announce that it was Tom's turn to cut in. I could have slain her. I hadn't even had time to hint of Jane's millions.

"Joyce, you lay off Tom," I admonished her. We are old friends and good ones. We give and take and never get angry. "Terrence is eating his heart out. You never looked at him once during dinner. He'll never forgive you." I was being politic—Joyce loves vamping and seeing 'em suffer, but she does like Terrence. Perhaps that's the trouble.

Jim laughed at me as we climbed into bed.

"O, what a great little matchmaker you turned out to be!" he whispered. Our flat is small, and voices carry. Joyce's room is next to ours. "Try to throw Jane and Tom together, and with Joyce around she hasn't a chance. You might have known it."

"I didn't ask Joyce here tonight. She just naturally dropped into things by coming to visit us for a fortnight. What could I do?"

"Well, don't get excited about it. Wait and see —something may happen." Jim was almost asleep. Mere things like making matches wouldn't keep a man awake.

The telephone rang before Joyce was up next morning. I knew before I answered that it would be Tom—asking for Joyce. It was.

She clambered out of bed, looking adorable in a peach colored georgette nightie that fairly screamed Rue Royale at you. I was only thankful telephones didn't have eyes.

They went to lunch that day. I knew they would. They went to see "The Green Hat" that night. I could have picked the play for them. Poor Tom! He wanted a rich widow, not a poor but beautiful one. Poor Jane! She would have been glad of a husband. But what could I do, having gotten them all into it?

I didn't see Jane for a fortnight. Of course, she hadn't been in on the plotting, but she might have had a suspicion. I decided to call her up as soon as Joyce left for New York. I was lunching with Do Putnam one day and caught a glimpse of Terrence, departing from the restaurant in the wake of some girl. I hadn't looked up in time to recognize her, but he waved at me cheerily. I was surprised; he must have known that Joyce was tearing around everywhere with Tom Billings, whom she had met at our house.

That evening the telephone rang just as we finished dinner. It was Jane.

"Busy tomorrow afternoon about four?" she asked. There was something in Jane's dear voice, usually calm and low, that made me make a mental cancellation of the tea I had intended going to.

"No, dear. Why?"

"Would you and Jim like to come to—a wedding?" It was broken, just like that.

"Jane!" I screamed. I could hear Jim in the living room snap his book shut.

"Won't you?" She was maddening.

"Whose?" I managed to ask, most inanely.

"Mine—and Terrence's."

I just gasped. I couldn't answer. Jim came and took the receiver and told Jane that she and Terrence must come right up that minute, that of course we'd be with them, and to hurry.

I flopped on the couch.

"Well, you've done that." Jim had come back into the room and was grinning. Somehow, when he grinned, everything seemed suddenly sane and reasonable and perfectly as it should be.

Just as we were beginning to talk it over the telephone rang again. I heard Jim mutter, "What now?" as he went to answer it.

And then I heard him say, "Hello! O, hello, Joyce! What! Well—could you and Tom make it at five tomorrow? You see, Madge and I've just made a date for four——" ory for records of his half-starved boyhood, the hours spent in the old Astor library in Lafayette place, the books he had pored over of winter nights in his garret, the magic pages of the masters of fiction and history.

THE MAGIC MAN - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - By Hallie Erminie Rives

Canuck had not known that the books he found from time to time on his night stand had been part and parcel of Roselius' plan. But what he read in the beginning haltingly and with tedium had come at length to sparkle with unsuspected interest.

The dead-lift that at first had left him stranded was the text book in chemistry. It made him feel a weakling.

"Damn it!" he would say to himself. "I learned all this once, years ago, in Brussels. It's in my head somewhere—it didn't all run out of that hole in my skull!" He had set his teeth and gone on plugging away and in the end had done it.

For he had at last the great inspirer, the will to accomplish. It is this that works the world's wonders, wins its wars, creates its wealth, and dreams its inventions.

Canuck had lost the furtive look, the instinctive glance over the shoulder, the fleeting expressions that during those first weeks had risen intermittently to the surface from the deep hidden well of the past. His lips were growing firmer, his habitual frown was softening, his hands had given over their twitching, and his brown eyes their roving restlessness. The nerves were reacting to new stimuli, as the muscles were moving to new sets of impulses.

In the weeks of convalescence Rose had been impelled no less by a desire to aid her father's sociological experiment than by that instinct of pity that lies so deep in true womanliness and was like a warm current in her blood. With a singular separateness in the months that followed she had felt herself feeling with Canuck as she watched his conflict and dismay while he strove to take hold on the new order of things, with no knowledge, happily, of the old one that lay shrouded in forgetfulness. It was not to be long, too, before interest and pity were reinforced by liking and the impulse to help him for his own sake.

While Canuck's mind was finding itself and reaching out blindly for help in his strenuous battle for adjustment, this impulse had expressed itself along practical lines. His alleged relationship to Dr. Florian, his presumed birth and name, made certain demands which must be met. He must have companionships and social contacts, for this reason alone if for no other, and in these contacts he must live up to his conferred character. Even in an age of easy freedom from the small conventions that chastened more formal pre-war generations there are a hundred amenities of daily life and intercourse —the badges of the initiate—not affected in poolroom, doubtful night clubs, and back rooms such as that which gave its familiar appellation to Meg's place. Many of these, it was obvious, Canuck had to learn. But his accident would account for lesser lapses, and Rose had very early distinguished in him, to her delight, a quick sensitiveness that gave him an increasingly greater responsiveness to suggestion, and underneath his fun and whimsical humor an alert and observant eye. And his injury was a bridge over which he was able, with her, to pass from embarrassment to commonplace.

"Look here," he said to her one day, "seems to me everything is all messed up with a lot of rules—talking and eating and dressing—guess I've slipped them with all the rest of it. But you just keep calling time on me whenever I make a foul, and I'll get 'em back again."

It had been a slow and a gradual process and progress. The occasional summons by Roselius, from the laboratory mess to a luncheon downstairs, had become a regular three times a week occurrence, supplemented before long by frequent dinners en famille, as often as not with Miss Thorp present, wrapped in a prim dignity from which Roselius' choicest gibes glanced like the Lilliput arrows from Gulliver's eyeglasses. These had begun as ordeals to Canuck, but they had soon become a tonic and a stimulant.

Golf in the latest autumn days and sessions on the tennis court — under Rose's tutelage Canuck had rapidly become no mean antagonist with the racquet — and later, when winter sowed the sound with slush ice, when snow was sifting over the bare trees and leafless hedges and steam made a gray haze over the conservatories, there were healthy hikes along the roads and gatherings about the Melton tea table with groups of her special intimates.

The outcome had pleased Rose inordinately. There had been no smallest hint of that eyebrow lifting reserve which registers the attitude of cruelly critical youth, of covert smiles aside, or innuendo. As the nephew of the famous Florian and one of the staff at the Park, it was natural that the newcomer should have been counted one of themselves without question. But it was a commentary on the highly spiced age of jazz expression and its youthful wiping out of colloquial distinction between social orders that the crisp, slangy audacities instinctive to Canuck, so far from setting him apart as an outsider, were accounted a refreshing originality and piquancy.

In her own liking Rose had gone far. She liked his breezy banter, his openness, his absurd comparisons. She liked his alertness, his wistful, appealing smile. She liked his supple strength and catlike quickness at tennis, the way he wrinkled his forehead when he laughed—a hundred little things about him. Most of all, she liked the courage with which he was fighting. For it was a fight: who should know better than she, who held in her hand the key to the locked door?

AS Canuck sat poring over his textbook Roselius, in his unspeakable gaberdine, with its rents and splashes, came from one of the workrooms.

"Ahoy!" he said. "Don't you know this is Saturday afternoon? Down in the mouth?"

Canuck found a smile. "Some days I feel such a flat tire. I've forgotten such a lot I need to remember. I'm not worth a third of the salary you pay me."

"Pshaw!" said Roselius. "I'm the best judge of that. Never say die; say damn. One of these days it'll come back on you like a tidal wave and you'll remember all the money people owe you, and all you owe other people, and have a hell of a nice, unhappy time!"

He whirled a chair and straddled it, with his arms across the back and his chin on them.

"The brain's a queer thing," he went on. "Like a watch. Today a man's a scholar, a genius. A tiny blood vessel, the size of a knitting needle, ruptures and he's an idiot for the rest of his natural life. The same brain, but all its stores, all its treasures, useless. In your case the lock of the storehouse has gone wrong and the doors won't open."

Canuck stirred unhappily. "I don't talk right, even. I'm always picking the wrong word, just as I'm always picking the wrong fork—little fool things like that. There's so darn many of 'em!"

Roselius guffawed. "Never mind about trifles. That's a mere question of imitation. As a matter of fact, you imagine most of it. But anyway, everything's going to come back. You're going to remember all you forgot—you are, you ARE!"

He tore off his smock and pitched it into a corner.

"I'm going for a five mile tramp," he said. "Got to take a tuck in the belt line or I'll look like a kangaroo." He plunged down the stair, took his hat and stick, and set forth across the lawn.

Skirting the lake, he paused at the studio where Rose was working at her modeling. It was one-storied, built of unpainted cedar, with walls constructed in movable panels, like those of a Japanese house, which slid back, one over the other, laying the whole place open to air and sunshine. The cool March breeze rumpled her hair as she worked in her Shetland tunic at the clay board. She was shaping a pair of book ends, two horses rearing against a bulwark, and Sun Smoke, her saddle horse, tethered to a tree just outside, for model, pawed and nickered his disapproval of art and his longing for a sensible canter.

As he went by Roselius put his head inside. "Thought it was today you had that fracas at the country club."

"The thé dansant? So it is, Rah-rah. I'm just about to knock off. I'm going to take Pierre."

The smile lingered in Roselius' deep eyes as he passed the Tudor lodge and the tall wrought iron gates flanked by their pillars of gray stone, and tramped along the frost-hard highway. His thought was on the problem that was working out.

He plunged his hand into a pocket to find his Buddhist rosary. His fingers slid along the polished beads and, as he thought, his mind went out on a dream of far horizons.

If man, following the thought of the Creator, had outdone Nature; had fashioned from coal tar dyes more enduring than she gives to bark or berry or insect—spun from wood a thread softer and stronger than the silkworm's —made from the mineral a more perfect wax and from the wayside weed a clearer sirup than ever honey bee distilled—man would in the end rule the spiritual world as he was conquering the world material. He would root out crime and degradation. Man! Of all created things, sole dreamer of an earthly Paradise, and after that of a city, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens!

He strode on, his ruddy face uplifted to the blue dome of sky.

As Rose crossed the faded lawn to the house—her soft clay sprinkled and swathed in its cerements of wet linen and her equine model back in his stall—lovely and straight backed, with her bobbed copper hair glistening in the sunlight, Canuck looked down from his window and caught his breath. She belonged to Melton. Just as the Blue Garden belonged to it, and the dark shadows of the tree boles, the marble benches, hedges, and peacock. It was all perfection, and she was that. And he, Pierre Florian, was calling her by her first name, playing tennis with her, joking and laughing with her every day!

He pulled himself together with a jerk. She was glancing up at the window by which he sat.

"Hello, up there!"

He put out his head. "Hello, down there!"

"Something tells me I'm to take you motoring. Are you on?"

"Surest thing you know!"

"Twenty minutes then. Put on some clean rags, for we're going to stop somewhere."

He bolted for his room, dressed like a cyclone, and went downstairs, where he waited three-quarters of an hour, Rose being a member of the eternal sisterhood to whom a measure of time is a variable rather than an exact quantity. When she appeared she wore a white sport suit and a tiny close felt hat with a silver buckle.

The car was her own fast little two seater, and he took the wheel with the thrill that the feel of a motor's mechanism always gave him.

They rode some time in silence, he acutely conscious of her nearness. Then she said, with mischief in her tone:

"I'm not taking you to your funeral, you know."

It drew a ragged laugh out of him.

"Don't mind me," he said. "I get that way once in a while."

"Hard sledding?"

"It's hell—awful. Now and then I feel so right up against it. Walled in. Sometimes I almost wish that burglar'd been a little better shot."

She turned her head away sharply. It was a moment before the curious tremor passed.

"Did Rah-rah tell you he had another letter from Dr. Florian this morning?" she asked presently.

He nodded. "Uncle Prosper can't be much of a pen pusher. He sends me a glad word once in a while by your father, but that's all. He was a good scout, but I've got a hunch that I never made much of a hit with him over on the other side. He was just about as fond of me as a mosquito bite. Aunt Hélène's more to the good. I write to her once in a while. She's sent me a lot of picture postcards."

Rose opened her wrist bag and, stooping under the lee of the windshield, patted her nose with a powder puff the size of a quarter; and, watching her sideways, he almost ran the car into a hedge. Then, as she snapped the bag shut:

"Rah-rah's so pleased with the way you're getting on in the laboratory work."

He glowed at that. "No! Is he—honest! He ought to have given me the bird long ago! Anybody else would have. But then he's not like anybody else in the world."

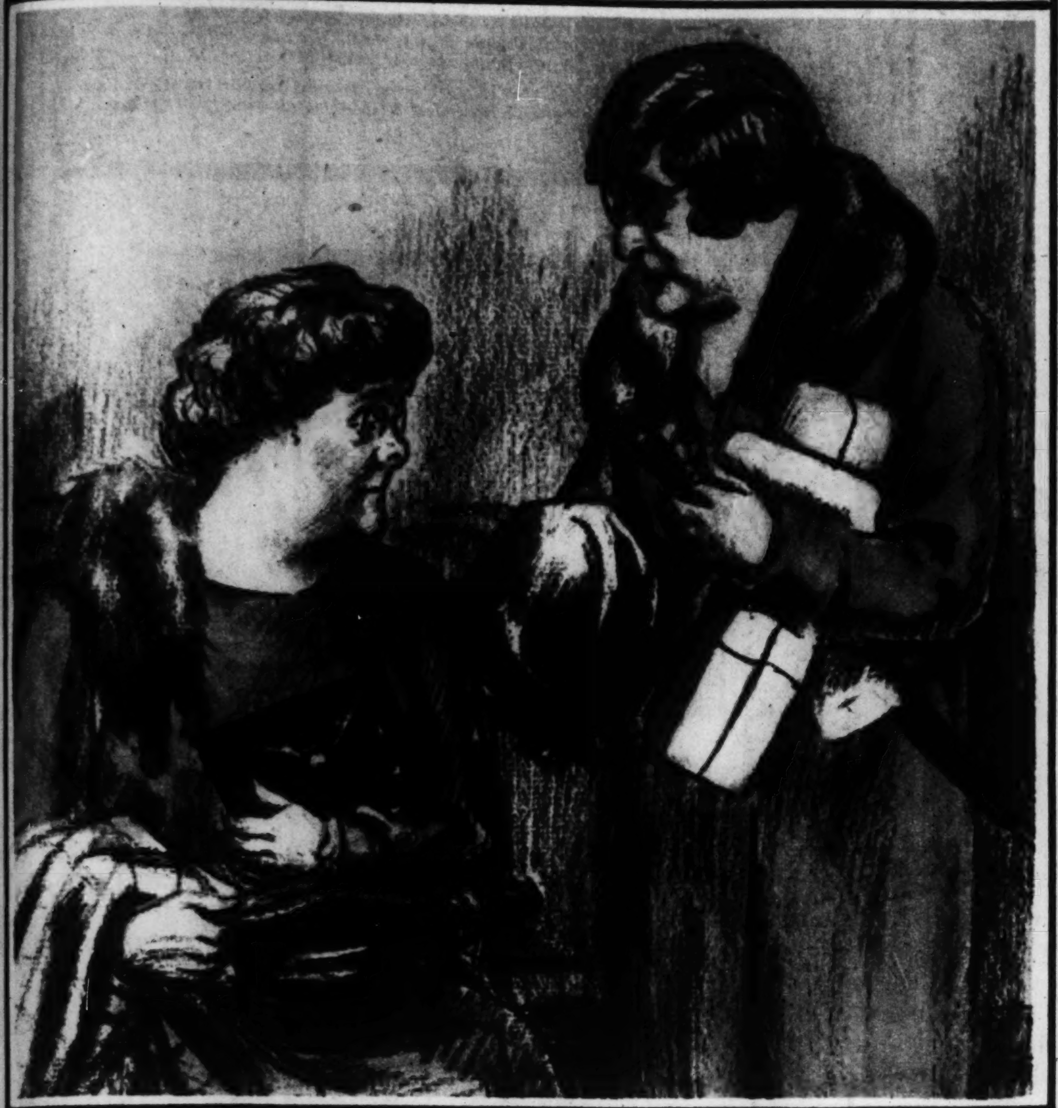
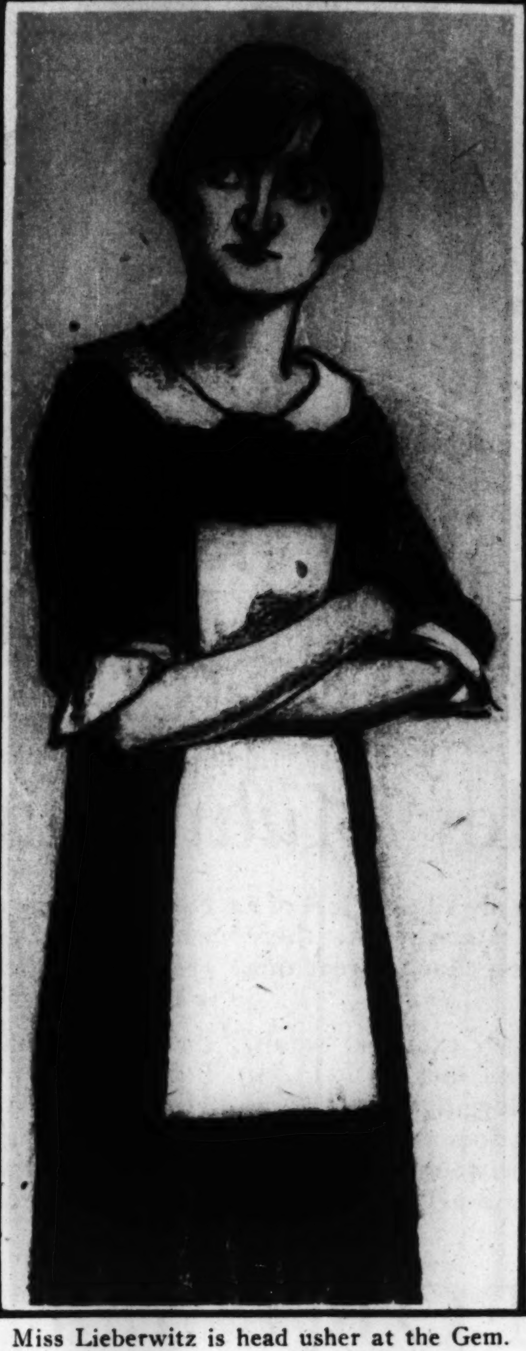
High Noon at the Movies

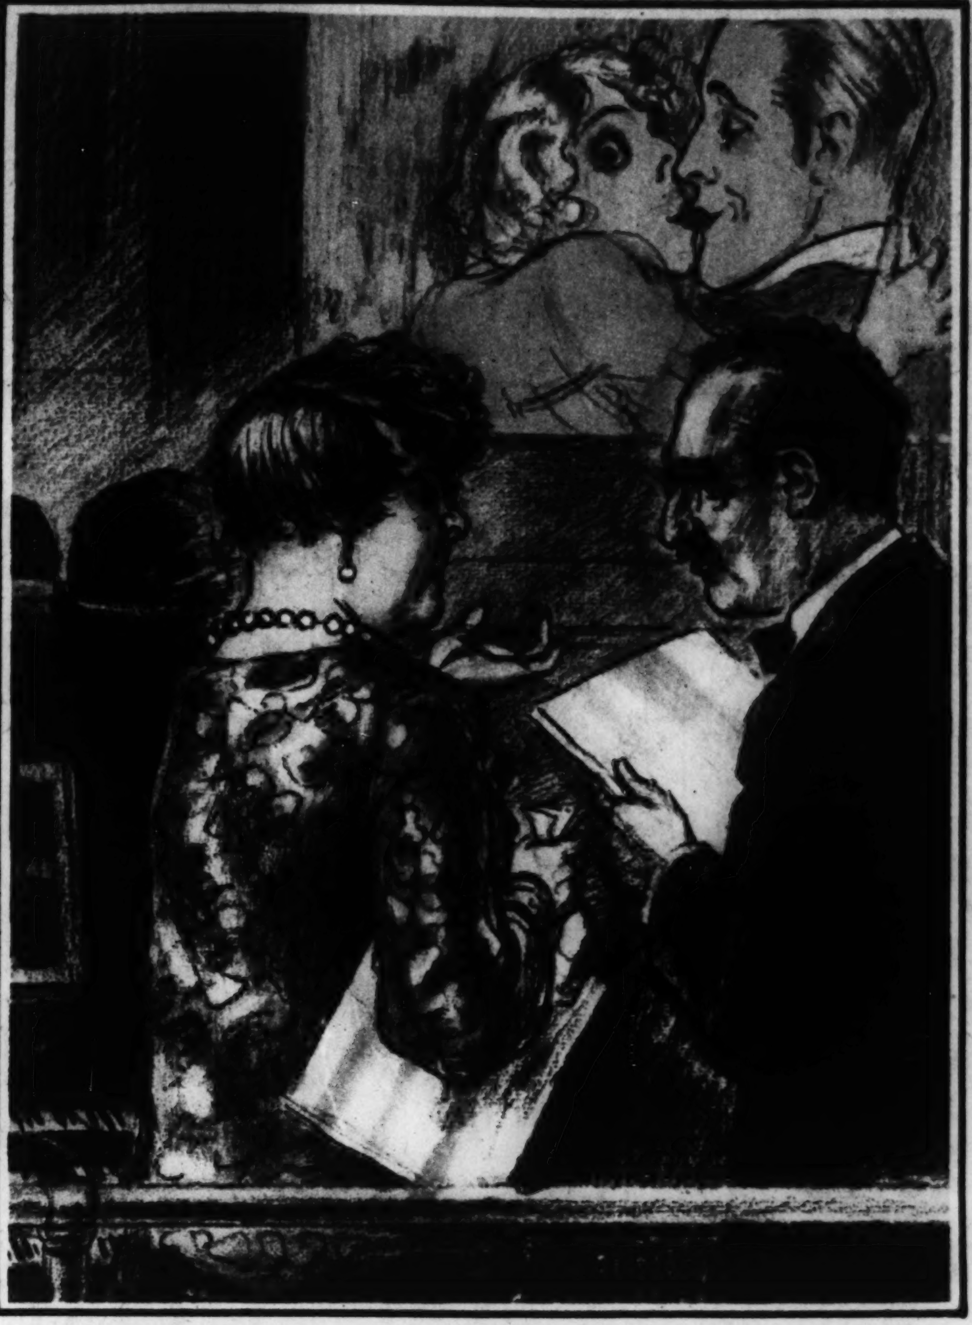
By W. E. Hill



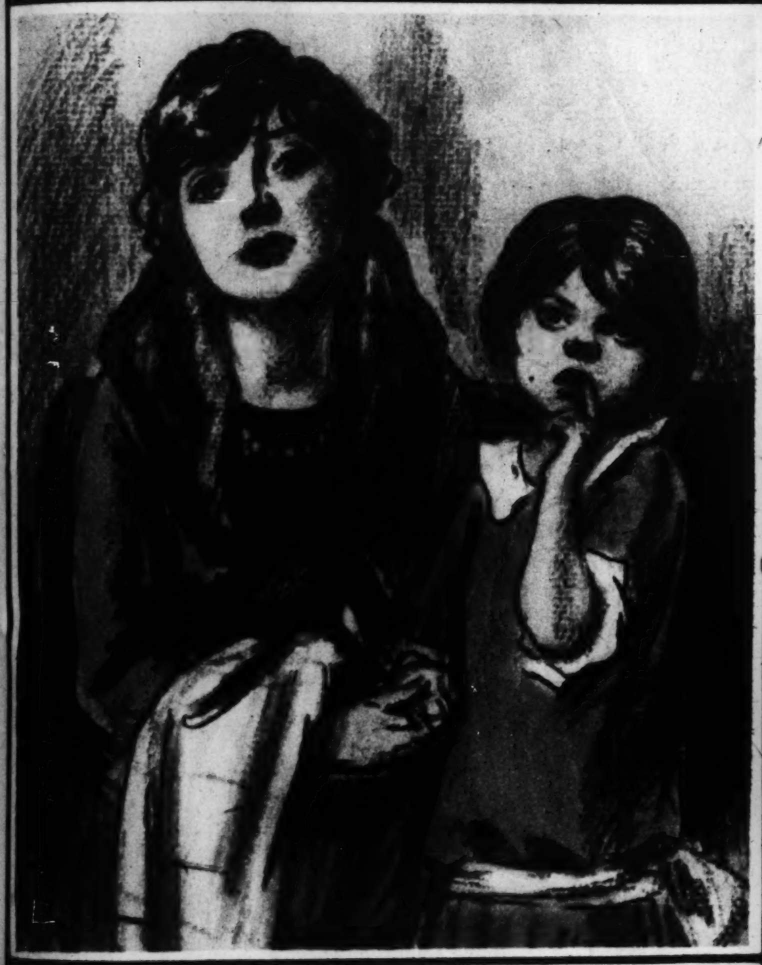
The shoppers. "I remember you had it at the toilet goods counter at Grausman's, Lena. Just stand up and shake yourself. It may drop out of somewhere."



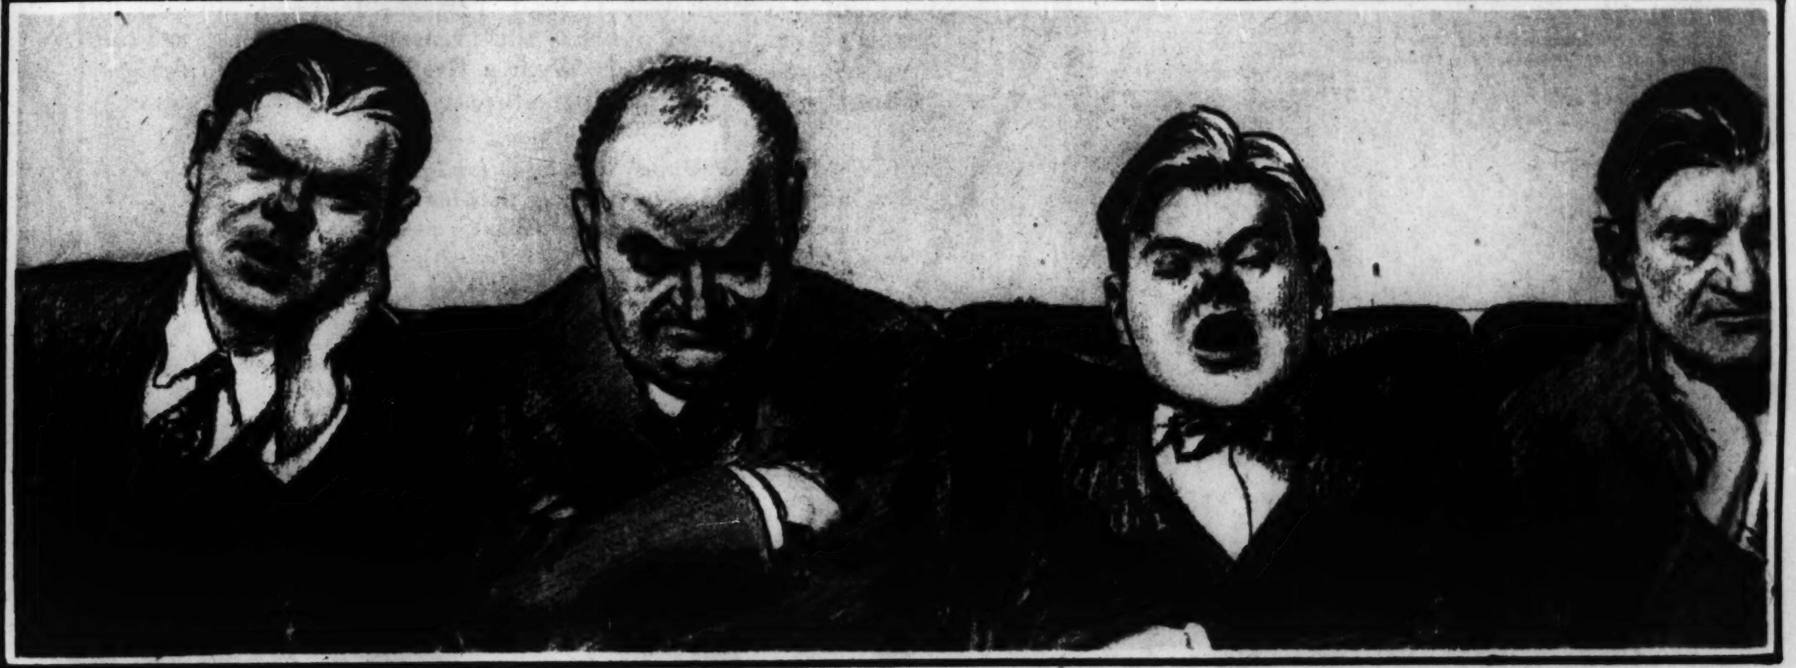
Miss Lieberwitz is head usher at the Gem. Her business it is to see that nobody comes in the exit and that no gentleman keeps his hat on or gets fresh with the lady sitting next. Miss Lieberwitz likes working at the Gem, which is in a pleasantly refined neighborhood and where, to quote her very words, "you can bawl 'em out and get away with it. At the Acme they'd get up and knock you down if you said anything."



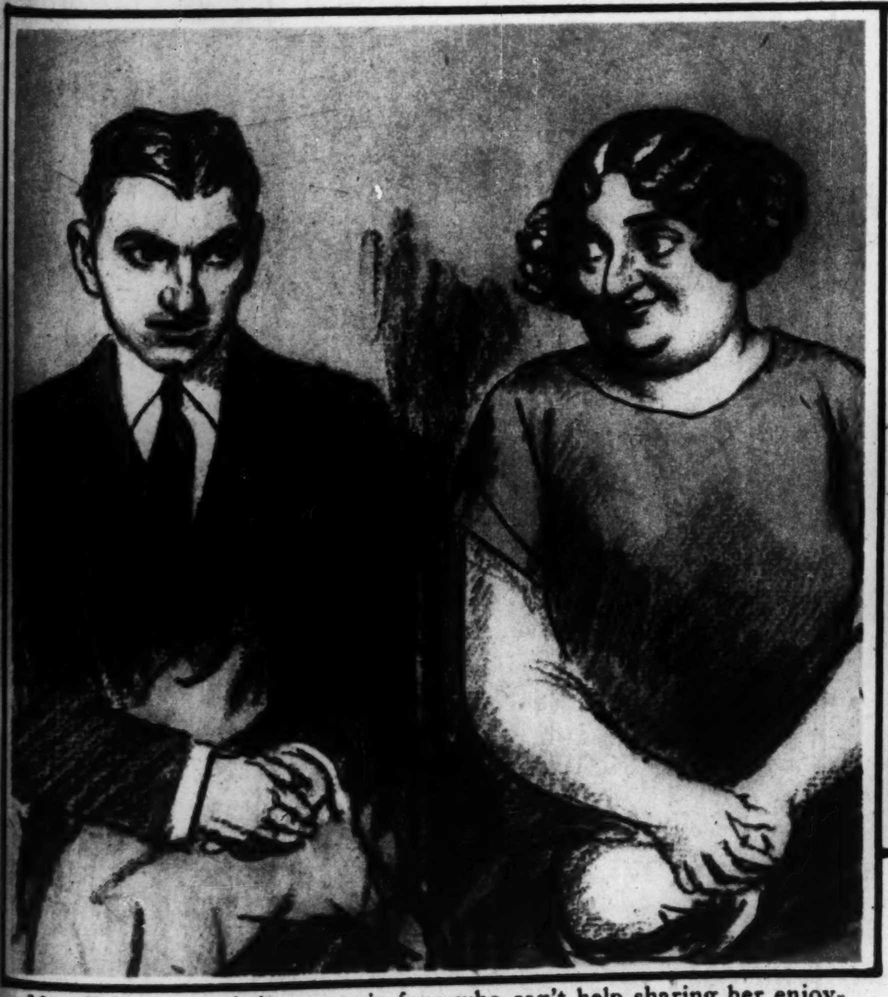
Mrs. McMangle, organist, has been at the Gem for five years now. She and the manager are in a hurried conference over the score. The music for "Her Parisian Sin" is not on hand, so the score for "Her Eleventh Tooth" will have to serve, although, as Mrs. McMangle says, "you won't know the difference on this organ, anyway." Mrs. McMangle is a perfect lady, as you can see by the refined way she is eating plums, not spitting the pits all over the orchestra, as a common employee might do, but keeping them in her hand until she has a chance to toss them under the organ into a corner of the stage box.



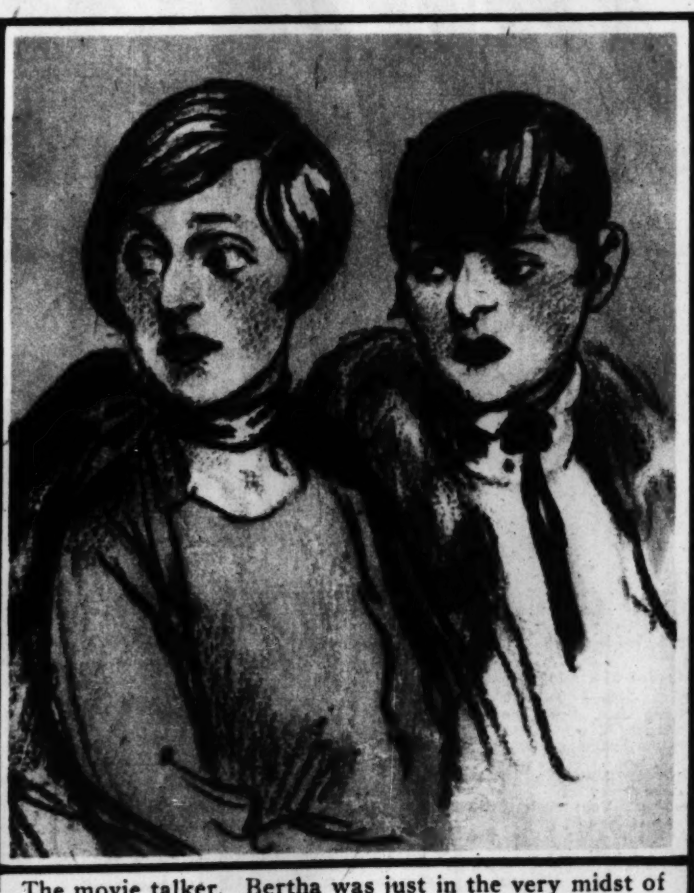
The mother and child. Ethelle is spending the noon hour with mama at a neighborhood movie showing "The Merry Widow." Ethelle, the little dear, is asking mama question after question. "Why don't the lady go home?" she wants to know. "Hasn't she got a home to go to?"



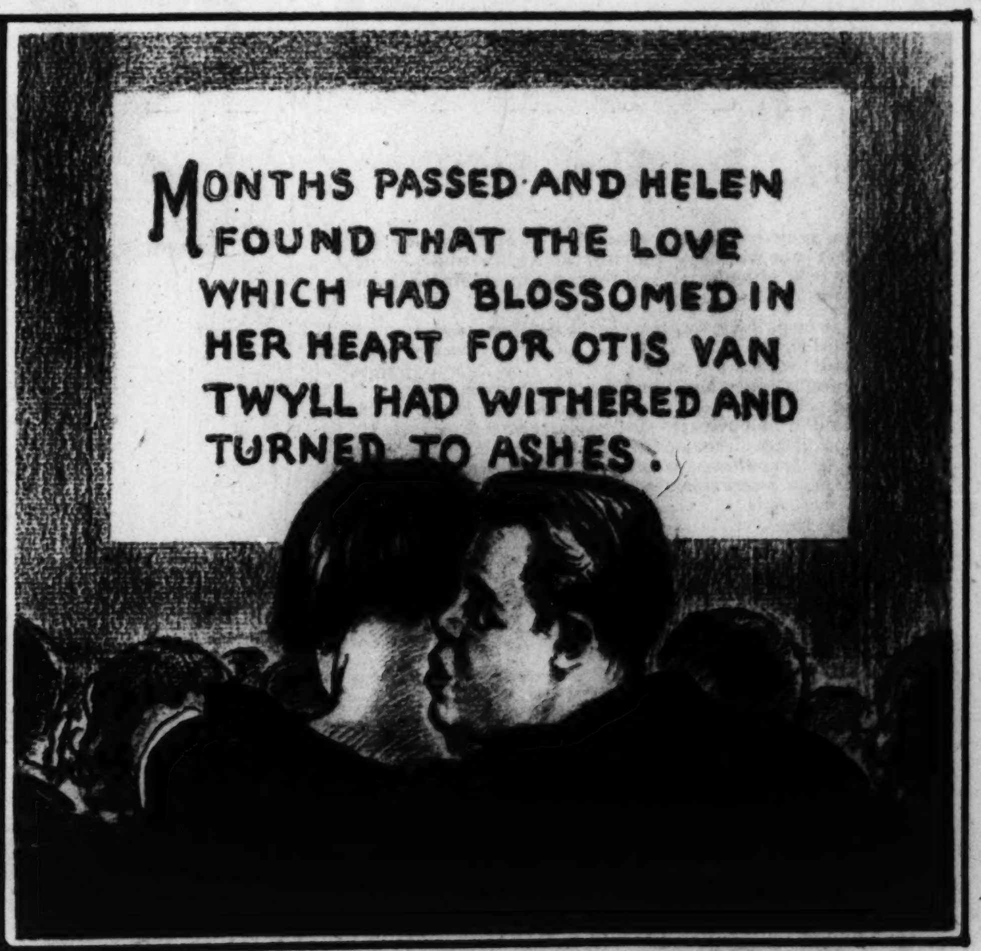
The noon lunch hour in a downtown movie, showing three chauffeurs and one elevator starter enjoying a little hard earned slumber. The handsome boy on the right had a Napoleon and a Swiss cheese sandwich for lunch.



Mrs. Felt is one of those movie fans who can't help sharing her enjoyment. She's just got to nudge some one during the comedy. "Say, isn't he the cutest thing!" she's saying to the shy young man on her right who, under the impression that Mrs. Felt is a wicked vamp, is just about frightened to death.



The movie talker. Bertha was just in the very midst of telling Edna how she simply hated being alone because it seemed to make her think too much, and how she called on Madeline just because she couldn't get hold of anybody else and how all evening she kept wishing she hadn't because Madeline's face looked so pudgy and she'd grown so dowdy it depressed her terribly, when some one behind her shushed her, the rude person! "It's just my luck," complained Bertha, "always to sit in front of some one who wants to listen to the music."



MONTHS PASSED AND HELEN FOUND THAT THE LOVE WHICH HAD BLOSSOMED IN HER HEART FOR OTIS VAN TWYLL HAD WITHERED AND TURNED TO ASHES.

Love's young dream in the dark of the movie palace is a beautiful sight to see. Ida May is reading the captions aloud to Bennie, while Bennie chews Ida May's ear. Bennie is very impressionable and impulsive, Ida May being the coolheaded one. She is the slave of convention, and though they work in the same office, Ida May sees to it that they never ride up in the same elevator. People do talk so!

THE GUMPS
OH, GRANDMA, WHAT BIG EYES YOU HAVE -
AFTER ESCAPING FROM THE CAVE OF DARKNESS THE THREE FRIENDS WANDER THROUGH THE MOUNTAIN WILDERNESS - WHILE UNCLE BIM UPON FINDING CHESTER'S NOTE STATING THEY ARE ABOUT TO PENETRATE THE INTERIOR OF THE MIGHTY CAVERN HASTENS TO FORM A SEARCHING PARTY TO RESCUE THE LOST ADVENTURERS -
SIDNEY SMITH
THE CAVERN PENETRATES THE MOUNTAINS FOR AN IMMENSE DISTANCE - UNTIL THE BLOODHOUNDS ARRIVE IT IS USELESS TO BEGIN OUR SEARCH FOR CHESTER AND HIS BRAVE COMPANIONS -
I KNOW YOUR PLAN IS WISE - BUT I AM BURNING WITH ANXIETY - I SEEM TO HEAR CHESTER'S VOICE CALLING ME TO HELP HIM -
THE NATIVE TRACKERS HAVE ARRIVED WITH THE BLOODHOUNDS -
THANK HEAVEN, WE CAN NOW BEGIN THE SEARCH FOR THE LOST BOY -
I SHALL USE ALL THE RESOURCES OF MODERN ELECTRIC LIGHTING EQUIPMENT TO LIGHT OUR PATHWAY THROUGH THAT DARK CAVE -
ONCE THEY GET THE SCENT THEY WILL FOLLOW IT UNTIL THEY DROP EXHAUSTED -
I BELIEVE THIS DOG UNDERSTANDS WHAT WE EXPECT OF HIM AND IS EAGER TO BE ON THE TRAIL -
I SHUDDER TO THINK OF CHESTER SURROUNDED BY THE DANGERS AND HARDSHIPS OF THIS AWFUL CAVERN -
THE NATIVES SAY THIS PIT IS BOTTOMLESS -
IT APPEARS TO BE THE CRATER OF AN EXTINCT VOLCANO -
NO, THANK YOU - I REFUSE TO THINK OF FOOD UNTIL THE BOY IS FOUND - REMEMBER EVERY MOMENT IS PRECIOUS -
IN THE MEANTIME THE THREE FRIENDS CONTINUE THEIR FLIGHT THROUGH THE MOUNTAINS WITHOUT FINDING A TRACE OF CIVILIZATION -
THIS COMMONPLACE PERSON'S HEART OVER-FLOWS WITH THANKS FOR THIS NEVER-TO-BE FORGOTTEN ENOUGH SPRING -
SOONER OR LATER WE MUST FIND SOMEONE WHO WILL GUIDE US BACK TO UNCLE BIM - GOLLY, I'M GLAD SAM BROUGHT THAT FLINT AND STEEL ALONG - NOW, WE CAN COOK THE BIRD CHING TRAPPED -
IF WE DON'T MEET THE WOLF AND HIS BEGGARLY BAND OF BLACK PIRATES WE'LL SOON REACH PORT AND YOU MAY LAY TO THAT -
OH, BOY! THIS DRUM-STICK TASTES SWELL -
IT IS WRITTEN, HUNGER IS A DELICIOUS SAUCE FOR EVERY DISH -
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
